Where'er he hies he simply flies, the dust behind him thickens; past my abode he burns the road, and kills my pup and chickens. He toots his horn as though in scorn of folks who travel slowly; like falling star his noisy car attains a speed unholy. He does not care for your despair, nor heeds your angry feelings; he scoots and rips and tears and zips, with drunken leaps and reelings. For poor galoot who toils afoot, he does not care a stiver; he scares the mules the farmer tools—they bolt and kill the driver. Along his track, for meters back, his dead and maimed are lying; he merely sniffs at mangled stiffs, and still he goes a-flying. When brought to court this measly sport is taxed a few plasters, when he should wail for years in jail for causing such disasters. Throughout the land this thing we stand—we stand it 'cause we've got to—and all our kicks don't serve to fix the saphead with the auto. Perhaps some time 'twill count as crime to run amuck, doggone it, along the pike, and chase and strike and maim the people on it.

SUMMER SHOWERS

BACK on the old log house in the clearin', there uster be a thatched roof and sumtimes along in the early summer nights the rain would start to play music on them old slabs and I'd drop off to sleep to the sweetest lullaby a boy ever heerd—'cept one.

Summer showers, a still heavy, all-night rain and in the mornin' the trees and bushes, the woods and fields smilin' their thanks arter the cool drenchin'.

Sumhow I've never forgot them soft downpours and I often wisht I could go back to that old log cabin and fall asleep to the song of the rain on the roof. But I can't; all I kin do is remember and live it all ag'in that way and enjoy the summer rains that come to me here at nights and watch fer the smile on the woods and fields to-morrer.

But I wanter say that it pays to listen to the muusic of the rain. There's nuthin' quite so soothin' to tired nerves as the swishin' song it sings as it kisses the thirsty earth and trees. If fer any reason you have missed the lullaby, you'd best listen fer it.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

By Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by A. G. McCLURG & Co., 1912

There was one girl whom Mrs. Gilbert sought as a friend for Gloria. She mentioned it to her husband the first day their guest arrived, and he suggested that she be invited to lunch the next day. Accordingly Mrs. Gilbert telephoned Miss Laura Piper and asked her. For the following day, however, Miss Piper had an engagement. When several other days were mentioned she had engagements for those also. Could she have been made to accept Gloria, the task of conquering Belmont would instantly become less arduous. Her father was head of the great Piper Mining company, and her family was looked upon as one of the most exclusive in the whole state. If Laura Piper would, she could make it extremely pleasant for Gloria. But Laura Piper had her own way and her family's ideas about the Kerr breed, and no matter how nice Gloria might be, she was still her father's daughter.

Mrs. Gilbert reported her lack of success to her husband on his return from his first trip to Chicago, and he mentioned it, almost casually, to David Kerr when they met the next day. The boss inquired the particulars, but made no comment. That he was not unmindful of the episode developed two days later when the Piper Coal company received a complaint from the secretary of the school board that there was an undue quantity of slate in the last coal furnished the public schools. While worrying with this, the company's legal department sent word to the president that the city solicitor had just notified the company that one of the important spurs into an uptown coal yard crossed a street without authority of law.

Old man Piper swore by all the gods in mythology that it was the worst outrage ever perpetrated upon him in all his business life. He had but a day or two to catch his breath before Mrs. Gilbert telephoned at the dinner hour asking Laura to luncheon the next day. The whole thing dawned on him when Laura flounced back from the telephone and announced petulantly that she would not meet that odious Gloria Kerr. He said nothing until after dinner, then calling Laura aside he ordered her to telephone Mrs. Gilbert and withdraw her refusal. His pocketbook having been hit, Piper was willing to make some sacrifice to determine the reason and what he was to expect in the way of further attack. He kept his mouth closed, and waited.

Laura returned from the luncheon with a favorable opinion of Gloria, but she could not forget her parentage. Upon being questioned she told her father she did not care to put Gloria on her visiting list.

"Suppose I have some one to visit me who asks: 'Who is that girl you introduced me to?' complained Laura. 'And I'll have to say: 'That's Gloria Kerr, the boss' daughter.' Then what will the visiting girl think of Belmont society, and what will she think of me? I'm sure I would be surprised if I went to visit anyone and they introduced me to the son or daughter of a man like Kerr."

"Laura," answered her father, "I think you'd better go down to New York for a couple of months."

And two days later Laura went, after having called when Gloria was not at home. She never knew why her father urged her to go.

Piper felt it would be cheaper to pay the expense of a New York trip than to have his company stand the continuous annoyance by which it could be worried, if what he suspected was true. When he inquired about coal for the school board the complaint department reported that the secretary had been mollified but hoped it would not happen again. As for the city solicitor, the legal department refrained from asking anything about the track across the street and that official never wrote again.

Old man Piper kept his mouth shut, but he knew he had been taught a lesson.

Kerr was keeping a sharp eye on things, but his hand was suspected rather than seen in any move that was made. As the time for the ball approached, his rheumatism troubled him more and more, and upon the advice of Dr. Hayes he decided to go to Esmeralda Springs to drink the water. Sam Hayes took him down and came back with the comforting report that he was already better. He was not well enough, however, to return for the ball.

The ball given in honor of Miss Gloria Kerr at the Belmont club by Judge and Mrs. Gilbert was a memorable affair. The ballroom was crowded, and Gloria deserved the praise she received from every quarter on her beauty, her cleverness, and her light-hearted temperament. She did not hear the expressions of regret that she was the daughter of David Kerr. The next morning the Belmont Banner had a two-column head over the story, and gave a long list of names preceded by "among those invited were," instead of by the usual "among those present were." There were a number notable by their absence, but there being a large crowd present and she being a stranger, Gloria did not know this. She was too busy with the men to think of what girls were present.

Truth to tell, it was a fairly representative assemblage, drawn together out of regard for Judge and Mrs. Gilbert and also by curiosity to see what kind of girl Gloria Kerr was. If the president of the Piper Coal company had stopped the poker game at the Belmont club the night before to tell his experience there would have been several young ladies among those at the ball who did not lend the charm of their presence to that occasion.

When Gloria danced with Wright, she searched the line to find a Belmont man to compare with him, and to her thinking there was not one in the same class. As for Wright, his search was over the night they had met again in Belmont.

In their first dance, holding her close as if to shield her from all the world, he called to mind the day at Versailles when together they had wandered through the gardens. Then he had repeated some verses from the book he had given her on her birthday. Now as they danced he whispered:

"Do you remember

Spring in the hills, Beloved,
On the side of a meadowed slope;
And love in our hearts, Beloved,
Love and Spring and Hope."

"I remember. We were going out there again, but you never came back; and so I went alone."

"I wish you had taken our book," he said. He always referred to the book of verses as being their joint property. "It would have told you what I was not there to say."

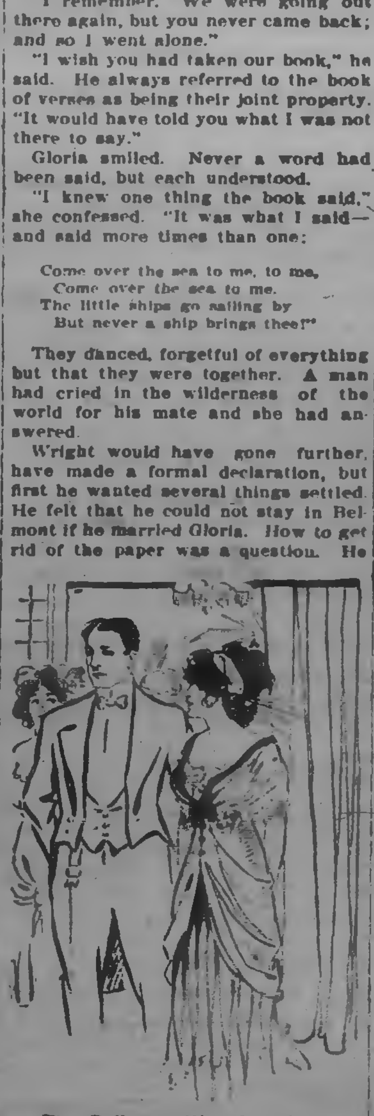
Gloria smiled. Never a word had been said, but each understood.

"I knew one thing the book said," she confessed. "It was what I said—and said more times than one:

Come over the sea to me, to me,
Come over the sea to me.
The little ships go sailing by
But never a ship brings thee!"

They danced, forgetful of everything but that they were together. A man had cried in the wilderness of the world for his mate and she had answered.

Wright would have gone further, have made a formal declaration, but first he wanted several things settled. He felt that he could not stay in Belmont if he married Gloria. How to get rid of the paper was a question. He hoped through a newspaper broker to trade it for one in some other place.



The Ballroom Was Crowded.

Then he and Gloria could begin life there together. The News was beginning to make money, paying its way and leaving something for future payments on the property. Best of all, there was no fight on his hands which would hold him in Belmont.

Mrs. Gilbert came into Gloria's room to kiss her good night after the ball. When they had talked over the affair for an hour the girl cried in the ecstasy of her joy.

"Oh, Mrs. Gilbert, tonight I am the happiest girl in the whole wide world."

On that very night Alderman Grunewald introduced an ordinance giving the Belmont Interurban Railway, a new corporation, right of way down Maple Avenue and making provision that a small depot should be provided for the convenience of patrons at Benton Park.

CHAPTER VIII.

When Wright reached his office the morning after the ball, he found his attorney, Arthur Morrison, waiting for him. He had been drawn to Morrison the first time he had met him and had asked him to take care of the paper's legal business. In this his judgment had not been warped by a sudden friendship, for the young lawyer was worthy of his confidence. Like Judge Gilbert, he had risen from an humble home, but unlike the adviser of Belmont corporations he had made his way independently of the malign influences which constantly seem to seek to attract young men of talent who follow the law as a profession. To him both as his legal adviser and his friend, Wright had talked freely and had rejoiced to learn that Morrison's ideals and hopes for Belmont were the same as his own.

"Even if you hadn't asked me to watch things with you while you are still a stranger to Belmont," Morrison began, "I think I would have come to you. Last night while we were enjoying ourselves a bill was introduced in the council for a car line down Maple Avenue."

"I saw an account of it in the Banner, and thought it strange nothing had been made public before it was introduced. Who wants the franchise?"

"They're under cover. It's the Belmont Interurban Company, a New Jersey corporation, and the men named as incorporators are only dummies."

"That isn't usual, is it, with honest men?"

"I don't know any more about it than you do, but you'd better investigate."

"When does the bill have its next reading?" asked Wright, after considering what was the paper's best move.

"Not until Tuesday night."

"That gives us five days. If we make a noise won't they call a special meeting and push it through?"

"Kerr isn't likely to do that. He's interested, I suppose, but how?"

"We'll get busy today," Wright said decisively. "A few pointed questions on the front page may bring them out from under cover."

In the conference which ensued the two men discussed every possible phase of the question, yet they never dreamed that it was part of the stockyards scheme. What aroused suspicion as much as anything else was that there was nothing they could find on which to base suspicion. When Morrison left it was with the intention of scrutinizing a copy of the proposed ordinance carefully.

Wright sent a reporter to interview Alderman Grunewald, and all other reporters were instructed to find out what the public thought of it and any definite facts that could be brought to light. The city editor himself took an hour off to go to the office of Rosenbaum & Rosenbaum, who it was learned had given Grunewald the bill to present for them.

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR.

Modish New Gown of Flowered Taffeta.

FLOWERED TAFFETA GOWN.

The flowered fabrics of the season make up into charming and effective costumes in the hands of the clever designer. They must be handled skillfully if good results are to be attained. Illustrated here is a dainty afternoon gown of warp printed pussy willow taffeta. Sprays of pink roses are scattered over a green ground which is matched by the green chiffon of the bodice. The little toque is of jet and tulle.

Father's Old Shirts.

Pretty aprons can be made of a man's shirt that has passed its usefulness as a shirt. Colored, white or figured goods make no difference. Take the back of the shirt and gore for the front of the apron, cutting as long as possible. Cut the front of the shirt down the middle, thus making the apron, goring if desired. It makes the apron wider around the bottom to gore the sides. Strings can be made of the sleeves; also a four inch ruffle if cut with care.

For the Bathing Girl.

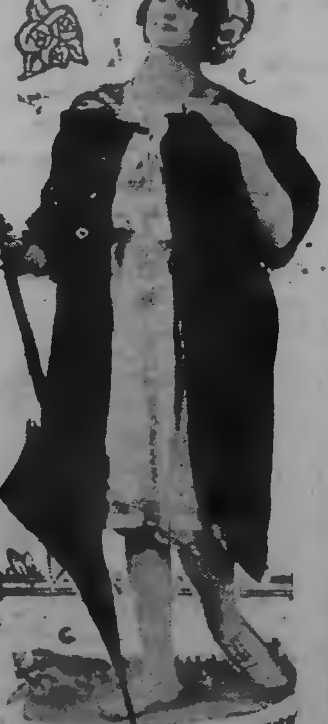
Bathing costumes are already shown in some of the shops, and many models are just as daring as those one might expect for the season. However, a very conservative model is shown here. The bathing dress is built of waterproof silk, with bands of insertion. Of dark silk with a lining of a lighter shade is this beach coat. The head dress is a very modish creation in two shades of silk, caught with a smart buckle at the side.



PRETTY BATHING SUIT.

Securing a Door.

The sudden entry of any person into a room which has a door, but no key or bolt, may be prevented easily. Just lay your brush on the floor, with the handle jammed under the door, or, if it is a very close fitting door, use your toothbrush. If you do this the door cannot be opened without a very violent struggle on the part of the person who wishes to enter. So you may feel just as safe as if you were locked or bolted in.

JUST SUITED EACH OTHER.

R. L. S. and His Wife Were a Care Free Happy Go Lucky Couple.

In his autobiography in McClure's Magazine, S. S. McClure pays a tribute to the character of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson. He says:

"The more I saw of the Stevensons the more I became convinced that Mrs. Stevenson was the unique woman in the world to be Stevenson's wife. * * *

"Mrs. Stevenson had many of the fine qualities that we usually attribute to men rather than to women; a fair mindedness, a large judgment, a robust inconsequential philosophy of life, without which she could not have borne, much less shared with a relish equal to his own, his wandering, unsettled life, his vagaries, his gypsy passion for freedom. She had a really creative imagination, which she expressed in living. She always lived with great intensity, had come more into contact with the real world than Stevenson had done at the time when they met, and tried more kinds of life, known more kinds of people. When he married her he married a woman rich in knowledge of life and the world. Mrs. Stevenson's autobiography would be one of the most interesting books in the world.

"A woman who was rigid in small matters of domestic economy, who insisted upon a planned and ordered life, would have worried Stevenson terribly. In his youthful tramps he liked to start out with no luggage, buying a collar here and a shirt there as he needed them. In managing his affairs he had, as he often said, no money sense. I remember hearing him tell how he and Mrs. Stevenson once went to Paris for a pleasure trip. They had a $500 check and some odd money, and they meant to have a thoroughly good time and stay as long as their money held out. After a few days they found their funds running short; they couldn't imagine what they had done with it all, but there seemed to be very little money left, so they decided they had better get home while it lasted. When they got home they found the $500 check among their papers. They hadn't cashed it at all and didn't even know they hadn't."

WEATHER FORECASTS.

Method of Tracing the Direction and Speed of Storms.

Most of the severe storms do not originate in the United States. They come to us from the Philippines, Japan, Siberia, Alaska, Canada or the gulf of Mexico. Our weather bureau gets cable, telegraphic or wireless notice of a foreign storm. Station after station of the weather bureau and vessel after vessel in the path of the storm report its arrival, so that the general direction and the speed with which it travels can be very nearly determined. Some storms can be foretold as much as ten days in advance of their arrival at a given point.

When a storm from Siberia drifts eastward around the north pole and reappears in Alaska the speed with which it has covered that section of its course is made the basis of the calculation of the time when it should appear in Washington and Oregon, when it should get to the great lakes and finally to the Atlantic coast, and each section is warned in advance. Unexpected conditions may delay the storms or divert them from the course. Tabs are kept on the cold waves in much the same manner. The weather reports from Canada, Iceland, Europe, Russia and Siberia are studied and predictions made as to when the cold waves from these countries will reach the United States.

To predict floods information is recorded as to the amount of rainfall at headwaters of streams. As the rain reaches the main channel the height of the water is recorded from gaugings. Records show what a height of twenty feet at Dubuque, Ia., will produce at Davenport, eighty miles down the Mississippi. This plan is followed on all the large rivers, and at each station full allowance is made for the effects of water from tributaries and from additional and local rainfall.—Leslie's.

Figuring It Out.

"The marquise is much thinner than I am, isn't she? What would you think our ages were?" "Well, she seems ten years older than she is, and she's ten years older than you. Then you seem years younger than you are, so that makes thirty years' difference between you."—Pele Mele.

Make Believe World.

"Harold, you mustn't eat all of those peanuts, even if you are pretending to be a monkey. You must give your sister some."

"But, mother, I'm pretending she's some kind o' animal wot doesn't eat peanuts."—Life.

OIL UPON THE WATERS.

Its Action In Calming the Billows of a Stormy Sea.

Literally as well as figuratively, to pour oil upon the troubled waters is to calm them to a degree. This has been known from time immemorial, although its scientific explanation is not any too familiar even at the present day. The secret of the phenomenon lies in the fact that oil is extremely viscous—that is to say, it is of a ropy consistency, sticky and adhesive, and can be spread out into a very thin but comparatively strong sheet.

In lubricating a bearing, for instance, it forms a tenuous film between the metals and so protects them from the wear of direct contact with each other.

Oil is lighter than water and when poured upon it remains upon the surface. As the surface tension of water is stronger than that of oil, the oil is immediately drawn out over the water in a very thin body, forming a sort of blanket, which presents a considerable resistance to the motions of the element beneath. The water waves still roll almost as high as before, but they are unable to break into ripples, so that the stormy sea, when oil covered, presents a surface of huge undulations, but smooth ones.

Ships are able to ride such waves with comparative ease. It is the waves that break that present the real danger to the mariner.—Boston Herald.

Air Bad at Westminister.

A British Parliamentary committee of five, popularly known as the "cold feet committee," is engaged in devising a plan to improve the ventilation of Westminster Palace. According to the testimony already taken, the Press Gallery, the Hansard room and the Ladies' Gallery of the House of Commons are chiefly provocative of cold feet, sick headaches and pneumonia.

Lady Byles, wife of Sir William Byles, M.P., said she was not a frequent visitor to the Ladies' Gallery because there was a want of air, which made the wives of members avoid the place. W. J. Flynn, chairman of the Press Gallery Committee, said that when the ventilators of the Press Gallery were opened the reporters in the boxes got a strong current on their backs, and when the ventilators were shut they suffered for the want of air. He declared that the Press Gallery should be entirely reconstructed.

Fly Swatting Is Useless

Our Dominion Entomologist says: "I am convinced that the practical results of the fly swatting campaigns that have been carried on by some of our newspapers are useless as fly reducers." But the fact that one ten-cent packet of WILSON'S FLY PADS is capable of killing a bushel of flies proves them to be the best of all fly killers and recommends their continuous use to good housekeepers.

STORSTAD IS ARRESTED ON ACTION OF THE C.P.R.

"By Authority of British Empire" Document is Nailed to Mast by Deputy Sheriff at Montreal—Captain Anderson Says Storstad Steamed Ahead But Empress Slipped Away.

MONTREAL, June 1. — With her bows crumpled in and twisted around at an acute angle to port, and a gaping rent showing on the port side but a foot or so above the water line, in mute evidence of the tragedy in which she has figured, the Norwegian collier Storstad limped into the harbor early yesterday afternoon. A few minutes later a warrant of arrest, taken out by the Canadian Pacific Railway, was nailed to her mainmast by order of W. Simpson Walker, K.C., registrar of the Quebec Admiralty Court.

"By what authority do you come on board my vessel and place it under arrest?" asked Captain Anderson, commander of the collier.

"By authority of the British Empire," curtly replied the Deputy Sheriff, who was commissioned to execute the warrant, and who forthwith proceeded to affix the warrant in the customary place.

No sooner was the vessel moored than the work of unloading her cargo of some 11,000 tons of coal started, and were it not for the battered condition of her bows it would be difficult to imagine that the collier had but a few hours previously taken part in one of the greatest marine disasters in the history of Canadian navigation.

The officers and men, however, bore traces of the harrowing experiences through which they had just passed. When questioned on the subject of the disaster they were averse to entering into conversation.

Captain Andersen, immediately the collier docked, was in conference with Captain Ove Lange, American chief of the Maritime Steamship Co. of Norway, and John L. Griffin, attorney for the company, both of whom had come on from New York to get the report of the captain and sailors first-hand and to look into the situation.

Captain Andersen declined at first to discuss the disaster, declaring that he would make a statement later in the evening. Subsequently a statement based on Captain Andersen's report, as well as the reports of other officers to Messrs. Lange and Griffin, was given out.

According to the captain and officers, contrary to what has been stated by certain of the Empress' officers, the Storstad did not back away after the collision. On the contrary, she steamed ahead in an effort to keep her bow in the hole she had dug in the side of the Empress. The Empress, however, according to the Storstad's officers, headed away and bent the Storstad's bow over at an acute angle to port. After that the Empress was hidden from the view of the Storstad, and despite the fact that the Storstad kept her whistle blowing she could not locate the Empress until the cries of some of the victims in the water was heard. The captain absolutely denies that he was a mile or so away from the Empress after his vessel struck the Empress. The Storstad had not moved. It was the Empress which had changed position.

According to the report made by the captain to the owners, immediately the collision occurred he heard Captain Kendall's shout, calling upon him not to pull away.

"I won't," shouted the Storstad's captain, as loud as he could. After that the Empress disappeared from the Storstad's view.

MAYOR RECEIVES TWO PORTRAITS

Just before the royal train pulled out the Duke presented Mayor Buller with two large portraits, one of himself and another one of the Duchess. They are to be handed over to the city. The Duke also complimented the mayor on the arrangements made by the committee and stated that the reception had been one of the most pleasant that had been tendered him. He was delighted with the weather, the route, the enthusiasm displayed and the cordial feeling which existed. He told the mayor that he felt at home as soon as he set his foot on the platform at the C.P.R. and was sorry his stay had to be made so short.

At the station the Duke signed the register of the local military units.

MEN MUST BE FOREVER DEPENDENT

The Lesson From the Disaster to the Empress

"And He was asleep on his pillow and they awoke Him and say unto Him "Master carest Thou not that we perish? Such was the text of the discourse given at Murray Street Baptist Church last night by Rev. J. R. Webb.

When the Titanic went to its doom the world was shocked and the loss of life was infinitely greater there than in the recent disaster. This time it is a Canadian vessel going down in Canadian waters and at the very gateway of Canada. The whole world is in mourning and crepe is on the door of Canada.

The festivities of tomorrow, the speaker continued, ought to be tempered by this calamity. His Grace will be affected and take little interest in them. Our responsibility is to carry out our engagaments and there is only one man who can change them. The Duke of Cornwall and York called everything off because one member of the royal family was ill. Now a thousand are lying dead in a great steel casket.

God does not intend that we should go into mourning over every Providence that happens. All it suggests is that the whole country should come to a stand still to look into the face of the Almighty. Christ was calm in the midst of storm. The whispers of God are heard when passing through great trouble. Humanity at its best is not life. The travail of a great calamity makes men fasten their own anchor in the Rock of Ages.

It is impossible for Science to discover what may take place. "My heart bleeds for the Salvation Army," said the minister. For every Elijah there will be a dozen Elishas step out to take their places. The speaker specially regrettes the going down of Lawrence Irving.

The lesson of this disaster is that men must be forever dependent on God.

The Empress was equipped as the Titanic disaster taught but each accident is a little different from the previous one and confounds man. All must be ready and God does care.

When sewing hooks on a wash dress try sewing the eyes on the upper flap, and the hooks on the under, instead of the usual way. The outer flap may then be ironed smoothly.

FIRST NEWS FROM TEMPLE BAND

Party Passed Collier Which Sent Friends to Death

(From a Representative of The Review, on board the S.S. Alunia.

The Peterboro Temple Band arrived in Montreal Friday morning at 7.30 and at noon gave a concert on Victoria Square, appropriate selections being rendered. At night owing to the disaster, the program arranged to be given was altered to a memorial service. Col. Gaskin, Field Secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada presided. We gave final farewell words to the band and Adjutant McElhiney replied.

The band was entertained in the best possible way and when the time arrived to embark other bands joined in the procession to the docks, thousands of people lining the streets, some cheering but many more weeping. At the docks "God be with you till we meet again" was played.

The Peterboro Temple band will be the sole band to represent Canada at the Congress as all but two or three of the Staff band perished. The disaster has been a great blow to all of us and much sympathy is expressed for Bandmaster Peryer, whose mother was among the lost. We are sure the citizens of Peterboro will sympathize with Bandmaster Peryer and also Bandsman Sandford, who was a son-in-law of Mrs. Peryer.

At this time of writing, we passed the Storstad, the collier which rammed the Empress. Her bow was badly damaged.

COL. HUGHES COULD NOT COME

Rifle Ranges Opened by Col. Clegg

The Rifle Ranges were formally opened this afternoon by Lt.-Col. Clegg, Commanding Officer of the 57th Peterborough Rangers. Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, was to have officiated at the ceremonies, but was unavoidably detained in connection with important matters.

THEY PRESENTED LILIES OF THE VALLEY

As the autos bearing the Royal visitors passed along Dennistoun Avenue this morning, Quinnie Johnston and Helen Stubbs ran out to the cars with bouquets of lilies of the valley.

The car conveying the Duke and Duchess stopped.

"These for the Duchess' said the Duke, as he smilingly accepted the gift. "They are so sweet," he added.

Helen Stubbs presented the Princess with a bouqet, and was rewarded with a smile and "thank you."

WELL KNOWN HERE.

Among the list of names of those lost on the ill-fated Empress of Ireland, appears that of R. Clements of Port Hope well known in this city by the younger generation. Clements was at one time employed here in a bank.

OBITUARY

CHAS. BOYCE.

Charles Boyce, aged 76 years, passed away at Lakefield yesterday. Deceased was a lifeiong resident of Smith township, generally known and highly esteemed. In religion he was a Methodist while his political views were Liberal. He was a member of the Masonic Order.

He leaves a widow, two sons, and two daughters to mourn his death. The funeral will take place from the family residence at Lakefield on Tuesday afternoon, interment in Ray's Cemetery. Rev. Mr. Gregory will officiate.

JOHN MOORE.

The death occurred in Lindsay last evening at six o'clock of John Moore, formerly a resident of Peterboro. Deceased was in his 60th year and had been ailing for some five months. He was the eldest son of Mrs. Geo. J. Moore, 154 Rubidge Street. The late Mr. Moore had many friends in this city and in Lindsay who will deeply regret his demise. He leaves to mourn his loss a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Geo. Acre of Toronto; also his mother, one brother, Mr. R. Moore of Tonnawanda, N.Y., and five sisters, Mrs. Wright and Mrs. Halliday of Toronto; Mrs. Robert of Ottawa, Mrs. M. J. Bell, and Mrs. M. Succee of this city.

The funeral will take place tomorrow morning, leaving the family residence at eight o'clock and will proceed to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery.

FIRST COMMUNION FOR MANY CHILDREN

Yesterday morning a beautiful scene was witnessed at the Church of the Sacred Heart, it being the occasion of many children receiving their first Holy Communion. Rev. J. J. O'Brien celebrated the mass and was assisted by Rev. J. V. McAuley. In the afternoon all the children of the Sacred Heart School assembled at the Church and attended Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament.

Next Sunday at seven-thirty the Sacred Heart branch Total Abstinence Society will receive Holy Communion in a body.

To remove old varnish from furniture, take three teaspoonfuls of baking soda and put it in a quart of water and apply it with a rough cloth.

Kryptok Bifocal Lenses

Kryptok lenses are the most remarkable recent invention in the Optical line. Each lens is a solid, unbroken surface. There is no cementing to cloud the glasses, to offer lodging places for dirt or to disfigure the appearance. The eyesight of youth is reestablished, and to all appearance KRYPTOKS are the same as young folks' glasses, with nothing to distinguish them from the latter except your own pleasant knowledge of their wonderful far-and-near qualities.

WE ARE GENUINELY GLAD TO BE AMONGST

The result is, so far as I have been able to judge, that the people of Ontario are a happy, prosperous and energetic race, with a great future before them. More than that, they are imbued with a devotion to British institutions and with a pride in our Empire that is a source of profound satisfaction to me.

From what I have seen to-day and from your words, Mr. Mayor, I have no doubt that these splendid traditions and ideals will be ever present among the citizens of Peterborough.

Ladies and Gentlemen, in thanking you for your welcome, I wish to do so on behalf of the Duchess of Connaught, and of my daughter, as well as of myself. We are all genuinely glad to be amongst you to-day, and are much looking forward to seeing all that we can of your beautiful city.

On the platform during the reception were Col. Clegg, Col. Young, Jas. Sexsmith, M.P., East Peterboro; J. Thompson, M.L.A. West Peterboro, Judge Huycke, Judge Hayes, Major Walker, Mayor Buller, A. H. Stratton, City Clerk Armstrong and ladies. The list of those received shows the names of prominent men, and with them their wives, and in some instances their daughters.

While the Duke, Duchess and Princess Patricia were receiving the ladies and gentlemen, the Duchess was forced to sit down. Her health has not been very good of late, and the strain of several receptions during the past few days told on her.

Miss Audrey Huycke, daughter of Judge Huycke and Miss Doris Clegg presented the Duchess and Princess Patricia with beautiful bouquets during the ceremony on the platform.

The school children with the assistance of the regimental band sang several patriotic airs in an inspiring manner and were warmly congratulated by the Duke and Duchess. Miss Rannie; who conducted the chorus, was personally congratulated by their Royal Highnesses. As a token of his appreciation of the children's efforts, the Governor-General declared a half holiday this afternoon.

At the Armouries.

Following the reception the royal party visited the armouries. While there the Duke presented long service medals to Captain Hounsel of the 57th Regiment and Lieut.-Col. C. H. Rogers of the Third Dragoons. While pinning the medals on the breasts of the soldiers his Royal Highness spoke well of the officers for their long and faithful service to the King.

Another event of unusual interest took place in the armouries when Misses Eleanor Eastwood and Stefner Davidson presented beautiful bunches of flowers to Princess Patricia and the Duchess of Connaught on behalf of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire.

The party was then driven to Lock 6 where the Bessie Butler was in waiting and a trip to the lift lock was made. The Duke and his party were very much impressed with the lift lock and made numerous inquiries as to its cost, the length of time it took to construct it and its mechanical operations.

After the boat had been locked out into Little Lake the Bessie Butler steamed up to the turning basin. While making the turn the wind blew her out of her course and she struck bottom and a delay of ten minutes resulted before she was cleared.

From the lift lock the party returned to the G.T.R. Station where the band of the 57th regiment and the guard of honor were in attendance. The band played God Save The King and the Maple Leaf. As the train pulled out the Duke and Duchess stood on the observation coach and waved their handkerchiefs a farewell to Peterboro.

During the time the party was passing through Engleburne Avenue Misses Rosamund and Audrey Huycke presented the Princess and Duchess with flowers. Rosamund presented a bouquet of iris to the Duchess and Audrey a bouquet of for-get-me-nots to the Princess.

Three Sleuths.

Three Dominion Government detectives accompanied the royal party and were in constant proximity with the Duke and Duchess.

Lots of Dust.

Notwithstanding that it rained pitchforks last night the route over which the royal party travelled was very dusty and that feature sort of marred an otherwise enjoyable affair. The committee in charge deserve every praise for the manner in which the details were worked out as everything went off without a hitch. The committee follows: Ald. Stratton, chairman; Mayor Buller, Ald. Duffus, Dobbin, Langford, Saunders, Basil Hall, Col. Clegg, Col. Young, Major Walker, A. Mowat, J. Fitzgerald.

There are Others.

Police Chief Thompson had charge of the autos being master of arranging the machines in order and loading and unloading them. He was assisted by Chief Howard and the two chiefs did their work in an admirable manner. There was no delays and everything was orderly. The officers of the police department also did good work in holding the crowds in check.

Decorations.

Some of the decorations in the residential district were very elaborate and overshadowed the attempts at decorating which were made in the down town district.

LAID AT REST

The funeral of the late Thomas McDonough, former manager of the Oriental took place yesterday from his late residence to St. Peter's Cathedral and Cemetery. Rev. Father McGinnity officiated. The large number present in the church and at the cemetery was a silent reminder of the high esteem in which the late Mr. McDonough was held. The Knights of Columbus of which he was a member were represented.

The pall-bearers were:—C. G. Graham, D. R. Fleming, J. McCabe, John Sullivan, C. J. Carroll and W. Rudkins.

"FUNERAL SHIP" IS ESCORTED BY ARMOURED CRUISER ESSEX

One Hundred and Seventy-Six Bodies From Rimouski, Housed in Rough Boxes, Are Placed on Draped Tables in Freight Shed — British Jack Tars Carry Coffins Ashore on Their Shoulders

QUEBEC, June 1. — The deep is yielding up its dead. Throughout the weary hours of a long, murky night groups of drawn, tense faces gazed unseeingly over the silent St. Lawrence, shrouded in damp darkness. Dawn broke clear; sunlight bathed the waters. As the Sabbath bells of the historic Basilica gave forth their early call to worship there rounded into view, far down the great river, the revenue cutter Lady Grey. The "funeral ship," the habitant called her in quaint reverence.

The little steamer, commanded by Captain Mercier, and conveying 176 bodies from the Empress of Ireland, was guarded and escorted by H. M. S. Essex, an armored cruiser despatched by the Admiralty for this service at the personal request of the King. The flags of both vessels dipped at half-mast.

It was shortly after seven o'clock when the two vessels approached the Government pier, half a mile below the city. The warship came to anchor out in the river and reverently saluted. The little Lady Grey, with her sad freight, steamed slowly to the pier. On her bridge with Captain Mercier and the pilot was Commander Tweedie of the British warship, while, standing guard over the tiers of caskets and boxes which crowded both her decks, were lines of British blue-jackets, acting in co-operation with Chief McCarthy of the provincial police and four detectives, for many of the coffins contained jewelry and valuables found on the dead. The Lady Grey docked sharp at eight o'clock.

The harbormaster, Captain Murray, who commanded the Empress of Ireland before Captain Kendall took her over, representing the Marine Department, a group of clergymen, several officers of the Salvation Army, and a score or more of newspapermen, with Captain Elliot of the C.P.R., alone were permitted entrance to the pier. The flag at the pier was at half-mast, and within the adjoining C.P.R. freight shed, guarded by Dominion officers and officials, were rows upon rows of crepe-covered tabling. Upon these the dead were laid for identification. All about the great building, on the tops of sheds and other points of vantage, were clustered scores of sombre, curious men and women.

Amid the mourning there arose profound respect for the British tar. The task of removing the dead was allotted to his Majesty's sailors. Silent, reverent, and efficient, one hundred and eight marines went about their work. They carried the rough boxes upon their shoulders, marching in solemn step, the rhythmic beat of their feet the only sound heard. As each body was placed upon its temporary resting-place in the shed the sailors reverently saluted and returned to the vessel for their next ghastly burden. Peculiarly pathetic was the removal of the tiny caskets, the remains of the children, on the shoulders of the "little middies." It took one hour and ten minutes to land the one hundred and eight-eight bodies. So profound was the impression made by the men of the Essex that as they marched on the vessel at the conclusion of their work clergymen and others raised their hats in tribute.

The improvised mortuary was under the authority of Coroner G. W. Jolicoeur. Again the marines volunteered for duty, and at mid-day, when relatives and friends were admitted for the purpose of identification, the sailors were in charge, preserving decorum and order, and extending sympathetic courtesies to the bereaved.

THE CHANGING WEST

The Western Canada of today is very different from the Western Canada of five years ago Most people realize this in a sort of a way, but it is safe to say there are few living outside of the Western Provinces who fully understand how swiftly are the changes that are building a nation out of sparsely settled provinces. This matter is dealt with in an extremely interesting way by the May issue of the "Canada Life Echoes" which has just come to hand. This issue takes the form of a special Northwestern number and it contains much information about the Western Provinces that is not generally known, and also a tabulation of the grain production, etc., of each province which should be not only of great interest at the moment, but also of much value for reference as occasion may arise. Unusually interesting photographs of Western life and scenes are liberally scattered through the publication and there is also an article on the irrigation of three million acres in Alberta. This little magazine is published by the Canada Life Assurance Company, and, while they last, copies will be sent on request, to W. R. Scadding, District Agent, Canada Life Assurance Company, Peterboro.

MESSAGES OF CONDOLENCE.

King and Queen and Queen Mother Extent Their Sympathy.

OTTAWA, June 1. — Cablegrams expressing the sympathy of the King and Queen and Queen Mother Alexandra, Hon. Lewis Harcourt, the Colonial Secretary and the people of Newfoundland, with the relatives and families of those who lost their lives in the wreck of the Empress of Ireland, have been received by H. R. H. the Governor-General. The King's message reads as follows:

"I am deeply grieved at the awful disaster to the Empress of Ireland, in which alas so many Canadians have lost their lives. The Queen and I assure you of our heartfelt sympathy with those who mourn for the loss of their relatives and friends.

(Signed) "George R. and I."

Prince Louise, widow of the Duke of Argyll, who was at one time Governor-General of Canada, has sent the following message to her brother, the Duke of Connaught: "Terribly grived at appalling disaster to Canadian liner Empress. My heartfelt sympathy."

To Combat Divorce.

BOSTON, June 1.—Many Roman Catholic lawyers of Massachusetts met at the suggestion of State Treasurer Mansfield in Catholic Union Hall to combat divorce.

The lawyers formed a permanent organization with Mr. Mansfield chairman and Miss Mary Agnes Mahan secretary. The chairman was instructed to name a committee of ten to plan to end the divorce evil. The committee is to report its plans to another conference within three weeks.

Death of James Mack.

CORNWALL, Ont., June 1. — Mr. James Mack, a brother of the late William Mack, ex-M.P.P. for Stormont, died at the house of his grandniece, Mrs. J. C. Alguire, here, on Saturday. Mr. Mack, whose parents came to Canada from Lanarkshire, Scotland, during the reign of George IV., was born in Huntingdon, Que., and was in his 82nd year.

THIRD READING TO-DAY.

C. N. R. Bill Will Come Up For Its Final Discussion.

OTTAWA, June 1.—The House on Saturday morning considered the bill in aid of the Canadian Northern in committee of the whole.

Practically all the clauses were passed without discussion. The bill will be reported from committee and stand for third reading to-day, when several amendments may be offered by members of the Opposition. When that section of the bill was reached, providing for a trustee under the agreement between the railway company and the Government, Mr. Carvell (Carlton, N.B.), said he had no doubt that the National Trust Co. of which Hon. Mr. White was president, would be selected. Hon. W. T. White said in reply that applications had been received from a number of companies all over the country, and there was no intention to discriminate either for or against the National Trust Co. He personally had no longer any connection with the company, or any interest therein.

Upon motion of Solicitor-General Meighen the bill was so amended that the Canadian Northern Saskatchewan, the Canadian Northern Western and the Canadian Northern Pacific will not come under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Railway Commission or be declared works for the general advantage of Canada until a proclamation has been issued by the Governor-in-Council to that effect, after an order-in-council has declared the said railways to be completed and ready for operation.

FOUND HER DAUGHTER.

But Mrs. O'Hara's Husband Is Lost Off Father Point.

MONTREAL, June 1.—To dive into the water with her husband and daughter, and to be separated from them, and to afterwards meet her daughter alone on the deck of the Eureka, was the experience of Mrs. O'Hara of Toronto. Mr. O'Hara, at first reported saved, was apparently lost. Telling her story, Mrs. O'Hara, arrived Saturday from Rimouski, says that her husband, her daughter and herself, made their way on deck when the alarm was given that the Empress was sinking. Mr. O'Hara thought that the ship could not hold up long, and there seemed to be no chance to get into the lifeboats. He told his wife and daughter, who are both good swimmers, like himself, to jump into the sea and keep afloat until the Storstad picked them up. The three went over the side and at first kept together, Mr. O'Hara supporting his daughter. In the darkness they became separated and afterwards Mrs. O'Hara was picked up by a boat and taken to the rescue ship Eureka. There she was met by her daughter, who had also kept herself afloat. The girl did not know what had happened to her father.

GAVE UP HIS BELT.

Sir Henry Seton-Kerr Might Have Saved His Own Life.

QUEBEC, June 1.—M. D. A. Darling, of Shanghai, was saved by a lifebelt, that might have saved Sir Henry Seton-Kerr. Darling said Saturday:

"My cabin was opposite Sir Henry's and when I opened my door he opened his arms and we bumped into each other in the passageway.

"He had a lifebelt and he offered it to me.

"I refused it, but he said, 'Go on, man, take it, and I will get another.' I told him to rush out and save himself, but he got angry and actually forced the belt over me.

"He then hurried me along the corridor to the deck, leaving me there. He turned back for another belt and a moment or two after he had left me the ship went down.

"I was picked up."

COUNTER REVOLT STARTS.

Two of Villa's Lieutenants Have Quarrelled With Their Chief.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The interior department has information that the rebel leaders, Berrera and Chao, at Balleza, have quarrelled with Villa. Meantime Roderigo Quevido, in Northern Chihuahua, is actively pushing a counter revolution. The interior department's advices from Monterey indicate the rebels have seized a brewery and are operating it at full capacity, selling the output all over Northern Mexico. Funds thus obtained are being used for needs of the revolutionary exchequer. The property at Monterey of Miguel Quiroga Fernando Ancia and Gregorio Martines, and other persons regarded as sympathizers with the present Mexican administration, has been confiscated by rebels.

Dr. Gregorio Martinez is held by the rebels in the penitentiary, and it is reported that various secret executions have taken place.

It Has Come to This.

"Are you fond of country life?"

"I never saw any."

"What?"

"Fact."

"But I thought you were going to spend your vacation in the country."

"So I did, but I found there only a sad imitation of city life."

An Inducement.

"He says he would make a great ball player."

"Yes; that is one of his weaknesses."

"Thinks he would be good on home runs."

"Yes; he would if they would ring

The First Revolver.

The credit or discredit of the invention of the revolver belongs to a Swiss of Vallorbe, Jean Francois Grobet, who in 1814 fashioned, with the collaboration of his son, the first "six shooter" which as a matter of fact attracted the attention of the then minister of Russia at Zurich, Count Capo d'Istria, who sent a specimen revolver to Czar Alexander I. The royal recipient rewarded the inventor with a valuable ring, which it is to be presumed Grebet pawned, for he died a few years later in poverty.—London, Telegraph.

OUTER SPACE.

Showing How Far It Is From Being Empty of Matter.

"When we speak of outer space, the space between star and star, as being empty of matter, it is rather interesting to see exactly what we mean," says a writer. "We know from observations on the planets that light, in its passage across space to our earth, suffers hardly any absorption, and from this fact we can deduce conclusions respecting the density of such matter as exists in outer space.

"If the degree of rarefaction in outer space is, for example, in the neighborhood of the one hundred millionth part of an atmosphere, then the appearance of Jupiter, for instance, would be as if our atmosphere had twice its present opacity. So that such matter as exists must be in a much more rarefied state. But, after all, these terms are only comparative.

"Suppose our atmosphere were allowed to expand up to the limits of the visible universe as far as the Milky way. Then its rarefaction would be such that it would be quite impossible, by any optical means, to detect the presence of any matter. Nevertheless, there would be about 5,000 molecules per cubic centimeter throughout space."

Plumbago.

Plumbago, Ceylon's most important, mineral product, is known all over the world for its lustre, lubricating, polishing, and binding qualities. In appearance it is a strong black crystalline, and in this respect it differs from the grayish lead which is found in young rock in America. There are now about one thousand plumbago mines in Ceylon, including all the shallow pits, open works, and deep mines. The depth varies from a few yards to as much as seven hundred feet. Most of the mines are worked by natives, the only important one controlled by Europeans being the Medapola. At the majority of the mines the only machinery used is the "dabare." This consists of a long wooden barrel with handles at each end. Round this a rope is given two or three turns and a bucket fastened at each end. It is worked by seven or eight men turning the handle.

Edible Palm Oil.

Palm oil, until recently, was made entirely by African natives in the most primitive and uncleanly manner, which rendered is usable only for soap making and other technical purposes. Modern machinery is now being used to press palm oil on the spot. This new oil is edible. It will soon be in the Liverpool market.

MERCANTILE BALL LEAGUE IS OPENED

Plenty of Interest in Double-Header Despite the Prominence of Boots---Red Caps and De Laval Were Winners

The Mercantile League opened its season on Saturday with all the side frills noted in the ushering in of a big league. The Red Caps of the C. G. E. and the De Laval nine were the winners. There was a neat street parade a few speeches and two good games provided the fans. The parade formed at Central Park. Headed by the Maple Leaf band the players marched and rode to the Park where Mayor Buller officially sent the season away with a few brief remarks as to the benefits to be derived from clean sport. The Mayor lobbed the pill over the platter and his spitter was so deceiving that General Manager Breyfogle of the De Laval Company failed to connect and Mr. "Joy" of the Canada General Electric failed to even come near to catching it.

The first game was between the Red Caps of the C.G.E. and the drafting room of the same establishment. The former won pulled up by a score of 19-6. Rahmel who was on the slab for the winners struck out ten of the drafters while his support was also good. Kirn who slabbed for the losers pitched a pretty fair game but his team failed to wallop the hide when a poke meant something. A feature of the fray was Connor's throw to the plate in the first innings which nipped a drafting room rally in the bud. O'Hearn of the same team had a two base clout with the pillows loaded. Swanson who did the receiving for the winners displayed a great whip and cut off many prospective thieves.

The second game only went five innings. It was nearly 3.30 when the first game was called and after 7 o'clock when the second was called. The De Laval crew had little difficulty in shutting out the Peter Hamilton nine by the score of 9-0. Mahoney who was on the hill for the winners was the whole works. In the five innings he fanned 13 of the Hams. His work was the feature of the day and he will prove a hard man to beat in the league. Gus Rose who did mound duty for the losers went along fine for three innings but weakened through lack of condition. Rose should blossom out as a strong pitcher before many games in the schedule have been played.

The four teams shaped up very good considering that it was an opener. They all possess good material and the fans should see some tidy ball this summer. Kendry at short for the Red Caps looked like the class of the shortfield men on Saturday's play.

Bill Andrews handled the indicator in both games to the satisfaction of all concerned. The teams lined up as follows:

Red Caps:—Swanton, c.; Rahmel, p.; Guerin, 1b.; Flaherty, 2b.; Kendry, s.s.; Primeau, 3b.; Connors, l.f.; Heenan, c.f.; O'Hearn, r.f.

Drafting Room:—Staunton, c.; I. Kearn, p.; Walker, 1b.; Olson, 2b.; Barry, s.s.; Jackson, 3b.; Henderson, l.f.; Cranfield, c.f.; Metheral, r.f.

De Laval:—Taylor, c.; Mahoney, p.; Roy Pilling, 1b.; Callahan, 2b.; English, s.s.; Spratt, 3b.; Pilling, l.f.; Smith, c.f.; Holly, r.f.

Hams—O'Dette, c.; Gus Rose, p.; Crane, 1b.; Murty, 2b.; Murphy, s.s.; Jones, 3b.; Giroux, c.f.; O'Hearn, l.f.; Condon, r.f.

TIGERS WON GAME

A very interesting game of ball was played Saturday morning when the "Tigers" met "The Dobbin Nine." The game was won by the Tigers with a score of 22-12. There were a few good plays on both sides, the feature being a home run for the winners, by Campbell.

The batteries:—Tigers, Schweier and McKinley; Dobbins, Fuller, Foster and Webster. Umpire, Mr. Bartley.

GOLF DRAW.

The draw for the fifth round of the Stratton Trophy is as follows:

W. G. Morrow vs. A. H. Stratton.
S. Ray vs. R. M. Hamilton.
N. H. Campbell, bye.

These games must be played by Saturday, June 6th.

Outfielder Carl ("Dad") Stewart, who played with London last season, has signed a contract to play for Manager Blount, according to a London report.

COMMENT

As You Like It

The fellow who once said that the unexpected often happens was not born in Peterboro. The ball club did just what was expected of them on Saturday and dropped another game to the Cockneys by the elaborate score of 12-8. The locals scored 6 runs in the first innings and looked to have the game safe. Doc Reisling yanked Hammond in that innings and sent Bobby Heck to the hill. Tracey who slabbed for the locals was hit freely in the first, second and third innings for a total of 8 runs but Manager Blount failed to yank him until it was too late. Schettler was sent in during the fourth inning. Such methods look like bad baseball. The Petes had fourteen hits and five errors while London had twelve hits and two blows.

It is a well known belief that every man should be given a chance. The Petes have had about twenty chances. They have played that many games and have won five of them. Surely that is chance enough for any club to display their wares if they have any. Plank walking of the wholesale variety is about due if Peterboro is ever to get a start towards the top of the ladder. The directors will face the most serious financial loss of any club in the league if they do not get busy and house clean as the team will draw even worse at home than it will abroad if present conditions are allowed to exist very much longer. In spots the team has shown the class of the first division teams. Are there players holding something back?

Jack White clouted the hide over the fence in Hamilton Saturday and the Hams beat St. Thomas 8-6.

Brantford and Erie split even on Saturday. Erie beat the Hams Sunday. Heinie Smith has been deposed as manager of the Yanks and Gygli has been appointed manager.

"Shag" had three home runs over the left field fence in Hull yesterday and Ottawa beat London 15-7.

PETES COULDN'T STAND THE JOY OF MAKING SIX RUNS ALL IN THE ONE INNINGS

After the Petes had gained a commanding lead of six runs over the Cockneys on Saturday they tossed the old ball game to the winds and London won 12-8. The Petes hammered Hammond so hard in the opening frame that he was taken out and Bobby Heck hurried to the rescue. Tracey was hit freely in the first and London scored 3 runs. In the second Whitcraft cleared the sacks with a triple. Tracey was not yanked until the Cockneys had tallied 8 runs. The score:

| | | R | H | E |
| Peterboro | 6 0 0 1 0 0 1 0 0 | 8 | 14 | 5 |
| London | 3 3 2 1 1 0 2 0 x | 12 | 12 | 2 |

Batteries—Tracey, Schettler and Kelly; Hammond, Heck and Snyder.

AN EMERGENCY MEETING TO-NIGHT

The directors of the baseball club will hold an emergency meeting this evening, according to an announcement at noon. 'Tis said that the funeral march will be played over some of the Quake-Feds. The directors, or at least some of them, are in favor of a clean sweep, and a new broom to do it with. That something will be decided upon is certain, as several of the moguls have voiced their opinions on the street in no uncertain tones. "Let it be soon," said one of the directorate this morning.

Abolishing Postoffices.

The number of rural mail delivery routes now in operation in Canada is about 2,300, and the number of boxes erected on these routes is 95,000.

The number of postoffices closed in Ontario, owing to the establishment of the rural mail delivery branch on April 1, 1912, is 587. During last month alone, 46 postoffices were closed in Ontario as a result of rural mail delivery.

Significant.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson, the famous Arctic explorer, has told many good stories of the way in which the Eskimos grasp the literal meaning of anything they hear.

An instance of this followed on a sermon preached to the Eskimos from the text, "Do not follow in the footsteps of the wicked."

"What some of the Eskimos thought of me," Mr. Stefansson remarks, "can be seen from the fact that one day I noticed that some Eskimos who were traveling behind me were being careful not to follow in my trail!"

Points of Paris Survey.

A census survey of Paris, Ont., has elicited the following facts: Population, 4,238; Protestants, 3,457; Catholics, 303; nationalities, 14; church adherents, 2,757.

Nicknames.

Rural Canada is rich in nicknames, for its residents, but few families posses a luxuriance of "noms-de-guerre" borne by the famous Fallis family of Millbrook, Ont., who are locally known by the following distinguishable names: "Straw Boy" Fallis, "Muggins" Fallis, "Chopper" Fallis, "Tow Head" Fallis, "Young Willie" Fallis' "Young Johnnie" Fallis, "Miller Dick" Fallis, "Miller Bob" Fallis, "Weaver Willie" Fallis, "Jimmy in the Bush" Fallis, and "King Tom" Fallis.

"Fallis Line," near Millbrook, owes its name to this distinguished family.

Boiling the Kettle.

Mrs. Campbell had engaged a new maid. "Martha," said the mistress on the first morning, "be careful always to boil the teakettle before making the tea."

Martha signified her willingness and, after an absence in the kitchen, returned to her mistress and said:

"Please, mum, there's nothin' big enough to boil the taykettle in, 'less 'tis the wash boiler, sure."—National Monthly.

STORY AT INQUEST

Commander of Empress of Ireland Declares That Rapid Sinking of Liner Was Due to Failure of Storstad's Master to Comply With Request to Steam Ahead.

RIMOUSKI, Que., June 1. — The inquest into the death of the victims of the Empress of Ireland disaster began Saturday in a little schoolhouse, which has been hastily turned into a morgue to accommodate the 200 bodies brought here. Coroner Pinaud conducted the inquest, and all the evidence had to be translated because the jury was French. The centre of attraction was Captain Henry George Kendal, master of the lost liner, who consented to give evidence, though he had to leave a sick bed to do so.

"Will you tell us what happened when you had the accident?" asked the coroner of Captain Kendal.

"The pilot was dropped at Father Point," said Captain Kendal. "We then proceeded full speed. After passing Cockpoint gas buoy I sighted the steamer Storstad, it then being clear.

"The Storstad was then about one point twelve degrees on my starboard bow. At that time I saw a slight fog bank coming gradually from the land and knew it was going to pass between the steamer and myself. The Storstad was about two miles away at that time. Then the fog came and the steamer's lights disappeared.

"I rang full speed astern on my engines and stopped my ship. I took the way of the ship so as to stop her quick. At the same time I blew three short blasts on the steamer's whistle, meaning 'I am going full speed astern.' After that he answered me with his whistle, giving me one prolonged blast.

"I then looked over the side of my ship into the water and saw my ship was stopped. I then stopped my engines and blew two long blasts, meaning 'My ship was under way, but stopped, and had no way upon her.' He answered me again with one prolonged blast. The sound was then about four points upon my starboard bow. It was foggy; I looked to where the the sound came from. About two minutes after I saw his red and green lights. He would then be about one ship's length from me.

"I shouted to him through the megaphone to go full speed astern, as I saw the danger of collision was inevitable. At the same time I put my engines full speed ahead with my helm hard aport with the object of avoiding if possible the shock. Almost at the same time he came and cut me right in and cut me down in a line between the funnels."

Captain Kendall said he asked the steamer to keep full speed ahead so as to fill up the hole made, but she backed away and the Empress began to fill rapidly and sink. He tried to run the ship ashore, but the engines stopped. All were then ordered to the boats and distress signals sent out. The ship, however, sank in fifteen minutes. He went down and came up clutching a wooden grating on which he was picked up.

British Official Coming.

LONDON, June 1. — Speaking to the Canadian Associated Press yesterday, John Burns, President of the Board of Trade, said George Vaux of the department left for Ottawa yesterday to arrange with the authorities for an inquiry into the disaster. Mr. Burns said that as early as Friday he suggested to the Admiralty that a party of bluejackets should be placed at the disposal of the C.P.R. officials. Mr. Burns added incidentally that he had been in personal attendance at his department day and night since the first news of the catastrophe was received.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

The marriage of Mr. R. C. Custance, late of Nottingham, England, and Miss Dot Ray, late of Bury, Lanc., both of this city, took place at St. James Church, the officiating clergyman being the Rev. J. N. Clarry, B.A. The bride wore a very pretty dress of shantung silk and wore a bouquet of white roses. A large number of the bride's and bridegroom's friends were present at the ceremony, and afterwards attended the reception, which was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Fairbrother. The happy couple were the recipients of a large number of presents from the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Bleakley, bed and bedroom suite; Mr. and Mrs. Fairbrother, lounge; Mr. Tom Ray, Axminster carpet; Mr. and Mrs. Howarth, damask bed spread; Messrs. Greenhalgh and Scowley, rattan cane rocker; Messrs. Smith and E. Greyson, set of carvers; Mr. and Mrs. Norman, set of china; Mr. Ellis, set of silver spoons; Mr. and Mrs. Porter, silver preserve service; Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Wainwright, Irish linen tablecloth; Mr. and Mrs. R. Pilling, linen set; Miss J. McKinley, china cream set; Misses J. and L. Howarth, brush and comb tray; Miss A. Fairbrother, china sugar and cream set; the Officers, N.C.O.'s and privates of C. Co'y, 57th Regt., solid silver cake stand.

During the evening a dance was held at the home of Mrs. Bleakley, the bride's sister, Mr. F. W. Wainwright presiding, and the music being furnished by "C" Company's orchestra. A large number of the members of that well known company were present. Songs were rendered by Miss Greenhalgh, Mrs. Norman, Mrs. Pilling, Messrs. F. and H. Hartshorn and C. Company's Choral Club.

The popularity of Princess Patricia in the hearts of the people of the city of Peterborough, was increased today by the visit of the Vice Regal party.

Every one fancied the Duke of Connaught, but his beautiful daughter scored the triumph of the day. Her graceful bearing and charming presence won all hearts and probably did more to dispel the illusions that some have concerning royalty than anything that could have been done.

The Princess was attired in a beautiful gray gown and the color scheme suited her type of beauty. Her costume while rather sombre due to the death of the Duke of Argyle recently was rich and in excellent taste.

Princess Pat seen at close range is beautiful, with large limpid eyes set rather far apart. Her complexion is that of a beautiful rose tint, and of figure she is tall and willowy, in fact she is slightly taller than her distinguished father. With the Princess every move, every gesture, is natural and at the same time an art. The very inclination of her head was a picture; her smile is a masterpiece of beauty. Her graciousness, her lack of affectation captivated, but her smile enthralled.

ROBINSON'S FAMOUS SHOWS

Have Many Novel Features

Out of the ordinary are many of the things to be seen with Robinson's Famous Shows, which will exhibit at Peterboro on Wednesday, June 10th.

To mention a few, there is "White Cloud," the famous $25,000 Arabian stallion, known as the best educated horse in the world.

Major Littlefinger and wife, smallest pair of human adults living, will hold daily receptions under the big tents.

The Aztec Marimba Band, from the wilds of Central America; the "jinx," a strange and as yet unclassified animal from Natal, are real novelties.

Robinson's great herd of gigantic performing elephants are truly wonderful.

The famous Orton family of bareback riders are notable, for this is the third generation of this remarkable family that have held the world's championship of equestrianism.

In every department of the great show you will see striking evidences that the whole world has been gleaned for real features.

RECOGNIZED CONSTABLE.

Constable Downs of the police force was among the honored ones to-day when he was recognized by the Duke of Connaught and Princess Patricia as a former member of the Coldstreams Guard. Constable Downs was on duty in front of the stand when his bearing and manners brought him to the eyes of the Duke, who recognized him as an old member of the famous guards.

CROWDS MET SURVIVORS

Handful of Half-clad Salvationists in Toronto

TORONTO, June 1. — When the Montreal C.P.R. train steamed slowly into the Union Station at 7.20 Saturday night, 11 minutes late, bearing fifteen of the Salvation Army survivors from the wreck of the Empress of Ireland, there were nearly two thousand crowded on the platform and in the waiting-room of the station.

Friends or relatives were spied by the anxious people on the platform through the windows of the train before it had come to a stop, and many a cheer rent the air. When Staff Captain McAmmond came to the door of the car every person cheered. By the time he had reached the bottom step all hats were off and the "Doxology" was being sung. He was soon in the arms of his friends and was carried across the tracks to Station street, to where a motor car was waiting to convey him to Eaton's store. There were about a dozen motor cars waiting to take the survivors to the store to be fitted out with clothing.

Many who were waiting on the platform had kept their hopes up that their friends and relatives who were on board the boat might have survived the wreck, although their names were not sent to Toronto. Pitiful indeed were many of the scenes as survivor after survivor filed from the train and the waiting people did not see their friends or relatives. Several ladies had to be carried out of the crowd till they could be quieted by others.

AN INQUEST IS ORDERED

Prompt Action Taken to Probe Disaster

OTTAWA, June 1.—Captain Lindsay, Dominion wreck commissioner, will open a preliminary enquiry at Montreal to-day into the wreck of the Empress of Ireland. He will examine privately the crew of the Storstad as to what happened immediately prior to the collision, and any other individuals among those rescued from the Empress who may have any important information or evidence to give.

However, this will be only a preliminary enquiry, and will be followed by another and more searching enquiry by a commission specially appointed by the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. The British Board of Trade will send representatives to the commission also; indeed, George Vaux is now on his way across the Atlantic. The special enquiry will open on June 8 or 9, and will deal with the general question of safety at sea.

Mr. Hanna Nominated.

PETROLEA, June 1.—The formal nomination of Hon. W. J. Hanna was made the occasion of a demonstration here Saturday and was unanimous. The convention of West Lambton Conservatives was held in Victoria Hall and was well attended.

REV. J. N. CLARRY DISCUSSES MAN'S ENEMY—DRINK

To the Sunday morning congregation at St. James' Methodist Church, Rev. J. N. Clarry spoke on Every man's enemy—drink.

He pointed out its effect on the individual and what ruins the individual ruins the race. Since alcohol as a racial poison causes social loss and wrong, it is truly every man's enemy. As soon as it comes in contact with the brain's cells it first irritates, then excites and finally paralyzes. Strong drink undermines character, intellect and physical health and makes its victims contribute enormously to the store of human misery. Man's power to control and govern his desires, passions and lust is God's supreme gift. Alcohol's first blow is struck at that fortress. A man who desires to use his entire force on behalf of his fellow men can do so best and longest by entirely avoiding alcohol.

The policies of Sir James Whitney in his appeal of Saturday stands for enforcement of the present license law. Mr. Clarry gave the Conservative party credit for what they had accomplished yet they still hold out for the three-fifth vote on Local Option. The Liberals' idea is "the boy rather than the bar" and in order to have it so they favor abolishing the bar and club licenses.

Neither of these temperance policies is the platform of the Methodist Church which stands for complete prohibition, the manufacture, sale and importation of spiritual liquors for beverage purposes.

GRAVE CHARGES

Kingston Man Says Third Class Passengers Were Locked in

TORONTO, June 1.—Charges of a most serious character were made by L. P. Godson of Kingston, one of the survivors, who arrived in Toronto last night, when interview at the Queen's Hotel. His charges are:

That many second and third class passengers were barred from access to the deck because the door leading to the exit was locked.

Although efforts were made by the imprisoned passengers to break down the barrier they died like rats in a trap.

Although he took two trips to his first cabin stateroom in search of lifebelts, none were to be found there, and the same was probably the case in most of the other staterooms.

Even though he was one of the first to arrive on the promenade deck, there were only three life preservers on the port side.

That these life-preservers were fastened with binder twine, and that it was only with the utmost difficulty were they loosened.

That the crew were the only ones who knew the location of the life belts and that they secured them for themselves.

That the lifebelts, no matter in what position they struck the water, they did not sink, but owing to no facilities for cutting the ropes being handy, few were launched. Could they have been unloosened they would have afforded something to which the drowning passengers could have clung.

That lifeboats left the wreck before taking on a capacity load, leaving scores of struggling beings behind, he himself being picked up by one three-quarters of a mile from the scene less than half filled and hurrying away to the Storstad.

His story follows:

"About 2.05 a.m. I was awakened by the shock of the collision. Realizing that something serious had occurred, I rushed out of my stateroom, No. 21, clad only in my pajamas, and hurried on to the deck and I saw plainly a boat to the stern, which afterwards proved to be the Storstad. Although there was a slight fog, I could easily discern its outline about a hundred yards away.

CLOSE CALL FOR JOS. McGINTY

Joseph McGinty, an employee of the Grand Trunk Railway narrowly escaped injury today while endeavoring to place ice in the special cars of the Royal party. He was standing on a ladder and leaning over the top of the car when the engine moved. Before the ladder fell he had time to descend, nevertheless he fell several feet and the ladder fell on top of him. Mr. McGinty who resides close by was removed to his home and was found to be suffering from a badly bruised arm and shoulder. How he escaped more serious injury is a mystery as several eye witnesses thought he would surely be killed.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

CONSERVATIVES CHOOSE R. J. SODEN AS CANDIDATE FOR PROVINCIAL ELECTIONS

Mr. Soden Had Majority of Seven Ballots Over Mr. Peck — Officers of Association Re-elected

The Liberal-Conservatives of West Peterboro in convention last evening at the Conservatory of Music selected R. J. Soden the well known George Street merchant as standard bearer for the party in the riding in the forthcoming provincial elections. The convention was keenly fought on behalf of Mr. Soden and many questions as to the legality of delegates and their right to vote was brought up and fought by both the Soden and Peck factions. The counting of the ballots was left to Messrs. Nelson, Fair and Medd and Mr. Medd announced that R. J. Soden had polled 86 and E. A. Peck 79 votes after the scrutineers had been absent from the room for more than half an hour. The convention was late in starting and it was near midnight when it was declared closed. Other than the selection of a candidate officers of the association were elected and ward chairman selected.

Mr. Soden.

After having received the nomination Mr. Soden walked to the platform and called upon the meeting to listen to him. He said in part "Wait a minute gentlemen. I want to tell you something. I wanted to tell it before the result was announced. I wish to thank all who voted for me. I have not sought this nomination. It was not ten days ago that I decided to run. I have no fault to find with Mr. Peck. Several voters have spoken to me of his work but I have always told them to tell it to Mr. Peck. Ten days ago it was announced that he was going to withdraw. I asked members of the executive and they confirmed the report. It was then that I consented to allow my name to go before the convention. A few days afterwards it was announced that Mr. Peck would not withdraw but it was then too late for me to withdraw as I had promised several prominent Conservatives that I would submit my name to the convention.

"I am a Conservative and have been one for years. I agree with the government's Hydro-Electric, good roads and general administration. I also agree that the government has placed laws on the statutes which have regulated the liquor traffic beneficially. But I claim that the liquor question should never have been brought into politics. It has been made a political football too long. I have my own views however and I believe in the abolition of the bar, shop and club license. I will not allow any man to dictate to me as to how I shall vote. I claim the right to vote as my conscience demands. With the help of the Conservatives we will carry the riding again."

Mr. Soden was loudly cheered both when the ballot was announced and when he had concluded his brief address.

Jas. Thompson, M.L.A.

James Thompson, M.L.A. for East Peterboro addressed the meeting while the ballots were being counted. He referred to the fault finding of the Liberal press as to the government's decision to go to the country at this season of the year. "It is tolerably hard to please the Liberals. They have been clamoring for an election in the Dominion House but do not want one in the provincial. Every farmer knows that June was the proper month for the election. If it were held in July, August or September, haying, etc., would be in full swing and business would be interfered with. If it were held in the late fall great difficulty would be encountered in registering the vote as I remember well that the last election held in the fall was conducted under trying conditions. The horses stuck in the mud of the country roads. The Liberals today are enjoying the blessings of the Whitney administration and the fruits of Conservative government and I am sure the party will sweep the country again. Several Liberals are anxious to know who will lead the party should Sir James retire. The same people who are crying about Sir James retiring are not worrying over Sir Wilfrid Laurier and both are about the same age. Sir James is a marvel. He is leading and will be leading the party. That he is able to look after his duties after fighting back to life almost from the door of death is an evidence of his great courage. Not a day passes now that he is not at his post guiding his colleagues in the work. The Liberal party will go to the people on one issue. They will cry for the abolition of the bar. All other questions have been excluded. The Conservative party goes to the electors with a clean sheet, unexcelled in the annals of the province. The temperance question is an important one but the laws which the Ontario Government have made in connection with the regulation and administration of the traffic are unequalled. General Booth when speaking in Toronto a few years ago stated that Ontario led the world in the administration and regulation of the liquor traffic. The government's policy has minimized the evil of the traffic. In 1904 no village in Ontario was under local option. Now there are hundreds. All the villages which adopted local option under the Liberal regime repealed it. The people that passed it threw it out because the Ross Government did not enforce it. Violations were winked at."

SIR JAMES WHITNEY AS HE LOOKS TO-DAY

The speaker concluded with a few remarks regarding the bilingual school question. He stated that it must be settled within twelve months. The Liberals were touching lightly on it. The temperance question can be settled in a few years to come by minimizing the traffic but whether this province shall be an English speaking, or a variety of languages must be settled in the near future.

More Candidates.

When the meeting was called to order a letter was read from the City Temperance League in which the society was urged to support a temperance man. The letter which was signed by H. B. Cowan and A. B. Cunningham stated that unless both parties selected temperance candidates the league would place men in the field.

Some Resolutions.

R. Ruddy, K.C., had charge of the reading of the correspondence. A resolution moved by Geo. Moncrief and seconded by P. Scollard was adopted in which the convention went on record as having implicit faith in the Borden administration and assuring it of West Peterboro's undivided assistance. A resolution moved by Dr. Greer was seconded by Chas. H. Moore endorsing the Whitney government was also adopted. Feeling reference was made to the pleasure the convention had in knowing that the premier was enjoying his old time health.

The usual resolution endorsing the present member E. A. Peck was moved and seconded by H. Garbutt and Wm. Fisher. A similar resolution was passed concerning J. H. Burnham, M.P. It was moved and seconded by C. H. Moore and T. H. Milburn.

Officers Elected.

The election of officers resulted in most of the old officers being returned and James Kendry who occupied the chair and who has been president of the association for a number of years was elected by acclamation. His election was moved by R. J. Soden and W. Brown. Mr. Kendry thanked the convention for the faith they displayed in him.

William Buller was elected first vice-president by acclamation on a motion by John Edgar and J. E. Firth.

The office of second vice-president was alloted to A. T. Milburn by acclamation on motion of Messrs. Brooks and Bell.

Richard Sheehy was elected third vice-president on motion of Messrs. Fortye and Bell.

F. Adams as secretary was re-elected by acclamation on a motion of Messrs. Smith and Fortye while R. Ruddy, K.C., was appointed assistant secretary on motion of Messrs. Mills and Webb. W. J. Howden was elected treasurer by acclamation, Messrs. Wilson and Halliman moving and seconding his election.

The following ward chairmen were elected by acclamation.

Ward one, John Edgar; ward two, Walter Fisher; ward three, Jos. Mills; ward four, Edward Manning; ward five, J. D. Craig; North Monaghan, W. G. Howden; Smith, Chas. E. Moore; South Harvey, T. Elliott; North Harvey, P. Graham; Ennismore, P. J. Scollard; Galway, H. Dudman; Cavendish, Alex. Simpson.

The Candidates.

The president then called for nominations for candidates. T. E. Bradburn moved and H. C. Winch seconded a motion that E. A. Peck be the convention's choice.

R. J. Soden was moved by Jos. Batten and seconded by J. W. Lowes.

In endorsing Mr. Peck, Mr. Bradburn stated that it was only fair he should be returned for a second turn. He had served the riding faithfully and well. Mr. Soden's mover and seconder did not speak.

Mr. Bradburn then asked for a ruling of the chair as to whether a man who was not on the voter's list was entitled to cast his vote as a delegate.

Mr. Soden contended that a man attaining his majority after the death of his father would be put on the list according to the act and he thought such delegates should be permitted to vote.

Chairman Kendry ruled that if a man was not on the list he could not vote as a delegate.

There was a warm discussion over the allotment of sixteen votes to North Monaghan. The municipality had only two polling divisions according to Mr. Soden and was only entitled to 11 votes whereas 16 certificates had been issued.

Secretary Adams explained that at a meeting of the executive and chairmen it was decided that as North Monaghan would in all probability have three divisions in this election it was decided to issue 16 certificates.

Mr. Soden stated he did not know of the executive's decision but thought if the executive could anticipate in the case of North Monaghan it should in the case of the delegates who expected to be placed on the voters' list.

The ballots were then cast with the result given above. While the ballots were being counted Mayor Buller told of his meeting with the Duke and said the Duke thought Peterboro was a great place. According to the Mayor the Duke is a man from the ground up and it was just like conversing with a brother to meet him. H. C. Winch entertained with a few well chosen recitations.

The convention instructed the secretary to forward a wreath to Toronto by June 6 on which date a function in memory of Sir John A. Macdonald will take place.

The Resolutions.

Moved by Mr. George Moncrief, Smith, seconded by Mr. P. J. Scollard, Ennismore:

The members of the Liberal Conservative Association of West Peterborough, in convention assembled, wish to place on record an expression of their continued confidence in the Right Honourable Robert L. Borden, Premier of the Dominion of Canada, who through his tenure of office has proved wholly faithful to the people at large in the administration of Canada's most vital interests. To our Right Honourable Leader is now given the unreserved assurance that every just effort will be made to continue him in power, and West Peterborough may be relied on to do its duty in this respect.

Sir James Whitney.

Moved by Dr. T. N. Greer, seconded by Mr. Chas. E. Moore:

That the members of the Liberal Conservative Association of West Peterborough, now in convention, desire to give expression to their unbounded confidence in the Honourable Sir James Whitney, Premier of Ontario, and his Ministers. His clear-cut political platform and assurances made before attaining the high office he has honoured and now held for the past ten years, have all been redeemed. Measures almost beyond number of greatest importance have been carried through, and his general conduct of affairs has given Ontario a government heretofore unexampled and wholly in the public interests. His continued patriotic action has brought Ontario into an elevated position never before his time enjoyed, and he may rest assured that in West Peterborough and in all other Ridings of the Province no effort will be spared to continue him Leader of the Liberal Conservative party, and in office as the Premier of the banner Province of Canada. The members of this Association have heard with unfeigned delight of his recovery from sickness and trust that he has regained his usual robust health.

Mr. E. A. Peck

Moved by Mr. Harry Garbutt, Smith, seconded by Mr. Walter Fisher:

That the members of the Liberal Conservative Association of West Peterborough deem it proper to place on record an expression of their high appreciation of the services of Mr. Edward Armour Peck to the Riding and of the Province at large. He has ever been found courteous and ready

CIVIC ADDRESS A WORK OF ART

The civic address presented to His Royal Highness was prepared in such form as met the wishes of the Council and committee that it should be representative of Peterborough and of one of the most important of the Canadian cities which the Royal party are visiting. Worded by City Clerk S. R. Armstrong, it voiced the feeling and sentiment of a part of our Canadian people in respectful and cordial terms. The script, or writing was beautifully written by Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, who is a penman of great ability and has hardly a superior in such respect. The illuminating and preparation was done by Mr. F. H. Dobbin, who prepared the address for the visit of Earl Grey and on other notable occasions. The borderings of the pages were in a handsome silk design lined out in broad gold margins. The effect was rich and elegant and in some features unique. The leaves, five in number, were bound in a rich crimson morocco, the work of Mr. David Moore, superintendent of the Review bindery, and stamped in gold with the name and titles of the Royal visitor. The title page carried the Dominion coat of arms, in colors and gold, while the opening sentence, or greeting, was illuminated with the harp of Ireland, in gold, surrounded with shamrocks. The whole was a very beautiful example of the art, and creditable to the enterprise of the committee and to those who executed the work. Gentlemen of the Royal party were so good as to express appreciation of the address as one of the very finest that had been handed to His Royal Highness during his Canadian tour.

J. H. GARBUTT GRITS' CHOICE

Ex-warden Well Thought of by Liberals

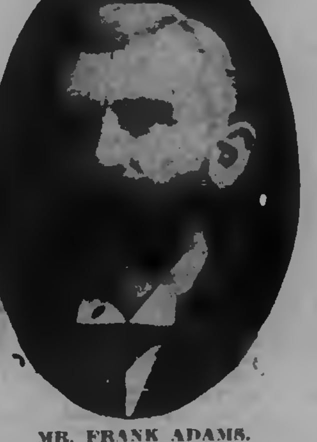
Now that the Conservatives have started the gun booming it is to be expected that the Liberals will follow with their convention to choose a candidate to oppose R. J. Soden, the Conservative candidate.

It is generally reported that J. H. Garbutt ex-warden of the county will be the selection of the Grits.

The convention will be held Friday night at the W.O.W. Hall.



MR. FRANK ADAMS.

He was re-elected Secretary of the West Peterboro Liberal Conservative Association.

Customs Returns.

A decrease of nearly one half faced the local Customs Department for the past month. The actual figures show the decrease to be $24,899.03. The returns for the month of May in 1913 was $52,272.84, while the returns for the month of May, 1914, shows an amount of $27,373.81.

IRVING'S BODY IS RECOVERED

Was Picked up on the Shore

QUEBEC, June 2.—The corpse of Laurence Irving, the actor, was picked up on the west shore of the St. Lawrence, below Rimouski, Sunday night, and the information was given to the C.P.R. officials here yesterday morning. His face was badly bruised and hardly recognizable, but on his finger was a signet ring with the initials "L.I." He had a piece of a woman's nightdress in his dead grip, and it was evidently Mrs. Irving's, because when last seen alive, the distinguished actor was making a desperate effort to save her life. It was thought that in his brave efforts to save her life he lost his own.

A few bodies have been taken straight from Rimouski to Montreal.

The body of Leonard Palmer, the English journalist, was identified yesterday.

Commander of the Empress Says the Storstad Drew Away and Let the Water Rush In at Gap While Master of Coal Ship Declares That Liner Was Making Speed Ahead and Forced Storstad Out of Rent.

MONTREAL, June 2. — Now that the first burst of excitement and grief at the loss of life through the sinking of the C.P.R. steamship Empress of Ireland has partially spent itself, and the general public is settling down to await the Government enquiry before giving judgment as to the responsibility for the frightful accident, an unhappy controversy between the commanders of the two vessels involved is looming large on the horizon. Doubtless each of them feels badly over the event itself, but at present it seems to be a case of blaming the other fellow" and shifting the blame, as far as possible.

While the tragedy is written so deeply on the hearts of thousands as never to be erased in life, the two men who stand out conspicuously before all the world as possibly more or less responsible for it are in wordy conflict over it. Captain Kendall of the Empress of Ireland tells the coroner at Rimouski that the captain of the collier Storstad might have prevented loss of life if he had kept the Storstad's nose in the gap she made in the Empress' side. Captain Andersen, of the Storstad, in interviews in this city, says he did try to do this, but the Empress "was going at good speed ahead" and drew away in such manner that the bow of the Storstad was forced out of the hole.

Captain Kendall's evidence, in brief, is to the effect that the captain of the Storstad was at fault, first, in proceeding ahead when the Empress of Ireland had signalled that she was "under way, but is stopped and has no way on her," and second in backing out from the gap she had made in the Empress' side. Captain Kendall is backed up by his chief engineer, William Sampson, an Irishman, and by James Rankin, a marine engineer, both of whom state that the collier should have kept her nose in the hole and held up the Empress long enough to allow the crew to launch the boats and get the people off in safety.

Captain Andersen takes quite a different view of the Empress' actions just prior to the fatal crash by the Storstad. He says the Empress was going fast ahead, and it was impossible after the collision to keep his vessel's bow in the rent she had made because the Empress was going fast.

As to statements made by Captain Kendall and others to the effect that the Storstad did comparatively little towards using its boats to save lives, Captain Ove Lange, agent for the Storstad, says the collier, at great risk to itself, did everything possible to save the Empress people and took on board 350. Third Officer Saxe of the Storstad, who was on the bridge at the time, corroborated this. The Storstad's crew seems inclined somewhat freely to lay blame on the Empress for the accident.

The truth, it is hoped, will be drawn by the official enquiry, which is announced to open on June 9 in Quebec City. A preliminary enquiry was begun yesterday in Montreal by Captain Lindsay, wreck commissioner. He is privately securing for the Government information to be used by the investigating board. This board will be composed of two judges of the Canadian Admiralty Court, to be appointed by the Dominion Government, and one representative of the British Admiralty, appointed by the Imperial Government.

Log Book Recovered.

QUEBEC, June 2.—Captain F. X. Pouliot of the Government steamer Lady Evelyn, recovered the Empress log book late Friday night, while coasting for bodies.

The book is not damaged. It was found in a water tight metal box. It is supposed that the first officer, whose body was identified here on Monday, leaped with it from the sinking boat, and that when he drowned he loosened his grip from the box, leaving it to drift.

Seven Outside Courts to Send Large Deputations

Court Stanley, Ancient Order of Foresters together with A.O.F. courts of Belleville, Oshawa, Cobourg, Port Hope, Campbellford, and Bowmanville are looking forward with enthusiasm to a big field day, to be held in Peterboro on Thursday, June 18.

Secretary Henry has been assured from outside courts that they anticipate bringing large deputations to the city and between two and three thousand visitors are expected.

High Court officers from Montreal, Hamilton, and Toronto will be present. The program will include sports, trips to the Lift Lock, a Foresters' parade and other entertainment.

The field day was held in Port Hope last year.

Crew Not to Blame.

The crew of the G.T.R. flyer were exonerated from all blame, in the death of George Wellington of Lindsay.

MR. R. J. SODEN THE CANDIDATE.

AT THE CONSERVATIVE Convention last night the choice went to Mr. R. J. Soden. He is, therefore, the standard bearer of the Conservative forces in the riding of West Peterborough. The choice went to a good man, who will no doubt prove a formidable candidate, and who has declared himself quite in sympathy with the principles of the Conservative party and the record of the Whitney Government. While many would like to have seen Mr. E. A. Peck, who has filled the office without ostentation, and with much solid work to his credit, again the candidate, the choice of the Convention has gone to a worthy successor. Mr. Peck, while allowing his name to go to the convention, did not seek the nomination vigorously, and only allowed his name to go before the convention at the earnest solicitation of numerous friends. Many will regret his retirement from the field which he has ably filled, and it is believed that a united front of the Conservative party in this district will meet the issue on the twenty-ninth of June. In Mr. Soden, the Conservatives have a vigorous candidate, who is as well a splendid platform speaker, and a man who has a clean record and no political sins to answer for.

TORIES CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

THE LETHARGY and disorganization of the Liberal forces in Ontario, is perhaps, the best reason for the confidence of the Conservative party in the coming elections. More than one appeal to Liberals to organize has been made in the editorial columns of the Toronto Globe. Reports of meetings show that the Liberal party lacks enthusiasm in the coming contest. Doubtless, they realize that sound government such as Sir James Whitney has been giving the people cannot be successfully opposed.

Another reason for the disorganization of the Liberal party is the lack of men in the Liberal ranks that are of cabinet capacity. So small a number were elected at the last election that the Ontario Opposition can scarcely be called a party, or even the leaders of a party. Saving Mr. Rowell, there is not material for a Government in the Liberal ranks.

Further, the policy that the so-called Liberal party in Ontario advocates, is wanting in those constructive details that are essential to merit support. The Rowell party advocates a Banish-the-bar policy. They say we will allow liqour to be sold in stores, but not in hotels. This is no answer to the temperance people, who have been crying for prohibition, nor have the Liberals shown that such a policy will reduce drunkenness and lessen the need for jails and prison farms. Mr. Rowell has a few other propositions that are about as ephemeral as his temperance policy. He advocates an inquiry into rural conditions, and would increase the already large expenditure of the Province by creating a Department of Labour, and appointing a minister to have charge of it. Considering all Mr. Rowell's proposals, they do not make what could be called a substantial policy for a party seeking office. Besides, what there is in his proposals that is of benefit will be carried by the Conservatives.

The Toronto Daily Star, a leading Liberal paper, has the following to say editorially concerning Sir James Whitney and Hon. W. J. Hanna.

> "Both men have shown that they can favor some reforms if these reforms appeal to them from the right direction and when the wind is in the right quarter. Sir James Whitney, for instance, allowed the Hydro-Electric movement to flourish under his Premiership, although it is, as anybody can see, utterly unlike anything else that has come to pass in his time. It is scarcely a thing that he would have originated, or that he would have adopted, but for the fact that the Hydro movement gathered like a storm in the country and fairly blew the Ministry along with it.
> Mr. Hanna, too, has introduced prison reforms that are excellent in character, and which will, we believe, do him and the Province credit in time to come. But even in this case there was a pressure of events that compelled change of some kind, and permanent officials advocated a change of a new and striking kind."

What the Star says is that the Conservatives have instituted reforms of a far reaching character, that are in accordance with public sentiment and which have been embodied in effective legislation. No better praise could be accorded the administration of Sir James Whitney. To say that the Conservatives have moved with public sentiment is to say that they have understood the real function of legislating, that they have introduced reforms not before their time, but when public opinion made those reforms practical. That is the real reason why the record of the Whitney Administration is deserving of support. It is also the reason why victory sits on the standards of the Tory forces.

ACCORDING to Mayor Buller, the Duke of Connaught, the Governor-General, was highly pleased with the City of Peterborough. Mayor Buller ought to know, but we hope the city will keep on improving so that it will be more attractive when future visits of this kind are made.

THE FOREIGNER.

FOREIGNERS, when they return to their native country, are subject to the laws of that country as if they never left it. In other words, naturalization has not given them the privileges they sought for in acquiring it. Mr. Burnham, M.P., our local member for the Dominion House, urged the Minister of Justice to take immediate steps to have this state of affairs changed, so that foreigners going back on business or otherwise, will no longer be subject to military duty or run the risk of imprisonment and even death. It is quite possible that the strong representations made to the Government will sooner or later have the desired effect.

WHY AN INQUIRY IS NECESSARY.

THE FACT THAT the disaster recalls the accident which happened to the sister ship of the ill-fated vessel, the Empress of Britain, which two years ago rammed and sank the collier Helvetia in almost the same spot that the collision took place, would indicate that the scene is a dangerous spot in the St. Lawrence. It also points out how urgent an inquiry is, and how necessary is every precaution to assure the safety of ships. To pay the price of one thousand lives for a few simple essentials to make vessels safe in the St. Lawrence is, however a very dear price. It is hoped that the investigation will not confine its recommendations to the one spot alone, but to the whole course of St. Lawrence navigation. The great sacrifice of life should prevent a recurrence of a similar tragedy.

NATURALIZATION.

Hansard records the debate on the empire naturalization bill. The bill is in accordance with the agreement recently arrived at by which British subjects are of equal privileges as such everywhere. It is a new and far-reaching amendment. When it came to the manner of making foreigners British subjects in Canada there was considerable debate, and the result is that hereafter the applicants must appear in person. This will do away with fraudulent affidavits and stuffing the voters' lists. It will be possible to run down any foreigner who allows himself to be bribed into making a false statement, or as formerly where affidavits sufficed, in being made the victim of affidavits he never saw. Having to appear in person will stop crooked work. It will be possible to nail any case of fraud and to have it punished at once.

A STRANGE EXPLANATION.

TORONTO is now trying to explain why it was discourteous to the South American mediators by not having an official meet them at the Union Station. The Toronto Star explains it as a failure to realize the importance of this hemisphere and to overestimating Europe. This explanation is most strange. Toronto has been so absorbed in blowing about itself, that it is difficult to realize that it ever was obsessed with the idea of European importance. The explanation is comforting, however, as it shows that Toronto is gradually acquiring, though slowly, a sense of due proportion.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

IT HAS BEEN NOTED that the unlucky thirteen figured in the Empress disaster—thirteen being from Winnipeg and thirteen from Vancouver. This should be no reason for being afraid of the number thirteen. On a good many more occasions, parties of that number have gone safely across the Atlantic and returned safely.

IT IS UNDERSTOOD that there will be further reference to the Trent Valley Canal report by reason of the statement of local parties that the blow dealt has been too heavy to leave as it is. This will cause things to be raked up that would have been left as they were on account of the illness of some of the parties concerned.

KINGSTON BARBERS have advanced the price of shaves, doubtless due to the increasing number of professors and thoughtful students in that place.

WE SUGGEST that Liberal candidates in the provincial elections be made eligible for the Carnegie Hero medals.

Hamilton Herald.

Madam Clara Butt, on her return to England after her world tour, says that Canada is backward in musical development and has very bad railway stations. The latter piece of criticism is so just that we lack the courage to question the first.

The Alternative.

Canadian Courier.

They were building a new church and the funds had not come in as fast as had been expected and the priest thought he would simplify matters by appointing a sum of money which he thought proportionate to each man's wealth, and so he taxed Con Hagerty $1,000. Con had begun to feel the religous indifference that sometimes goes with success, and when he heard that he had been mulcted a thousand dollars he was frantic. "I'll niver pay it," he exclaimed; "I'll become a Presbyterian and go to hell first."

Praise for an Empress Hero.

Toronto Mail and Empire.

Among those who went down with the Empress of Ireland were some who were heroes in their last moments, and some who had spent many years of their lives in the work of helping their fellow-men. Worthy of the uniform they wore were the men of the Salvation Army who perished in that wreck. Among others well deserving special mention may be named Ensign Mardell. His splendid work in Toronto will long be remembered by many whom he befriended in the Police Court. He was the mediator and sponsor there for the wayward and unfortunate. He was the man who got them another chance, and reclaimed them in many cases from their evil ways. His removal to Vancouver was felt to be a loss to Toronto. His death is a great loss to the Salvation Army.

IN THE SANCTUARY

By Walt Mason

I went to church the other day, a thing we all should do; I heard the pastor preach and pray, and felt as good as new. Fine music echoed through the kirk, whene'er the gifted choir and organist got down to work; they all showed vim and fire. And when a deacon passed the plate, at closing of a tune, I saw full many a pious skate dig up a picayune. Old rusty pennies were the prize the deacon drew that morn, and I could see his ancient eyes flash forth an angry scorn. The preacher looks down from his perch on jim crow sports, I ween; they take their pennies to the church, where dollars should be seen. All honor to the widow's mite, the poor man's hard earned cent; they're pleasing to the Master's sight when in his cause they're spent; but it must give him fourteen pains, repeated fourteen times, when tightwads reach down in their jeans and dig up pewter dimes. That's why the good old deacon groans, it's why his spirit faints; he takes in just a pair of bones from seven hundred saints.

SWIMMIN' HOLES

BACK there among the wuth-while things that rest far back along the way is the old swimmin'-hole. Remember it? Sure ye remember it. Right to-day, every time you smell the scent of alder-blossoms, ye get astride dear memory and hike back there with a lope and afore ye know it yer runnin' a shirt-strippin' race with Bob and Tom and Harry. Yer not goin' ter be last one in' if ye kin help it.

The old swimmin'-hole lays there yaller and warm beneath the summer's sunshine. The blackbirds trill on the alder-buches thet hedge it and thet one spot holds all the sights, the smells and the glories of perfect joy fer you and th' other fellers.

But ye wouldn't jest care to go back there to-day and do what ye uster do, leastways not in the same way ye uster do it. Ye'd be a long time unfrezin' and ye'd wanter feel of the water afore ye trusted your rheumatic old body in it; ye'd be some scared of sunburn, too, and a lizzard er leetle water snake would right nigh make ye throw a fit, eh?

But ye uster swim in that old swimmin'-hole and ye uster get blood-suckers atween yer toes and ye didn't mind—how is it?

"Oh," ye answer, "I'm older and wiser then I uster be." Are ye though? Think it over afore ye answer, are ye any wiser? One thing sure is ye're no happier.

Women In Trade.

There are instances on record of Englishwomen in the later Middle Ages discharging duties and holding offices that do not fall to their lot in these days. There are allusions, writes A. Abrams in "English Life and Manners in the Later Middle Ages," to women burgesses in the records of London and some of the large towns: "If women married aliens, they could naturalize them. They sometimes acted as church-wardens, a post that often entailed such duties as farming and trading, as well as keeping the parish accounts, managing parish entertainments, and representing the parish at the Archdeacon's Court. They were occasionally entrusted with the charge of state prisoners, and once or twice they helped to collect loans for the King. Cicely, Duchess of Warwick, was hereditary Sheriff of Worcestershire, and the widow of Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, was Countess Marshal, and as such wore the robes of the Garter on St. George's Day, 1386.

The drag net which the News spread did not seem productive of results calculated to bring anything to light. Alderman Grunewald had introduced it at the request of his good friends Rosenbaum & Rosenbaum and knew nothing about it.

Rosenbaum & Rosenbaum said that the proposed franchise spoke for itself, and that the road would prove of inestimable benefit to Belmont, since in the near future it would be extended to Corona, and all the people of that little town and the villages along the line would do their shopping in Belmont. The incorporators were Chicago men with plenty of capital back of them.

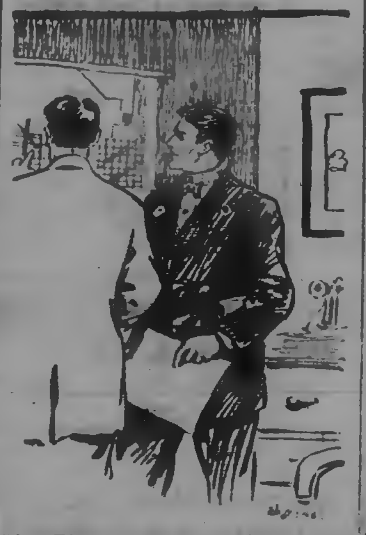
Wright telegraphed a Chicago news agency to find out who the incorporators were. At his suggestion the city editor tried to get Kerr at Esmeralda Springs by telephone, but was unsuccessful.

Only one clue was found which of itself was suspicious, and it was not one which could be used that afternoon. The courthouse reporter had dropped into the county surveyor's office, and talked about surveying in general and the work in Belmont county in particular. Was anything going on just then? This elicited the reply that the spring was not far enough advanced for the usual work, but that the stock-yards company had had men out. What were they doing? They were seeing how they could save their tracks along the river and rearranging the quarantine tracks for Texas cattle which were by themselves to the east of the main yards. This was all the courthouse man brought back to the office, but it was duly presented to Wright by the city editor.

That afternoon Belmont rubbed its eyes as it looked at the front page of the News. In the last column under an extended head was a story about the proposed car line down Maple avenue. It was not replete with facts and figures, but it asked a great many questions and contained several interviews which said nothing. Even the property owners along Maple avenue who had consented to the line and then been pledged to secrecy until the matter was made public by the introduction of the bill in the council, knew nothing more than that Rosenbaum & Rosenbaum had secured their consent.

The Chicago news agency did not send what information it gathered until too late for use on that day.

Sam Hayes bought a paper on the street, read the story, and rushed for a telephone. He paid two dollars and thirty cents for the privilege, one could not call it pleasure, of talking with Kerr at Esmerelda Springs. He read the paper to the boss, the front page story and the trenchant short editorial in inquiry. Kerr asked that he be connected with Gilbert, but already the judge was trying to get Esmeralda Springs, having seen the News just a few minutes after Hayes. Their conversation was short, Kerr knew the facts, and it was mainly a discussion of how the Banner should treat the matter in the morning. The boss decided his paper should insist that the News was trying to knock the town. The attack was to be upon the News, thus diverting attention from the real issue. This command, properly phrased, was dropped into the eager ear of Deacon Winthrow and he proceeded to write a scathing editorial holding up to scorn the paper which would try to barricade the path of the car of progress. The deacon felt proud of his editorial when he read it in the proof, and was warmed with a self-satisfied glow to think that he had thought of it. He still lived in the age of personal journalism and to lambast the other fellow personally was part of his editorial creed.



"Are They Going to Build a Viaduct There?"

Before the paper came out, Wright telephoned Gloria that he would be unable to drive with her but that he would call in the evening. They had reached the point in their fast friendship where she was not unwilling to pout and let him know how disappointed she was.

It was four o'clock when Morrison arrived at the News office with a copy of the proposed franchise. As he threw it on the table in Wright's private office he exclaimed:

"If that goes through, the company can do anything according to its provision except commit murder."

"I suspected as much," replied Wright. "What right of way have they?"

Morrison went to the map of Belmont on the wall and located the city terminus of the proposed line.

"Here's where they start on their own tracks," he explained. "You see, there's a provision in the charter of the Belmont Traction Company whereby any interurban line can use its tracks into the heart of the city upon payment of a fair rental. Here's the Townsend Park Line coming down Bluff Street, and right here where Bluff Street crosses Maple Avenue the interurban's own tracks will start."

"Then how does it run?"

"South on Maple Avenue and Maple road, to a private right of way which begins east of the stock-yards and parallels the county road to Corona."

Wright studied the map earnestly.

"You see, I'm too new to know that neighborhood," he said. "Why did they pick Maple Avenue?"

"It's the only street they can use in that part of town. It's the natural artery for that new district out there, since there are bills on both sides of it."

Wright still puzzled over the map.

"What are those red lines crossing Maple Avenue about two blocks south of Bluff Street?" was his next question.

"Those? They are the railway tracks of all the lines entering Belmont except those that come down the river from the north."

"Are they going to build a viaduct there?"

"Nothing is said about it."

The new venture would be a good thing for Belmont—if the company would confine itself to good works. The most objectionable thing was the lack of frankness on the part of the men back of the enterprise. Here was a corporation seeking to serve the public and not taking the public into its confidence.

While Morrison and the publisher of the News were canvassing the situation, a telegram from the Chicago News Agency was delivered to Wright. It read:

"Hammersley is the private secretary of Adolphus Koerner, Koerner & Co., packers. Others are clerks in law office of Kendall, Strang & Kendall."

"By George!" exclaimed Wright. "The stock-yards company!"

Then he remembered what the county surveyor had innocently told. There could be no doubt of it. The stock-yards company was making some move which it did not dare make openly.

"It looks like it," assented Morrison. "Have you any idea what they want?"

"Not the slightest. They're not fighting the traction company, I know."

This, thought Wright, explained Gilbert's many visits to Chicago recently. The stock-yards attorney had apparently no connection with the new company, but Wright and Morrison, too, when it was explained to him, were both of the opinion that he was directing every move. If he was in it, David Kerr was in it; and if David Kerr was in it, he was not in it for his health.

In seeking to unravel the tangled skein they now had a loose end to work with. They could not imagine, however, why the stock-yards company was entering the street car field in such a peculiar manner.

Wright sat with his chair tilted back against the wall, his hands behind his head, gazing at the map on the wall opposite.

"Morrison, a newspaper man has to trust in many cases to his sixth sense; that's his nose for news, for the big story. Often he misses fire, but when he does hit the bull's-eye everybody knows it." Such was Wright's preamble as he brought his chair down on the floor and prepared to tell the lawyer what his sixth sense had made him feel was the real object of the game. "The stock-yards company is preparing to steal a street."

"What!" gasped Morrison. "What makes you think so?"

"Everything. See how the river is eating up the only tracks to the stock-yards. They've got to get to the yards farther east. Maple Avenne is the easiest way. The franchise says nothing about what kind of cars are to run, how they are to be propelled, or what they are to carry. I'll bet they are going to run cattle cars filled with hogs and sheep and cattle down Maple Avenue, and pull them with steam engines, too."

"I won't believe it," protested the lawyer. "Maple Avenue is a residence street!"

"The stock-yards company is a foreign corporation interested only in dividends."

"Look at Benton Park!"

"Yes, take a good look; you won't want to in a year from now."

"I don't believe it."

Suffered 10 Months with Kidney Complaint. Gin Pills Cured.

Dunvegan, Inverness Co.

I am perfectly cured of Kidney complaint after using Gin Pills. Six hours after taking the first Pill I obtained relief, and now after three months I feel as well as ever.

I suffered ten months and the Physician attending me advised me to go to the Victoria Hospital at Halifax, as he could do nothing more for me. I may add that I used a great deal of medicine, and strictly followed my physician's directions regarding diet, etc., but without avail, until providentially I learned of your most excellent remedy. I am recommending Gin Pills.

DRYSDALE, ONT., June 15th, 1913.

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address and, on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them strongly to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a most terrific pain at the base of my skull. This pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to Inflammation of the Brain, but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives" and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness".

LOOKING FOR RADIUM.

Professors Say Some Pitch Blende In Canada, But Not Much.

In some parts of the world man may yet accidentally pick up a large diamond or a gold nugget, but he never has and never will stub his toe on a "hunk" of real radium. This is not due to its peculiar energy, say the professors, but to the rarity of pitch blende, the substance in which it is found, and to the fact that even from large quantities of the pitch blende only an infinitesimal amount of radium can be extracted. It is stated that radium is as scarce in pitch blende as gold in sea water.

Prof. Walker, of Toronto University, states that all the radium obtained from Colorado in 1912 could be heaped on a 25-cent piece. The amount, consisting of 2.2 grains was obtained from 22 tons of corotite, a substance somewhat clinkerlike in appearance, with a decidedly yellow tinge.

The professor states that Mlle. Gleditch's figures show that if 100 grams of corotite contained 16 per cent. of uranium, or pitch blende, the amount of radium which could be extracted would amount to between .000,003,75 and .000,003,80 grs.

As to whether there is much radium in Canada, the professors cannot definitely state, but pitch blende, the hard, black, coal-like substance, has been stated to exist around Murray Bay and some districts north of Ottawa, including Villeneuve.

Prof. A. P. Coleman states that pitch blende was reported two years ago by Prof. Chapman on the north shore of Lake Superior. No survey of the amount has yet been made, according to the professor, but if it exists in that district it is considered an extremely valuable asset to the country. The pitch blende, says the professor, runs in veins just as gold. The action of the Government is considered as a good thing to arouse prospectors' interest all over the country, so that deposits of the substance if they exist may be located.

Whether radium will ever be produced faster than at present is a problem which the professors do not care to answer. Prof. McLennan, however, in his lectures to the second year Arts' students has continually pointed out a belief now gaining ground, in the possibility of common ordinary lead being turned into radium. His system of charts show the various stages through which radium has already been passed by experiments, the indication being that if it went through one more stage it would be of the same atomic weight as lead.

Link With Past Gone.

A WITTY QUEEN.

Stories About Elizabeth's Quickness at Repartee Are Legion.

Wit and cynicism often go together, while unkindness and wit are even more closely allied. To find out one's neighbor's weakness and turn it into ridicule is wit, providing that it is done with skill and intellectual alertness. To thrust at your enemy and wound him with a witty word is often more effective than a thrust with a more material weapon.

Women, generally speaking, are pitiful towards weakness, and they are trained to let kindness of heart rule their conduct in preference to sharpness of intellect. No woman is ever encouraged to be a critic, and criticism is the parent of wit. Women, so often blessed with an ardent wish of reform, when they espy a weakness, exert all their powers to do away with it. Sin they hate and despise. Now to the wit, weakness and petty foibles, and even sin, are only so much material for him to expend his talent upon. He would find his occupation gone were these things reformed out of existence.

The conventional formula for the womanly composition is therefore inimical to the development of wit. Sometimes, however, temperament or fortune, or a combination of both, have placed a woman in a position where she could afford to exercise this gift.

Queen Elizabeth was so favored by both circumstance and inclination that she could indulge in safety her propensity for wit, and the stories handed down about her are many. Her answer to the Commons when they implored her to choose a husband is a fair example of her readiness.

"Were I to tell you that I do not mean to marry, I might say less than I intend; and were I to tell you that I do mean to marry, I might say more than it is proper for you to know; therefore I give you an answer answerless."

She was often witty at the expense of her courtiers, as on the famous occasion when she made the clever but invidious comparison between two of them—"Though ye be burly, my Lord of Burleigh, ye make less stir than my Lord of Leicester."

It is worthy of note, says The Glasgow Weekly Herald, that Queen Elizabeth has never been accused of a strictness too great in the matter of morals, and neither has she ever been held up as a model to young ladies.

Swift pronounced Stella to be the most witty woman he had ever known. She it was who could joke, though rather grimly, with her physician when lying on what she believed to be her death-bed. "It is quite true," said he, "that you are near the bottom of the hill, but we will endeavor to get you up again." Her reply was: "Doctor, I fear I shall be out of breath before I get to the top."

Eating One's Boots.

A London writer has this to say about the Bishop of Yukon and our explorer, Stefansson: "Eating one's boots, as the Bishop of Yukon confessed to have done during a winter journey, is not so uncommon—in the Arctic—as might be supposed. Mr. Stefansson, who is now leading the Canadian Government expedition, considers that one of the material advantages of skin clothing over woollens in Arctic exploration is that one can eat it in an emergency, or give it to the dogs, if the need is not quite so pressing. He told the writer that he had existed for several weeks during his last journey on a diet of snow-shoe lashings and other rawhide things. Fresh rawhide he regarded as quite good eating, being something like pigs' feet, if well boiled. And as long as there is fuel, even matured hide may be made fairly palatable."

A DIRECT AND MOST EFFECTIVE TREATMENT For Cold in the Head and Catarrh

Some internal remedies, such as Na-Dru-Co Syrup of Linseed, Licorice and Chlorodyne, undoubtedly help a great deal in checking a cold in the head. But you get the quickest action from Fossal Balm.

This is applied directly and conveniently through the new nozzle-shaped end of the collapsible tube in which it is put up. This little nozzle reaches well up into the nostril, and a gentle squeeze on the tube discharges enough of the Fossal Balm to spread over the membrane lining the nasal passages, kill the germs of the cold or catarrh, soothe the smarting inflammation, make breathing through the nostrils free and easy, and check the cold or relieve the catarrh at once.

The fact that this new means of applying the Fossal Balm is so handy, and gets it right up where it is needed, adds much to the value of this splendid remedy.

OUTFIT SAVED

Karluk's Crew Got Goods Ashore

SEATTLE, Wash., June 2.—Cable despatches from St. Michael and Nome, Alaska, indicate that when Vilhjalmur Stefansson' exploring ship, Karluk, was crushed in the Arctic, near Hera Island, northeast of Siberia, Jan. 16 last, the men saved all their instruments, supplies, dogs and food, and left only the crushed hulk and its coal cargo when they headed east over the ice to camp on Wrangel Island.

It is expected that the Canadian Government will see Capt. Robert A. Bartlett, who is at St. Michael's, where he arrived with a dog team on a journey from Wrangel Island, to engage a ship to go to the island and bring off the 18 men marooned there.

Spying on Suffragettes.

In the attempt to repress the militant suffragettes, Scotland Yard is spending thousands of dollars on police spies. Many of these spies start operations by pretending sympathy for the women's cause and joining a men's union for woman suffrage. All men adherents are carefully watched by the suffragettes in consequence.

Besides this, hundreds of plain clothes men prowl around the dwellings and meeting places of suffrage leaders, according to exposures in the Suffragette which adds:

"At private meetings at times, spies are found having gained admission by first becoming members of the Suffrage Society, under whose auspices such meetings are held, and gradually wormed their way into the confidence of staunch friends. When it is difficult for some reason for a detective to join a suffrage society, the plan of employing spies is adopted. For a consideration these hirelings will do their best to find out the plans of the militants.

DROWNING NOT CAUSE OF DEATH IN MANY CASES

Results of Investigation by Embalmers and Undertakers at Quebec Show That Nine-Tenths Were Killed by Injuries Received During Collision—Efforts Will Be Made to Raise Liner.

QUEBEC, June 2.—More than nine-tenths of the victims of the Empress of Ireland disaster whose bodies have been recovered, were not drowned; they were killed, in most cases instantly, by injuries received either when the collision occurred or subsequently by falling wreckage and debris. This statement, made last night by the officials at the mortuary pier, following investigation by the embalmers and undertakers, accounts for the large number of dead bodies which survivors have repeatedly maintained were floating in the water all about them. "There is no doubt that nearly all were killed by injuries received before they were cast into the water at all," said Undertaker Craig of Toronto, in confirming the announcements.

While no official statement has yet issued from the Canadian Pacific Co., marine men here say that there is no doubt that efforts will be made to raise the foundered Empress. She is lying at the bottom on her side, in 180 feet of water at full tide. Her injuries are very extensive, according to the statements of those of her crew who manned the boat immediately lowered after the collision to ascertain the damage done. Several wrecking corporations have already tendered for the work of raising the liner.

On two of the bodies recovered gold and securities, to the amount of $23,000, were found. Mr. B. Anderson of London, Eng., had three drafts netting $14,000, and $1,000 in gold in a belt strapped round his body. Miss Ruth Morton of Fernie, B.C., had securities for $8,000 on her person.

Nightfall found eighty-nine bodies not yet identified. For two days the steady stream of friends and relatives of the lost have passed up and down, in and out, among the sleeping dead. There remain four score of "unknown." Death, the great leveller, has laid them side by side, all equal now. Summoned in the night to the embrace of the relentless deep, they had not even their clothing by which to aid recognition. No barrier separates the humble steerage toiler from the favored scion of wealth and position. Together they must sleep, in nameless kindredship, in one great grave, under one memorial monument.

Under the personal direction of his Honor Sir Francois Langelier, Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec, preparations for the memorial service and the burial of the unidentified dead are now proceeding. The band of H.M.S. Essex, the officers and crew of which have already shared largely in the tribute of service, will escort the remains to their last resting place.

Many miniature caskets still rest upon the mortuary bier. Few of "the babies" have been identified. The tol of children has been heavy.

All day the work of identification, now hourly growing more difficult, has gone on slowly. In some cases, certainty has given place to conjecture. In others dual claimants have urged recognition of the one body. Scores of telegraphic inquiries have had to be laid aside unanswered.

Woman Survivor Demented.

QUEBEC, June 2.—Word was received from Rimouski yesterday afternoon that a woman, evidently a survivor of the wreck, had been found wandering around naked near there. Apparently she was a Swede, but was quite insane and unable to say anything which would lead to her identification.

Beyond Hope of Salvage.

QUEBEC, June 2. — Commander Tweedie of H.M.S. Essex, which is helping in the search for bodies, is of the opinion that the Empress of Ireland is beyond all hope of salvage. This opinion is, of course, based on conjecture from a description of the damage done to the liner by the collier. He thinks that the hull will have to be blown up by dynamite so that it may not become a danger to navigation. The divers of the Essex have been offered to the Canadian Pacific officials if their services are required.

Treasure on Board Empress.

QUEBEC, June 2. — Two million dollars in Cobalt silver are stated to be in the strong room of the sunken Empress. Such was the word received in Quebec yesterday morning. Wires from New York also indicate a valuable consignment on board, and express anxiety that the wreck be salved at the earliest possible moment.

Found Much Money.

MONTREAL, June 2. — Captain Balanger, commander of the C. G. S. Eureka, made quite a salvage while cruising about in search of bodies, gathering in all $1,400 found in purses that remained afloat. One of $430 was picked up. All the money was turned over to Captain Walsh, marine superintendent of the C.P.R., to await claim.

SHOULD BLAME THE RIGHT MEN

New South Wales Premier's Pointed Suggestion

LONDON, June 2.—A despatch to The Daily Telegraph from Sydney, N.S.W., says that the Premier, Hon. W. A. Holman, in announcing a message of sympathy in the loss of the Empress of Ireland, made the following statement:

"I expect that the enquiry will end in the condemnation of some unfortunate second mate or seaman. There will be no safety for the traveling public until the directors of the companies which send 1,500 people to sea in a ship capable of being destroyed in 15 minutes, are put on trial as accessories to manslaughter. I hope that the Canadian Government will deal with the calamity in that spirit. I am not saying who is innocent or who is guilty, but if the disaster was due to a human failing, the people who make money by gambling in human lives ought to be punished."

Two Trainmen Injured.

WINGHAM, June 2. — The early train, which left Kincardine at 5.40 a.m., was ditched two miles north of Wingham yesterday morning by a horse on the track. Mr. S. Moorehead, engineer, and Mr. Joseph Harrington, fireman, were injured when the engine rolled into the ditch. Both men were taken to the Wingham Hospital, where they now lie. They were badly shaken up, but not seriously injured. The balance of the train remained on the tracks. There were no other casualties.

French Cabinet To Resign.

PARIS, June 2.—The French Cabinet, under the Premiership of Gaston Doumergue, has decided to resign. The resolution was taken at a Cabinet council yesterday. The Cabinet will meet again to-day in order to draft a statement explaining the reasons for its retirement from office.

The chief factor in bringing about the resignation of the Government is understood to be the uncertainty of it being able to control a majority in the Chamber of Deputies, where some changes were brought about in the composition of the numerous groups at the recent general elections.

Lieut. Vere Howland Dead.

LONDON, June 2.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Lieut. Vere Howland, the younger son of the late W. H. Howland( of Toronto, has died of fever in Sierra Leone, where he was serving with the West African Regiment. He was in his 30th year.

CONSERVATIVES CHOOSE R. J. SODEN

to apply his best efforts, not only in forwarding the interest of the Riding ,but as well his aid in his official capacity to all who come to him for assistance, and without regard for party affiliation. It will be admitted on all hands that he has been a conscientious representative and has ever been found in his place in the House, giving support to measures calculated to benefit the Province at large. In a word he has been a faithful servant to the people, and to-day holds their confidence as surely as he did when his name was first placed in nomination.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P.

Moved by W. H. Moore, K.C., seconded by Thomas [illegible] Milburn:

The Liberal Conservative Association of West Peterborough, in convention assembled, desire to place on record an expression of their high appreciation of the services to this Riding of their able and energetic representative in the Dominion House—Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. He has ever been assiduous in his attendance on all debates in Parliament, has taken an intelligent part therein, has been fearless in expression of his convictions, and has proved himself a most worthy and creditable representative of West Peterborough.

CITY HALL NOTES

Council Meeting To-night

The City Fathers will meet tonight when several important issues will be dealt with.

Medical Health Officer McPherson reports the city water is in excellent condition. The city is free from contagious diseases.

The Board of Health will meet next Tuesday morning when Messrs. Lush and Stock, two local bakers appointed to bring in a report on the proposed bread regulations will report to the Board of Health.

Sanitary Inspector Spence says sanitation conditions in the city are average when compared with conditions of other years.

MERCHANTS MEET COUNCIL TO-NIGHT

The postponed meeting of the Retail Merchants will be held to-night at the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'clock sharp.

After the market committee's report is endorsed and several other matters of vital interest passed upon, a deputation will wait on the City Council.

ATTENDING CONFERENCE.

Rev. R. G. Peever, Rev. C. Cragg, Rev. J. N. Clarry and Rev. J. G. Lewis of this city are in Napanee attending the Conference of Bay of Quinte district. They will be absent till next Tuesday and in all probability there will be temperance speakers at their churches next Sunday.

If rugs or carpets are beaten on a set of bedsprings they will look as if done by a professional.

Kryptok Bifocal Lenses

Kryptok lenses are the most remarkable recent invention in the Optical line. Each lens is a solid, unbroken surface. There is no cementing to cloud the glasses, to offer lodging places for dirt or to disfigure the appearance. The eyesight of youth is reestablished, and to all appearance KRYPTOKS are the same as young folks' glasses, with nothing to distinguish them from the latter except your own pleasant knowledge of their wonderful far-and-near qualities.

We have the exclusive right to sell these lenses for this city and vicinity.

BAND ALMOST WIPED OUT IN EMPRESS OF IRELAND DISASTER

This photograph of the Salvation Army, Toronto, Territorial Band was taken just before the members left on the trip which was destined to end so tragically. Of the men shown all were on the Empress but one—Captain Gilbert Best, sixth from the left in the top row—and at the time of writing only nine are known to be safe. The wide-brimmed Stetson hats were secured specially for the trip to England to give a typically Canadian appearance to this splendid body of musicians.

Y.M.C.A. CAMPAIGN NOW IN PROGRESS

Canvassers Hear Pointers on Work Before Them

The $4,500 four day financial campaign of the Y.M.C.A. was ushered in last evening with a supper at the Y. when the plans of raising the stipulated amount was discussed by some thirty energetic and enthusiastic workers.

Over five hundred names have been submitted to the canvassers for a start. J. H. Connal, President of the Association, outlined the steps they were taking in regard to the matter of raising the amount. Finance Minister G. A. Gillespie and leader of the campaign forces explained the financial standing of the Association and the amount they needed to carry on the work for the rest of the year.

H. B. Cowan, in a short and interesting discourse on Salesmanship, described some useful and instructive facts which will assist the canvassers.

General Secretary Meserve also spoke. On Thursday evening a supper will be held at the Y.M.C.A. when the final returns will be given.

Under the regime of the new secretary it is proposed to have the management of the work of the Y. left in the hands of the younger men. A meeting of this matter will be called in the near future.

POLICE STATION NOTES.

The friends of Constable Sills of the police force will regret to learn he has taken a turn for the worse and is very low. He was operated on a few days ago at the Nicholls Hospital for appendicitis, and has been gradually sinking for the past two days.

Detective Newhall of the force commenced his holidays this morning. Holidays for the rest of the force will continue in the usual manner. Chief Thompson leaves on the 29th for Winnipeg for the annual convention of the Chief Constables of the Dominion, where he will deliver an address on "Crime."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

FLICKERING LIGHTS.

To the Editor of The Review :

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly put the following lines in your paper.

It was a nuisance on Sunday during the evening service in mostly all the churches and in the houses also, when the electric lights went out and on again for a short time. Some people blame the lightning for it, but in this case the lightning has nothing to do with it at all. The reason how and why this flickering happens is simply this : The electric wiring operators of the outside main feed line do not know how to make a correct connection according to the regulations. I have noticed quite a number of them at their work ; they just simply twist the wire that supplies the house with current loosely around the main feed line, giving them the appearance of a cobweb and the job is finished. Now, if the least breeze or storm like Sunday evening strikes this kind of a cobweb connection, the loosely connected supply wire gets free from the main line and touches it again, and works as an interruption, thus giving the flickering.

If the taxpayers of this city would like to have a flickerless light during a stormy night and all the time, the inspectors of the different electric light and power companies should see that the wiring operators not only connect the wires very tight, but also solder them together. This gives a continuous job and the flickering will never occur again.

Yours very truly,
Current.

Peterboro, June 2, 1914.

SOME OTHER FEATURES.

To the Editor of The Review :

In your account of the Royal visit you gave the details of its good features and the names of the elite who had received invitations to the reception. There were other features, however, that might be well to notice. It was not gratifying to the citizens that the Royal party upon their arrival at the C.P.R. station should receive their first impression of the city through the factories from the fumes of the two stench spots in the vicinity. The long and torturous drive along the back streets for the short time allotted and where but few could see them did not reflect credit upon the management, nor did the intensely dusty streets which had not seen the watering cart since last week. The worst features of all was when the cheerless spectators by the thousands lined our main streets to see the Royal party upon their return from the Lift Lock, only to be disappointed because of the hurried pace of the procession in the fast automobiles, enveloped as they were in clouds of dust.

Yours,
Spectator.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH.

An impressive memorial service was held in St. John's Church on Sunday night in connection with the disaster to the Empress of Ireland on Friday last. Canon Davidson preached an impressive sermon and the choir and congregation rendered the solemn music with great effect The following selections were used : "Requiem" (Barnby), "Crossing the Bar," (Bridge), Hymns "Eternal Father," "Nearer my God," "God moves in a mysterious way, and "When on my day of life. The service concluded with Chopin's Funeral March, played by Mr. R. J. Devey.

MY FIRST MEETING WITH MY HUSBAND

It Gave Me a Shock

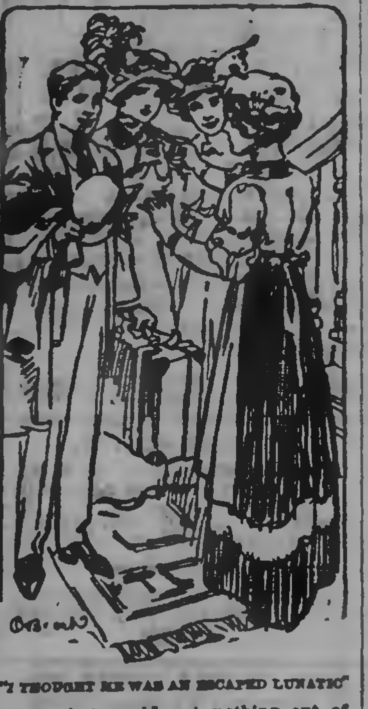
By MARTHA V. MUNROE

When I went to visit my Aunt Martha at East Arlington it was in the spring of the year, and I was delighted to be in the country. I sat on the porch most of the time watching a pair of birds building a nest in a tree near the house and listening to their twittering. My cousins were all very kind to me, doing everything in their power to contribute to my enjoyment. Tom was in business in the city, but came out on Saturdays and stayed till Monday morning.

Tom had a friend, Alan Irving, whom he said he had picked out for me. Any girl who is fancy free is interested in a man who has been picked out for her, and I was very curious to see Mr. Irving. I asked Tom to describe him to me, but could get nothing out of him except nonsense. Tom promised to bring him out for the week end as soon as he could get him, but Mr. Irving was so popular and in such demand that Tom found it difficult to find a time when he was disengaged.



“I THOUGHT HE WAS AN ESCAPED LUNATIC”

Very naturally I looked forward to meeting Mr. Irving and was anxious to make a good impression upon him when he arrived. My favorite dress, a dainty white voile, I kept fresh for the purpose. On no account would I wear it till the eventful day when I should meet the man who might possibly be my husband. I wondered whether he would like me and whether I would like him. Then I remembered that men are less impressionable than women in such matters, and while I was indulging in fancies about him he probably never gave me a thought.

One day my aunt and cousins went to the city for a day's shopping. They kept no servant, doing all the work themselves. Consequently, on this occasion the work was left for me to do. I am not adapted by nature to housework as some women are, who can cook a dinner in dinner dress. On the contrary, I become hot, my clothes become soiled and I am irritated. My aunt and cousins did not get off till late, and before I had set the house to rights I was obliged to prepare my lunch. I spoiled what I tried to cook and dropped grease on my dress. Then, to “crown a crown of sorrows,” a sharp ring came from the telephone, and I was warned by the authorities of the lunatic asylum a few miles distant that an inmate of the institution had escaped, and all persons in the neighborhood were being notified in order that they might look out for him.

“What do you wish me to do,” I asked, “in case he comes here—hold him till your men come for him? I'm alone and entirely unequal to the task myself.”

“Oh, no,” was the reply, “not that! The man is dangerous. We are notifying persons in order that they may take precautions against being injured by him.”

“Medium height, dark hair and wears a mustache only. He carries a suit case, having taken one that doesn't belong to him in order to make the gatekeeper believe he was a member of the asylum staff or a visitor. He also has an umbrella. Don't be frightened. Our men will soon take him in.”

The click that followed hanging up the receiver seemed to leave me alone with the maniac. There had been protection in talking with some one even over a phone. I shut down every window and locked every door. Against some of the doors I moved furniture. The front door had a chain on it, which I put in place to prevent an opening. As soon as I had barricaded myself I sat down and shivered.

After awhile I concluded that if I didn't do something to occupy my mind I would become a lunatic myself. I got up and cleared away the lunch dishes. I was so agitated that my face became smudged with lampblack, though I was unconscious of it, and I spilled soup all over my dress. As soon as I had cleared away the lunch I busied myself doing everything I could find to do, even to sweeping floors that had been swept before. In this way I kept myself occupied till about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, when the ax fell.

Looking out through the front window, there was the lunatic, suit case, umbrella and all, coming up the walk to the house. I caught at a dresser to save myself from falling and stood there till I heard the doorbell ring. Then I was obliged to steady myself by putting the other hand on the back of a chair. Several minutes passed, when the doorbell rang again. My only hope was that the maniac would become convinced that there was no one in the house and would go away.

It occurred to me to telephone the authorities at the asylum that their patient was at our house, but I dared not make the slightest sound, for fear of being heard by the man himself. So I kept still, scarcely daring to breathe. He rang the bell three times; then, instead of going away to murder some one else, he deliberately sat down on a bench on the porch. I could not see him, but I could hear every motion he made.

I could not remain where I was. I must go downstairs on tiptoe to see if I had left any weak spot in my fortification. On turning I caught a reflection of myself in the mirror of the dresser. Agitated as I was, I could not but notice my appearance. My dress, a very old one that I had put on to do housework, was bedraggled with soup and spotted with grease. Over my right eye was a smudge, and on the left side of my nose was another. As to my hair, tousled is not strong enough to describe it. But of what importance was this when a maniac was sitting quietly on the porch waiting to effect an entrance to murder me? I did not give my appearance a thought, but went noiselessly down the staircase. I had drawn every curtain below its window sill, not leaving a crack that would admit a streak of sunlight so I could be seen.

I examined all points of ingress and, finding everything as secure as I could make it, thought what next I could do. There was no telephone booth, the instrument being in the dining room. It occurred to me to go upstairs, bring down blankets with which to cover it, so as to deaden the sound, and inform the asylum managers of the lunatic's presence. Having got the blankets and covered myself and the phone, I put the receiver to my ear. If I had been obliged to ring I would not have dared make the call.

“Give me the East Arlington Lunatic asylum at once.”

That's all I got out of “central,” but I heard two women bidding each other goodby, and they spent half an hour doing so, while I was kept waiting with a lunatic on the porch. When I had heard the last goodby I called for the asylum and gave my information. I was told that a force of attendants would be sent at once.

Throwing off the blankets, I went to a window of the drawing room, near which the maniac sat, and listened. I heard nothing, but smelled tobacco. The man while waiting to get at me was quietly smoking. Then suddenly he got up and walked to the steps, and I heard an exclamation. Could it be that relief had come—that I was saved?

There were steps without and a babel of voices, followed by a jerk at the doorbell.

What should I do? I was not sure what to do. I did nothing.

A loud rap at the door.

My aunt's and my cousin's voices (including Tom's) outside.

“For heaven's sake!” cried my aunt. “What has happened to the girl?”

I unlocked and unchained the door. There stood a number of persons, three men from the asylum, my aunt and cousins and the lunatic. Every eye was turned with anxiety on me.

By this time I knew that I had made a goose of myself. I gave a sickly smile.

“I thought,” I stammered, pointing to the man with the suit case, “that he was an escaped lunatic.”

There was a burst of laughter.

“He's my friend, Alan Irving,” said Tom. “He's not very bright, but I wouldn't quite consider him a lunatic.”

“Good gracious!” exclaimed my Cousin Bess. “What have you been doing to yourself?”

Then I remembered my soiled dress, my smudged face and, turning, fled.

Tom had made an unexpected arrangement to bring Mr. Irving out with him for the week end. Tom had missed the train, and Irving had come out alone.

So this was the result of my dreams of my first meeting with the man who had been picked out for me; my keeping fresh my most becoming dress; my hopes of making a favorable impression! Could I have made a worse one? I was followed to my room by my Cousins Bess and Julia, who found me sobbing convulsively and in whose arms I gradually recovered my equanimity.

When I went downstairs Mr. Irving was kind enough to say to me, “Of all things I admire, a brave man and a cowardly woman stand at the head.”

He afterward declared that, untidy and smudged as I was when he first saw me, I was comely. But that was flattery.

We made a match of it after all.

Resolution Would Guarantee Bonds of $16,000,000

OTTAWA, June 2. — The Government gave notice of a resolution late last evening, which will be moved in the House to guarantee the bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway to the extent of three-quarters of the completion of the mountain section of the line. This will amount to $16,000,000. The estimate of the company is that it will take about $20,000,000 to complete the section, but there is interest also to be provided for.

For this the Government accepts as security a mortgage on the western division and on the Lake Superior branch subject to all existing prior mortgages thereon.

The Government will not be required to implement the additional bonds so guaranteed, and will not be required to pay interest without recourse on the bonds so guaranteed.

The amount of the bonds so guaranteed will include a sufficient sum to provide for interest thereon for three years after completion.

It was stated on behalf of the Government last evening that the obligation of the Government to guaranteed bonds for three-quarters of the cost of the mountain section was clear, but on the other hand the obligation of the company to give a first mortgage securing all such bonds was equally clear.

Conflicting legal opinions as to the liability of the Government were put forward on each side, but eventually a compromise was arrived at on the basis of the arrangement detailed above.

There is talk of winding up the business of the House by Saturday, with prorogation on Monday. At the outside the House will adjourn a week from Wednesday. Farmers' Bank legislation will come up to-day.

THE CHANGING WEST

The Western Canada of today is very different from the Western Canada of five years ago. Most people realize this in a sort of a way, but it is safe to say there are few living outside of the Western Provinces who fully understand how swiftly are the changes that are building a nation out of sparsely settled provinces. This matter is dealt with in an extremely interesting way by the May issue of the “Canada Life Echoes” which has just come to hand. This issue takes the form of a special Northwestern number and it contains much information about the Western Provinces that is not generally known, and also a tabulation of the grain production, etc., of each province which should be not only of great interest at the moment, but also of much value for reference as occasion may arise. Unusually interesting photographs of Western life and scenes are liberally scattered through the publication and there is also an article on the irrigation of three million acres in Alberta. This little magazine is published by the Canada Life Assurance Company, and, while they last, copies will be sent on request, to W. R. Scadding, District Agent, Canada Life Assurance Company, Peterboro.

HINDUS THREATEN TROUBLE

First Appeal to Home Officials to Influence Canadian Government.

VANCOUVER, June 2.—That the Marajahs of two of the most important Indian provinces be requested to call on the Viceroy to demand in turn that he shall appeal to the Imperial Government and to the Government of Canada to secure entry for the Hindus aboard the Komagafa Maru, now in this port, was a resolution passed at a meeting of East Indians, when heavy subscriptions were made for their brethren on board the steamer. The threat was added that much unrest would be fomented in India if the party are not allowed to land.

The situation has become rather aggravated because 640 Chinese arrived on the Empress of Russia Saturday and were admitted on payment of $500 head tax each. Boards of inquiry in the individual cases of the Hindus convened yesterday, and will probably last all week.

Redistribution Bill.

OTTAWA, June 2.—It is stated today that all difficulties in connection with redistribution have been smoothed over and that the bill will be put through this session after all. Richmond, N.S., and Russell, Ont., are to be eliminated. These were the last remaining points of difference.

Won Big Pool.

KINGSTON, June 2—W. S. Townsend, who won a $20,000 pool on the English Derby, is a second year science student of Queen's University.

Labor Leaders Ahead.

Among present day British Parliamentary orators the Labor leaders use the longest and most recondite words. Mr. Balfour, however, is pretty hard to beat at polysyllabic displays. In a speech on dualism in education, delivered some months ago, he used the word “dichotomize.” The reporters, not having heard of this strange verb, held a consultation about it and sent up a message to Mr. Balfour asking if their note was correct. In reply they received a delightful Balfourism: “Did I really use such a word? Was it a verb or a substantive? Make it 'bisect'.”

New Type of Submarine.

The chief feature of the new submarines which the British Admiralty are building, and about which a great deal of secrecy is maintained, is the provision of watertight compartments which find no place in the design of previous British submarines, and of a detachable keel weighing twelve tons, which can be released by those on board should all reserve buoyancy be exhausted.

Bandits on Trial.

MONTREAL, June 2.—True bills on the charge of murder were found by the grand jury in the court of King's bench in Montreal yesterday, against Arthur Foucault and Joseph Beauchamp, two of the four so-called bandits, who are alleged to have shot and killed Constable Bourdon at Cote des Neiges, one night last spring. Trial was fixed for June 8.

Chronic Wish To Suicide.

KINGSTON, June 2.—Geo. Redde, 25, in an attempt to commit suicide, threw himself in front of an automobile, but escaped with a few bruises. Twice before this he tried to end his life in a similar manner, and about a year ago he drank carbolic acid.

FUND STARTED

Members of Royal Family Contribute

LONDON, June 2.—The King has donated $2,500, the Queen $1,250, the Prince of Wales $1,250, and the Queen Mother Alexandra $1,000 to the Empress of Ireland fund. Sir Herbert Tree sent $461, the proceeds of the inaugural meeting of the People's Theatre.

These comprised only additional subscriptions to the relief funds yesterday evening. As the holidays have intervened the appeals have not yet had a full start. It is expected that a considerable move forward will be made to-day.

Henry B. Irving, brother of Laurence Irving, who was drowned in the wreck of the Empress of Ireland, at the close of a theatrical performance last night expressed briefly in behalf of his family, appreciation of the public demonstrations of sympathy and affection for Laurence Irving held here and of the American tribute to his greatness and noble end, so characteristic of the man.

President Cables Sympathy.

WASHINGTON, June 2—President Wilson yesterday sent a message of condolence to King George on the sinking of the Empress of Ireland in the St. Lawrence river:

“I beg of Your Majesty,” cabled President Wilson, “to accept my deepest sympathy in the appalling catastrophe to the steamship Empress of Ireland, which has brought bereavement to so many English homes.”

Secretary Bryan instructed American Ambassador Page in London to call at the British Foreign Office and express this Government's condolence and his own in the disaster which overtook the British vessel.

LOST HIS TROUSERS.

Sydney Buxton Had a Distressing Accident While On a Journey.

The announcement that the Rt. Hon. Sir Sydney Buxton, who is to succeed Lord Gladstone as Governor-General of South Africa, has accepted a peerage, coupled with the recent succession of Mr. Sydney Holland, chairman of the London Hospital, to the title of Lord Knutsford, on account of the death of his father, reminds one of an amusing story which the latter told four years ago at a dinner. It appears that Mr. Sydney Buxton and Lord Knutsford are cousins, and there was a loud demand for a story at the dinner in question, when Lord Knutsford happened to remark that Mr. Sydney Buxton was the only Cabinet Minister who “had thrown his trousers out of a railway carriage window and not lost his character.”

With a laugh, the chairman of the London Hospital readily complied with the demand for further particulars of the incident. On one occasion Mr. Buxton got to a railway station five minutes before the train arrived, and sat down on a bank to wait. “When he got into a compartment,” said Lord Knutsford, “he found his coat and waistcoat were full of ants, so he took them off and shook them. Shortly afterwards he felt the ants inside his trousers, so took them off, and was shaking them out of the window when a passing train took the trousers out of his hand.

“This was very awkward. He was going to a Cabinet Council, and he had on a frock-coat, but no trousers. At the next stopping-place he called a porter.

“ 'That won't do,' said the porter, and he shouted to the guard. 'Here's a bloke in the first-class without any bags on!'

“The guard came up and seeing how things were, he telegraphed to King's Cross: 'There's a Cabinet Minister in the train who has thrown his trousers out of the window. Get another pair for him.'

“When Sydney Buxton got to London be was provided with a pair of green trousers, such as porters have, and in them he went to the Cabinet meeting, where he was charged with trying to ape the Labor members.”

Robust at 99.

If race suicide applies to the more settled centres of the North American continent, its effects do not seem to have reached across the Straits of Northumberland to Prince Edward Island, where, according to a recent census, it is shown that a larger per thousand of people over 70 years of age are to be found than in any other province of Canada.

In most countries a fourth generation is rare, but Prince Edward Island can boast of a fifth in the Poirer family, of Tignish, the men of which are fishermen and of robust health. The head of the family, a great-grandfather Poirer, has 202 living descendents, and is up at daybreak at 99 years to turn his fish on the flakes to dry and to chop wood.

BLOUNTMEN LOST FIRST TO TORONTO CANUCKS

Petes Took Three Runs in the First Without a Biff

The element of hard and good luck played an important part in the win of the Toronto team and another loss of the Petes at McCaffery's stadium yesterday according to Toronto dispatches. The Petes had two on in the ninth with two out when Swartling, pinch slugging for Sterling, slammed one along the first base line which looked good, only to have Schnieder, the Toronto first sacker grab it with one hand and beat Swartling to the bag. Galm formerly of the Buffalo Internationals, bowed before Canuck league society for the first time, and did not yield a hit in the first five innings. Mr. Galm's work did not prevent the Blounters from scoring, however, and three runs were pushed over in the first on four Toronto errors. In the sixth the Petes scored another on Welsh's single and Stewart's two base poke. The Beavers scored one in the first on Trout's double, an out and Ort's sacrifice, while another was added in the third on a pass, a scratch hit and an attempted delayed theft. In the fourth the Beavers scored two on Schnieder's single, Loud's single, two outs and Sterling's balk. Another was tallied in the eighth on Schnieder's triple and Isaacs' sacrifice fly. The Petes had three thefts. Sterling passed four and fanned six.

BANKERS AND TYPOS TO PLAY

First Twilight Game in Mercantile League

To-morrow evening at six-thirty the first evening game of the Mercantile League will be staged at the Exhibition Grounds. The Typos and Bankers will clash, and according to reports both teams will trot out a strong aggregation. Roy Smith, the boy who heaved the Drafting Room to victory last season will be on the mound for the money men. The Typos are stronger than they were last season, and although Swanson, their peppery catcher, has been secured by the C.G.E. Red Caps, they claim their outfit is to be counted on all season. The game is called for six-thirty sharp and will very likely go seven innings.

COMMENT

As You Like It

'Tis said that joy and hilarity were absent quantities at the meeting last night, of the baseball syndicate but like good sports, the members decided to extend a few more chances in the hope that this much-abused baseball team of ours will take a brace and show the public at home and abroad that they have something more than a uniform.

Erie Dispatch.

Frank Gygli is now manager of the Erie baseball team. The shift was made last evening, when George Smith, realizing that he was not having success with the team, and that he was out of tune with the youngsters on the roster, handed his resignation to George O'Neil, owner of the team.

Smith had many obstacles to combat in his role as manager and the worst of these was public sentiment. Smith found himself in a peculiar predicament, coming to Erie as a stranger, to succeed the most popular man who ever ran an Erie ball club, Larry Quinlan. The fans seemed to take the impression that not enough of an effort was made to obtain Quinlan and Smith unfortunately, had to bear the brunt of the grouch.

It was apparent to Smith, too, that he was not having the best of success with the team, and he deemed it advisable to quit and give O'Neil a chance to get someone else.

Profiting by the attitude of the fans toward a stranger, as in Smith's case, the management decided that the wisest thing to do would be to choose as manager one of the men who had been with Quinlan's all-star aggregation. Gygli was selected.

As a ball player Gygli has won the admiration of the Erie fans and it was the earnest hope of the Erie management last night, that he be accorded the good will of the club patrons. He has under him a collection of promising youngsters and by careful management and attention to their faults he should be able to whip the boys into one of the best clubs in the league.

A determined effort is going to be made to strengthen the Yanks where they are weakest now, in the catching department and in the pitching. A good first string is going to be obtained, to work with McNeil and it is likely that one or more first-class pitchers will be signed. The club now has on the way, Williams, from New York. Morse has been going in great style—in fact he has been the only one of the twirlers to exhibit nerve in a pinch. He has plenty of stuff and is not afraid to use it. The others, it seems, have never failed to meet disaster in a tight place. It may be that a catcher who will work them more successfully will bring out their better pitching in pinches.

LACROSSE WITH HASTINGS TEAM

Game at Riverside Park at Six O'clock

The first lacrosse game of the season, in fact the first game after a lapse of seven years, will be staged tomorrow evening at Riverside Park at six o'clock. The outfit opposing the Petes will represent Hastings and as that town has been turning out lacrosse players for a quarter of a century or more they will have a team, the beating of which will call for some mighty fine playing.

It has been a hard fight to get the boys interested but a team has been gathered together and as Doc McFadden, D. Fleming, Geo. Mein, J. Crough, C. Manion, G. Halpin, L. Johnson, L. McCoy and A. Doris, also several other old timers will be the line up there is every possibility of it being strong. The game will be called sharp at six o'clock.

HUMAN PERSONALITY.

A Product Not of Brain or Heart, but of the Nervous System.

To Galen is ascribed the belief that the brain was the seat of the rational soul, the heart the location of courage and fear, and the liver that of love. This distribution of the element of personality over the physical body finds its expression in the common speech of today, particularly in relation to the heart, which is widely accepted by the popular mind as the source of the more tender emotions.

It was chiefly through the anatomists and physiologists of the early renaissance that the modern movement, which has tended to limit personality to the nervous system, was seriously begun, a movement which, with the increase of knowledge, has gained support to such an extent that it can now be maintained beyond any reasonable doubt.

Human personality is in no true sense the outcome of the non-nervous organs, such as the digestive or the circulatory organs, but is the direct product of the nervous system. This system, to be sure, is embedded among the other organs of the body, and the environment thus provided influences profoundly its condition and action, but acuteness or dullness of sense, quickness or slowness of action, temperamental traits, such as a gloomy or bright disposition, incapacity, shiftlessness, honesty, thriftiness or sweetness, are all, strictly speaking, functions of the nervous organs.

Although only the higher animals can be said to possess personality in this sense, traces of it occur in the lower forms, and its evolution is indissolubly connected with that of the nervous system.—Professor G. H. Parker in Popular Science Monthly.

Favors Lightning Rods.

A bulletin advocating the use of lightning rods on buildings has just been issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Prof. W. H. Day, of the staff of the Ontario Agricultural College, is the author of the bulletin, and he demonstrates, after a series of investigations covering 13 years, that lighning rods are the protection that science claims them to be. In Ontario in 1912, the efficiency of rods was 94 1-2 per cent. From the reports of insurance companies, Prof. Day found that in every 200 farm buildings insured, 42 were rodded, which is 21 per cent., but out of every 200 farm buildings struck by lightning, only three were rodded. In this connection Prof. Day observes, "We should have expected 42 if the rods were no good."

These and other proofs submitted by Prof. Day are practical demonstrations of the scientific fact that lightning rods, properly installed, are a precaution. In giving directions for the proper rodding of buildings the reader is reminded that lightning is electricity. Prof. Day asserts that rods should be in metallic connection with the building, and that no insulators should be used. This method of attachment is directly opposite to that adopted when lightning rods were first used.

SAFE FOR ONE YEAR

Becker Will Get Temporary Stay of Execution

NEW YORK, June 2.—It is announced that a notice appeal in the case of Charles Becker, sentenced to death for the Rosenthal murder, will be filed within a few days. This notice, of course, automatically stays execution so that Becker will not have to die during the week beginning with July 6. The Becker lawyers have stated that they would be ready to argue the case before the Court of Appeals at the beginning of the fall term in October. It is believed, however, that it will be a year before the court can act on the case.

Diamonds In the North.

Some of the leading authorities of the Geological Survey of Canada have declared that diamonds in commercial quantities may be discovered in the northern regions of Canada, those found in the glacial drift of Wisconsin having apparently been transported by ice during the glacial period from some point in the Laurentian region in the neighborhood of Hudson Bay. In fact, a couple of years ago a Montreal jeweler bought a large diamond said to have been discovered in Ungava. Admirable specimens of feldspar labradorite have been recovered from the anorthosite masses on the east coast of Labrador. This mineral shows a brilliant play of colors and is very effective and much prized in jewellery.

N. B. Wins Claim.

It has been agreed by the Dominion Government to pay the New Brunswick Government $66,382 in settlement for long outstanding fisheries claims. The Dominion Government after the Confederation took from the riparian owners the right of controlling fishing in inland waters, but in 1882 the Privy Council ruled that the fishery rights in such waters belonged to the riparian owner. The Provincial Government, as riparian owner, claimed the sum of $140,000 as compensation.

Oyster Cultivation.

The cultivation of oysters near the mouth of the Mirimichi river, New Brunswick, is to be started by a new company now being organized. The oyster beds at this spot are mostly productive, while others are barren, and the fishermen of the district have been invited to join the new industry.

ROSS A BIG LANDLORD.

Head of Rifle Company Holds Scottish Baronetcy.

The baronetcy of Balnagown, of which Sir Charles Ross, the head of the Ross Rifle Co., is the present holder, is Nova Scotian in its origin, and dates back for a considerable period. Balnagown Castle, the family seat, is situated in the district designated Easter Ross, which is the most fertile portion of the county. In fact, Easter Ross in the north and Midlothian in the south of Scotland are considered the two finest agricultural areas in the British Isles. The castle, though lying close to the Highland Railway line to the north, is so enclosed with towering trees that it is passed unobserved by the railway traveler. It is a residence that the owner may well be proud of. Beautifully situated in the garden of the county, it is a combination of the modern and the medieval. As one approaches the front through shrubberies and beautifully-kept lawns, the castle appears a modern enough structure, but towards the west, north, and east it is typical of other times with its strong buttresses, narrow winding stone stairs, and small mullioned windows overlooking a winding stream deep down below.

The bulk of the Balnagown lands do not lie in that quarter of the country; they extend westwards, with but slight interruptions, through the parishes of Tain, Edderton, and Kincardine for a distance of close upon 50 miles, terminating on the watershed of Scotland, with a mean breadth of from six to eight miles. In addition to all these broad acres in Ross-shire, Sir Charles is also owner of Bonnington estate on the Clyde, near Glasgow, so that he may fairly lay claim to being one of the great landowners of Scotland, over and above being president of the Ross Rifle Company. On the Easter Ross portion of the estate there are numerous large farms, and further inland well on to 200 small tenants and crofters. Towards the west the estate runs into mountainous ground, devoted to sheep, grouse and deer. Some of Sir Charles' deer forests yield from 50 to 100 stags each season, as well as good bags of small game besides. There are about a dozen shootings in all on the estate, with as many shooting lodges. Sir Charles himself, though one of the best shots in Scotland and keen on deer-stalking, does not reserve much shooting ground for himself. His Quebec engagements do not admit of his spending very much of his time in Scotland, yet each autumn at the close of the shooting season he contrives to have nine or ten days at deer-stalking, bringing down in that brief period as many head as the ordinary shooting tenant can in an equal number of weeks.

Sir Charles is proud and fond of his Highland estate and often deplores how the exigencies of modern conditions entail on him the necessity of spending so much of his time so far away from it, for, as he himself frankly admits, a landed proprietor in Scotland is now little better from a pecuniary point of view than a subcollector of taxes, so heavy have local and imperial burdens become.

Whilst the gross revenue from Balnagown estate runs somewhere between 15 and 18 thousand pounds sterling per annum, management and local and imperial taxation cut deeply into this income, leaving the honor of being a landowner a somewhat barren one now that feudal feelings and feudal obligations have died out. Time was, even in the not very distant past, when the relationships between the Highland laird and his tenants were of a much more intimate and amicable nature than now. This was, however, before the period of royal commissions for fixing fair rents and adjudicating such other disputes as might arise between the laird and his tenants. It was then man to man, with no gobetweens, and an occasional tiff or small dispute once disposed of only left the laird and his tenants better and warmer friends than before.

Lost Gold Mine In West.

Headed by Bishop Lucas, who has had twenty-three years' experience in the Anglican mission fields of the north, and Archdeacon Whitaker, with nineteen years, a party of ten left Edmonton recently for the north. Bishop Lucas goes to Fort Chippewyan; Archdeacon and Mrs. Whitaker to Fort McPherson, and Rev. C. H. Quaterman, of Wycliffe College, Toronto, to Fort Chippewyan and Smith's Landing.

Archdeacon Whitaker relates a remarkable story of a lost gold mine of great value between Fort McPherson and Herschel Island. It is to the effect that many years ago it was discovered by a party of nine men. Seven of them starved while returning to civilization, and the others have never been able to again find the spot.

Miners Are Critical.

At a meeting of the Colonial and Continental Church Society in London the other day, Bishop Stringer, of the Yukon, while inviting ministerial candidates to come to the Dominion, said that Canada preferred to give them their training in its own colleges. He objected to the idea that any type of a minister would do in the camps, and declared that the miners were most critical.

Joynson Hicks, M.P., who occupied the chair, suggested that it would be better to missionize their own race before endeavoring to convert the savage nations.

Insects Ravage Forests

As the result of recent scientific investigations of insect ravages in British Columbia, it was found that in some places forest insects have destroyed 25 per cent. of the timber crop.

B. C. Permits Picketing.

British Columbia has a law legalizing picketing during strikes.

Building Railways.

Canada in 1913 had 6,000 miles of railway under construction.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

WHEN everything that can be said has been said there is always some one to keep right on talking.

Every man is a hero in his dreams —that is, in some of them.

People are often willing to share bread. It is the butter and jam they are stingy about.

He is a wise man who keeps on good terms with his cook and his creditors.

Fortunate is the individual who has a long memory and a short tongue.

Some men hate to tell the truth for fear of establishing a precedent.

He who boasts about his self control is right there losing out on that same thing.

Very careful people sometimes consider the truth too good to be used on all occasions.

An occasional attack of contrition is usual and beneficial to the normal man.

When a man rises to explain his enemies begin to chuckle.

We hear a great deal about the arrival of the psychological moment, but does it never depart?

Using Her Wisdom.

"The Deatons are having quite a time with their son."

"What's the matter?"

"Insists on having his own way about everything and wants to run the house."

"Well, perhaps he is competent. They have always claimed that he was smarter than any one else, which would make him smarter than them."

Coffee-stains, even when cream has been in the coffee, may be removed from table linen by rubbing the spots with pure glycerine. Rinse afterward in lukewarm water.

The actor plays another's part
At times with marked success,
Presents a copy to the world
In manner, style and dress.
With power, ability and tact
The other man is shown,
But sometimes on the stage of life
He poorly plays his own.

Before the footlights' fitful glare
He plays the hero's part
And wins in spite of all his foes
The maiden of his heart,
And ever happy do they live,
Serene, as man and wife.
Alas, the records of the courts
Show something else in life!

When there is money to be paid
Some righteous end to gain
He has a roll of bills so large
That it would stop a train.
He scatters largess here and there
And makes the money fly,
Whereas outside it pushes him
At times to purchase pie.

The actor has a pleasant time,
His clothes are cut in style,
And for a happy hour or so
He wears a pleasant smile,
He wears a most contented look,
But if the truth were known
We may be very certain he
Has troubles of his own.

R. J. SODEN HAS RESIDED HERE FOR 11 YEARS

Conservative Candidate Has Been Keen Follower of Politics

R. J. Soden was receiving congratulations this morning on his success at the convention last evening. Work of organizing for the campaign will be commenced at once. Mr. Soden has resided in this city for eleven years, and has successfully conducted his present business on George Street. His education was received in the public and high schools, while he also took a short university course at Montreal. He was identified with the steel business in that city, and acted as European representative for his firm for four years. He also organized and managed an iron stove industry at Midland. It has since been merged with the Canadian Iron Corporation. He is Irish by birth, having first saw the light of day at Mohill, Lietrium county, Ireland, in 1868. He has had considerable experience in municipal matters and has been a keen follower of political policies and reforms.

BOTH LEADERS APPROVE OF SEARCHING PROBE

Judge Bouthier, Hon. E. M. McLeod and Mr. George Vaux, or Possibly Lord Mersey, Will Sit on Investigating Tribunal.

OTTAWA, June 2.—The House of Commons lost no time yesterday morning in facilitating the passage of an amendment to the Shipping Act which will give power to appoint a special commission to inquire into the Empress of Ireland disaster. With the unanimous consent of the House the bill was given a first and second reading yesterday morning and will get a third reading to-day when it will be sent to the Senate.

Hon. J. D. Hazen, who introduced the amendment, explained that under the present act the Minister has power to form a board composed of a Government official or judge. Only one commissioner could be appointed and the Government could not go outside of these classes for a member of the board. It was felt that in the case of the Empress of Ireland there should be the most searching inquiry. He proposed an additional clause to the bill, where in case of extreme gravity the Minister may appoint "two or more fit persons" to conduct an investigation.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he agreed entirely with the bill, and commended the Minister for his action. There should be the most ample inquiry into the disaster.

Premier Borden added a few words, saying that the British authorities had already been notified of the Government's intentions as regards the investigation. He added also that the Canadian Pacific Co. had asked for a searching inquiry.

The investigating board will be composed of Sir Rodolphe Routhier, judge of the Quebec Admiralty Court, and Hon. E. M. McLeod, Chief Justice of New Brunswick, and also judge of the Admiralty Court of New Brunswick, together with Mr. George Vaux, the British expert, whom the British Board of Trade is sending to Canada.

The board will meet immediately upon arrival of Mr. Vaux.

It was announced last night that Lord Mersey will probably be with George Vaux, to represent the British Board of Trade.

In addition to the commissioners there will be three nautical assessors appointed to lend their assistance. One of these will be Captain Vales of Prince Edward Island, the other two have not yet been decided on.

The Government has been informed of the probability of Lord Mersey taking part in the inquiry. He presided at the inquiry into the Titanic disaster.

Unsinkable Ship Useless.

MONTREAL, June 2.—G. B. Hunter of the transatlantic and dreadnought firm of Swan, Hunter, Wigham, Richardson & Co., of the Clyde and Tyne, who is in Montreal, when asked last night if it would be possible to building an unsinkable ship. He said:

"An unsinkable ship can be built all right, but she would be little or no use as a carrier. She would be absolutely no use at all for freight, and very little good as a passenger ship."

Duke at Kingston.

KINGSTON, June 2.—H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, accompanied by the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia, is paying his fifth visit to Kingston to-day, since taking over office. He was given a civic welcome in Macdonald Park, and will later in the day inspect the cadets of the Royal Military College and the new dormitories and gun sheds. The duke has stated that he will attend the closing exercises of the military college on June 24.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN MURRAY.

The call of death was answered at one-thirty this morning by one of the most popular residents of the southern section of this city, Mrs. John Murray, 503 Parnell Street. Deceased has been ill for several months due to a complication of diseases but she took a very serious turn on Sunday and was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital.

The late Mrs. Murray was born in Ireland some 52 years ago but moved to Peterboro shortly after her marriage and she resided here till her death. Her friendly and jovial spirit won for her a wide circle of friends who will learn with deepest regret of her demise. She leaves to mourn her loss, a husband, seven sons, James of Waupin, Wis., Michael of this city, John, William, Joseph, Kevin and Anthony also five daughters, Mrs. Derosa, Toronto, Mrs. H. Hallihan, city, and Misses Elizabeth, Agnes and Aileen at home.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Murray will take place on Thursday morning at nine o'clock from her late home to the Sacred Heart Church and St. Peter's Cemetery.

REGISTRATION.

Registration for the coming election will commence on Wednesday, June 10, and continue until Saturday evening, May 13. The various registration places will be advertised in due time by Judge Huycke.

FINEST VESSEL ON THE LAKES

Unsurpassed Elegance and Comfort on the Noronic

What the Aquitania, now on her maiden voyage, is to the British marine, so is the Noronic, the latest addition to the fleet of the Northern Navigation Co., to Canada's lake commerce. She has just concluded her inaugural voyage. It was a complimentary trip, with officials of the company, the G.T.R., and other transportation companies, civic and marine officials from various parts of eastern Canada, and newspaper men as the guests.

The Atlantic greyhounds are larger, but in elegance and in the comfort of her passengers she is their peer. Here are some of her leading features:

Length, 385 feet.
Beam, 52 feet.
Gross tonnage, 6,905 tons.
Speed, 19 miles hour.

A double bottom is fitted four feet nine inches deep, extending the full length of the vessel, and the hull is divided by eight watertight traverse bulkheads into nine compartments. Two collision bulkheads are fitted forward, making her practically unsinkable. As she leaves the dock you note her great length—385 feet over all. Her six decks tower above the water. They are of steel—main deck, spar deck, promenade deck, observation deck, boat deck and hurricane deck. In spite of the mighty power of her four crank triple expansion engines, providing 5,600 horse power, she moves without apparent vibration.

The first-class passenger accomodation includes ten parlor bedrooms with bath, 118 grand saloon rooms, 60 outside rooms, 60 centre rooms, and 31 inside rooms, with a total of 558 berths. There is second-class accommodation for 100. The first-class dining-room accommodates 280. There is running hot and cold drinking) water in each hall room and an electric reading lamp in each berth.

The promenade deck around the ship is 6½ laps to the mile and there is a ball-room 140 x 38 feet.

The furnishings and decorations are on a magnificent scale, with mahogany and rare tapestries generously employed.

The vessel was launched at Port Arthur, June 2, 1913. Her regular run will be between Sarnia, the Soo and Duluth and Fort William and Port Arthur.

WORKED TILL THE LAST

Engineer of Empress Tells Thrilling Story

TORONTO, June 2—Following the collision of the Empress of Ireland and the collier, there was desperate effort in the engine room to save the ship, and the engineers and assistants left the engines only when human power was of no avail because the steam had failed and the gigantic engines were rendered useless. The story told by Chief Engineer W. Sampson to his son of that last fight in the engine room to obey the captain's orders and save the ship and the 1,400 souls aboard, was told here yesterday by the engineer's son, Mr. J. E. Sampson of this city, as heard from his father in Montreal on Sunday.

Held up by two men, Engineer Sampson worked with the starting apparatus, which, because of the list of the boat, was over his head instead of at his side. In this position, really lying on his back in the hands of his assistants, the engineer worked the machinery until the steam failed and the big engines failed to respond. The telegraphic communication with the bridge and the captain continued its signals. The order came to beach her, and Sampson put on all steam, but in a moment all steam was no steam and the engines kicked once or twice and quit.

Obeying the great code of marine men, the rules of the Board of Trade, the engineer wired back to the captain: "No steam, the engines are gone." Back came the message from the bridge, the usual signal, but carried a message of death 'Finished with the engines."

Then the lights went out and Chief Engineer Sampson gave his last order in the engine-room of the Empress, when he told his men to get out. "We climbed the ladder on the side which was really the ceiling now," said Engineer Sampson, "like the flies on a wall."

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

AGED INMATE MISSING FROM THE PROTESTANT HOME

Jos. Cunningham Left Institution When Other Inmates Were Taken to See the Royal Party

Joseph Cunningham, aged sixty, an inmate of the Peterborough Protestant Home, for the past three years, has mysteriously disappeared from the above institution. No trace of the missing man has been obtained by the officials of the Home. His escapades of other times indicate a mind for suicide.

Cunningham, when he left the Home on Monday, wore a black summer coat, dark trousers, stripped vest, tan boots. He has a gray, shaggy beard and long hair, and is about 5 feet, 5 inches.

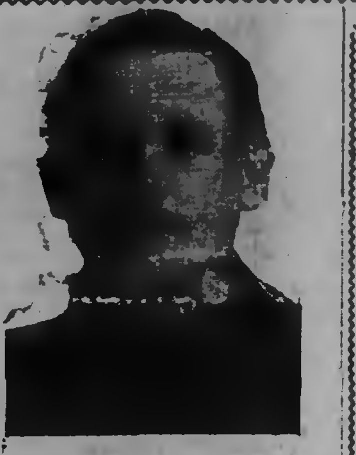
On Monday morning when the inmates were brought to the city to see the Duke of Connaught, Cunningham was left at home with instructions to remain there.

When the Superintendent returned he was missed, and a search immediately instituted revealed nothing of the man's presence around the Home or near vicinity.

Cunningham disappeared twice before and caused considerable trouble before he was finally located. His mentality is not strong, and a close watch was generally kept on him.

Although not violent, it is feared that the man might harm himself, owing to long attacks of melancholia.

Anyone seeing him or receiving information regarding a man answering to his description, should communicate with the Home or Police Department.



BRIGADIER SCOTT POTTER
Financial Secretary of the Army at the Toronto headquarters. He and his son both were lost.

MAIL FROM THIS CITY LOST WITH THE EMPRESS

Indemnity Only for Those Sending Registered Letters

With the sinking of the Empress of Ireland a large quantity of mail sent by business people and private individuals of this city was lost. Postmaster Edgar states that he cannot say what the exact loss will be to local people but there was a considerable amount of correspondence sent to the old country from this city via the ill-fated ship. Since the foundering of the ship the postmaster has received numerous inquiries as to the stand the government will take in regard to indemnities. According to information issued by the postal authorities the department will indemnify only those who sent registered letters and in those cases a maximum of $25 is put on each claim. The Empress carried 159 bags of newspapers, 51 bags of letters, 8 baskets of 301 parcels and 1903 registered articles. In the newspaper bags were copies of the Review being sent to old country subscribers.

THE REST IS SILENCE ---

The story ends.—The wild Alarum Bell,
The ship careening in the ghastly morn,
The hungry sea—and there is nought to tell,
The fearful call, Death's mystic bugle horn.
Out of the grim, unutterable night
A thousand souls go trooping to the light.

The story ends. Our ears are dulled by pain.
What recks the tale of the fear-haunted folk
In weary woe, who walk our streets again,
Salt-crystals glistering on every cloak?
We know it, and, alas, it seems too plain,
A thousand friends all sleeping in the main.

The story ends. Why speak of it again?
The terror of the time words cannot ease.
Nor tame the savage fury of the main,
Nor dry the tears of women on their knees.
Into the sea our gallant friends were hurled,
Their "God Be With You" echoes 'round the world.

The story ends. We set us to our toil,
And to our pleasure, day succeeding day.
Unthinking still our petty souls we soil,
And life, we fancy, is a primrose way.
So dogs may live and other thoughtless things
Who never hear the beat of angels' wings.

RETAIL MERCHANTS AND MARKET REGULATIONS

No Prosecution for Short Weight Butter When Total Supply Averages one Pound—Farmers Don't Want to be Bothered Weighing Fowl —A Ground Floor Building

The Retail Merchants, through a report of a committee which investigated the market regulations and obtained views of the farmers, made some suggestions to the City Council last night. It was decided that the retailers should meet the members of the Property Committee with a view to remedying any defects in the market regulations.

Thos. Barrie, president of the Association, paved the way for the report read by T. C. Elliot—incidentally, Mr. Barrie referred to the flushing of the pavements, with which the Association was in accord. He also drew the attention of the aldermen to the method adopted in Berlin, for abating the dust nuisance.

Mr. Barrie felt that the by-law calling for all furniture stores to be closed at 7 p.m. each evening, except Saturday and days before holidays should be passed by Council. He did not think it should be necessary to secure the signatures of second hand furniture dealers.

T. C. Elliot covered the ground very fully. He referred to the erroneous impression of some farmers that it was compulsory to detach horses from the wagons at the market square. Investigation proved that this had been only a recommendation and had not been included in the regulations.

He said that market conveniences had not kept pace with the growth of the city.

The recommendations of the report were as follows:

To pave part of the square, used by the wagons and horses.

Rescind the regulation calling for fowl to be weighed.

No prosecution for short weight in butter when the total supply of the vendor averages one pound.

Prohibit non-producers from selling on the market.

Provide a ground floor building and put the present hall and arcade to other use.

In regard to butter, Mr. Elliot said some ladies made butter on Wednesday for the Saturday sale, and owing to evaporation the weight of some of the butter might sink below 16 ounces, but the total would average one pound.

Producers of all commodities should have the freedom of the market and not those who buy from others. The latter are not on the assessment roll and by selling on the market they escape all taxes. This is not fair.

N. C. Cameron said all the furniture dealers but one had signed the petition for early closing and he felt the Council should pass the by-law.

In regard to the market, he said, at the present time, one man sold candies, another fish and another fruit. They escaped taxes which merchants were called upon to pay.

His Majesty King George, born June 3rd, 1865.

THREE SCORE "UNKNOWN" REMAIN AT QUEBEC

Many of the Victims of the Empress of Ireland Disaster Will Have to be Buried Without Being Found by Their Friends—Stories of Robberies From Bodies Emphatically Denied by Officials.

QUEBEC, June 3.—There still remain some sixty "unknown" among the 188 bodies of the Empress of Ireland victims which reached here on Sunday. Three full days have now been diligently devoted to identification. The sad task grows more and more difficult, and hope of restoring all the recovered dead to their relatives and friends seem past. Every remaining body has been embalmed and carefully photographed, and will be held for possible recognition as long as possible. Then the bodies will be prepared for burial and removed to vaults at the city cemetery.

All respect has been paid the dead. They have been guarded night and day by officers of the Government and the company. No foundation can be found here or at Rimouski for ghoulish tales seemingly started in the evil imagination of some unfortunates, that victims were stabbed to death by frenzied steerage passengers, or bodies robbed when recovered from the waves. Such stories do terrible injustice to both dead and living.

Mr. William Stitt, general passenger agent of the C.P.R., who is in Quebec directing the care and conveyance of survivors and dead, expressed amazement and horror when questioned concerning the reports. "I never heard anything of the kind even suggested," he stated emphatically.

Statements of survivors, and of Government officers and residents at Rimouski, all corroborate this declaration.

There are sixteen of the survivors still in the hospitals here and at Levis. Only one, however, is in a grave and critical condition. Mr. Archibald Brown of Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, has developed pneumonia in its worst form, and his recovery at the present time is regarded as very doubtful.

The Government steamer Lady Grey returned to Rimouski on Sunday afternoon, and has remained on duty continuously in the vicinity of the scene of the wreck, patrolling the waters in search of additional bodies.

His Majesty's cruiser Essex, whose officers and marines have already won for themselves warm appreciation in the hearts of the residents in the community for the efficient and reverent services in connection with the removal of the dead, is lying at anchor in the river here. Yesterday she coaled up, to be in instant readiness to depart for Father Point on receipt of any message that further assistance could be rendered. The abiding conviction, however, seems to be that practically all of the unrecovered lost have their tombs in the staterooms and corridors of the sunken liner.

A public funeral for the nine identified members of the crew will be held jointly at the English Cathedral and St. Patrick's Church on Thursday. Contingents from the British warship Essex, the Canadian vessels now in port, and the local military forces will be in attendance. The Lieut.-Governor, Sir Francois Langelier, Capt. Wilson and Commander Tweedie of the Essex, Col. Burstall of the Citadel, and the officers of the Sailors' Club and of the Canadian Pacific will be again the mourners.

Funeral of Crew.

MONTREAL, June 3.—The C.P.R. states that the funeral of the members of the crew of the Empress of Ireland, who lost their lives in the St. Lawrence disaster, and whose bodies have not been claimed by relatives or friends, will take place on Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, at Quebec. The C.P.R. will bear the expense.

Sailors as Witnesses.

MONTREAL, June 3. — A private investigation at present being held by Captain Lindsay, Dominion Wreck Commissioner, into the collision of the Empress of Ireland and the Storstad was continued yesterday. Captain Lindsay was closeted all yesterday morning with Mr. Willard, an agent of the Department of Marine and Fisheries.

They have given orders that the members of the crew who were on watch at the time the vessel collided must be held here until the inquiry is over. The majority of the crew arrived here yesterday morning by special train.

1024 DEAD

Total Missing in the Empress Disaster

QUEBEC, June 3.—Final and complete official figures furnished by the C. P. R. here at six o'clock last evening show a total saved from the Empress of Ireland as 452, and total missing 1,024.

The rescued—First class cabin passengers, 36; second class, 47; third class, 136; officers and crew, 233.

The lost—First cabin, 56; second class, 209; third class, 582; officials and crew, 180.

Identified—First cabin, 22; second class, 31; third class, 29; officers and crew, 12.

When the Empress was struck she had on board 1,476 people—namely: First cabin passengers, 89; second class, 256; third class, 718; officers and crew, 413.

It will be noted that there is a discrepancy between the aggregate loss of 1,024 and the detailed table. The latter totals 1,027.

SLASHING ATTACK IS MADE BY THE FINANCE MINISTER

Fraud in Scheme to Get Farmers' Bank Certificate

Ottawa, June 3.—The Minister of Finance in considering the Farmers' Bank Bill made a slashing attack on fraud leading up to the obtaining of the Farmers' Bank certificate for a charter. He characterized the whole origin of the scheme, as planned for robbery. The Liberal opposition however moved for a six months' hoist, although Hon. Mr. Fielding was admittedly no match for the bank robbers.

RUMORS ARE CONTRADICTED

E. A. Peck Will Not Enter the Field

Contrary to rumors E. A. Peck stated definitely this morning that he would not enter the political arena in the forthcoming provincial elections. He said that several had urged him to enter the field but he had decided not to. "Although there is a feeling that the convention did not properly interpret the feeling of the Conservatives of West Peterboro I have decided not to run. I think that on election day those members of the party who are now disgruntled will vote for the party and they should do so to retain the riding for the government," he said.

MEXICAN REBELS DEFEAT FEDERALS

DURANGO, Mexico, June 3.—Three decisive engagements with Federal troops, between Zacatecas and San Luis Potosi, were won by the Constitutionalists on May 30 and 31, according to reports received yesterday by Gen. Carranza. Col. Fernando Reyes, with 600 men of the command of Gen. Carrarra Torres, who is investing San Luis Potosi, administered a decisive defeat to a large Federal force at Salines, and later defeated a force sent from San Luis to reinforce the Salines' garrison.

SUFFRAGETTE ATTACKS ATTENDANT WITH HATCHET; NEWSPAPER MEN SUFFER

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, June 3.—A savage attack with a hatchet was made to-day by a young militant suffragette on an attendant at the door of a gallery, who tried to prevent her destroying valuable pictures. This woman, who thus abandoned the principle of the sanctity of human life heretofore professed by militants, had already ruined two pictures in the galery, one of them a priceless engraving, and was proceeding to hack a third picture when an attendant named Bourlet seized her arm.

The vandal turned on the man and rained a shower of blows on his body, severely injurying him. She was overpowered and disarmed, kicking, struggling and screaming, and handed over to the police. The woman was fashionably dressed and well educated. She dropped a letter in the gallery, the contents of which intimated that suffragettes had been "too ladylike, and that now they were going to fight."

At Belfast suffragettes made serious physical assails on a newspaperman. Two well-dressed women, one of them gigantic in stature, walked into the office of the Belfast Telegraph, were ushered into Editor Stewart's office, and the big woman with a blow of her clenched fist knocked him out of his chair. They then proceeded to the news office and beat up Managing Editor Anderson so badly that he is in bed under medical attention.

EXPLOSION KILLS ONE MAN INJURES SEVERAL OTHERS AND CAUSES PROPERTY LOSS

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 3.—Hewitt Foster, employed by the Consumers' Gas Co. at their Booth Avenue plant was killed this morning by an unexplained explosion in a part of the plant known as the "Blue Room."

The explosion occurred just after the early morning crew had gone off duty. Fire followed but was quickly extinguished by the firemen. Foster was so badly injured that he died on the way to the hospital. Several others escaped with slight bruises. The building was badly wrecked and nearly every house for several blocks around suffered broken windows and dislodged plaster, but the residents all escaped injury. The financial loss is eight thousand dollars.

TWO STORSTAD'S MEN CHARGED WITH THEFT

On Allegations That They Robbed Lionel Kent, a Survivor of the Empress Disaster, of $1,000 in Travellers' Checks, Manuel Chute of Honolulu and Carmel Sperretti of Malta Are Arrested in Montreal

MONTREAL, June 3.—Two sailors of the collier Storstad were arrested yesterday by city detectives, and charged with the theft of $1,000 in travelers' checks from Lionel Kent, manager of the Energite Explosive Co., Montreal, who was one of the survivors from the Empress of Ireland. The arrest of the men, Manuel Chute, a native of Honolulu, was made in the Merchants Bank of Canada, when he was cashing one of the checks, and the other was taken on board the Storstad by six detectives. He was Carmel Sperritti, a native of Malta.

Suspicions were aroused in the bank and on board ship simultaneously. The cashier at the bank noticed the name of Lionel Kent on the checks he was asked to cash, and a sailor of the collier reported to the first mate that Chute had offered him $25 on Monday night as a free gift. The latter fact, it is said, was known to Captain Andersen of the Storstad, but he had not taken any action up to the time the detectives boarded the ship.

A search of the men and their bunks brought to light $550 in checks and $41 cash in the possession of Sperretti, and $400 in checks in the possession of Chute. The latter, who speaks English, said he had been given the checks by a Montreal hotel man. Sperretti has not made a statement yet through inability to speak English or French.

Mr. Lionel Kent said in Rimouski that he had lost $1,000 between the time he left the sinking Empress of Ireland and when he was taken on board the Storstad. He had hidden the papers in his shirt, but supposed they had been lost or stolen while he was in the lifeboat in a semi-conscious condition.

Captain Andersen stated that his men had found a great deal of money in the lifeboats, which they had turned in, as far as he knew.

FURTHER DELAY LIKELY

Church Union May be Referred Back by Presbyterians—General Assembly in Session.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., June 3.—One of the outstanding questions to be discussed at the Presbyterian General Assembly which opens in Woodstock to-day will be the problem of church union.

While it is impossible to forecast with certainty what the recommendation of the union committee will be, it is probable that they will recommend that the whole matter be sent back again to the Presbyterian congregations and sessions for their final judgment under the Barrier Act.

There will be a minority report from the anti-union members of the assembly and the debate will be a notable one.

A short meeting of the committee was held last night to decide upon recommendations to the assembly, but after deliberating for some time they adjourned until to-day. It is expected that they will be occupied all day in drawing up their recommendations.

The first business of congress will be to elect a moderator. It is expected Rev. W. F. Herridge of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, will receive the honor, although Rev. D. D. McLeod of Barrie will probably receive a large measure of support from the congress. Rev. Murdock McKenzie, the retiring moderator, will preach the sermon at this service.

After a short session the committee of the Board of Education and the committee to strike standing committees for the following year adjourned till to-day. Dr. W. J. Clark of Ottawa is convenor of the church union committee. Dr. D. M. Ramsay of Toronto is in charge of the committee of the board of education, and Rev. S. H. Easton of Port Stanley of the committee for striking standing committees.

ROYAL PARTY AT BELLEVILLE

BELLEVILLE, June 3.—This city was en fete yesterday, in honor of the visit of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia. The civic reception took place on the court house lawn. Mayor Willis read an address of welcome and His Royal Highness made a felicitous reply.

The royal party visited the Ontario School for the Deaf, the County House of Refuge, St. Agnes' School and the City Hospital.

LIBERALS' BLUFFS.

Ottawa, June 3.—From time to time bluffs have been announced that the Liberals would attempt to offset the Trent Valley Canal report, but the task has been too great, and the evidence too damning, and it is not likely now that it will be referred to.

AID DEPOSITORS

Farmers' Bank relief measure in Commons

OTTAWA, June 3.—Hon. W. T. White, Minister of Finance, moved the second reading of his bill for the relief of the depositors of the Farmers' Bank.

Mr. White said the Government, in pressing the legislation, acknowledged a moral obligation upon the Government of Canada. The certificate which enabled the bank to open for business and invite depositors, had been granted by the late Government without proper legislation. In spite of warnings from Sir Edmund Osler, David Henderson, M.P., and Mr. Leighton McCarthy, formerly a member of the House.

A. K. Maclean (Halifax), financial critic for the Opposition, opposed the measure. He said if the Government came to power under the weight of a moral obligation to the depositors of the bank, it must be admitted that they had shown no haste to discharge that obligation.

Mr. Maclean moved a six months' hoist. He was followed by Mr. Murphy (North Perth), and the debate was then adjourned. The debate, by agreement, will be concluded to-day.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 3, 1914

PREMIER WHITNEY'S MANIFESTO.

PREMIER WHITNEY has issued a statement to the electors, setting forth the reasons for his appeal to the people, and the main points in the Conservative record and platform.

Three sessions of the current legislative term have expired, leaving but one left, when, of necessity, an appeal would have to be made, whether or not any question of great public import would be involved in the election. Two items of importance require the consideration of the electorate and justify, in the opinion of the Premier, an appeal to the people. The first of these two questions is the Act passed at the last session, known as the Act for Compensation for Injuries to Workmen; the second is the Report of the Public Roads and Highways Commission, involving an expenditure of some thirty million dollars for a complete reconstruction on a modern scientific basis, of the highways of Ontario. To these might be added the legislation providing for the establishment of Radial railways by municipalities. These proposals, the Conservatives ask, in their appeal, the people to approve.

The Premier, in addition, briefly enumerated the main points of the record of the Conservative party. The Conservatives have abolished the numbered ballot and such devices and have restored clean and honest methods in the conduct of elections.

They have aided agriculture by increased appropriations and co-operated with the federal authorities in extending agricultural improvements.

They have established the Provincial University on a prosperous footing and aided education generally by grants to other universities and to advance technical, industrial and agricultural instruction.

The Conservatives have broken the school book ring and secured the cheapest and best text-books ever published on the continent, and, in so doing, have saved the people considerably over a million dollars in the cost of the books.

They have doubled the public revenues, maintained Provincial credit unimpaired at a time when the handling of securities was difficult, by reason of the financial crisis, and have spent money in useful public improvements.

They have extended the great Hydro-Electric System, under the direction of the Hon. Adam Beck, administered it economically, in the public interest, and secured reduced rates for light and power.

The Conservatives have legislated for the great labouring population by the Workmen's Compensation Act, by the Eight-Hour Day Law for miners working underground and by the law to solve the housing problem in the large centres of population.

They have extended and reconstructed the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway, and have granted running rights over the line at a price that pays half the interest on the sum expended in construction.

The Conservatives have faithfully enforced the license laws in honest fulfilment of pledges and in accordance with the moral and temperance sentiment of the province by wholesome amendments, by curtailment of hours of sale and by provisions to aid in enforcing the Canada Temperance Act, where that law is adopted. This policy has resulted in nine years in the abolition of over 1,200 liquor licenses, or nearly one half of the whole number in the province.

New Ontario has been developed and colonized. In addition to 146,400 square miles of territory received from the Dominion Government, a part has been secured on Hudson Bay. Besides $5,000,000 has been provided for the construction of roads and bridges and for the advancement of colonization and settlement in that part of Ontario.

This is the record of the Conservative party that the people are asked to consider. So long as the party legislates in accordance with public sentiment, it is fulfilling the true function of a legislative body. So long as the party is sound it would not be the part of wisdom to vote against it. The record shows the party to be as sound as a bell and vigorous for the coming fight.

They found the best interests of the province languishing and its revenues stationary. They have maintained prosperity and development and have not weakened with success. These are the reasons why Sir James now appeals to the people and with the confidence exemplified in the following closing paragraph of his statement.

> "Profoundly thankful, then, for the confidence heretofore given to us, we ask you to accept our pledge, which we give now for the fourth time, that we will, to the extent of our ability, continue to give you the same faithful service in the future."

SOME FACTS ABOUT R. R. IN THE U. S.

THE BUREAU of Railway Statistics shows that last year there were 1,814,047 persons employed on 433 railways in the United States. In 1913 there were also 59,162 persons employed in the so-called "outside operations" of the railways, bringing the total employed by 433 companies up to 1,873,061. From these corroborative figures it appears that there were over 1,910,000 persons directly in the employ of the railways of the United States last year.

Turning to the compensation of this great industrial army, the pay-roll of the companies reporting to this bureau amounted to $1,373,420,654; or, including outside operations, $1,401,211,961. This makes it safe to estimate the compensation of all railway employees in the United States at fully $1,439,000,000.

This pay-roll absorbs over 44 per cent. of railway revenues and constitutes more than 68 per cent. of their operating expenses. Successive awards of arbitrators have demonstrated the impotence of railway managers to keep the labor unit within reasonable economic bounds.

The average daily compensation paid per man rose from $2.44 in 1912 to $2.49 in 1913, the latter figure showing an advance of 20 per cent. over 1905, when the bureau began compiling the information. This 20 per cent. increase in the wage rate means that in 1913 the railways paid $225,000,000 more for labor than would have been paid for the same number of days worked under the 1905 scale.

The aggregate number of days worked by the employees of the 433 companies reporting in 1913 was 551,134,689, or 304 days per person, against 508,732,152 in 1912, when the average per man was 301 days. These averages are not strictly accurate, because the number of employees is not an average for the year.

A SENSIBLE INNOVATION.

COL. THE HON. SAM HUGHES is in earnest in expelling liquor from the militia camps. But he does not try to extinguish liquor without something to take its place, and that, too, of an educative and entertaining nature.

Under the direction of the Minister, the Department of Militia has completed arrangements to provide moving picture entertainments in military camps all over the Dominion this year. The instruments will be operated in a marquee and the pictures thrown on a screen some distance away, the audience being seated in the open air. The films will include army pictures, troops of Great Britain and foreign powers and travel scenes and the nightly entertainments will conclude with an entertaining series. "The British Army" film of seven parts will be at the Niagara camp on June 18 and 19 and at Petewawa on June 22 and 23. The pictures will be shown at Petewawa from June 10 to July 4 and at Three Rivers from June 25 to July 4.

CIRCUS TRICKS NOT SCIENCE.

EVERY ONCE IN A WHILE we see in the newspapers the account of the death of some aviator. We see accounts of somersaults being turned in the air, loop the loop tricks being performed, flights across the Atlantic being proposed, and these feats are interwoven with the deaths of many daring sailors of the air. Performing such feats as have been done is no doubt remarkable, but it is doubtful whether these men are doing anything to advance the science of air navigation. Usually when lives are lost, they are sacrificed for amusement, not for the advance of science. If air navigation is to become a practical system of travel, less spectacular exhibitions will have to be given and more solid, quiet work undertaken. This work in the laboratory is unostentatious—the experiments do not startle the crowd, but such work is necessary to progress. We do not need the circus, but we do need progress.

The Sad Truth.

New York Mail

One afternoon a friend, upon entering the office, observed upon the desk of the new legal light a dollar alarm clock. "That's a good idea," said the friend. "One is very apt to oversleep these fine spring mornings." The youthful attorney smiled sadly. "This alarm clock was not bought for the reason you mention," said he. "I merely keep it here to wake me when it is time to go home."

Liberals Should Note This.

Guelph Herald.

We have been hearing quite a lot the last few years about the wicked Tories decapitating Grit officials, but a recent appointment in which Guelphites are interested shows that they are not as black as painted. Dr. James Mills, a member of the Dominion Railway Commission, and a Liberal, whose term of office has expeired, will be given a place on the official staff of the commission at $3,600 per annum. We wonder whether a Reform Government could have been found liberal minded enough to do a graceful act like that?

Britain Has Done Much for India.

St. Thomas Times.

It is probable that no other race would have done so much for India as the British have done. Unquestionably there is a fine record on the side of actual accomplishment. This the people of India are willing to admit, although the complaint is heard in some quarters that what has been done has been done with a maximum of irritation. At any rate, the fact remains that a great problem exists and that it will require the wisdom and the genius of British statesmanship to solve it. The immediate need, according to the correspondent of the New York Evening Post at Colombo, Ceylon, is the education of the masses. They must be taught hygiene, sanitation, scientific agriculture and modern industrial processes. Sooner or later they are bound to try the experiment of self-government; the great problem is to fit them for it.

Grey Rocks and Greyer Sea.

By Charles G. D. Roberts.

Grey rocks and greyer sea,
  And surf along the shore—
And in my heart a name
  My lips shall speak no more.

The high and lonely hills
  Endure the darkening year—
And in my heart endure
  A memory and a tear.

Across the tide a sail
  That tosses and is gone—
And in my heart the kiss
  That longing dreams upon.

Grey rocks, and greyer sea,
  And surf along the shore—
And in my heart the face
  That I shall see no more.

THE COLONEL'S RIVER

By Walt Mason

The colonel, afar in Brazil, has found a new river, they say; it's deep, and it travels up hill, and broadens out into a bay. Its borders are ruggedly bluffed, it has some preposterous falls; the colonel will soon have it stuffed, and brought to Smithsonian halls. It has a most wonderful bend, this river the colonel has found; and some times it stands upon end, then burrows down into the ground. Its waters are yellow and pink, it's covered with glittering foam; they say it's lot better to drink than any old grape juice at home. And sirens recline on its shore, their music is heard through the mist, and down on its beautiful floor the mermaids are playing bridge whist. We've always felt sure in our mind the colonel would do things in style, and any old stream he might find would beat other streams by a mile. Good by to the old Mississippi! Its fame and its glories will flee! The Amazon henceforth may slip unsung to its grave in the sea! The Rhine and the Danube, I fear, must down to Oblivion flit; the colonel has captured their peer, and broke it to saddle and bit! Good by to famed streamlets and burns, the Afton, the Avon, the Po! Just wait till the colonel returns, and mark how such rivers sing low!

NURSING OUR GRIEVENCES

EVERYONE of us old codgers kin remember how tickled we was when the barefoot days swung round and we could shed our cowhides and socks and pinch the warm dust atween our toes. And you'll recollect, we uster have our troubles with the stones and the snags and the nettles, and I reckon we all remember them blue festers called stone bruises we uster get on our toes. Joshaigimiet, how them bruises did hurt!

And what did we do? Why, the more that stone-bruise hurt the more we nussed it, cuddled it, made a pet of it.

Later on, when we had got to be men and had run up ag'in some snag er rock in life that left a bruise, we sat right down and nussed our hurt, made a pet outin our bruise. We kept right on bein' children, that's what we did. And we're doing the same thing yet, a lot of us, makin' a pet of our grievences and magnifyin' 'em into one hundred times their actual size.

And it's all wrong, plum wrong, that's what it is, because if we are goin' to do anythin' wuth while, we gotter quit nursin' our little hurts.

Arter all, life is jest a footrace. You and me would like to be in the money, but by heck we can't be in it if we set down and nuss a stone-bruise.

"Anyway, that's the theory I'm going on. If it is correct, I've struck the nail on the head with my first guess. If it is wrong, I'll keep hammering away until the public demands and is given the truth. If I'm wrong, then they'll soon be smoked out. They can't stand being so misinterpreted when asking the public for a favor. But I'm right, I tell you. They're going to connect with the railway tracks where they cross Maple Avenue two blocks below Bluff Street. Such a belt line railway will be extremely valuable."

It was after six o'clock before they decided to leave the office. As every pro and con of the situation had not been exhausted, they adjourned to the Belmont Club for dinner and there continued puzzling over the franchise and its meaning.

Shortly before eight o'clock Wright drained his coffee cup and looked across the table at his companion.

"Doing anything tonight?" he inquired.

"No. Nothing on hand that I know of."

"I'm calling on Miss Kerr tonight. I want you to go with me; I can't go alone."

"I shall be very glad to," replied the young lawyer, successfully concealing his surprise.

Wright realised the fight was on. He also knew what Gloria had come to mean to him, and after what they had said last night he was afraid to see her alone. Now his first duty was to the public, that public which so often accepts benefits and sacrifices all unconscious of its own gain and what the cost has been. For the general good, for an ideal, for his belief in what a paper should be, he was putting aside—just for the time, his heart told him—the one woman who could make him supremely happy.

The deferring of hope was heavy upon Wright's heart as with Morrison he walked in silence to Gilbert's house. To himself he kept repeating some verses from their "birthday book:"

In the twilight we parted.
In the night broken-hearted
We dreamed a sweet dream.
Then we met and we parted
Again broken-hearted,
But dreams come again.

CHAPTER IX.

The story Wright had printed the first day and the reply it drew from the Banner the next morning caused the News to be awaited with undisguised eagerness on the second afternoon. This was heightened on the part of the men in the syndicate interested in the franchise by the pertinent questions put to them in the morning by News reporters. David Kerr was called on the telephone half a dozen times by his lieutenants, and arrangements were made to have a line open to Esmeralda Springs at three-thirty, the hour when the News was issued.

Although they were prepared to discount some of the story because of the questions asked them, yet none of the ring men was prepared for a revelation of the scheme such as the News made. Black headlines ran across four columns and the story also took up most of the second page. There was a map of the proposed interurban route, and pictures of pretty homes on Maple Avenue. But from one end of the story to the other there was no mention of David Kerr or of the local backing being given the bill before the council. It was expressly stated that the incorporators of the new company were merely dummies and that they were acting in the interest of the stock-yards company.

Amos Gilbert in an interview denied any knowledge of the transaction, saying that his connection with the stock-yards company was merely nominal and that he did not even know if the company was interested in the line proposed. He did not see how, as a company, it could be.

Gilbert sat in his office as soon as he secured a paper and read the story word for word over the telephone to Kerr. The latter promptly announced that he would be home the next day and ordered [illegible] Gloria be taken from Belmont on any pretext whatever for a few days until the fight had been allowed to die down. The next day was Sunday, on which Wright published no paper, and Kerr would be home before another issued appeared. He agreed with Gilbert that the Banner ought to ridicule the alleged expose.

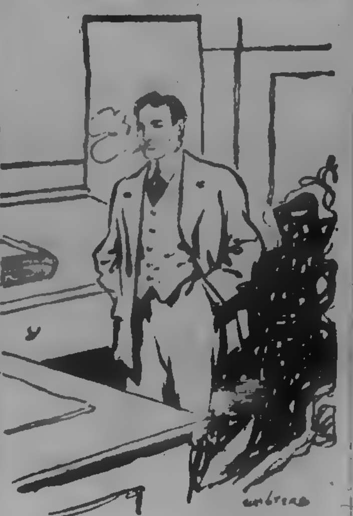
Sunday night, much to her surprise but not much against her will, Gloria went to St. Louis with Mrs. Gilbert to pick out furniture for Locust Lawn. She did not know that her father had returned from Esmeralda Springs that morning and had been closeted all afternoon with Gilbert and John Kendall, who had hurried to Belmont in response to a telegram. The girl had not seen Wright all day, nor had she seen him Saturday, but there came from him a box of roses at noon. Little witch that she was, she meant to surprise him by sending him a note of thanks from St. Louis. She knew he would join her and Mrs. Gilbert there on her hint that they would be glad to see him.

Wright received her note and perceived the slightly veiled invitation, but he was too busy even to answer. It was a week that contained more excitement than Belmont had seen since, a frontier village, it had struggled with the question of whether the state should secede or remain in the Union. David Kerr found himself confronted by a formidable line of battle. The Banner kept pounding away at the News, but the afternoon paper was not to be diverted from its purpose. The citizens on Maple Avenue formed the Maple League, and wore buttons on which were a maple leaf and the legend, "Help us save our homes." The car line was to run through the seventh and eighth wards, and the aldermen in those wards were deluged with letters, post cards, telephone calls and personal visits. Finally they went to David Kerr and begged him that if he had enough votes without them to let them oppose the franchise as they were in the midst of their canvass for re-election. The boss held them in line.

The bill had its second reading at the council meeting Tuesday, but under orders from Kerr nothing further was done with it at that time. He began to worry about the approaching election. What to him was the passing of the bill at that time compared to the control of the city for the next two years? If he let it sleep now and the election went his way then it could be passed soon after. By the time another election rolled around, Belmont would have forgotten.

So it came about that the Kerr adherents tried to forget the franchise. When the bill disappeared they were loud in their denunciation of the opposition thieves who had stolen it. With this outburst they were willing to subside and forget the matter, but this the News would not permit. Wright kept it to the front and they were forced to accept it as an issue. The continuous attitude of apology necessitated by this was weakening them every day. The independent wave which had been sweeping over the country had been late in striking Belmont, there having been no newspaper to marshal the forces, but now it was increasing to the volume of a tidal wave which Kerr would have hard work pouring oil upon.

The editor of the News recognized that it was only a Pyrrhic victory he had won by securing the shelving of the franchise for the present. He was not blind to the fact that the franchise would bob up serenely after election. Now that he had aroused the town and had committed himself to a fight against the ring, he determined to carry it on. It had not been his purpose, before the franchise bill had drawn his fire, to enter with great heat into the coming election campaign, but he saw that the impetus given the opponents of the machine would carry them well on toward victory at the polls. Carrying the election would be a great advertisement for the paper. If it lost, the News could not be any worse off than it was now.



A Former Machine Hanger-on Named Jack Durken.

Kerr forgot none of the precautions he had taken in being prepared to embarrass Wright in his work if the occasion should arise. The merchants who, through Kerr's influence, had patronized the News, suddenly withdrew their advertising. Many who had been in before the paper had changed hands now ceased to use its columns. If a store was using the News and furnishing supplies to the workhouse or the jail, it faced the alternative of losing a fat account or confining its advertising to the Banner. The proprietor, being part of the machine, else nothing would ever have been purchased from him for the city's use, promptly gave up the News. It was the same with meat markets. Other lines of business were approached in other ways, but the result was always the same—a loss of advertising revenue to the News. Even the railroads were derelict in delivering his white paper, and Wright spent many an anxious hour tracing cars from the mill to find them lost in the Belmont yards.

One valuable source of information was developed by the News in a former machine hanger-on named Jack Durken. He came to work in the circulation department of the paper, and Wright first heard of him through the circulation manager. At Wright's request the man came to his office and from his story the editor gathered that he had not received fair treatment at the hands of the other gangsters. He had lived in the disreputable first ward, and had had trouble with Mike Noonan, a ward leader. For his work he had been made a street cleaning inspector, but after having incurred the ire of Noonan had lost his job.

Nothing the enemy did was able to keep Wright from publishing a paper every day. Every issue was a constant reminder to Belmont that things were not as they should be and that the way to remedy conditions was to defeat the city machine at the polls. The editor spent all his daylight hours at his office, and often was there until late in the night in conference with various leaders. The opponents of Kerr had some old scores to settle, and this was their chance. The postmaster was usually to be found on Kerr's side, although under cover, but this time he could not afford to use his influence for his party in city affairs—even for a consideration. The boss knew the game too well to press him.

In the last days of the campaign the anti-Kerr leaders learned with surprise that Senator McMinitry, their state boss, was coming to Belmont for a day. They had not sent for him, and were at a loss to account for the visit. He had not taken any one into his confidence, merely saying he was coming on business. Why he should journey from Washington to Belmont for so short a stay they could not understand. He gave it out that he was making a flying visit to his home, but he came straight to Belmont. Only two men besides the senator knew his mission, the emissary who carried the message to Washington and the man who sent for him. David Kerr wanted to see him.

It was only three days before election when Senator McMinitry visited Belmont. He went to the Hotel Belmont and took a suite of rooms, but did not register. After talking to David Kerr over the telephone, he ordered an early luncheon for two served in his private parlor. Kerr arrived before the table was spread and immediately began to explain the situation. All through the meal the two men talked, McMinitry questioning and Kerr explaining.

Practical politics was the business of Senator James McMinitry just as it was of Mr. David Kerr. Jim McMinitry liked to pose before the public and to make flamboyant speeches. Kerr preferred to sit in his dingy real estate office and pull the strings that made the puppets dance. To him speech making and posing were like the tinsel on a drum major's uniform. He cared only for power, it was immaterial to him how gaudy glory was apportioned.

How Mrs. Hurley Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Eldon, Mo. — "I was troubled with displacement, inflammation and female weakness. For two years I could not stand on my feet long at a time and I could not walk two blocks without enduring cutting and drawing pains down my right side which increased every month. I have been at that time purple in the face and would walk the floor. I could not lie down or sit still sometimes for a day and a night at a time. I was nervous, and had very little appetite, no ambition, melancholy, and often felt as though I had not a friend in the world. After I had tried most every female remedy without success, my mother-in-law advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I did so and gained in strength every day. I have now no trouble in any way and highly praise your medicine. It advertises itself."—Mrs. S. T. HURLEY, Eldon, Missouri.

Remember, the remedy which did this was Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For sale everywhere.

It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration, after all other means have failed. Why don't you try it? Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

CLOTHESPIN MACHINES.

What Happens When a Log of Wood Starts Through Them.

Making clothespins is an industry that nets handsome returns to many American factories. At Martinsville, Ind., there is a factory which has a capacity of more than 200,000 clothespins a day.

A rough log started through the mill comes out as hundreds of the shapely little wooden pins familiar to the back yard. The logs are cut into blocks about sixteen inches long, which a headlong saw cuts into boards about five-eighths of an inch thick. A gang of saws cuts these boards into strips five-eighths of an inch square and each long enough to make four pins. These strips are placed on an automatic trimmer and cut to the required length. They are then conveyed to the automatic lathes, seven in number, each with a capacity of four dozen a minute. From the lathes the pins drop to the slotting machines and from these to the dryroom, where all moisture is removed. Next they go to the polishing cylinders, which are filled about half full of pins, chips and sawdust. The cylinders revolve slowly for four hours, after which the pins drop into chutes to be conveyed to the packing room. Each lathe has a capacity of 2,400 dozen pins a day.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Co-operative Creameries.

Until now only 11 co-operative creameries exist in the Province of Saskatchewan. Two others will shortly be opened. Wherever such creameries have been established, their success has been quite phenomenal and has been remarkably reflected in the enhanced prosperity of their individual districts. The latter circumstance has been so thoroughly marked that the agricultural community generally has been compelled into active interest in dairying. Some indication of this interest may be gathered from the fact that since the commencement of the year, the provincial creamery branch has received at least one application daily for the organization of a creamery at some point where support is for the first time promised.

Woman Lawyer In Quebec.

Final results posted recently in the faculty of law at McGill for the first time in the history of the university contained the name of a representative of the fair sex. Mrs. A. M. Langstaff, the first woman to present herself as a candidate for the legal profession in this province, proved successful in all examinations and ranks fourth among the 18 members of the class who will be granted the degree of B.C.L. at the university convocation, Tuesday.

It will be up to the Quebec Bar Association to say whether or not Mrs. Langstaff shall practise, supposing she desires to do so.

Attractive Tables.

In well appointed households everything is removed from the table after a meal. The tablecloth is carefully folded and put away. On the table are placed a centerpiece of linen and a vase of flowers or jardiniere of ferns or whatever may have been in the center at dinner.

Bread and butter plates are not used at dinner. Oil, vinegar, mustard, horseradish and the like are on a sideboard and passed when needed. Old fashioned casters and cruets are not placed on the table.

Decollete For Afternoon.

It is the prevailing custom to wear low necked and short sleeved gowns in the daytime at formal afternoon functions, for the house is darkened, artificial lights used, and the hours are usually from 4 to 7. Jewels are also worn, the same as for full evening dress.

Good Form

Easter Entertaining.

All sorts of odd entertainments may be devised for the Easter celebration, and the clever hostess is sure to make Easter an occasion to display her originality.

The following suggestions for an egg party may prove helpful:

Write the invitation upon lavender colored paper cut in egg shape.

Decorate the table in this manner:

For a centerpiece have a large round tray filled with moss. In this place daffodils or pansy plants in bloom.

Festoons of lavender and yellow crape paper should be attached to the chandelier and fastened to the edge of the table.

If the cost need not be considered ropes of smilax dotted here and there with a daffodil make a lovely decoration.

From the centerpiece have yellow and lavender ribbons reaching to each place. At regular intervals draw these ribbons through tinted eggshells.

For favors, gild eggshells and place in an eggcup. Fill the half shell with earth and place a tiny blooming plant in it. Pansies bloom when very small and may be used for this purpose.

In a nest of ferns and flowers have concealed colored eggs. Attached to these are ribbons and slips of paper bearing the following sentiments:

Draw the egg of violet hue,
You'll have friends both fond and true.

Pink will bring you luck,
A lover full of pluck.

Gladly take the egg of green,
For good fortune may be seen.

The egg of blue
Means lovers few.

Do not touch the egg of red.
If you do you'll never wed.

If you draw the egg of white
Your true love you'll see tonight.

You'll marry in another town
If you choose the egg of brown.

The refreshments served could be croquettes fashioned in egg shape and served in nests of watercress, chicken salad served on green plates, ices shaped like lilies with pistache leaves, angel cake and chocolate with whipped cream.

To entertain your guests, have an egg hunt. Candy eggs are best for this purpose. Provide each person with an egg shaped bag made of tarlatan, in which to store the spoils.

Award appropriate prizes to the one finding the greatest number of eggs.

Getting Off a Car.

Many accidents to women passengers in street cars are due to the carelessness of the passengers themselves. For instance, hundreds of women have been thrown from the car for alighting with their faces to the rear of the car.

A few years ago a vigorous campaign was started to teach women how to get off cars properly, facing the front of the car and swinging from the hand rail with one hand. Nowadays few women get off from a car in the stupid, old fashioned way. It is no easier. It is simply more dangerous.

There are other ways for women to help to avoid accidents. One is to keep their skirts free from all doors. This is especially necessary in subway and elevated trains, for sometimes a skirt or even a sleeve tightly closed in a door has dragged a woman along with a car after it has started.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

A SEASON OF COMBINATION MATERIALS.

In this dressy little afternoon frock there is shown the decided vogue for combinations of materials and of colors, one of the most striking developments of the season's fashions. Mandarin crepe in plain golden brown, in figured brown and black, with frills of black taffeta ribbon to finish the tunic. The right touch of white sheerness is given in the wired organdie collar, while the note of harmony is struck in the smart buttoned boots of patent leather and brown cloth tops.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

Special Correspondence.

Omemee, June 3.—Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell called on friends at Mount Pleasant on Saturday.

Mr. Fred Bradley who has spent the winter at his home here, left for Moosejaw on Tuesday.

Mr. Wm. Glass of Peterboro is calling on friends in Omemee.

Mrs. Dodds has returned to Toronto after a visit with friends in town.

Miss Gladys Henderson has gone to Moose Jaw, Sask., after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Henderson of King St.

Mrs. Wm. Magee called on friends at Peterboro and remained over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Greig and two children of Mount Pleasant made a call on Omemee friends Saturday evening.

Mrs. and Miss McCrea have returned to their home in Omemee after a lengthy visit to Toronto.

Rev. J. D. Edgar of Guelph took the service in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday morning and at Mount Pleasant in the evening.

Mr. T. W. McLean and Lewis made a business trip to Mount Pleasant on Saturday.

Our town fathers have been inspecting the sidewalks and figuring on new work this season.

Those who attended the lecture of Prof. Carter Troop of Trinity College, Toronto, on Wednesday evening enjoyed one of the rare treats coming to a citizen of a small corporation. The event was under the auspices of the High School and the subject Shakespeare's "Macbeth."

Mr. W. W. Jardine, B.A., ex-principal of our High School, who has been seriously ill, has recovered and is the guest of Mr. J. J. Lamb of town. His many friends, among them a host of ex-pupils, are much pleased to see Mr. Jardine looking so well and to have the privilege of renewing old friendship.

Reeve and Mrs. Mulligan were in Lindsay the first of the week.

All who have an interest in fruit or ornamental shade trees should see to the destruction of caterpillars, not only on the before-named trees but on all wild trees around the fences. Because of the early heat, this season's production of caterpillars promises to be beyond the average.

What village does not welcome the return of the oleaginous perfume to our streets. The graceful act has given an impetus to civic distinction to commercial comfort, to sanitary improvement, to domestic felicity, to cabalistic increase and to conjugal felicity. Our streets were oiled last week. The council hired the sprinkler from our sister corporation of Millbrook. Our town is of superior caste, high class and first class. The only noise clearly distinguished now, is the weird incantations of some benighted customer as he seeks his rural domicile.

Mrs. White is having her residence on Sturgeon St. painted. The improvement is marked under the brush of Mr. Percy Parsons.

Mr. Lucas is again about the streets after a few days of indisposition.

Miss M. Bannan, teacher of Orange Corners spent Sunday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bannan.

Major H. Fee of Lindsay was in Omemee on Sunday.

The Junior High School Entrance Examination will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 17, 18 and 19. The Lower School examination for Entrance into the Normal School begins on 10th inst, and the Middle School examination for Entrance to Normal begins on 22nd inst. Model Schools open this year on Tuesday, August 18th, and the Normal Schools on Tuesday, Sept. 1st.

The time for garden parties is almost here. The Public Library Board talk of holding one.

Provincial elections will be held on June 29th, with Mr. S. Carew of Lindsay as candidate for the Conservative party and Mr. A. J. Varcoe of Mariposa for the Reformers.

Our volunteers are talking of the approach of their annual training camp.

A large assemblage of people witnessed the ceremony of unveiling a monument by the Woodmen of the World on Sunday last. The splendid piece of architecture stands in Emily Cemetery to the memory of a brother the late Robert Toole. Members of sister lodges were present and took part.

Later advices state that Mr. A. J. Varcoe has resigned from the position of standard bearer of the Reform party in South Victoria.

A team of runaway horses attached to a harrow proceeded along King St. on Monday afternoon at a clip that made pedestrian travel on the street, dangerous. Colliding with a maple tree the horses were stopped and separated, to be soon after captured but not before the harness was well destroyed and the horses cut up.

On Monday evening Rev. Mr. Keith of Peterboro, presided at a joint meeting of Omemee and Mount Pleasant congregations of the Presbyterian Church. It was resolved to have morning and evening service each Sabbath in Omemee Church and afternoon service at Mount Pleasant. A motion was passed to hear more candidates before formulation of a call. Some Omemee business matters were discussed after the regular meeting adjourntd.

Messrs. H. Bland, Jos. Best, Thos. Jamieson and A. Rutherford of Mount Pleasant were in Omemee on Monday evening.

STEM BADLY BENT.

Condition of Storstad's Bow Confirms Andersen's Story.

MONTREAL, June 3. — When the Storstad was relieved of her load of coal at the Dominion Coal Co.'s dock yesterday it was seen that her stem was twisted so much to starboard that it almost formed a half circle. Some of the lowermost plates in her bow were also twisted to starboard and torn away. There is a large indent on either side of the stem, and the rivets are torn away.

The condition of the Storstad's stem is regarded as favoring Captain Andersen's claim that when the collision with the Empress of Ireland occurred it was impossible for the collier's stem to remain in the hole because it was twisted out by the forward movement of the Empress. The Storstad is still in the possession of the bailiff.

Loss of Postal Matter on Empress Falls on Senders

MONTREAL, June 3.—The statement of the Montreal postoffice officials indicate that registered mail amounting to 1,903 packages, which went down on the Empress of Ireland, is a total loss, and there will be no compensation for the senders or addresses of those packages. The postal regulations provide that the Department is only responsible for registered mail actually lost in the mail, and then only to the extent of $25 for each package.

Notices are now being sent out by the Montreal postoffice to 34 exchange offices in all parts of the world, notifying them of the loss of the mail and providing a list of the registered letters.

The Empress of Ireland carried 159 bags of newspapers, 51 bags of letters, 8 baskets containing 301 parcels, and 19,033 registered articles.

M'NAUGHT IS DEFEATED.

Toronto Member of Hydro Commission Loses Nomination.

TORONTO, June 3.—Toronto Conservatives received a surprise last night at the nominations for the riding of Toronto, N. E., held in the Granite Rink, on Church street, when Mark Irish defeated W. K. McNaught, M.P.P., and member of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission, by a majority of 87 as candidate for the Provincial Legislature.

Mr. Irish, in addressing the delegates before the election took place, referred to the fact that since Mr. McNaught had taken up his residence on Huron street the boundaries of the riding had been extended to include his present residence, and asked who had done it. Mr. McNaught said he had not, but T. R. Whiteside, M.P.P., insisted that Mr. McNaught had. There was a stormy moment before order was restored.

Seat A went by acclamation to Hon. Dr. R. A. Pyne. In accepting the nomination, Dr. Pyne spoke briefly of the Government's good roads policy, the Workmen's Compensation Act, and the proposed Hydro-Electric extensions and said in this connection that he hoped in the near future to see the houses of Toronto not only lighted but heated by electricity from Niagara Falls.

Honor List Postponed.

LONDON, June 3. — (C. A. P. Cable.) — Publication of the list of birthday honors which was expected yesterday has been postponed. In the forthcoming honors, according to The Standard, will be the name of Sir Alfred Mond, M.P., managing director of Brunner Mond & Co.

Sir Alfred, who is well known in Canada, has for many years rendered valuable public service as principal proprietor of The Westminster Gazette, whose influence is proof, gratifying alike to political friends and opponents of the power of clean and dignified journalism.

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. BARNETT.

Mrs. William D. Barnett, aged 35 years, passed away at her home in Havelock yesterday afternoon after an illness extending over several months, caused by heart trouble. The deceased lady was very popular in Havelock and had also numerous friends in this city who will regret to learn of her death. She leaves a husband and two small children to mourn her loss. Her husband is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Barnett, 123 Stewart Street.

The funeral will take place on the arrival of the C.P.R. 7.34 a.m. train Friday to the Sacred Heart Church and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

SOLDIERS OF THE KING

Regimental duties for the 57th Regiment, took the form of active warfare last evening instead of the usual drill and marchout. The regiment divided into out post and attacking parties in the vicinity of Nicholl's Oval for a couple of hours. Honors were equally divided owing to the fact that time was called before the opposing armies could attack. Col. Clegg was in charge of the main party and Major Medd in charge of the outpost party.

Arrangements are under way for the five days' camp at Petawawa at the end of the month when the Regiment will take to the dusty plains and canvas for five days.

Recruiting for the 3rd Prince of Wales Dragoons, is being carried on with considerable success. Fully twenty recruits have signified their intentions of joining besides the veterans of other years who are always on the list for camp. The Dragoons leave on the 16th for camp at Petawawa.

Recruiting for the 45th Regiment of Lindsay, is being carried on here by Lieut. C. A. Henry of A. Company of he 45th. Any one wishing to recruit may do so by communicating with Lieut. Henry at the Marlborough Club on Saturday evenings.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE ULSTER VOLUNTEERS.

To the Editor of The Review :

Dear Sir,—The article by A. W. A. Pollock in the Fortnightly Review is well worth reproduction in your columns. Would you kindly insert the concluding part which is as follows :

There is in the Ulster volunteers a lively spirit of pure patriotism that would alone render them formidable soldiers, even if there were not added to it a religious fervor—fanaticism, if you will—that nothing but death itself could quell. Inspired as they most certainly are, these soldiers of Ulster would fight like very demons. The Boers were British subjects who rebelled against the Crown; the Ulstermen are loyal British subjects who refuse to be placed under the heel of a faction which Mr. Gladstone asserted to be 'marching through rapine to the dismemberment of the Empire.' Are the Ulstermen, in such conditions, to be treated as Mr. Gladstone refused to treat the Boers, Is it a crime for British subjects to claim the right to remain wholly and directly such ? I think not. Would an order to the army to slay thousands of Ulstermen, in order that the residue might pass under the Nationalist yoke, be a lawful command ? The army, I thank God, does not think so."—A. W. A. Pollock, in the Fortnightly Review.

Yours, etc.,

Canadian.

IS SAID TO HAVE THREATENED WIFE

John Bolton, a local man, appeared before Magistrate Dumble this morning charged with threatening his wife.

The case was enlarged.

G. N. Gordon appeared for the husband and stated that in a week's time conditions would have undergone a change for the better.

One sad feature of the affair is that the ten year old son is wanted by the Police on the charge of theft of a bicycle. The youth caused the Police considerable trouble recently for truancy. He was let out on suspended sentence. In this case Truant Officer Cochrane remarked that the home conditions were very unsatisfactory.

ALARM FROM EAST CITY.

The employees of the Quaker Oaks Co. attempted to exterminate the caterpillars on the east side of the river opposite the plant, yesterday evening but the kerosene torches which they used set fire to the crib. The blaze attained such proportions that Mr. Denham deemed it wise to acquaint Chief Howare. The Chief went over with a couple of men and soon had the blaze under control.

City Council at a Stand Still in Regard to Bathing House Lake Street Location is not Favored

The bathing house proposition was given a hoist by Council last night and the work of Ald. Johnston and Ald. Stratton proved in vain. Another committee was appointed to further investigate suitable sites for bathing houses and playgrounds.

Two comunications were received from Peck, Kerr and McElderry, giving notice that Mrs. McDonald and others objected to a bathing house being located at the foot of Lake Street as it would be a nuisance. Furthermore, it was not a suitable location as bark and other refuse accumulated at this point.

Ald. Johnston said it was proposed to provide a bathing house 14x16 with a runway to the water. There would be lockers and seats and the building would be divided to give accommodation for boys and girls and their elders. He said he had not seen any refuse.

Both Ald. Johnston and Ald. Stratton were in favor of the location. "You can't establish a bathing house at any point along the river without some objection," said Ald. Dobbin. He had in mind property north of Inverlea Park for a play grounds and a bathing house could also be located. Mr. Denham would lease the property.

Ald. Saunders thought the Lake Street location would be a nuisance to Mrs. McDonald and others.

To Ald. Stratton he said, "You would not want it near your house," but the centre ward representative replied that he would not mind.

Ald. Duncan thought the location suggested by Ald. Dobbin was ideal.

Ald. Stratton said the bathing house at Lake Street would be placed where it would be the least conspicuous and give least annoyance.

Ald. Duffus' opinion was to take the north end location to which Ald. Stratton replied, "Just the minute you let it be known you are going to the north end, you are going to have the objections of the people up there."

"Is the city responsible if any person is drowned ?" asked Ald. Green.

The City Solicitor replied in the negative.

Ald. Johnston—If this is not going to meet with the hearty approval of all, I don't feel like going ahead.

Ald. Stratton—It's up to Council to do something.

Ald. Duffus—In case it's a nuisance, are we liable ?

City Solicitor—I can't see that it will be a nuisance.

Ald. Green while favoring the idea, said the Council did not have the money to carry on the proposition this year.

Ald. Anderson suggested a site on the east side of the river, to which somebody remarked that aeroplanes would have to be used to get there.

The motion calling for the bathing house at Lake Street was defeated and likewise the aldermen dissented to the amendment of Ald. Saunders that the northern location be used.

Ald. Johnston—Let them get a bath the best way they can.

The committee appointed is : Aldermen Anderson, Green, Dobbin and Stratton. At the same time, the committee will try to find property suitable for a market.

FRAME BARN LOST BY FIRE

The large frame barn on the property owned by J. T. O'Connell and Co., which was situated on the west side of Park Street, half a mile south of Lansdowne, was totally destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The cause was unknown. The barn contained a quantity of hay, some tools and several vehicles, the exact value of which could not be ascertained.

When first noticed the fire had obtained quite a start, and when the Brigade arrived, they could do nothing, it being outside the city limits.

FOREIGNERS AND HOME BREW LABOR

Board of Works Chairman Explains the Situation

Ald. Stratton complained at Council last night that foreigners and non-taxpayers were being employed while taxpayers were idle.

Ald. Duncan replied that in some cases men were employed, who were no good and some would not work. Others were agitators. There were some who said the work was too hard and at the same time the Italian would stay at the bottom of the ditch. We had asked Mr. Evans to take on every ratepayer who came along and let the foreigner go.

Ald. Buller—The taxpayer should get the first choice. There are however a great many men get work but they won't stay at it.

Ald. Duncan—There are lots of Italian ratepayers.

J. F. Thornton will receive a rebate of $25 as just before the license was reduced to $25, he paid the $50 fee.

A Greek peanut vendor will not be given a license to do business on the streets and corners. Ald. Duncan said it was not fair to merchants. Council had refused a license to a cripple.

Ald. Johnston drew attention to the condition of Aylmer Street between London and Dublin. The work had not been done properly. "Hold your horses for a few days and it will be made alright," said the Board of Works chairman.

Another Turnout.

The Radial Railway Co. was granted permission to construct a turnout on Charlotte Street, 350 feet in length between Park and Reid.

Council approved plans for the railway extensions and a resolution to this effect will be sent up to the Railway Board.

Removal of Poles.

A by-law was passed authorizing an agreement with the Bell Telephone Co., who are removing five or six poles from Charlotte Street and planting them in private property at the consent of the owners. Ald. Stratton objected to the clause that provided that in case the poles must again be removed, the City must pay the cost. He did not think the city should pay.

The company pays for the removal of the poles from the streets.
for the removal of the poles from the streets.

Annual Inspection.

Friday, at 9 a.m. was the time appointed for the annual inspection trip.

"We'll take autos," said Ald. Duncan, "I'm sick and tired of that old lumber wagon.

Dalhousie St. Bridge.

Ald. Duffus asked Council to take some action in regard to a bridge across the river from Dalhousie St. and the Mayor said they might take the question up again and submit a by-law next January.

Paint Bandstand.

Ald. Langford was empowered to employ a man at King Edward Park to give attention to the trees.

The Horticultural Society was authorized to have the band stand in Victoria Park, painted, the cost not to exceed $25.

The application of N. Trombley to erect a boat house on the river front was granted.

Ald. Duffus suggested a resolution of appreciation from Council to the citizens who assisted in the welcome to the Duke of Connaught and party.

Firemen's Uniforms.

Ald. Langford wanted some more information regarding the contract for new uniforms for the firemen.

Ald. Green said that firemen had to wear clothes every year in this country. The contract allowed only one suit and an extra pair of pants. The firemen would have to wear the heavy uniforms during the summer.

THE BIG GUNNER OF THE MALAKOFF

And the Sharpshooter Who Supported Him

By F. A. MITCHEL

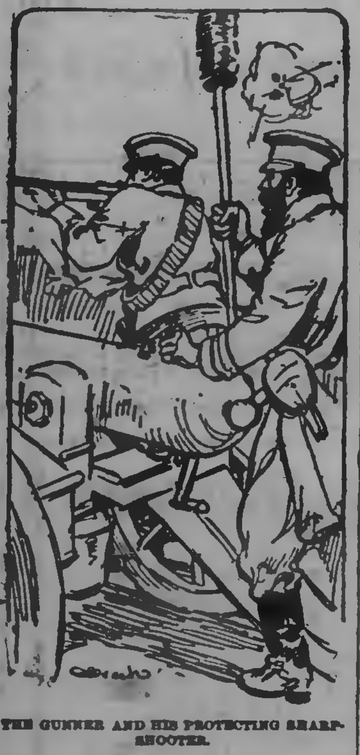
One of the world's greatest sieges was that of Sebastopol, which occurred in 1854-5. The fall of the fortress marked the end of the Crimean war, in which the English, the French and the Turks on one side were pitted against the Russians on the other.

It was the failure of a bluff on the part of the British ambassador at St. Petersburg that caused thousands of men to kill each other and leave a multitude of widows and orphans to mourn for them. No better argument for a world's peace parliament can be derived from any event of the nineteenth century than this diplomatic blunder.

After a good deal of fighting the Russians shut themselves up in the stronghold of Sebastopol to resist the further progress of the allies and stood one of the longest sieges in history, extending over a period of eleven months.

The allies approached the fortress by that military process which is as old as war—a system of zigzag trenches. In these trenches, in heat and cold, in wind and rain, the soldiers worked their way toward the object of their attack. From the walls the heavy guns sent iron balls to plow up the earth about them and crush those who stood in their path. On both sides the sharpshooter was ever ready to pick off any one who exposed even an infinitesimal portion of his person.

Among the guns that did the most damage to the allies was one on that part of the fortress called the Malakoff. It was an enormous piece of ordnance, which acquired a name among the Russian soldiers taken from the czar who reigned at the time, Nicholas.



THE GUNNER AND HIS PROTECTING SHARPSHOOTER.

They called the gun Old Nicholas. If it had belonged to the English the name Old Nick would have meant more than it did in Russian.

The gunner who served Old Nicholas corresponded in size to his piece. As the gun was one of the biggest in the Russian service, so was Ivan Yasnovsky, the gunner who served it, one of the biggest men in the army. He was six feet four inches high and massive in proportion. Of course he had a number of assistants, but he was plenty strong enough to put in the ponderous balls which it sent down among the trenches. And when left alone there was no diminution in the frequency of his shots.

A more important auxiliary to Ivan Yasnovsky than gun servers was the sharpshooters who when those of the enemy became too troublesome picked them off one by one until Ivan could show a bit of his person without getting a bullet in it. Half a dozen of these sharpshooters were detailed to stand by the gunner of Old Nicholas, but as the siege proceeded some of them were picked off, while others were needed at other points. At last the number was reduced to one.

This single sharpshooter was called Alexis Galieff. Though a man of middle height, beside the ponderous Ivan he looked small. He was especially marked for being beardless, and this, too, was in contrast with the gunner's bristling whiskers and mustachios. Then, too, Ivan was dark, while Alexis was light. It was remarkable how that soft blue eye of the sharpshooter would take sight at an Englishman, a Frenchman or a Turk and at a flash from his rifle the object would sink down under the blight of death.

No such execution was done by any two persons in the Russian army as by this gunner and his protecting sharpshooter. Whether it was the association under constant danger that drew them together no one knew. Certain it was that they were devoted to each other. Alexis was constantly on the watch while Ivan was busy about his gun and would warn him when he saw a puff of smoke or heard a bullet sing near. "Duck, Ivan!" he would cry, and the big man would lower himself just in time to be missed by a missile giving that sound which is musical when heard far up in the air, but terrible when its song is sung close to the ear.

One day an officer ordered Alexis to another part of the fortress, and the sharpshooter refused to leave Old Nicholas and big Ivan. The officer ordered Alexis under arrest. As he was being marched away the commander of the Malakoff came by—he was constantly going from point to point superintending the firing—and, seeing what had occurred, stopped and inquired the cause.

"The man is needed at a bastion where the French sharpshooters are picking off our men," was the reply.

"Well," replied the commander, "you will have to find some one else. This man is needed here."

So Alexis remained with his two companions, Old Nicholas and big Ivan, and after several other attempts had been made by other officers at various times to detach him had failed those who made them began to wonder why it was that the general would not permit Alexis to be taken for any other duty. One whose attempt had been thus interfered with asserted that it was because Old Nicholas was doing more damage than any gun in the fortress. Old Nicholas would be useless without Ivan, and Ivan would not live a day unprotected by Alexis. But, singularly enough, this was considered not to be the only reason why Alexis could not be taken away from his post.

One day when the general was not near an officer carried Alexis away to another part of the Malakoff and forced him to pick off some Turks who had silenced a gun by killing every gunner who attempted to serve it. Alexis rid the Russians of this pestilential nest and was permitted to return to the big gun. He found the gun cold and the gunner lying dead under it.

Alexis at the sight gasped, dropped his rifle and caught at the supports of the gun. Then he bent down and, putting his arms about his friend, moaned in agony.

There was no trouble after that in getting Alexis to go to any point where his services were required. He had but one object—to kill as many as possible of those who had killed Ivan. Whatever they were, English, French or Turks, made no difference to him. He slew them wherever he could catch sight of them. And after Ivan's death he began to keep count of the number he killed. Every time he sent a bullet into a vital part of an enemy he would put his hat on the end of his rifle, hold it up above the works and get a hole in it.

The siege went on, the allies constantly working nearer. The nearer they came the more of them fell under Alexis' bullets, for, being nearer, they were more easily distinguished. They were preparing for the final scene in the struggle, the storming of the Malakoff, and were too intent upon their work to take much care of their persons.

When a number of the allies had been killed at a single point sharpshooters would be ordered to observe whence the fire came and stop it. But Alexis was quick to see that his work had been noticed, for he was accustomed to keep continually feeling of his enemies by exposing some article to draw their fire. As soon as he held an article up on the muzzle of his rifle and a hole was made in it he knew it was time to go elsewhere.

As the siege proceeded the holes in Alexis' hat became very thick. When he went from one point to another those whom he joined began to make comments upon his headgear.

"It would make a good lantern," said one. "Why don't you put a candle in it?"

"What will you do when it is all shot away?" cried another.

"No danger of your head getting too hot," said a third.

Alexis never noticed these remarks. Indeed, there was a seriousness, a sadness about him that, so soon as the others noticed it, caused them to refrain from any further comment.

At last when the allies had approached near enough for their purpose and had finished their mining operations they blew up the walls and stormed the Malakoff. The garrison surrendered and the men marched out as prisoners of war. Among those who were in line was a woman in the dress of a Russian peasant. Perhaps in her changed dress she might not have been recognized had it not been for her sad face and hat full of bullet holes she carried in her hand. A crowd of her former companions gathered about her wonderingly.

"Who was the big gunner?" was the first question.

"My husband."

"How many holes are there in your hat?"

"A hundred and twenty-six."

"Each one a Frenchman?"

"Either a Frenchman, an Englishman or a Turk."

Alexis Galieff, or Vasilia Yasnovsky, which was her real name, returned to St. Petersburg. There the general who had commanded the Malakoff took her with him to the palace, where she was received and decorated by the czar. The general had been in the secret of her sex and knew the big gunner was her husband. The czar not only decorated her, but gave her a pension that enabled her to live comfortably for the rest of her life, and when her children grew to be men and women they were all given government positions.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

FORESTS PRIMEVAL.

Vast Timber Wealth of British Columbia.

The Canadian province of British Columbia contains one of the few great forests of commercial timber which are not materially reduced by destructive lumbering and its timber wealth is estimated to be greater than that of any other country, with the exception of northwestern United States, Siberia and Brazil.

The revenues last year were approximately $3,000,000 from the sale of timber and the expenditures were only $500,000, the forces employed numbering between 300 and 400 men. The whole budget for the province is only about $10,000,000 or $12,000,000, so it may be seen that timber pays a large part of the Government's expenses and helps to keep the taxes down to the minimum.

British Columbia is one of the countries which has not permitted its forest resources to pass into private hands for exploitation. Possibly nine-tenths of the natural resources of the province are owned by the Government. The method of promoting the use of lumber is to allow the staking of a square mile of forest which is leased at $120 a year as long as timber is uncut. When cutting begins the lessee in the past has paid 50 cents a thousand feet cut as a royalty.

The Government is about to start a new policy which provides for gradual increases in the amount of royalty, to be readjusted at the end of six-year periods, and to be regulated by the market price of lumber. The royalties will provide a fair return to capital, and at the same time give the Government of the province a large share in the increment. The forests of the province now produce an income of $3,000,000, and this is expected to increase gradually to about $6,000,000 by 1924, and ultimately to $10,000,000.

British Columbia has two types of forests. The coast forest is much like that of the Pacific northwest in the United States, and is composed mostly of red fir, hemlock and cedar, and with very heavy stands of timber running from 20,000 to 200,000 feet an acre. The inland forests are composed mostly of yellow pine, running from 6,000 to 7,000 feet per acre.

BILL GOES TO THE SENATE

Opposition Fails to Ask for Roll Call on the Last Division

OTTAWA, June 3.—The bill authorizing the Government to guarantee bonds of the Canadian Northern Railway Co. to the amount of $45,000,000 and to acquire thereby forty per cent. of the capital stock of the company, passed the House of Commons last night and was at once sent up to the Senate. Upon the final vote a roll call was not demanded.

An amendment proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which called upon the Government to obtain an option upon all the capital stock of the company at a price not exceeding $30,000,000, was lost upon division by a majority of 43, and Mr. Verville's amendment making the assistance of the Government conditional upon the settlement of labor difficulties at all mines at Vancouver Island in which Mackenzie and Mann are interested was defeated by 45 of a majority.

Upon Mr. Borden's motion for the third reading of the bill, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said that he desired to summarize briefly the reasons why he and his followers were opposed to the measure. They did not desire to see the railway collapse. Personally, he believed that Canada needed at least three transcontinental railways. When in power his Government had generously aided the Canadian Northern system, and that system would be completed and a financial success today had it not undertaken the enormously expensive British Columbia section. The Borden Government had brought about embarrassment by encouraging the extravagant construction across the mountains and on the Pacific coast.

Postmaster-General Pelletier declared himself in favor of state ownership of railways. The acquisition of forty per cent. of the stock was a long step in that direction. The debate was continued by Hon. William Pugsley and Solicitor-General Meighen.

Thereupon the House divided and the Laurier amendment was defeated. Yeas 42, nays 85. Mr. Nickle (Kingston) voted with the Opposition.

Mr. Verville (Maisonneuve) moved that the bill be referred back to committee of the whole with instruction to so amend the same that it would not come into effect until the Government was satisfied that Mackenzie and Mann had consented to the appointment of a board of conciliation under the Industrial Disputes Act asked for by operatives in their coal mines on Vancouver Island.

Mr. Clements (Comox-Atlin) said Mackenzie and Mann owned no coal mines in British Columbia.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, said that Mackenzie and Mann were interested in the Canadian Collieries, Limited, but did not have control. Moreover, no workmen in these mines had ever applied for a board of conciliation.

Mr. Carroll (S. Cape Breton) insisted that Mackenzie and Mann were in control of a number of coal mines in British Columbia where the men were at present on a strike.

The House then divided upon the Verville amendment and the same was defeated: Yeas 38, nays 85. It was a party vote, except that Mr. Nickle, the Conservative member for Kingston, voted for the amendment and Mr. Charlton, the Liberal member for Norfolk, voted against it.

The bill was then given a third reading and declared passed amid enthusiastic applause from the Government benches.

"LEPER" AT SWELL HOTEL.

Unfortunate Suspect Quickly Hounded Back to Quarantine.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—John R. Early, who for the last five years has made many enforced journeys about the country in box cars, and been held under quarantine in many cities while medical experts have disagreed on whether he is a leper, turned up in Washington again yesterday and took quarters at a fashionable uptown hotel.

The newspaper man at once recognized the noted patient and informed the authorities, who took Early back to his old place of isolation outside the city limits.

The alleged leper escaped May 18 from the Diamond Head quarantine station, near Port Townsend, Wash., was traced to Victoria, B.C., where officers lost track of him.

Easily Made Salad Dressing.

Beat two eggs well, add half a pint of best vinegar, butter size of a hen's egg and half a teaspoonful of salt. Put this into a granite pan and set on stove. To prevent curdling stir rapidly and continue until it thickens like custard, then remove from stove, and while still hot stir in half a teaspoonful of made mustard thinned in as much vinegar, a sprinkling of pepper and, for those who like it, a teaspoonful of olive oil. Stir thoroughly until well mixed and set it in a cool place. Use the same as any dressing.—National Magazine.

Maybe 'Twas Worth It.

It is related that Mr. Kipling, during a holiday in Canada, had a little disagreement with the landlord of the hotel at which he was staying. Just before leaving, he asked to see the proprietor, and on the latter appearing, he was greeted by Mr. Kipling with the remark:—

"I just wanted to tell you that of all the hotels under the shining sun, I have never been in one that for unmitigated, all-round, unendurable discomfort could equal yours!"

After the indignant landlord had withdrawn, Mr. Kipling asked for his bill, and he discovered that the last item was: "To impudence—three dollars."

BEAVERS NEVER HAD CHANCE TO WIN WITH SCHETTLER'S TWIRLING

Dad Stewart Contributed Three Safeties—Schettler Good in Pinches

Louie Schettler had Knotty Lee's Beavers at his mercy yesterday, his salary whip being in winning form. Consequently the Petes shut the Toronto crew out by the score of 4-0. Not only did Toronto suffer a loss but it also lost one of its best players when Johnny Murphy the little shortfielder had his leg broken in the fourth innings. Two were down when the mishap occurred. Kelly singled and on the first ball tore for second. Trout threw high and Murphy was forced to overstep the middle sack in an effort to grab the pill. Kelly's spikes hit him midway between the knee and ankle, and according to a dispatch the crack of the bone could be heard all over the field. The fractured bone was set in the club house by a physician after which Murphy was removed to St. Michael's Hospital.

The Toronto World speaking of the accident to Murphy and also the game says:

The loss of Murphy will leave a big hole in the Beaver infield. Secured from Hamilton, for whom he played good ball last season, Murphy promptly commenced to burn up the league insofar as fielding his position goes. Right now he is just about the best in the Canadian, and incidentally we haven't seen more than one or two in the International who had it on him in grabbing off the hot ones around the short field position.

Knotty Lee's boys never had a chance to win with Schettler twirling. On no less than three occasions when the locals had a man on bases and a chance to score the opposition twirler tightened up and struck out the next batsmen. A lightning double play started by King spoiled the Beaver's best chance in the fifth. Isaacs singled cleanly to centre and Loud rapped one towards second that looked good for a hit, but King scooped it with one hand, jumped on second, and threw to first in time to complete a corking double play. Harkins scratched a hit to pitcher. Schaeffer walked, but Trout whiffed. In the sixth, after Moseley had fanned, Ort got a life on an error and Shultz walked, but Schneider and Isaacs fanned. Also in the ninth, with Isaacs on, Harkins and Galm, hitting for Schaeffer, fanned.

For Peterboro, Blount scored the first run in the first on a walk, a sacrifice, and Stewart's smash over second. In the third Blount scratched a hit to second, Byrne singled to left, Welsh's sacrifice fly scored Byrne, and Stewart again filled the emergency with a clean wallop to right. Peterboro scored their last in the sixth, when, with one down, Ort at shortstop, bobbled King's roller, and Wilcox and Gorman followed with clean singles.

Box Score Tales.

Dad Stewart who was supposed to be a qualified candidate for the Oslerized fraternity according to some circuit papers, had three hits.

Curly Blount had a bingle and scored two runs.

Joe Byrne singled and also had the pleasure of crossing the pan.

Wilcox, Gorman and Kelly had hits while King started a fast double play which hurt the Beavers' chances.

Ort of the Beavers, Byrne, Wilcox and Schettler had the errors.

Schettler fanned nine and issued passes to a trio. He was great in the pinches.

Wilcox, Kelly and Ort committed thefts.

BANKERS AND TYPOS CLASH THIS EVENING

The first twilight game in the Mercantile League, to be played tonight, and in which the Typos and Bankers will clash, has aroused considerable interest. Last season when these teams came together the newspaper men had it on the money handlers till their pitcher was injured, and not having a substitute, they lost out. This season, however, the printers are well equipped with a hurling crew, and if the rest of the team shape up accordingly, they will be contestants all season. The lineups are:

Typos—Taylor, c; O'Connell, p; Henry, 1b; Henley, 2b; Neary, ss; Butcher, 3b; Moore, lf; Curtis, cf; Miller, rf.

Bankers—Moran, cf; Sheehy, 3b; Huycke, rf; Parsons, 1b; Paton, 2b; Akins, lf; Minorgan, ss; Phelan, c; Smythe, p.

W. Andrews will handle the indicator.

CHANCE FOR HITTERS IN THE MERCANTILE

The first Mercantiler who secures a circuit wallop will be the richer of a bat, donated by Trebilcock Bros., a box of cigars, donated by W. Clysdale, tobacconist, and a pipe donated by W. H. Spence the barber. Other gentlemen in the city who wish to assist the league in a similar manner may do so by communicating with the Secretary. It is said that several of the Typos and Bankers have already selected which pipe they would like.

COMMENT

As You Like It

Stan Cresswell the local port sider has recovered from his recent illness and will join the Petes when they pass through here at midnight en route for Ottawa where they hook up with the Senators in a four game series. The team has been worrying along with four pitchers, all right hand men and Cressy's appearance should help some.

Who's runnin' de league anyhow? One week ago last Sabbath Day, Catcher McNeil of the Erie Club and the late Heinie Smith of the same club were fined and suspended for a run in with Umpire Evans at Ottawa. McNeil struck the umps while Smith spat on him. A most disgusting practice and one which would mean a prolonged suspension in any other league. These two men, one of them of pugnacious tendencies and the other—well, we hate to tell you, were fined as well as suspended. On May 25 President O'Neil of the Erie Club got into comunication with President Fitzgerald and the suspensions were raised and the fines increased.

Last Wednesday Beebe and Schultz of Toronto and London had a run in at London and Doc Reisling also figured in it. The players were fined and suspended for three days while the Doc who is pilot of the club was told to go and hide himself for one week. Such action was high handed according to the London scribes and directors of the club. President Fitzgerald was communicated with and Doc Reisling's suspension was raised pending an investigation.

President Fitzgerald would do well to stand by his own convictions and let the league moguls run their clubs and nothing more if he expects to raise the standard of discipline in the thriving little circuit. The London directors have been noted for kicking propensities and cannot see any further than London in anything. Only a few weeks ago Stevely one of the London directors reported the Petes for baiting Umps Walsh who was then described as a great umps. Walsh is now a petrified lemon according to the London officials because he had the audacity to report Doc Reisling. London papers also claim that the president acted on Knotty Lee's statement. Those who know Fitz, readily see that such talk is foolish. He acted on the statement of his umps but he should have stood by the conviction he registered on the evidence supplied by his umps.

A. Nut editor of the Weekly Squirrel at Dink Hollow writes in to say that Hank Dink owner of the Hollow team has offered to trade Wal Nut and Si Green, the local battery for the whole Peterboro team.

Henry Tilly has offered a box of Pippins to every man who breaks a window in Bill Jones house which is right near the park. Bill sold a hoss to Henry last week.

The Petes took a change for the better yesterday. With Schettler on the mound the locals shut Toronto out 4-0 in a nice ball game. Opposed to Schettler was Schaeffer who slabbed here at one time. Everyone hopes the club's success of yesterday will be continued. The Petes it must be remembered have encountered in London and Ottawa the stiffest opposition in the league. In Erie during the first four games they also bucked a club which went flying from the barrier but which fell into a slump, and has not fully recovered its form to date. There's a lot in a start and had the Petes been stacked up against Hamilton, Brantford, St. Thomas and Toronto during their first three weeks of activity they would surely have been occupying a better position in the league today. They have played nine games with London so far. It is admitted that the London club is playing right now the best ball this team will show this season. Condition, especially in the hurling corps gave London the edge, while the batters also showed midseason form from the outset. When it is considered that eight of the losses have been administered at the hands of the Sparrows the situation does not look so bad but there is room for improvement, and the fans while they do not want to be harsh hope every effort will be made to plug up the gaps and round out a team which will make even the leaders hustle as it looks as though Ottawa and London will fight it out once more.

An unfortunate accident and one which removes from the league for several weeks and probably for the balance of the season one of its "littlest gentlemen" occurred during the Peterboro-Beaver game yesterday when Johnny Murphy the Toronto shortfielder, sustained a broken leg attempting to block a runner off the keystone sack. He was with Hamilton last year and displayed brilliant form for the greater part of the season but the hot weather demanded more stamina than Johnny's frame held. Murphy plays ball for the full nine innings whether his team is ten up or ten down and always conducted himself as a gentleman both on the field and off. The Toronto team will miss him as will the fans around the circuit.

Improving.

Husband—There you are, my dear, you see I'm improving. I brought the umbrella back.

Wife—That is very extraordinary, considering your umbrella is still in the stand, and that you went out with your walking stick!

A Plucky Student.

A wonderful story of pluck and determination is revealed by the announcement that Mr. Annand Mackenzie is one of the new Masters of Arts at Cambridge. Mr. Mackenzie is deaf and dumb; and is the first individual so afflicted to take the degree of M. A. at an English university. His record is still more remarkable owing to the fact that he paid the fees out of his own earnings.

The Silks Favored by Fashion

THIS IS A SILK SEASON. Silks are lovelier than ever before. Fashion has been generous in according her favor to many weaves this season, demanding only that they be of the required softness to drape beautifully. Equally lavish has she been with color—favoring vivid colors, staple shades and wonderful color combinations to an almost equal degree.

All Are Here In This Great Silk Stock

Every weave that has quality to commend it, every color and shade that the ingenuity of color artists could devise

If you are planning for a New Silk Costume, the prices as quoted by this store are not easily to be equalled

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss A. McGiverin has returned from Toronto where she has been selecting millinery novelties for the midsummer season.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lavene of Montreal, are guests at the Oriental.

Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Watters and Mr. A. W. Watters of Montreal passed through the city yesterday en route for the Kawartha Lakes.

Lieut. Green of the Instructoral Classes of the R.C.H.A., Kingston, is registered at the Oriental.

Messrs. J. T. Boyd and C. S. McDonald of Toronto motored to the city yesterday en route to Montreal. While here they were the guests of friends at the Oriental.

Miss Annie Spicer left to-day for Moose Jaw for a visit.

Mr. Bruce Marshall, Kirksville, Mo., is spending the holidays with his mother.

Dr. Garnet Greer, Toronto, is visiting his parents, Dr. and Mrs. T. N. Greer.

Mr. Orville Moore of the Dominion Bank Staff, Toronto, is a guest of his parents today.

The many friends of Miss Ada Adams, East City, will be pleased to learn that she has been successful in obtaining her interim first-class certificate in the Faculty of Education examinations held recently in Toronto.

Miss Gladys Brewster of this city, was also successful in obtaining her certificate.

George H. Pope of Winnipeg, of the Dominion Land Survey Department, accompanied by Messrs. Fraser and Pugsley of Ottawa are in Lakefield in connection with canal work repairs.

A PRESENTATION TO MRS. HAYES

At the Armouries last evening in the officers' parlor the officers' wives assembled to bid farewell to Mrs. (Judge) Hayes one of their members who is soon to leave the city. Not wishing Mrs. Hayes to leave without some little token of remembrance Mrs. (Col.) Clegg on behalf of the officers' wives presented their friend with a most beautiful Orange Lancashire Canary. Mrs. Hayes was quite delighted with her pet and in words very suitable thanked them for their very kind remembrance which she appraciated very much, and stated that it gave her great pleasure to be among them once more. One of her greatest regrets was in leaving Peterboro and in severing her connection with the officers' wives sisters and friends where there has always been a strong band of friendship and when away in her new home she would always watch with keenest interest the movements of the 57th Regiment in remembrance of which she would call her bird the 57th Warbler. Mrs. Hayes also thanked those who were so very kind to be present. After the presentation dainty refreshments were served. A beautiful bouquet of American beauty roses adorned the centre table daintily ararnged by Mrs. Eastwood and Mrs. Walker.

OSHKIGMONG

Special Correspondence.

Oshkimong, June 3.— The reorganization of the Chemong Sunday School took place the other evening, and the result of the election is as follows:

Superintendent—Alfred McCue.
Assistant Supt.—H. C. Buffam.
Supt. for Cradle Roll — Mrs. D. Taylor.
Secretary—Miss Lovenia Whetung.
Treasurer—Thomas Quinguish.
Librarian—Miss Flora Coppway.
Organist—Miss Daisy Whetung.
Young Women's Class—Mr. H. C. Buffam.
Young Men's Class—Mr. S. Fawn.
Boys' Intermediate Class—Mrs. B. Taylor.
Girls' Intermediate Class—A. McCue.
Boys' Primary Class—D. E. Whetung.
Girls' Primary Class—R. D. Tobico.

The Indian Agent McCamus was here last Monday night attending the regular monthly Council of the Chemong Reserve.

Victoria Day was celebrated here in a fitting manner. A game of baseball was played between the T.A.S. of Peterboro and Chemong nines, the game resulting in favor of Chemong the score being 33-23. There were games of all kinds indulged in. The Peterboro boys carried off a number of prizes. A display of fireworks was the main feature of the evening.

Mr. Isaac Johnson, sr., is seriously ill.

The launch U-go-I-go made its first trip down to Buckhorn last Thursday evening, with some passengers.

Messrs. A. McCue and Sam Fawn were at Buckhorn the other evening to arrange for the annual excursion of the North Smith and Harvey Sunday School.

Miss Lovenia Whetung has returned from Hiawatha where she has been visiting for a month.

Ladies On the Warpath.

The ladies of Antgonish have taken a hand in the forward movement campaign for better civic conditions that was started last November with the avowed intent of waking up the town and county to their full possibilities of development. As a first step, they have organized a civic improvement league, which now numbers a membership of over fifty ladies. The new league has offered prizes for the best kept school grounds, best kept grounds around private residences, best kept gardens, either flowers or vegetables, cleanest and best dressed store windows and the cleanest backyards with outhouses and fences in good repair and painted or whitewashed.

The Business of Eating.

Do not make a business of eating. Some men and women sit down before a plate and verily attack the food. They have reminded me of workmen removing the debris of a wreck. Their "business" seems to be to remove the food in the quickest possible time. This is always done at the expense of dignity, grace and a refined noiselessness.

The position at the table has much to do with good manners. Do not take a slouching attitude, but sit well back, with the head high and the back straight. Raise the food to your mouth instead of lowering your body to the plate.

It is not supposed that you are in the infant class, so, therefore, you need not protect your dress with a bib made from your napkin—that is, tucked in at the top of the dress and spread out over the entire front. This marks you as very untrained. If you are in the habit of doing this, stop and never attempt it again.

DYNAMITE FOUND

Watchman is Suspected of Plot

WASHINGTON, June 3. — Four sticks of dynamite, with burning fuses attached, were found late yesterday in the Department of Agriculture, under the office of Secretary Houston. The fuses were extinguished before damage was done. The watchman who claimed to have discovered the dynamite was held pending investigation. Officers went in search of another employe recently discharged, who had been making threats.

The police took Daniel H. Jauch, the night watchman who found the dynamite, to headquarters, and expressed some doubts of his mental responsibility. The sticks of dynamite were taken away in a bucket of water.

Jauch, who formerly was a private in the army, is said to have been under treatment for nervous trouble recently at the National Soldiers' Home Hospital.

Later it was said that Jauch bad confessed that he had placed the dynamite, hoping that by discovering it he would win a promotion.

TOWNSHIP OF SMITH COUNCIL IN SESSION

The members of the Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, on Friday, May 29th, at ten o'clock. All the members were present with Reeve Garbutt in the chair.

Minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. Garbutt Mann and Messrs. Robinson Bros. of Bridgenorth, addressed the Council and requested that Princess St. in the latter village be opened. No action was taken as the Council felt that they could not bear the expense at the present time.

Moved by Mr. Telford and Mr. Jobe that by-law No. 721 as approved by the Hon. the Minister of Public Works be read a third time and finally passed, and that Deputy Reeve McKee's name be attached as Overseer, and that he receive for his services the sum of $4.00 per day.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Northey, seconded by Mr. Jobe that the by-law governing the purchase of gravel by the Township be amended so as to read 15c. per yard, and that the clerk be instructed to have a new by-law prepared to this effect to be passed at the next meeting.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. McKee, seconded by Mr. Telford that the plans submitted by the Water Commissioners as per surface drain on the River Road, opposite the pumping station be approved, provided that a water table be made on the east side and that it be drained by a pipe running under the road, connecting with a 2½ ft concrete pipe and that the latter be placed sufficiently low to allow a proper crown to be put on the road.

The Council are also desirous that the Commissioners proceed with this work at once and if possible have it completed by the 20th June.—Carried.

Messrs. Knox and Bickell requested the Council to make a liberal grant towards the Lakefield Agricultural Society.

Moved by Mr. McKee, seconded by Mr. Telford, that the sum of $30 be granted and that the Treasurer be instructed to pay the same to the Treasurer of the Agricultural Society.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Jobe and Mr. Northey that the sum of $150 be granted each member of the Council for extra repairs of road.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Northey and Mr. McKee, that the Treasurer be instructed to pay the following accounts :—

Carried.

Council then adjourned to meet again in August.

Commission Bill Passes.

OTTAWA, June 3.—The bill empowering the Government to appoint a commission of three, with a representative of the British authorities upon it, to make a thorough investigation of the sinking of the Empress of Ireland, passed through the House in the record time of seven minutes, yesterday morning.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier asked if it were true that the commission would sit on June 9, and the Prime Minister replied that no date had yet been set, nor had any place been fixed to hold the enquiry.

Aid From Russian Government.

OTTAWA, June 3.—Hon. Mr. Hazen yesterday informed the Commons that effort was being made to rescue the men from the Karluk, Steffanson's ship, stranded on Wrangle Island. Captain Bartlett had been communicated with at St. Michael's, Alaska, and asked to advise the Government as to the most expeditious methods to be applied. Captain Bartlett suggested that the Russian Government, whose ships patrol the Northern coast of Siberia, be asked to take the men off Wrangle Island, and this has been done. The United States Government is also being asked to render whatever assistance may be in its power.

HOMEWOOD AVE. HOME SCENE OF SERIOUS MISHAP

Edward Hiland Returns Home to Find His Wife on Cellar Floor in Grasp of Electricity

MRS. HILAND SEVERELY BURNED

Mrs. Edward Hiland of 557 Homewood Avenue lies in St. Joseph's Hospital suffering from serious burns to her hands, arms and back as the result of coming in contact with an electric wire in the cellar of the Hiland residence yesterday afternoon while her husband is nursing a lacerated face and body bruises sustained when he attempted to release his wife from the grip the highly charged wire had her in.

No one knows exactly what time the accident occurred. Mrs. Hiland went to the cellar during the afternoon and says she placed her hand on the wire in order to move it out of the way of the gas meter into which she was going to insert a coin in order to secure service. As soon as her hand came in contact with the wire she stiffened up under the shock and falling to the floor of the cellar pulled the wire from its place. How long she suffered before lapsing into a semi-conscious state is not known.

Found by Husband.

Her husband who is employed as a cutter by Barries, Limited, came home about six o'clock in the evening and at once missed his wife. Rushing up stairs he failed to find her and as he was about to inquire among the neighbors he heard her moaning in the cellar. He immediately rushed to the cellar and found his wife lying on the ground with the wire in her hand. She was semi-conscious. Mr. Hiland realized the danger at once but without a moment's hesitation he grasped her. As soon as he came in touch with her, the current which had been passing through her body effected him and he was hurled headlong against the walls of the cellar. The force of his fall released his wife from the wire. Recovering from the shock and shaking up he received Mr. Hiland notified Dr. Halliday and Mrs. Hiland was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital. Mr. Hiland's injuries were also looked after by Dr. Halliday.

The power used in the house is supplied by the Peterboro Light and Power Company. It was thought at first that a cross current of the Peterboro's wires and some other company's had sent a tremendous voltage over the wires but it is now thought that Mrs. Hiland's action in grasping the wire while she was standing on the damp floor of the cellar is responsible for the accident.

This afternoon Mrs. Hiland was reported as progressing favorably by the hospital authorities.

CHEESE BOARD

Total Offering of 1404 Bought at 12 9/16 Cents

Yesterday being a holiday, the Peterboro Cheese Board held their regularly fortnightly meeting this morning in the Bank of Montreal Chambers. President W. C. Switzer conducted the sales. The buyers present were Messrs. Gillespie, Flavelle, Thompson, Morton, Kerr and Cook. Flavelle opened at 12 cents, Cook raised him ⅛ but the former came back and made it 12¼. Morton bid 12⅜, and Gillespie went one better, at 12½. Morton made it 12 9-16 and when no one bid higher he called the complete board as follows:

Keene 45, Warminster 80, Shearer 75, Selwyn 85, Villiers 60, Warsaw 60, Westwood 100, Oakdale 85, Daisy D 65, Myrtle 80, Ormond 100, Young's Point 40, Lang 65, Indian River 60, East Emily 55, Trewern 84, Norwood 120, Fleetwood 70, Killarney 75. Total, 1,404.

The next meeting will be held on Wednesday, June 17th.

ITALIAN HURT IN SEWER CAVE-IN

Is in Hospital With Fractured Collar Bone

A cave-in yesterday at the Princess Street sewer near the De Laval plant resulted in an Italian laborer, named Carrillio, sustaining a fractured collar bone and several minor injuries. He was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where his injuries were attended by Dr. Amys.

Apparently the banks with recent rains were loosened considerably and without warning the bank caved in on top of the man who was engaged alone at the time in this particular spot.

EXCHANGE IN REAL ESTATE

B.F. Ackerman Gets Property Adjoining Barrie Site

A real estate deal of some importance has been completed whereby B. F. Ackerman has purchased 63 feet on George Street from the Barries, Ltd. The property is just south of the present Barries land, on which the new store will be erected, which is adjoining the custom house south of Charlotte Street. Mr. Ackerman would not state what amount was involved in the deal and Thos. Barrie also declined to make it known. Mr. Ackerman has not formed any future plans as to the use the property will be devoted but stated that if he saw there was a chance for a tenant he would build. There is a chance of a store and office building being erected if Mr. Ackerman decides that conditions warrant it.

CHAOS IN ALBANIA

Situation in Balkan State Has Become Critical.

LONDON, June 4.—Dr. Dillon, in a despatch to The Daily Telegraph from Durazzo, says the Albanian imbroglio has grown more entangled than ever, and the situation is again critical. The insurrectionary movement is spreading. Several towns around Durazzo, the capital, have been captured by the rebels. The commission of control is at loggerheads with the Cabinet, and the Cabinet is not in complete harmony with the King. A number of the gendarmes have deserted their posts and gone over to the insurgents. The peaceful population is divided into Austrophile, Turcophile, Italophile and Nationalist sections.

The insurgents themselves are at sixes and sevens respecting their attitude toward Turkey, and the result of these dissensions is chaos.

SECOND MESSAGE FROM ADJUTANT

Good Weather and All Are Well

Mrs. McElhiney, wife of the adjutant, received another wireless message from her husband, who is on the Alunia with the other members of the local party. The radio came by way of Cape Race last evening and stated that the party was enjoying good weather and excellent health.

Mrs McElhiney received a complete list of the dead and those identified from the brigadier at Toronto this morning. The funeral of the Army victims will take place on Saturday in Toronto and Mrs. McElhiney will attend if she can find it possible to leave this city. The services will be held in the Arena which has been set aside by the civic officials.

HAROLD BROWN WON HONORS AND MEDAL

Harold Brown son of Dr. Brown of this city won honors in the medical examinations held at Toronto University, the results of which are announced today. The local student captured the third silver medal which means that he ranks fourth in his work which is a very creditable showing and a very pleasing one to his numerous friends.

SPANISH M.P.'s FIGHT DUEL

MADRID, June 4.—Antonio Maura, son of the former Premier, and the radical deputy, Rodrigo Soriano, fought a duel with sabres Tuesday. The encounter was exceedingly violent, but lasted only seventeen seconds. It ended with the wounding of both men. The duel was the outcome of a violent scene in the lobby of the Chamber of Deputies on May 27. Maura attacked with his cane and fists Deputy Soriano, who during the course of a debate had called Maura's father a coward.

CAMPAIGN FOR $4,500.

"Although no definite report has been presented, the canvassers assure us they are meeting with great success," was the statement of Y.M.C.A. General Secretary Meserve today in regard to the closing day of the financial campaign, which closes with a supper at 6.30 this evening.

Mr. L. S. Amery, Unionist member for South Birmingham, is one of the able speakers of the British House of Commons. He is a brother-in-law of Dr. Hamar Greenwood, having married in 1910 Miss Florence Greenwood in Whitby, Ontario. Mr. Amery is 41 years old, a journalist, barrister and author.

OTTAWA MINISTER IS MODERATOR OF ASSEMBLY

Rev. Dr. Herridge Has Substantial Majority Over Rev. Dr. D. D. McLeod and Principal Scrimger—Church Union Committee Sits Most of the Day But Fails to Arrive at a Decision.

WOODSTOCK, June 4.—Dr. W. F. Herridge, Ottawa, was chosen moderator last night by delegates gathered for the fortieth Presbyterian general assembly at Knox Church.

Dr. Herridge was nominated by Principal Gordon, of Queen's College, Kingston, and the nomination was seconded by Rev. John McKay of Vancouver. Principal Gordon and Rev. Mr. McKay, pointed out that Dr. Herridge has been pastor of St. Andrew's Church, Ottawa, for the past 32 years. He had also preached in Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Others nominated were: Rev. Dr. D. D. McLeod of Barrie, by Rev. Mr. Budge of Creemore, and Principal Scrimger of Montreal, by W. Clark of Saskatoon. The nomination of Principal Baird of Winnipeg College was rejected on a technicality and Dr. John Neill of Westminster Church, Toronto, also nominated, withdrew. Dr. Herridge had a substantial majority over Dr. McLeod and Principal Scrimger.

After sitting from 11 p.m. till 5 p.m. the church union committee adjourned until to-day, without arriving at any decision. A recommendation, however, it was learned, has been formulated but a hard fight is being put up by the anti-unionists to have it thrown out. This section of the committee which is generally in the minority will bring in a recommendation of its own. Every one is expecting a heated controversy when the recommendations of this committee are placed before the congress. This will likely take place Friday.

The financial report, as adopted by the assembly, shows an advance of $50,924 in the receipts from congregations. The total received from congregations was $736,603.

All the synods gave increased contributions except Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

The budget of 1915 calls for a total budget from all sources of $1,500,000 for all purposes.

CARBOLIC ACID IN GIN

Woman is Dead as Result of Mysterious Affair in Richmond, Que.

RICHMOND, Que., June 4.—Richmond is in a state of excitement over the mysterious death of Mrs. J. P. Viger of this place, which occurred on Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Viger succumbed after taking a drink of gin from a bottle. Drs. Johnson and Tompkins, who made the autopsy, state that the woman died as a result of poisoning from carbolic acid.

Coroner Bachand of Sherbrooke opened an inquest here and adjourned it until Thursday evening. On Saturday a bottle of gin was brought to the Viger home, and on Sunday morning four or five people who were in the house partook of the gin, but suffered no bad effects. Later in the forenoon Mrs. Viger, her brother-in-law, Ludger Labadie, and her brother, Narcisse Petignat, again partook of the gin from the same bottle. Mrs. Viger became suddenly ill and was carried to a sofa, where she died in half an hour. Labadie threw his gin away as soon as he tasted it.

It was brought out in evidence that Narcisse Petignat, a brother, had purchased twenty-five cents worth of carbolic acid at Bedard's drug store on Saturday evening. When questioned on this point, he admitted purchasing the acid, but stated that he used it for medical purposes and threw away what was left.

There is a strong feeling that further investigation will bring out some sensational evidence and that it will be proved that Mrs. Viger was not the one for whom the poison was intended, and it is possible that other members of the family may be called upon for further explanation.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL WILL NOT ENTER CANDIDATE

The Trades and Labour Council, in regular meeting last night decided not to enter a candidate for the forthcoming provincial elections. It is understood that David Moore, formerly president of the council would have been asked to accept nomination had it been decided to put a candidate in the field.

CONVICTED OF MURDER

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 4.—Guilty was the verdict of the jury at the assizes at the trial of Frank Vanhorst, charged with the murder on Nov. 4th last of a Japanese named Ogawa. Vanhorst and a companion named Lester, since dead, hired the Jap's gasoline fishing boat to take them across the gulf, and the prisoner shot Ogawa three times through the back of the head and then threw the body into the sea. The prisoner was sentenced to hang August 10.

MURDER INQUEST

Slayer of Circus Hand Still at Large

NAPANEE, June 4.—Tuesday afternoon a coroner's jury called an inquest to inquire into the death of a negro known as "Dad" and employed with Haag's Circus.

Fred. Deivy, lot superintendent, traveling with the Haag show for 14 years, testified that he had known "Dad" since March last. He saw the negro several times on the day of the shooting, and was right beside him when he was shot. Deivy said the negro was formerly a good hand; but, crazed with drink or from some other cause, made an attack on Mr. Lepearl, the snake charmer with Haag's. Lepearl run to Deivy for protection and the negro turned to the witness and battered him on the head with his fists. Deivy cried out for help, and the negroes loading the train ran to his assistance. When they arrived they saw Daniels, the boss hostler, draw his revolver and shoot four times. The last two shots were fired while the revolver was a very few inches from the dead man.

Daniels is supposed to have escaped through the back door of the Queen's Hotel and taken a night train going east.

AUTO GOES OVER AN EMBANKMENT

WOODSTOCK, June 4. — While coming up the hill from the G. T. R. station the auto which Dr M. Brownlee was driving stalled, and when the doctor got out to crank it, it backed down the hill and fell over a 20-foot embankment without injuring the occupants.

Mr. Gibson and daughter of Beamsville were two of the occupants. The names of the other four could not be obtained. The car was badly damaged.

Would Tax All Duels.

PARIS, June 4.—Among the new Deputies just elected to the French Chamber the Liberte has discovered one who has a new idea in taxation.

"The duel should be taxed just as all forms of publicity are," he is reported to have said. "It is a method of advertising in political, literary and society affairs, and should not escape the tax levied on signs and handbills."

INQUIRY ON JUNE 15 ?

Commission Expected to Open Wreck Probe on That Date.

OTTAWA, June 4. — Official announcement was made in the House yesterday morning by Hon. J. D. Hazen that Lord Mersey, the British marine expert, who conducted the investigation into the Titanic disaster, would represent the British Government in the coming inquiry into the loss of the Empress of Ireland, and act as chairman of the commission. Sir Rodolphe Routhier, judge of the Admiralty Court at Quebec, and Chief Justice McLeod of New Brunswick, would be the other members of the commission. With them would be associated Mr. George Vaux, representing the British Board of Trade, two expert nautical assessors, one naval architect and one naval engineer. The names of the latter will be announced in a day or so.

It is expected that the inquiry will be announced in a day or so.

It is expected that the inquiry will commence at Montreal on Monday, June 15th. Lord Mersey sails from Liverpool on the Mauretania on Saturday next.

HIS HEAD WAS CRUSHED BY TIE

HAMILTON, June 4.—Robert McAndrews, who resides on Mountain avenue, Mount Hamilton, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon while working on the new east end incline. McAndrews was working between the rails about half way up the incline, while several men were engaged near the top lowering two ties into position. One of the ties slipped and in an effort to stop it the men allowed the other one to drop. Both ties slid down the rails. McAndrews received warning and succeeded in ducking his head between the rails in time to avoid the first one; but the second one hit him.

AID FOR THE DEPOSITORS

BILL TO HELP FARMERS' BANK VICTIMS HAS MAJORITY OF THIRTY-SEVEN

All Day and All Night Debate Takes Place on Hon. W. T. White's Measure to Redress Grievance of Depositors Against Hon. Mr. Fielding and Laurier Regime.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Ottawa, June 4.—The House voted early this morning on the Farmers' Bank Act Bill. The vote stood fifty-five for and eighteen against the majority being thirty-seven.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The House of Commons debated away into the early hours of this morning the provisions of the Government's bill appropriating $1,200,000 for the relief of the depositors of the Farmers' Bank. The debate upon the second reading, which began last evening, was resumed by Mr. Morphy, the Conservative member for North Perth, and was participated in by Major Sam Sharpe (North Ontario), Hon. Rodolphe Lemeaux, Donald Sutherland and others.

Mr. Morphy (N. Perth) resuming the debate yesterday morning, concluded his speech in favor of the bill. He said that the depositors of the Farmers' Bank had not only a moral but a legal claim against the Government.

E. B. Devlin (Wright) opposed the bill. He quoted the findings of Mr. Justice Meredith to prove that the cause of the failure was mismanagement.

Hon. T. W. Crothers, Minister of Labor, said the depositors were not asking for charity, but for justice. He quoted at length from testimony of David Henderson, M.P., and Sir Edmund Osler, from the letter of Leighton McCarthy and the endorsement upon the writ which had been issued by dissatisfied stockholders against Travers and his associates a month before the certificate was granted.

Mr. Demers (St. John and Iberville) accused the Finance Minister of being eager to help the depositors of a defunct Ontario bank but unwilling to consider the claims of depositors who lost their savings through the failure of banks in the Province of Quebec.

Postmaster-General Pelletier, replied that if Mr. Demers was anxious to serve the depositors of the defunct banks in Quebec he should support the bill before the House. It would form a precedent.

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux declared that the Government was discriminating against the French-Canadian banks. He denounced the bill before the House as "immoral legislation." Its object was to keep safe for the Conservative party certain ridings in Ontario which had been carried in the last election by offering a bribe to the electors. It was a mere raid on the Treasury which would open the doors for many other raids and was timed so as to influence the provincial elections in Ontario.

Major Sam Sharpe (N. Ontario) referred to the rumors that the Government hoped to have the bill killed in the Senate, and declared that the issue before the House was a straight party issue and that no Conservative worthy of the name in either House would desert the Government. Ruin, desolation and even hunger faced many of the depositors in North Ontario and other places "as a result of Mr. Fielding's gross neglect of duty," declared Major Sharpe.

Major Sharpe was followed by Mr. Lanctot (La Prairie) and Mr. David Henderson (Halton).

The redistribution committee met last evening, hoping to settle definitely the difficulties over the elimination of Russell, Ont., and Richmond, N.S. They failed to reach an agreement, and it is now considered improbable that the redistribution bill will come before Parliament this session.

The Senate will commence the Canadian Northern debate to-day.

Yesterday when the C.N.R. aid bill was called for second reading, Senator Bostock, Opposition leader, said the measure was a very important one, that it had been somewhat altered in the Commons, that there had been little time to study the changes, and it would be well to defer second reading until to-day.

Hon. Mr. Lougheed said that he was perfectly willing to do so. The order was therefore deferred.

TO SALVAGE EMPRESS ?

American Firm Will Try to Raise Liner, Says Report.

Keen Interest on the Part of Those Whose Dead Have Not Been Found Centres in Plans of Company Regarding Disposition of Eight Hundred Bodies Still Imprisoned.

QUEBEC, June 4. — Over eight hundred bodies are entombed in the sunken Empress of Ireland. Interest here now centres in the disposition of the submerged liner. The official announcement of the names of the saved and lost, and the report late Tuesday night from Captain Poullot of the Government steamer Lady Grey that careful cruising of the waters for miles below the scene of the disaster has failed to find further dead, has been followed by keen public anxiety to learn the plans of the authorities as to the disposition of the ill-fated vessel. Many relatives here, who have failed to identify their lost among the bodies already taken from the waters, said yesterday that they would remain in Quebec until the C. P. R. Company decided what action it would take.

Some excitement was occasioned by a persistent report from the waterfront that during the night the tug Alede P. of Three Rivers had steamed down the river towing a hay barge, en route to the Government gas buoy which marks the resting place of the Empress. On the barge were reported to be three expert divers, with full apparatus and an air line crew. According to the statements of marine men, these divers were identified with a large American salvage concern. Captain Walsh, marine superintendent, and other Canadian Pacific officials here, however, decline to credit the report, and have nothing to add to Captain Walsh's statement last night. On the waterfront marine men were aqually persistent in their assurance that "something is doing," and intimate that the salvage firm is making preliminary investigations prior to tendering for the contract of raising the Empress.

Tuesday afternoon farmers from the neighborhood of the city drove to the temporary morgue with cartloads of lilacs, which were distributed through the shed in half a hundred vases hastily purchased.

It is feared that most of the bodies now remaining unidentified will never be recognized. As showing the difficulties already, a Norwegian from the "Soo" picked out the body of a girl as that of his sister, and claimed it, but when the name was given it was found the girl was among the saved and had been given a ticket to go home.

The child's body found Tuesday near Little Metis may be that for which F. P. Brooks, of Toronto, was looking.

WILL CONVOY HINDUS

VANCOUVER, B.C., June 4.—To prevent any possibility of the Hindus aboard the Kamagata Maru being quietly landed in some isolated bay on the British Columbia coast to make their way separately back to Vancouver, it is probable the Dominion Government will furnish a convoy to accompany the steamer well on her way to the Orient on the return journey.

HEADLESS BODY FOUND

NEW GLASGOW, N.S., June 4.—A big steam shovel working on the banks of the East river unearthed the headless body of a Hindu who disappeared from New Glasgow about five months ago. The body was naked except for a piece of old bagging wrapped about it and a rope was tied around the legs.

AEROPLANE FELL; MacCAULEY HURT

BEETON, Ont., June 4. — Macauley, the Curtis Company aviator, who recently thrilled Toronto people, with exhibitions of his flying skill, sustained a serious accident while giving an exhibition here yesterday. The engine of his aeroplane gave out while he was 60 feet in the air, and the aeroplane fell to the ground. Macauley was picked up with a broken leg and one of his arms and his back injured. The aeroplane was wrecked.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, JUNE 4, 1914

THE FUNERAL OF THE DEAD ONES.

THE LIBERALS have issued invitations to the faithful to attend a wake. We do not know positively over whose body the mourning is to be celebrated, but suppose it is the lost cause of the Rowell party, or the death of Liberalism in this district. At any rate, the funeral cards are out and plastered over back yard fences and billboards in plenty. They have a heavy black border, are printed in black type on white paper, and, we are glad to say, are quite in harmony with conditions in the Liberal ranks in this district. The obsequies will begin on June 5th, and end in mournful howling on the 29th.

The attitude of our evening contemporary is proof of the death of Liberalism in this locality, if it represents the Grit party. Rather than discuss the issues involved in the present electoral contest or the principles of Liberalism, of which it seems to be entirely ignorant, it descends to personalities, to a cowardly and ungenerous criticism of the nominee of the Conservative party. Liberalism has never stood for a policy of meanness or for such personal criticism, especially when the object of ~~scurility~~ is above reproach. Since our Liberal (?) contemporary has "taken the pledge" to place its editorial comment on so low a level, it cannot complain if the same sort of criticism is handed the nominee of the Liberal wake. Politics should be far above such a position, but now we have our Liberal(?) contemporary for an unworthy example.

It is hoped the burial service will include all those who are so ignorant of the real principles of Liberalism. We extend our sympathy to the dead ones, and trust that all Liberals in this locality will not be brought in sorrow to the grave. We would like a few to remain in order to witness the rejoicings of Conservatives on the 29th of June.

THE LOGIC OF THE LIBERAL APPEAL.

THE ROWELL PARTY want to get into power in Ontario. To do this there must be an election. The Liberals must win a majority of seats in the Legislative Assembly.

The Conservatives have called an election. Therefore, the Liberals have a chance to elect a majority of members, and to obtain power.

But the Liberals do not want an election now, because they blame the Tories for calling an election. Therefore they do not want to elect a majority of members nor to obtain power in Ontario.

Hence the Liberals are involved in this endless circle of reasoning that they want to get into power and don't want to get into power. What on earth do the Liberals want?

A LESSON FROM THE EMPRESS.

ONE LESSON everybody should learn from the Empress disaster is the necessity of knowing how to swim. There was a time when a swimmer in the middle of the Atlantic had no better chance, in case of disaster, of reaching shore than one who was not a swimmer. Times have changed; wireless has made practical quick aid to the distressed, and, had everybody who reached the deck of the Empress known how to swim or float for half an hour, a much larger number would have been saved.

Swiming is not a difficult thing to learn. It is to be noted that some of the survivors who were thrown into the water did not know how to swim, but recalled instructions how to keep afloat, put these in practice, floated, and saved their lives. Others watched people swimming and imitated them, were able to swim without knowing it, and were saved. In both the Titanic and Empress disasters, many were saved by being taken from the water. It is essential to life to keep above water as long as possible in the chance of being rescued from the water by life boats.

If the loss of the Empress teaches one thing it is this, that no means of saving life at sea should be neglected. Every city should have swimming baths where citizens can learn to swim. Aside from the precaution for safety, swimming is a healthy, clean exercise, and it is hoped that the City Council of Peterborough will reconsider the question of swimming baths, which was rather aimlessly handled at the last meeting. It is a duty to learn how to swim, and the city fathers should offer some effective assistance to secure this end.

A TRAGEDY OF ERRORS.

SOME AMERICAN WRITERS seem to think President Wilson's Mexican policy of watchful waiting is deserving of censure. Collier's says that the great immediate necessity is for light, for frankness and publicity. A man in public life who is probably the most intelligent and powerful friend of the Administration in the country spoke the other day, in confidence, of Wilson's Mexican course as "a tragedy of errors." The immediate necessity is for this sort of thing to be said publicly, to raise the lid in Congress, and permit frank and sincere discussion. It is not believable that Southern Democrats could in their hearts support a negro rebellion like Villa's. Yet they think themselves called upon; as a party matter, to defend the Administration's policy against Republican attacks.

CONSERVATIVE FINANCE.

A REFERENCE to the official figures will convince any fair minded person of the soundness with which the Whitney Government have administered the financial affairs of the Province of Ontario. In 1904 Ontario's income was only $4,464,100, and this has been increased to $11,118,302, which are the figures for 1913. In 1904 the late Sir George described in a speech of March 22, Ontario's normal revenue as a million dollars short of the normal expenditure. That was a time of increasing deficits, which had risen from $3,229,420 in 1891 to $6,713,957 in 1904, and the Liberals were proposing a direct tax to relieve this debt. By careful handling of provincial affairs the Conservatives have eliminated deficits and maintained provincial credit and prosperity.

To provide for the increasing expenditure, to eliminate deficits and give increased assistance to education, public works and other useful objects, the revenue had to be increased, and in such a way as not to overburden the individual tax-payer. This was accomplished by raising the tax on certain corporations which had previously not paid their just share. Express companies had previously contributed but $4,400 to the Provincial Treasury, and this has been raised to $72,000.00 in 1914. Liquor revenue has been raised from $458,699 to $1,1062,694. Forests and mines have yielded increased returns and the Dominion subsidy has also been enlarged. In this way the wage earners have not been directly taxed for the increased expenditure and have at the same time received the benefit of that expenditure. That is certainly sound finance.

ROWELL'S UNSOUND POSITION.

THE MONTREAL MAIL, a paper of Liberal tendencies, in its editorial utterances, has the following to say about the issue in Ontario politics

> "Mr. Rowell's proposition is this: He asks the people to abolish the bar by putting him in power or, as an alternative, to put him in power by abolishing the bar. As a philanthropist he is in an unfortunate position. He cannot go upon the platform strike an attitude and say: 'It matters not what happens to me and my party, so long as you people of Ontario abolish the bar.' He must admit that he has a material interest in the question, that he is not giving anything away, but selling something at his own price. It is no state secret that the "abolish the bar" plank is not looked upon with favor by many in the Ontario Liberal party, nor have the Temperance people rallied to Mr. Rowell's banner. By making a temperance cry the party slogan of the political minority, he has earned for it the antagonism of the political majority, and in Ontario party lines are tightly drawn in determined minds as a result of some picturesque political history."

This brief statement speaks for itself and shows in a nut shell, the reason for the heckling attitude of the Liberal party in Ontario.

SAFETY PROBLEM UNSOLVED.

EVER SINCE THE DISASTER to the Titanic two years ago, the question has been raised as to whether it is possible to design an unsinkable ship, and also if it is not possible to provide every ship with devices to aid passengers in escaping from the vessel when necessary. Much has been done during these two years in properly equipping ships with life boats and rafts and instructing the crews of steamers in the more perfect use of them, but the recent disaster to the Empress of Ireland, which sank in less than fifteen minutes was a conclusive proof that no ordinary means of filling and launching of life boats will avail under certain conditions.

London newspapers in discussing the problem state that the safety problem remains unsolved.

The Standard says that the catastrophe needs a good deal of explanation, raising afresh, as it does, the doubts which have been barely allayed since the Titanic disaster. "The construction of the ocean mamoths of the present day presents a serious problem when 5,000 men, women and children are crowded together in a single huge ship at the mercy of a single accident or mishap.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

LA PRESSE, one of Montreal's French papers, published a picture of the corpses recovered from the Empress disaster, piled together on the floor of the temporary morgue. The picture is ghastly in the extreme, and should never appear in any respectable newspaper. It might be expected in some "yellow journals," but not in a Canadian newspaper.

TWO BANK EMPLOYEES are charged with misappropriating between $100,000 and $200,000 of the First National Bank of Amsterdam, N.Y. Just another failure of high finance, big ideas and long shots, with other people's money.

Children Who Could Swim Were Saved.

Montreal Journal of Commerce.

The Empress disaster showed that nearly all who escaped were able to swim. In some cases, little children owed their lives to the fact that they had been taught swimming. In a country possessing as many lakes and rivers as Canada, every child should be taught to swim. It does not always save life, but it gives a person thrown into water a fighting chance.

Kersmith & Kickshaw deal in wax and Chinese eggs and carpet tacks. They are good sports in every way; they cough up money every day to make the town a better place in which to live and push your face. They hire a dozen clerks or more, who wait on patrons in their store. Our cross roads burg they would upbuild, and see it with glad people filled, and to that end they blow their scads like truly patriotic lads. But when we need of eggs a few, we send away to Timbuctoo; and when a carpet tack we wish, it's shipped from Ypsilanti, Mich. Each has the notion in his dome that things are best away from home, and so we order hods and hats, and hummingbirds and Maltese cats, from strangers in some town remote, who would not know us from a goat. We ship away our hard-earned kale, and get our fourth rate junk by mail. Say are we seers, or are we fools? Those strangers don't support our schools, or keep the peeler on his beat, or help to pave Commercial Street. They do not paint the village pump or build a fence around the dump. If our old burg were blown away they would not care a bale of hay. Kersmith & Kickshaw ought to get the local trade, already yet.

Fifteen nationalities are represented by 206 prisoners at the Alberta Penitentiary in Edmonton, according to the annual report just issued by Warden McCauley. The United States heads the list with 61, Canada being second with 58. From other countries are England, 28; Austria, 16; Ireland, 10; Russia, 9; Germany, 6; Sweden, 4; Italy, 3; Australia, 2, and Mexico, France, South Africa and China one each. Most of the inmates give their occupation as farmers and laborers. Warden McCauley reports that the prisoners completed the building of the warden's house the wing cell block and the foundation for the workshops, the material being supplied by the penitentiary brick yards.

Quaint Custom.

The ancient custom of a race deciding the rent was witnessed at Bourne, Lincolnshire, Eng. A race was run by two boys during the letting of what is known as the Whitebread Meadow, and on the return of the winning boy the last bidder was returned the tenant for the ensuing year.

Subsequently an adjournment was made to the nearest licensed premises, where a repast of bread, cheese, and onions was prepared. After expenses are paid the rent money is spent in bread, which is distributed to householders in the town.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

By Harry King Tootle

"It looks like he's got you in bad Dave," said the senator. "I don't see how I can help you this trip."

Kerr slowly set down his glass of water and straightened up in his chair, for he knew that the deal was now under way. He had played fair with Jim McMinitry and told him just the exact situation.

"Lots o' things can happen, Jim. I've decided to get his paper, but I need votes. It's too close to election. You ain't going to let him play you for a sucker. We've got to clean him, or he'll turn on you just as he has on me."

"I guess I ought to wait till he does," was the cautious response. "I've got enough troubles without going out and lassoing a young grizzly bear."

"He ain't got no party," urged Kerr, "and you know how it happens in them towns where such a paper gits a start. He's got these fools in Belmont believing he's George Washington come to life again."

"I'm sorry for you, Dave, but honestly I don't see where I can help out any. It would give me too black an eye, because the boys here have set their hearts on winning this time."

Kerr saw that McMinitry was forcing his hand, and he decided to approach the situation from another side.

"The next legislature 'll elect your successor," he suggested.

"I'm going to be my own successor," asserted the senator.

"It's going to be a hot fight," continued Kerr, unmindful of McMinitry's remark. "The state will swing back to our party, but nobody knows how the legislature 'll be on joint ballot."

"It's going to be for me if I can have anything to say about it."

"Well, you don't seem to be going about it very actively," retorted Kerr with the nearest approach to sarcasm he permitted himself during the interview. "Even if the legislature is controlled by your party, you've got a fight on your hands. There's Congressman Jenkinson and old man Graham down in Washington County. He's almost as strong as you are, and his part of the state ain't had no recognition for a long time."

McMinitry did not answer at once. He got up from the table and walked to the window. When at last he turned to Kerr the question had been gone over thoroughly in his mind.

"Well, Dave," he asked with a smile, "what's the answer?"

"You've got to knife your ticket, so's these fool reformers can't carry Belmont."

"What'd I get out of it?" drawled out the senator.

"Seven votes in the house and two in the senate."

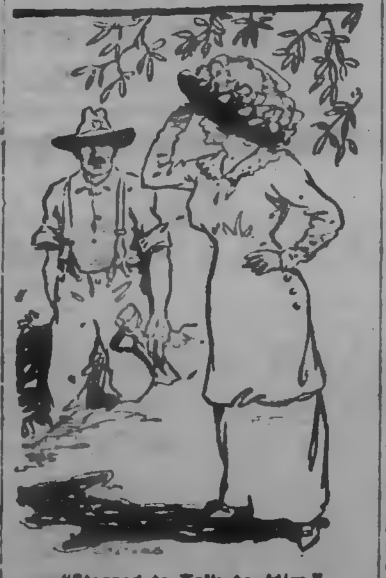
Again the apostle of practical politics sat back and took stock of the situation. Belmont was nothing to him. It mattered nothing at all to him how the town went as far as city affairs were concerned. Nine votes were not to be despised. He was cautious, however, and wanted particulars.

"How you going to deliver?" he asked.

"We've got that many to run this fall and I'll let the opposition have it their own way. Name your men now if you want to."

"That many's bound to make the legislature ours on joint ballot."

Kerr knew this, but he was quite willing to change the political complexion of the legislature of a great state, perhaps hamper the governor in wise and necessary legislation and keep the state from having a senator of its own choice, all to hold Belmont for his own. McMinitry was no less willing to change victory into defeat and hand the city over to the rapacity of the Interurban Railway Company, only to retain his senatorial office.



"Stopped to Talk to Him."

"All right," he consented, "but you've got to do two things: take care of some of the boys and muzzle the News. I can't have that paper making trouble for me."

"I'll take care of the boys all right, and I've told you what I'm going to do—I'm going to buy the News."

"Can you?"

"I've got to have it, and I don't care how, but it's got to be mine."

"Got any idea?" asked the senator.

"No, but every man's got his price, Jim, in some form or other." If he had time for reflection, David Kerr would have enjoyed this remark, since it was given a humorous turn by the fact that he had just discovered the price of the junior senator from his own state.

"I'll go up to the postoffice and call on some of the boys," said McMinitry as Kerr rose to go. "I'll have to tell Davidson and Peake. When you get word to them that the News is friendly, they'll pass the word along. You've got three days; that ought to be plenty of time, but you must have the paper or the deal's off. Who'll take it?"

"I don't know yet who we'll get to take it."

"I'll take it."

"Not much," Kerr replied grimly "I'm going to put it where it won't be no more trouble to me, and it's going to be run from my office."

CHAPTER X.

When Gloria Kerr returned from St. Louis she found half a hundred calling cards awaiting her. The women she was anxious to meet had called while she was out of town. Those who delayed their visits until her return were people whom she readily recognized as being quite on the outer fringe of society. In them she was not interested. When Gloria went to return the calls of those whom she had come to know she regarded as the first families of Belmont, she found no one at home.

Somewhat mortified, but making no confession of her feelings even to Mrs. Gilbert, Gloria threw herself into the work of remodeling Locust Lawn with all the vigor she would otherwise have expended upon social duties. Her active superintendence kept her a good part of the time in the country, although she still made her home with Mrs. Gilbert. Sometimes she would pass the night at Locust Lawn out of a sense of duty to her father. The evenings spent in his company were not ones of unalloyed pleasure. More and more she was coming to acknowledge to herself that her father did not, could not enter into her life, into the activities which gave her pleasure.

Kerr honestly tried, but it was impossible. For one thing, he was engaged in a heated political campaign, fighting to retain supremacy. Gloria, on her side, saw that she had been rebuffed socially, and was not on close enough terms of intimacy with her father to tell him about it. The girl knew that he had been the social leader in Belmont, and she was ashamed that she had not been able to win all hearts as he had done

Gloria's admiration of her father's powers did not lessen upon their better acquaintance. Strange as it may seem, her loyalty to him was strengthened by each turn of fortune's wheel which thrust her back upon herself. The frivolous veneer in her nature was being worn away, and the real Gloria was beginning to appear. Kerr's was indeed a powerful personality, and Gloria was coming to see why he was so successful. A woman's intuition and not an understanding of the facts in the case was the girl's tutor. She hugged to her heart the comparison of Joe Wright and her father. In the younger man she saw some of the traits which made her father a power—magnetism, reserve strength and a logical mind. Wright had that and more: he had all the social graces. To her, however, his greatest appeal was that he was youth, eternal youth, and love.

What Gloria could not understand was why Wright was avoiding her. In her ears she could hear him whisper as he had that night:

Spring on the hills, Beloved,
On the side of a meadowed slope;
And Love in our hearts, Beloved,
Love, and Spring and Hope.

Now was spring here, and hope and the promise of love, but he did not come. After her return from St. Louis she had waited in vain. Then she had asked to have him invited to dinner. When Mrs. Gilbert telephoned him he refused owing to press of business, but asked to speak to Gloria. She came to the telephone and they had a pleasant chat. He told her that he was busy finishing some magazine articles which the editor was pressing him for, and that he was working night and day. For the time being Gloria accepted this explanation. The day of their telephone conversation there came from him a box of red roses at the dinner hour.

It must not be thought that Gloria was entirely cut off from society. It was the society she craved, the intimate association with certain ones, which she was not finding. To all the formal functions Gloria was invited, but she no longer cared for big balls as formerly. Her dances were all taken, but there was something in the atmosphere which dampened her spirits. Although every one was superficially pleasant, there was no cordiality in it at all. So she busied herself more and more with remodeling her country home.

One day at Locust Lawn a man engaged in digging the foundation for the new porch touched his hat and called Mrs. Hayes by name. She stopped to talk to him and betrayed a knowledge of his family affairs which astonished Gloria. After they had passed, the girl questioned her about the workman and how she came to know him.

"His wife came to the mission for help last winter when he was sick," Mrs. Hayes explained.

Gloria looked at the man in the trench, bending his back in pain that she might have a place to serve tea in the afternoon and loll in a swinging seat in the moonlight. He was but a unit out of those teeming millions of units to whose existence she had always been indifferent. Had she been told in other days that this man's family had almost died of want she would have let it stay in her mind no longer than the news that a hundred poor girls had been burned to death in a fire trap a bribed factory inspector had branded as safe. In other words, she would not have considered the matter at all. To have dominion over palm and pine to Gloria meant only that from these lands should be gathered the best there was for the lords of the earth. And of that order she knew herself to be one.

A CRIPPLE FROM RHEUMATISM

Tortured Four Years Until He Took "Fruit-a-tives"

RIDGETOWN, ONT., May 21st. 1913.
"Your "Fruit-a-tives" cured me of Rheumatism. It was the only medicine that made any impression on me. I was a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. I was laid up for four winters with Sciatica and Muscular Rheumatism, and was a cripple completely, not being able to do anything. I doctored with four different physicians, but they did not help me. Other advertised remedies were equally unsatisfactory, and I have taken several.

Some neighbor of mine told me that "Fruit-a-tives" helped him, and I took them faithfully every day and the result was marvellous. For over two years now, I have been free from any Rheumatic pains whatever, and give "Fruit-a-tives" the full credit for making a remarkable cure".

W. T. RACHER

If you are subject to Rheumatic Attacks, Sciatica, Lumbago or Neuralgia, take "Fruit a-tives" right now and start the permanent cure which "Fruit-a-tives" will complete if taken faithfully. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

THE MODE IN SUN SHADES.

Parasols follow closely in the fashions for frocks this season and it is possible to have one to match the costume in design, and material as well as in color. For instance, here is a shired top of green pussy willow taffeta, matching a dress of the same delightful fabric, the shirrings held by a band of darker taffeta. Odd shapes are the favorites, gathered gores, and points that flare upward like the petals of a flower. Border effects are especially good.

PAVED WITH GOLD.

There's Money in the Street Scrapings of an African Town.

Travelers declare, says Harper's Weekly, that at Axim, on the Gold Coast of Africa, gold may actually be picked up in the streets. When one visitor, an Englishman, took the statement as a mere figure of speech his host immediately bade a woman servant go out into the main street, gather a bucketful of road scrapings and work it for gold dust.

In ten minutes the servant returned with two galvanized iron buckets, one filled with road scrapings and the other with water. She also brought three or four wooden platters, varying in size from a large plate to a saucer.

Removing several handfuls of the road scrapings and placing them in the large platter, the woman picked out and threw aside the large stones, pebbles and bits of stick and then moistened the remainder with water from the other bucket. This enabled her to remove smaller refuse.

The residuum she put into the next smaller platter, and she repeated the process until there was a quantity of sand and gravel ready for treatment. This she sprinkled freely with water and by a deft circular movement of the platter brought the small gravel to the outside, where it could be thrust over the edge. When she had repeated this operation three or four times she treated the material, which now looked more like mud than anything else, in a still smaller platter.

At last, in the smallest platter of all, she had the bucketful of sweepings reduced to a handful or two of black sand. This she carefully washed and sifted. At last with a dexterous twist she brought the sand into a crescent, the outer edge of which showed a thin rim of yellow. It was unmistakably gold dust. The whole operation had taken half an hour, and it had produced about a shilling's worth of gold.

LIFE IN MINING CAMP.

Only 44 Below Zero, So 'Twas Not "Really Cold Weather."

"This little mining camp is beginning to assume the proportions of a town," says a letter from Chisana to a B. C. paper.

"There are about sixty cabins under construction in all parts of the townsite. Several of these are buildings of some size, meant for business purposes. The commissioners' building, about half completed, is probably the most pretentious of all the cabins. It is in the centre of the town, is large and built with an eye for comfort and utility.

"There are now several restaurants, about a dozen grocery stores, a clothing store, drug store, real estate office, watchmaker's shop, tobacco, cigar and confectionery shops and saloons. Mail is now being brought in regularly twice a month. Second-class mail and parcel post is also coming into the camp. Provisions are down to 35 and 50 cents per pound.

"It is expected that each trip will bring them lower. Quite a variety of food is now obtainable. Potatoes, apples, oranges and lemons were brought in the last trip with one sack of cabbages. Potatoes retail at 65 cents per pound, about one in the pound; apples, 25 cents each; lemons and oranges the same. Cabbages the same as potatoes.

"Canned goods, such as corn, tomatoes, peaches and other fruits are obtainable, but at the price of luxuries, from 75 cents to $1.60 per can. Bacon is 75 cents per pound.

"There has been practically no cold weather as the Alaskan knows it. Forty-four degrees below has been the coldest at any time. The days have been sunny for an hour or so, and always clear, but for rare exceptions. These have meant only a little flurry of snow. There have been no cold winds to be noticed.

"The social life of the camp is not to be scoffed at. Dances occur once or twice each week. They are mostly impromptu affairs. One of the ladies will call on the others perhaps a couple of hours before the time desired with the off-hand remark that 'we thought it would be about time to dance again to-night.' Some way, several of us feel in the 'spirit,' and a short time later the dancing members of the community are tripping the light fantastic."

Enemies of Forests.

The present plethora of insect pests in the forests of Canada is due largely to the recent ravages of forest fires, which killed or weakened the standing timber and thus provided vast feeding grounds for these insects. It is for this reason the forest fires are so much dreaded by timber-owners, for it is not often that the fire itself destroys the merchantable value of the timber. Usually it is the wood-boring insects which follow in the wake of such fires that make the timber unfit for lumber and have a large share in causing the millions of dollars loss which the nation suffers annually.

To attempt the wholesale control of the insects themselves would be a hopeless task, but by eliminating fire damage, widespread insect damage may also be automatically prevented, for healthy trees are not susceptible to attack. By segregating forest reserves, on which the percentage of fire loss during the last summer was smaller than on any similarly protected areas in America, the forestry branch of the Canadian Department of the Interior is taking a leading part in the control of insect ravages.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.20 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

FLEETWOOD

Special Correspondence.

Fleetwood, June b.—It is our painful duty to have to record the death of Mr. Daniel Jones, which sad event took place at his home on Monday evening, May the 25th, at 6.30 p.m. Deceased was seventy-four years of age. He was a son of the late Alex. Jones, and was born in the township of Cavan, Canada, in 1840, the same year as King Edward. His parents came from Cavan, Ireland, a few months before deceased was born, and he resided in Cavan and Manvers all his life.

He took sick on Thursday, the 21st of May, and owing to the disease, and his advanced age, he did not linger long. He was married three times. His first marriage was Miss Prudence Byans, daughter of the late John Bryans of Ops Township. One daughter from this union still survives, namely, Mrs. David Smith, of Fenelon Township. His second wife was Miss Letitia Ann Rowan, daughter of the late David Rowan of Emily Township. Five children from this union still survive namely, Mrs. George Scott, of Glen Lyon, Manitoba, Mrs. R. J. Fallis of Cavan Township, Mrs. Arthur Everson of Peterboro, Alfred and Ninnah, also of Peterboro.

His third wife was Miss Alice Elenor Sutton, daughter of the late Edward Sutton of Manvers Township who still survives him. Five children of this union still survive, namely, Mrs. T. E. Mann of Edmonton, Alberta, Mrs. Herb Wagar of Fenelon Township, Haldon, Albert and Henry at home, also twenty grandchildren.

Deceased has been a member of the Orange Order since he was eighteen years old and only missed going out with his brethren on four occasions. This was a good record. Deceased was buried in St. John Cemetery in Cavan Township, by the Orangemen, on Wednesday, May 27th. The pallbearers were: Messrs. Albert Stinson, William McGee, Alexander Veals, Joseph Beatty, Samuel Miller, and John White, the Rev. M. Chapman of Omemee officiated at his residence, and the Rev. W. C. Allen of Millbrook officiated at the grave.

The funeral was a very large one and goes to show the high esteem in which he was held in this vicinity. In politics he was a Conservative. Four brothers, are Wm. of Ops, Alexander, Thomas and Henry of Cavan, and one sister, Mrs. John Leith of Millbrook. A beautiful wreath by his Orange brethren and another by the family were quite noticeable.

We extend our heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved members of the family.

VIVIANI MAY BE PREMIER

PARIS, June 4.—President Poincare yesterday requested Rene Viviani, the Minister of Public Instruction, to form a new Ministry, to replace that headed by Premier Doumargue, which Tuesday resigned office.

It is almost certain that he will accept and it is considered likely that he will at the same time be able to submit a list of Ministers. Three already have definitely promised to take portfolios: Louis J. Malvy, interior; Joseph J. B. E. Noulens, finance; Adolphe Messimy, war. It is probable that either Leon Bourgeois or Jean Dupuy will take the head of the Foreign Office. M. Viviani retains his present portfolio of public instruction.

THE ROYAL PARTY

Welcomes at Brockville and Cornwall

BROCKVILLE, June 4. — In a drizzling rain, Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia visited Brockville yesterday for upwards of two hours. The rain did not dampen the enthusiasm of the hundreds of people who lined the principal streets through which they passed and court house square where the official welcome took place.

Reception at Cornwall.

CORNWALL, Ont., June 4.—Cornwall was en fete yesterday in honor of the visit of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, the Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia. The streets were handsomely decorated with flags and bunting. The royal party was met at the G. T. R. depot by Mayor Gillies, the members of the Town Council and a special committee of citizens, the military officers with a guard of honor of 100 men from the 59th Regiment, the pipe band of the regiment, and the National Band of Cornwall.

MILITANTS ARE VIOLENT

Vicious Attack With Hatchet Made on Gallery Attendant.

LONDON, June 4. — A savage attack with a hatchet was made yesterday by a young militant suffragette on an attendant at the Dore Gallery, who tried to prevent her from destroying the valuable pictures on exhibition there.

The woman, who thus abandoned the principle of the sanctity of human life, hitherto held up as one of the chief assets of the militant cause, had already ruined two paintings in the gallery, which is in Bond street, the heart of the fashionable quarter of London. She was proceeding to hack a third picture when an attendant named Bourlet seized her arm.

The vandal turned on the man furiously and rained a shower of blows on the body, severely injuring him. Other attendants rushed to the spot and quickly overpowered and disarmed her. She kicked, struggled and screamed for some minutes until she was handed over to the police. The woman evidently was of good education, and she was very stylishly dressed.

A letter was left in the Dore Gallery by the assailant, in which she says:

"To stop this you must give us justice. We are willing to die for it before we give in. We have tried all other ways. We have been too ladylike in the past. Now we are going to fight, and you can allow us to be killed. Others will arise to take our places. I have joined in the war."

One of the pictures destroyed was "Love Wounded," a priceless engraving by Bartolozzi.

Women Assail Editors.

BELFAST, Ireland, June 4.—Militant suffragettes yesterday committed serious assaults on the managing editors of two of the leading newspapers of Belfast, which had expressed criticism of the militant campaign. One, a giantess, called on Mr. Stewart, the managing editor of The Telegraph, and with her clenched fist knocked him out of his chair.

The irate women then proceeded to The News Letter office and made a similar attack on Mr. Anderson.

APSLEY NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Apsley, June 4.—A basket social in aid of the telephone was held in the Temperance Hall here on the evening of May 23, which was successfully carried out. Before the sale of the baskets a short programme was rendered which was as follows:

Chorus—The Maple Leaf, by choir of Methodist and Presbyterian Churches.

Chairman's Address — Rev. W. Peer.

Recitation—Miss Alberta Wilson.
Solo—Mr. Duncan Brown.
Recitation—Mrs. W. Staples.
Instrumental Duet—Misses Ella Brown and Myrtle Windsor.
Recitation—Roy Brown.

Mr. Fred Bullied auctioned off the baskets. The proceeds amounted to about seventy-five dollars.

Mr. Richard Lees I.P.S. has returned to Peterboro after making official visits in this part of the county.

Miss Mildred Hales of Peterboro is visiting at her home here.

Messrs. Richards and Hope have been holding mass meetings in and around here during the past week. They are representing the Dominion Alliance in the interests of Local Option.

Miss Lillie Harris has returned from visiting friends at Lakefield.

Miss Edith Lean has gone to Peterboro where she has secured a position.

Relative Values.

Dunbar—Did the woman who sued Pollard for turning her down and marrying Miss Doubleday get anything?

Sprague—No, but she got more than Miss Doubleday did.—Judge.

Masculine Precedence.

Bluebeard swelled with pride.

"I'm a little bit ahead of the women who are wearing colored wigs!" he cried.—New York Sun.

BLAMED IT ON FIT OF THE BLUES

John Ireland Sought Tanglefoot as Cheer

"I just got discouraged and went and got drunk. It's my first offence," said John Ireland of Midland, to Magistrate Dumble this morning.

"I suppose you have heard some excellent temperance lectures in Midland," concluded the Magistrate after asking for $2.

Norman Robertson, a laborer was fined $5 for not paying his poll tax. Robertson appeared a few days ago and claimed that he was in the militia. He failed to provide sufficient proof this morning. Mr. Widdifield conducted the cast in the interests of the city.

POLICE COURT FOR OWNERS OF DOGS

Have Failed to Procure Necessary License

Summons are being issued against dog owners who have failed to comply with the by-law by taking out a tag for their canine. They will appear in court and will be assessed eighty-five cents extra besides the cost of the tag.

Several cases are due for a hearing Friday morning.

CAVAN NEWS

Special Correspondence.

Cavan, June 4.—The election caused some excitement in these parts on Monday.

Mr. Fred Clark and Mr. L. Winslow were the candidates.

Mr. Clark was elected by a majority of twenty-seven.

The new train service has made things quite lively around the station.

Quite a number from these parts went to Peterboro on Monday to see the Royal visitors.

Miss May Mountjoy of Blackstock was the guest of Miss Mona Cathcart last week.

Mr. J. Howden and nephew of Peterboro visited Mr. Cathcart's on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Harkness were visitors on the ninth line on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Smith called on friends in these parts on Monday.

Mr. Otto Pue purchased a new rubber tired buggy from Tinney Bros. last week. We expect to see him often now.

Mr. G. A. Wallace visited friends here on Saturday.

Mr. Vincent Wetherup, C.P.R. section man, is moving to Millbrook where he has taken a position on the G.T.R.

Mrs. W. Mill's sister from Toronto is spending a few days here.

CONDUCTOR ON ROYAL TRAIN.

Mr. John Buller, the well known Grand Trunk conductor of this division had the honor of being in charge of the train which conveyed the Royal party from this city to Montreal via Port Hope and Cobourg.

THE WHITE ROSE GARAGE OPENED

Messrs. Rackham and Appleby Able to Give Good Service

The White Rose Garage, named after the celebrated White Rose gasoline, which has been opened at 182 Hunter Street (opposite the Oriental Hotel) affords Peterboro one of the most thoroughly up-to-date and well equipped garages that could be desired. The premises, which were formerly used for the same purpose and known as the Peterboro Garage, have been entirely renovated and improved, being fitted with an excellent suite of offices and repair department. All accessories to autos are kept in stock, as well as "White Rose" gasoline, which is served to the public via a curb pump.

G. K. Rockham is the business manager of the new concern, and his connection with the Auto Association and other kindred matters warrants his efficiency, while the ability and experience of T. W Appleby, superintendent of the repairs department is well known to local motorists. He and his assistants are extremely well acquainted with every make of machine, which in itself is an assurance that all their work will be done to the utmost satisfaction.

As yet the proprietors have not decided just what car they will handle, but they expect to make their selection in the near future. In the meantime the retail and repair departments of the garage will be at the service of the public. It is the anticipation of the management to have a free air pump installed in the course of a few days.

The White Rose Garage is also the local agency for the Canadian Oil Company.

Kryptok Bifocal Lenses

Kryptok lenses are the most remarkable recent invention in the Optical line. Each lens is a solid, unbroken surface. There is no cementing to cloud the glasses, to offer lodging places for dirt or to disfigure the appearance. The eyesight of youth is reestablished, and to all appearance KRYPTOKS are the same as young folks' glasses, with nothing to distinguish them from the latter except your own pleasant knowledge of their wonderful far-and-near qualities.

We have the exclusive right to sell these lenses for this city and vicinity.

Ask for booklet describing them.

TALENT TEA HELD BY LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid of Park Street Baptist Church held a talent tea at the residence of Mrs. Booth, 179 Sherbrooke Street, on Tuesday afternoon, when a very pleasant time was spent by a large number of the members and a neat sum derived from the proceeds. An appetizing lunch was thoroughly enjoyed by all. Many items of business were transacted, and among them was the decision of the organization to hold its annual picnic at Jubilee Park on July 4. A boat has been secured for the occasion.

EXAMINATIONS COMING

The Lower School and Normal Examinations commence at the Collegiate Institute on Wednesday, June 10th.

The Faculty and Junior Matriculation examinations commence on Thursday, June 11th.

This arrangement results in the school closing on Tuesday, June 9th, in order that the pupils working on the higher examinations may have comfort and quietness.

The Normal School closes on June 19th.

NEW GROCERY BUSINESS.

Mr. Bert Hunter, whose business announcement appears in another column, has had considerable experience in the retail grocery business. He was first engaged in E. F. Mason's store and also with the late Peter Connal. The last three years he has spent in Toronto in one of the larger stores there, and his varied experience will fit him well for business in this city. All his friends extend to him best wishes for a success in business here. His store is now open for business at the corner of Aylmer and McDonnel.

Barrie's Ltd., Building.

Excavation proceedings have been commenced for the Barrie's Ltd., new building. The contracts for the building work have not been let as yet as all the plans have not been completed.

St. John's Choir.

St. John's Choir will meet for practice tonight in the church at 8 p.m. Boys at 7.30.

IS STILL MISSING.

Joseph Cunningham, the aged inmate of the Protestant Home, who mysteriously disappeared on Monday is still missing.

Saving Trouble.

Church — And you say your neighbor's prodigal son returned?

Gotham—He certainly did.

"And they killed the fatted calf, I suppose?"

"They didn't have to. It had been in cold storage for months." — Yonkers Statesman.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

Sporting Editor Review:

Dear Sir:

My attention was drawn to a letter published in the Examiner of Monday night signed "Mercantile Fan," in which he stated that the Mercantile League were unable to play on Riverside Park owing to the excessive demands of the owners. In the next day's issue of the same paper, there was published a statement to the effect that the owner of Riverside had only demanded $10 a Saturday, and out of this were willing to provide an umpire, and that Mercantile Fan's letter tended to create a wrong impression.

I waited for last night's edition to see if Mercantile Fan had anything to say in reply, but as nothing more on the subject was published, I conclude he is satisfied.

However, I am of the opinion that whoever wrote the statement published in your contemporary of Tuesday's date, either does not understand the condition of affairs or else wilfully ignores them, and I beg leave to make use of your columns to inform him that though $10 a Saturday does not seem excessive for the use of "such a splendid park," it is unquestionably prohibitive when one has not sufficient money to pay for it. It is simply a question of income and expenditure.

Last year the Mercantile League paid $5 a Saturday for the use of Riverside, and just cleared expenses after being helped out considerably by a voluntary subscription and a moonlight excursion. This year as there is less employment in the city, the number of supporters is smaller, and there is consequently less gate money, and yet the Riverside owners demand twice as much money.

It would take 100 regular supporters paying 10c a week to pay for the ground alone, and I may mention that though the supporters sometimes do number 100, they are more often less in number by about half.

This was clearly pointed out to the owners of Riverside by the Mercantile executive, whom they apparently want to make up the deficit out of their own pockets.

However, as, thank goodness! everyone is not the same, the trustees of the Exhibition Grounds generously placed their ground at the disposal of the league, and it is doing splendidly.

The only point is that the owners of a professional baseball park might have been expected to show a little more sportsmanship and interest in the amateur league as wherever amateur sports are encouraged, professional sports are as a rule well patronized.

Hoping you will have space for this in your column,

I remain, sir,
Yours sincerely,
AMATEUR.

HITTING WAS PROMINENT.

Eighteen future stars battled it out on the King Edward school grounds yesterday when the Goheen nine scored a 17-12 win over the Southerners. The game was fast all the way and the youngsters showed great form, hits of the long variety being numerous. The batteries for the winners were Fuller, Dobbin and Schweir, and for the losers Rehill and Cumimngs.

LAWN TENNIS.

Weather permitting, there will be a practice of the Charlotte Street Methodist tennis club this evening.

THE GHOST OF ALVIN

Its Identity Disclosed

By CLARISSA MACKIE

The two members comprising the law firm of Harley & Rogers glanced quickly at each other when their strange client repeated his question.

"Do you believe in ghosts?" he asked insistently.

Bob Harley twisted his dark mustache and frowned. "To tell you the truth, sir," he admitted, "all the ghosts I ever met turned out not to be spirits at all."

"And you, sir?" said the old man, turning to Jack Rogers.

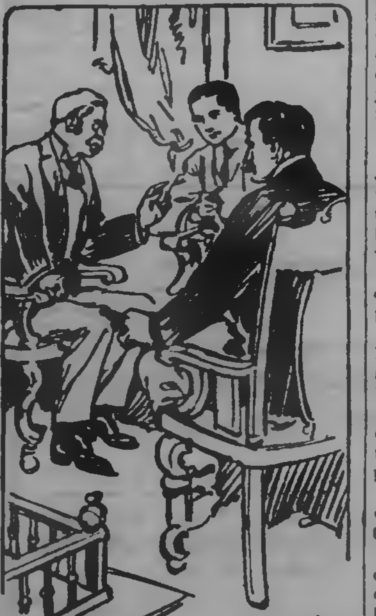
"I, too, am skeptical," he confessed pleasantly.

The old man was thoughtful, his thin white hand stroking his cleanly shaven cheek. Suddenly he lifted his snowy head and said with decision, "Perhaps it is best that you do not believe my story—that you do not believe in ghosts—for my experience appears absurd in the face of common sense.

"My carriage is below, and if you can accompany me to my house in Washington square I can better tell my story on the very scene where the ghost has walked. Can you spare the time now, gentlemen?"

A glance at their engagement books assured the young lawyers, who mingled a little detective work with their law practice, that they might spare a couple of hours on this bright May morning; so, leaving the office in charge of their one clerk, they donned their hats and followed old Donald Boyce to the elevator.

A handsome closed carriage stood before the door of the building, and a coachman and footman in plum colored livery came to attention as the three men crossed the pavement.



"I RECOGNIZED HIM AT ONCE."

"Home, Jacob!" ordered Mr. Boyce as the footman slammed the door.

Ten minutes later they were standing in the elegantly furnished drawing room of an old fashioned mansion.

"If you will come into my library," suggested their host as he led the way into an adjoining room, where the walls were lined with books to the very ceiling and where the furniture was of the same massive style as that in the drawing room. "Here," he said quietly, "is where the ghost of Alvin walks."

"The ghost of Alvin?" repeated Rogers amazedly.

"Who was Alvin, sir?" asked Harley practically.

"Alvin Boyce was my only brother, who lived with me here for fifteen happy years after our parents died. Then we quarreled because we both loved the same girl, and Alvin went away and left me alone." His head drooped despondently as he spoke.

"But may I ask if you married, Mr. Boyce?" inquired Harley gently.

"No. Our quarrel was in vain. The girl did not care for either of us and married another man. The bitter words that Alvin and I hurled at each other still ring in my ears. I said things to him that I am sure he never forgave, for he did not have time to cool down before the ship on which he sailed to Japan was lost with all hands. That was twenty-five years ago.

"I have lived here alone with my servants ever since then. My only pleasures have been in travel and in my books. I am rich, and I am lonely, and I have sometimes feared that Alvin's ghost is merely a figment of my own fancy, conjured up by my constant thoughts about him."

The young lawyers exchanged a quick glance of sympathy. Then Harley, the more practical member of the firm, asked their client for a detailed account of the mysterious appearance which he called "the ghost of Alvin."

"I first noticed it three months ago," began Mr. Boyce sadly. "I was sitting in this chair facing the portrait of my brother, and I was thinking about him, regretting the estrangement that resulted in his death, telling myself how happy and contented we could be now, even old men, if we were together.

"I was thinking thus and gazing into the glowing masses of the coal fire which illumined the room in a dull red glow. I had extinguished the lamps, for I am fond of the firelight. As I sat there I heard the great clock in the hall slowly chime the hour of midnight.

"I closed my eyes wearily and opened them again to see the form of my brother Alvin standing in the corner yonder, there in the angle by the fireplace. I recognized him at once, although his hair was as white as my own. He was gazing at me with such remorse in his eyes that involuntarily I stretched out my hands to him, and he instantly vanished."

"What was your object in seeking our advice if you are convinced that it really is the ghost of your brother?" asked Harley gently.

The old man looked up eagerly. Yet, when he spoke, it was timidly, as if fearful of ridicule: "I wanted to be sure—sure—positive that it was Alvin and not a hallucination. I have heard of you and your cleverness in unraveling mysteries, and so I have appealed to you. Will one or both of you join me next Sunday evening and wait for the coming of my brother Alvin?"

"With pleasure," agreed Harley.

As they rose to take their departure Jack Rogers surveyed the large room with speculative eyes that roved from the rich bindings in the bookcases that lined all the walls save the south wall where the fireplace was.

"May I ask what is on the other side of that wall?" inquired Jack suddenly, pointing to the fireplace.

"The house next door," returned Mr. Boyce promptly. "It is empty now and has been for a year or so. It belongs to me—in fact, I fell heir to it when my brother died. It is much out of repair, and I haven't had the heart to put it in order again. Let it fall to pieces, even, as I am doing!"

"Thank you," said Jack Rogers quietly as they bade good afternoon to Mr. Boyce.

Promptly at 9 o'clock on Sunday evening Robert Harley and John Rogers were ushered into Mr. Boyce's library. He came forward to meet them, looking very animated and smiling.

"I suppose you boys think I'm half cracked," he remarked as they drew around the fire, "but wait and see!"

"No, no, sir," assured Jack Rogers heartily; "I'm sure that we shall find there is excellent foundation for your belief that your brother has appeared to you."

"I'm sure I hope your predictions will come true," said Donald Boyce.

The hours passed swiftly. Mr. Boyce had a fund of anecdote to draw upon, and after a servant had served a delicious cold supper on a table drawn close to the fire they lighted cigars and sat back waiting for the striking of the midnight hour. The servants retired, and the house grew still. Now and then from the street outside came the muffled rumble of wheels. Now and then a coal snapped in the grate. The three men fell into silence. Each one was watching that dim corner by the fireplace for the coming of Alvin Boyce.

Just as the clock in the hall struck the first note of midnight Mr. Boyce stretched out his hand and extinguished the electric lamps, so that they sat in a half circle of red firelight. As the last chime died Donald Boyce leaned forward and clutched Bob Harley's arm.

There was no need to point toward that corner, for all three of them were staring hard at the tall, bent figure that appeared for an instant in the deep shadow of the angle of the fireplace. As if aware that alien eyes were watching it, there came a flash of white, and the vision vanished.

"Ah, he has gone! Did you see him?" demanded Mr. Boyce all in one breath.

The two men nodded, Harley rather helplessly, for he was not accustomed to dealing with spirits. But Jack Rogers surprised his companions by reaching the corner in three quick strides. "Please turn on the lights, Mr. Boyce," he requested, "and then come here."

They found him with his hand on the glass knob of a narrow door that opened into a chimney cupboard. The outside of the door was stained to match the dark mahogany woodwork of the room. As Jack opened the closet door he tapped the white painted panels of the inside of the door.

"The cupboard is empty," said Mr. Boyce patiently, for he did not approve of this search for the gentle ghost of his loved brother.

"I know it is now, but a moment ago it had an occupant," said Jack rapidly. "Please follow me, Mr. Boyce, and do not be surprised if you meet your brother—in the flesh—for it may be that he never died."

Without further explanation he pushed back on the tier of empty shelves, and his companions were surprised to see them swing back into space, leaving an opening, through which they followed Rogers into what appeared to be a closet that matched the one they had just left. A long rod of light appeared through a partly opened door. Rogers pushed it wider and beckoned to his companions to look into the library of the house next door.

There before a table in a scantily furnished room sat a tall old man. His head was bowed on his folded arms.

"It is your brother Alvin," whispered Jack Rogers as he pushed Donald Boyce into the room. "I have investigated. He was not lost at sea, and after many years he has returned to be near you. He feared your anger. There! He is stirring. Go to him, and be happy the rest of your days."

All Important.

A certain young mother had one pronounced weakness, and that was for millinery. Hats on shelves, hats in boxes, hats everywhere—and weighty affairs had been known to hang in the balance while a decision was being made from among the distracting collection.

One morning she was dressing for the street, and her four-year-old son was idly watching her and at the same time seeking to slake his thirst for general information.

"Mamma," he said, "did George Washington go to heaven?"

"Of course, my dear."

"Mamma, will you go to heaven when you die?"

"I hope so, dear."

A moment given over to silence, then another question fell:

"Then, mamma, when you go to heaven, will you meet George Washington?"

"Yes, dear, I suppose so." Her tone was a trifle abstracted.

"Then, mamma"—and the voice was hushed with the import of the question—"what hat'll you wear?"—New York Times.

Proof Enough.

"I'm bigger 'n you are!" claimed the first East Cleveland four-year-old.

"You ain't either. And anyhow my birthday comes next week, an' yours doesn't come till May, so I'm older 'n you are."

"You ain't either. I'm grown up already. I'm a big man!"

"Aw! You ain't either!"

"I am, too, and I can prove it."

"How can you?"

"Mamma paid my fare three times on the street car last week, an' never kicked about it!"

That settled it. The child might as well have been dressed in long trousers.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

A Business Call.

"I shall call upon a fortune teller this morning," said Mr. Blubb. "Going to try to learn something about the future?" asked Mr. Waggles. "Yes, I'm going to ask him when he expects to pay the arrears of rent for that cottage of mine he is occupying as a School of Astrology and Institute For Psychological Research."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Gallantry.

"The marquise is very thin, isn't she? What would you think our ages were?"

"Well, she seems ten years older than she is, and she's ten years older than you. Then you seem years younger than you are, so that makes thirty years' difference between you."—Pele Mele.

The Incentive.

"I'd like to kiss that girl."

"Well, why don't you?"

"She won't let me. That's mainly why I want to."—St. Louis Republic.

Lesson X.—Second Quarter, For June 7, 1914.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Text of the Lesson, Luke xvii, 20-37 Memory Verse, 33—Golden Text, Luke xvii, 21—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Every instance of healing or making the blind to see, the deaf to hear, the lame to walk, was a sample of the kingdom which will be set up on earth when the Lord shall take vengeance upon His enemies and recompense His people, when Israel shall obtain joy and gladness and sorrow and sighing shall flee away, when the inhabitant shall not say I am sick and the people shall be forgiven their iniquity (Isa. xxxv, 4-6, 10; xxxiii, 24).

When the twelve and the seventy were sent forth they were to heal the sick and preach that the kingdom had come nigh. Our Lord Himself also as He preached the gospel of the kingdom healed all manner of sickness and disease (Matt. iv, 23; x, 7, 8; Luke x, 9, 11). When the Pharisees asked about the coming of the kingdom we must remember that they thought of the kingdom as described by the prophets, and in this they were not wrong, for such a kingdom was even then at hand and will surely come at our Lord's return, according to Luke xix, 11, 12; Acts iii, 21.

Perhaps there is no saying in the Scriptures more misquoted, misinterpreted and misapplied than the words of our Golden Text as they stand. "Behold the Kingdom of God is within you." From these words it is generally taught that our Lord will never have a kingdom on this earth, when the nations will learn war no more and all kings and nations shall serve Him (Isa. ii, 4; Ps. lxxii, 11), but that His kingdom is wholly spiritual in the hearts of His people, that the church is His kingdom, that it began to come at Pentecost and has been coming ever since, and that we are here to extend it, and that some day the church will convert the whole world. Then he will burn up the world and take all His people to heaven. Those who so teach have no use for a literal Israel, or for the coming of Christ to reign, or for prophecy generally, or Daniel or Revelation in particular. The New Testament is quite sufficient, and much of that may be omitted.

In reading our Bibles we must always notice if God is speaking either directly or through His servants or if the devil is the speaker. Otherwise we might make the same mistake as the judge who said, "We have the highest authority for saying all that a man hath will he give for his life," the judge not having noticed that these words were from the devil (Job ii, 4). We must also notice to whom words are spoken, whether to sinners or saints, to Pharisees or disciples. The words of the Golden Text were spoken to Pharisees, whom He elsewhere called "whited sepulchers, full of hypocrisy and iniquity, children of hell" (Matt. xxiii, 15, 27, 28). Our Lord would no more say to such that the kingdom of God was within them than you or I would say it to a drunken man who was full of cursing. What our Lord did say is more correctly rendered in the margin "among you" or in the R. V. margin, "in the midst of you." He himself as the King, greater than Solomon, represented the kingdom, but although in their midst and ready to set up His kingdom they would not have Him, but said, "We have no king but Caesar," "Not this man, but Barabbas." Then He turned to His disciples (verse 22) and spoke to them of His future coming as Son of Man in His glory (verses 24, 26, 30), telling them that He was about to be rejected by the Jews and suffer at their hands (verse 25), and that when He came again it would be as suddenly as the lightning shining from one part of heaven to the other, and that He would find at His coming again a condition of affairs on earth similar to that in the days of Noah and as it was in Sodom in the days of Lot. This does not look like a converted world to welcome Him, but rather as it is described in Rev. i, 7; xi, 18, all kindreds of the earth wailing because of Him, and the nations angry, because it will be the day of His wrath, when He will judge the nations and dash them to pieces like a potter's vessel (Ps. ii, 9; Isa. xxxiv, 1, 2; lxvi, 15, 16; Zeph. iii, 8; Matt. xxv, 31, 32).

This coming of the Son of Man to judge and reign is not His coming to the air for His church, but His coming in glory with His saints, when they, too, shall share this honor with Him as it is written in Ps. cxlix, 5-9; Rev. ii, 26, 27; Col. iii, 4. See how our Lord indorses the truth of the record of the deluge, the destruction of the cities of the plain by fire and brimstone from heaven, the judgment upon Lot's wife, and because of the judgments which will surely come urges His people to think more of the life that is life indeed than of this present life, except as it can be used for Him.

There must be no looking back to the things of this evil age nor conformity to it, but a life of separation from it, occupied with Him who is our life and the things which concern Him and a readiness always to be taken away from the earth. Things are bad enough on the earth even now, but iniquity will not be full until after the church is taken away.

The forests of Brazil are the most vast and the richest in the world.

ONE WAY TO PAY A DEBT.

A Suit That Lincoln Settled In His Own Peculiar Manner.

A crack brained attorney who lived in Springfield, supported mainly by the other lawyers of the place, became indebted in the sum of $2.50 to a wealthy citizen of the county. The creditor, failing after repeated efforts to collect the amount due him, came to Mr. Lincoln and asked him to bring suit. Lincoln explained the man's condition and circumstances and advised his client to let the matter rest, but the creditor's temper was up, and he insisted on bringing suit. Again Lincoln urged him to let the matter drop, adding, "You can make nothing out of him, and it will cost you a good deal more than the debt to bring suit."

The creditor was still determined to have his way and threatened to seek some other attorney who would be more willing to take charge of the matter than Lincoln appeared to be. Lincoln then said, "Well, if you are determined that suit shall be brought I will bring it, but my charge will be $10." The creditor paid over the money and gave peremptory orders that the suit should be brought that very day.

After his client's departure Lincoln went out of the office. He returned in about an hour with an amused look on his face. I asked what pleased him, and he replied: "I brought suit against —— and then hunted him up, told him what I had done, handed him half of the $10, and we went over to the squire's office. He confessed judgment and paid the bill." Lincoln added that he did not see any other way to make things so generally satisfactory.—"The Everyday Life of Abraham Lincoln."

COMPENSATIONS.

I DO not own a railroad,
  But I am far from sad.
    I might have wrecks
    And strikes to vex
  My quiet if I had.

I haven't got a palace,
  Yet should I rave and yelp?
    I need not fret
    And fume and sweat
  To keep a troop of help.

I don't possess an auto,
  But I do not lament,
    For puncture bills
    And engine ills
  Do not cost me a cent.

I work for humble wages,
  But what my income lacks
    Is offset by
    The fact that I
  Dig up no income tax.

Not Guilty.

"In Paris," remarks a New York lawyer, who has had the unpleasant experience of being knocked down by a taximeter and then brought to book for being in the way, "they run you down and make you pay for the privilege." Perhaps the old colored man who had a trying experience near Mobile, Ala., not long ago was sufficiently traveled to fear a similar outcome.

There had been a railway collision near that city, and a shrewd lawyer had hurried to the scene of disaster. He noticed the aforesaid old man with a badly injured head and hurried up to him where he lay moaning on the ground.

"How about damages?" began the lawyer.

The injured one waved him aside.

"Go on, boss," he protested. "I never hit de train. I never done sech a thing in all my life. Yo' can't git no damages outer me!"—Detroit Free Press.

UMPS GAVE GAME TO BEAVERS IN THE TENTH WHEN PETES PROTESTED

Blount Knocked Ball Out of Sight but arbiter Would Allow but Three Bags

Yesterdays game which was forfeited to the Beavers 9-0 by Umpire Hallinan when the teams were tie 6-6 in the first half of the tenth frame will bear investigation by the league president. In the Petes' half of the tenth and with 2 out Blount poked one over third, his fourth hit of the day, and the ball rolled between the grand stand and bleachers, which is known as the flag area. Blount made third on the hit but claimed a home run on the grounds that the ball had gone out of sight. The local manager was clearly within his rights in doing so but the umpire claimed he was not entitled to a home run and pointed out that the International League rules called for but two bases on such a clout. What the International League rules have to do with the Canadian League and why the umps should bring them into the argument is more than we can understand. At any rate Blount stood firm on his stand to abide by the rules which call for a homer on a ball which is hit out of the sight of the umpire. The umpire who is a Toronto City League recruit could not see it that way and finally Manager Blount refused to go on and the game went as won by Toronto by the forfeited route.

A Toronto dispatch has the following to say of the game :

After sitting in the stand for two hours and thirty minutes, and with the temperature, in the opinion of the fans and those in the press box, somewhere near the freezing point. Umpire Hallinan awarded the Beavers their final fixture with Peterboro at the Stadium yesterday in the visitors' half of the tenth inning. The trouble arose after two were out in that session, and the score a tie at six all. Manager Blount took his turn at the plate and sent a screeching line drive over third base, which was fair by inches only. Continuing on its course the ball rolled into the flat area in left field. Blount reached third base, where he was stopped by Shultz's throw after the latter had recovered the ball. The next moment, Umpire Hallinan was surrounded by the entire Peterboro team.

They contended that as the ball had gone out of the umpire's sight that Blount was entitled to a home run, which, according to the rules, he was. In the International League a hit in the flag area goes for two bases only, but the Canadian League have no such rule. As a result the umpire was forced to use his judgment. He ordered Manager Blount to go back to third base, but after much wrangling, and to the disgust of the fans, the Peterboro team left the field and Hallinan awarded the game to the Beavers 9 to 0. President Fitzgerald will give a decision in the matter.

Peterboro commenced hostilities in the first by sending one across on Blount's single, and Welsh's wallop to deep left. Welsh made third easily on the hit, but Landry, a new umpire, called him out for not touching the middle sack. In the second Wilcox walked, and scored when Shultz dropped Gorman's hard fly.

The Petes counted again in the third on Blount's second hit, and Stewart's corking two-bagger to centre, and in the fourth, with Auld twirling for Toronto, counted another on Duffy's error, a hit by Fox, pinch hitting for Belting, and Blount's third bingle to left. The last two were secured in the 7th on hits by Tracey, Byrne and Welsh.

For the Beavers, Burrill, hitting for Roberts in the third, singled cleanly to centre, was sacrificed along, and scored on Ort's hard one to first. Germany Shultz then brought the stand to its feet with a corking home run drive to the centre fence, scoring Ort ahead of him. In the 7th, Schneider doubled and scored on Loud's bingle, and the locals tied it up in the 8th on two errors, a walk and Ort's single.

Box Score Tales.

Manager Blount had four hits in five trips to the plate. He had two runs also.

Welsh had three pokes, while Byrne, Stewart, King, Wilcox, Kelly, Tracey and Fox also had one. Fox's poke came when he was pinch hitting for Belting in the fourth.

Kelly, Wilcox and Byrne had the boots.

The Beavers gathered five hits off Belting in three innings and one off Schettler in two and one-third innings.

Marty Killilea who was awarded to Grand Rapids by the National Commission has been awarded to Toronto on an appeal and along with Meyer a brother of the turbulent Benny will report to the Beavers at Erie today.

COMMENT

As You Like It

If dope is an indication of form, then there are other clubs in the league just as weak as the Petes, which leads one to believe that all the guff about what a better class of ball the fans would receive under Class B rating peters down to mere, ordinary air waves. The Hams have lost three out of four to Erie, while the Petes lost the same number in their opening series with the Yanks, but evened up on the next one. The Brants lost two in three to the Yanks and the same result featured their series with St. Thomas, whereas the Hams grabbed all three from the Saints. Brantford and Hamilton in their numerous encounters to date have displayed about the same form. The Hams also dropped three straight to London, while they broke even with Toronto, a point which the Petes had a chance to better if yesterday's game had not been forfeited. Considering all those things, it seems that Ottawa and London are strong enough to shake them all off and leave the other six clubs to themselves to fight it out for the other positions in the front division. It is not too late, however, to set chase after the leaders and a few plugged gaps and a little more pep would help Peterboro and also some of the other clubs, as indifference is claimed in the style of the Hamilton club's play.

Hamilton is being swept by a wave of reform. In the city league last Saturday Johnny Benzie, who worked out with the Petes under Old Folks Templin, used bad language to Umpire Conkle. President Monk of the league immediately suspended him for two weeks. President Fitzgerald, please take notice.

---

The Typos failed to check the money counters last evening, and the bank clerks won rather easily. The game on Saturday between the Red Caps and Bankers should be a classy affair, and Mercantile League fans will no doubt be out in force.

---

Ty Cobb on a steady average is the most dangerous batsman in baseball. This isn't a matter of opinion—but of record, based upon a nine-year batting mark of .731—20 points above his closest rival, Napoleon Lajoie.

But when the pinch arrives with runners on base and Tyrus at bat, did you ever hear of the palpitation pitcher walking him ? Not very often, and for a very excellent and abiding reason—the reason being that to walk Cobb brings up Sam Crawford—which is said to be the origin of "out of the frying pan into the fiery furnace."

No, heady pitchers esteem it no great bliss to push the pill in Cobb's reach with runners on base. But passing Cobb to bring up Crawford is another matter, and those who try it once are quite content next time to take a chance with Ty.

You hear quite a bit about the durability of Wagner, Lajoie, Mathewson, Plank, etc., but little of the span established by Wahoo Sam.

This is his seventeenth season in baseball—his fifteenth season in the Big Show—and out of the seventeen years he has served to date he has established a mark above .300 on no less than twelve occasions. And when the Tigers started their early drive to the front in budding May, Crawford was the main factor in the uplift with a mark above .420, leading his circuit a dozen leagues in extra base wallops.

Not forgetting to mention that Crawford crashes into a baseball harder than any rival in the game—not barring Frank Baker, Joe Jackson, Hans Wagner, Cactus Cravath, Sherwood Magee, Ty Cobb, or Tris Speaker.

On top of all this we reserve for the last the most eminent boost of all in the latter days of fragile talent—in the last ten years Crawford has stood to the guns in 1,500 battles—an average of 150 games a season—or less than half a week's absence from April to October. Which, after all, is the crowning test of value to a club.—From Colliers.

TYPOS PLAYED WEIRD BALL BEHIND O'CONNELL

Bankers Gave Better Support to Smith and Won by 13-3

It was a sad affair that was staged at the Exhibition Grounds last evening. According to the advertisements it was to be a game of baseball between the Bankers and the Typos but it developed into nothing more than a five inning practice for the former. Luckily darkness prompted Umpire Andrews to ring down the curtain at the end of the fifth else the newspaper men would have slipped so far down into the "pretty punk" class that a can of nitro couldn't raise them. As it was they were hopelessly outclassed and if their twirler O'Connel, had not struck out eight men, the money handlers would have been batting all night. The support he received was heartrending and the five errors his fellow combators had chalked up against them were all very juicy.

A charity, a hit, a wild heave, a sacrifice and another bingle gave the Bankers three runs in the first but the Printers came back and tied it up. In the second Smythe poled out a nice single, stole second, was sacrificed to third by Moran and scored when Curtis fumbled a ground ball. The printers were unable to count in their half although they got two men on. Smythe was pitching nice ball and this accompanied by horseshoes held the Typos scoreless for the remainder of the game. In the mean time the Bankers were adding two in the third, five in the fourth and ended up with two in the fifth, thus making the score 13-3.

It would hardly be right to single one man of the Printers out and blame him for the defeat while it would be likewise unjust to give one or two of the Bankers credit for the victory. The work of Smythe and O'Connell, the two hurlers was very good while Smythe further made his presence felt when he secured three hits in three times up. "Bill" Andrews as umpire was inpartial.

HASTINGS DEFEAT LOCALS IN FIRST LACROSSE MATCH

Petes Netted First Goal and Tied it up in Third Quarter Visitors Won in the Last Period—Score 6-4

The local lacrosse season was ushered in at Riverside Park last evening when Hastings scored a 6-4 victory over the local team in the first game of the local intermediate group. A fair sized audience many of whom came from Hastings witnessed the game which was a very good exhibition of the great pastime considering that neither team has had more than its share of practice. The battle was clean all the way. Armstrong of the visiting team had his head cut open accidentally.

The visitors displayed better stick work than the locals while they also checked back with better results. The locals missed numerous chances to score by weak passing and inability to speed away from the other fellow. All the goals scored by the locals were the result of boring in play the Hastings defense covering up in fine style. On the other hand the majority of the Hastings goals were scored when two or three men were left uncovered. The locals' weak point seemed to be at center and had an experienced man been in that position the local attack would have been strengthened greatly. Halpin who played the position was playing his first game of lacrosse and he did excellent work under the circumstances. Johnson, Manion and Kenneally on the local line-up were also making their debut to lacrosse. Considering everything the locals played a fine game and will be heard from before the schedule has been far advanced. Crough, Dillon, McCoy and Robertson, all old-timers were the pick of the locals.

Hastings presentee a very evenly balanced team and some speed kings among their midst. The team checked back in good style and spoiled numerous possible scores.

The Petes broke into the score column in the first quarter and were leading 1-0 when ends were changed. In the second period Hastings scored four goals to the locals one but neither team scored in the third quarter. In the final period the Petes rammed in two goals in quick succession and evened up matters but Hastings came right back and put the game on ice by beating McFadden twice.

The local goal keeper had a busy time of it and shook off numerous difficult shots. The locals missed about five easy chances in the first quarter. Neither team introduced the short choppy pass and every pass was of the long, high variety.

During the game Dr. Wade, manager of the Hastings Club got into an argument with one of the local detectives and was removed from the grounds. One of the Hastings players tried to interfere and the "cop" whacked him on the wrist with his club.

Alexander Kempt of Norwood handled the game to the satisfaction of everyone. The teams lined up as follows :

| Peterboro | | Hastings |
|---|---|---|
| McFadden | Goal | Lou Scriver |
| Dillon | Point | Nesbitt |
| Johnson | Cover | W. Scriver |
| Mein | First Defense | P. Dodd |
| Crough | Second defense | Armstrong |

| Manion | Second home | Tait |

SCHOALES—BICKERSTETH.

St. John's Church was the scene of a quiet but pretty June wedding this afternoon, when Miss Rhoda Bickersteth was united in bonds of holy matrimony to Mr. Frank Schoales, both of this city, by Canon Davidson. They were attended by Miss Annie Bickersteth and Mr. Frank Daley of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Schoales will reside in the city.

The engagement is announced of Miss Elsie Nicoll, daughter of James Nicoll, Cobourg, to Mr. Frank C. Polliott, Hamilton, the wedding to take place the latter part of June.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael MacKenzie and daughter, Toronto, Mr. Hugh B. MacKenzie, Montreal, Mr. Alex. MacKenzie, Lakefield, Mr. George MacKenzie, Ottawa, and Mr. G. P. MacKenzie, Montreal, are all in the city today and guests at Grace Church rectory—the occasion being the 50th wedding anniversary or the Venerable Archdeacon and Mrs. MacKenzie, upon whom are being showered today the warmest congratulations of countless friends both at home and abroad.—Brantford Expositor.

Mrs. A. A. Perrin of Bethune St. is visiting friends in Philadelphia.

Mrs. Morris, Aylmer Street, is visiting in Port Hope.

Mrs. Wilson Taylor, Water Street, north, left last evening for Toronto where she will attend graduating classes in which her son will take place.

Mr. Thomas Elmhurst of New York City, who was visiting relatives and friends in this vicinity, returned to his home yesterday. While in the city, he was the guest of his sister, Mrs. F. D. Armstrong, Margaret Avenue.

Among the successful students at the Faculty of Education Examinations held in Toronto, appear the names of Miss Emma Corkery of this city, also Miss Phacey of Havelock, who is an ex-student of the Collegiate Institute. Both will receive their first class interim certificates.

Mr. Milford Brooks of Syracuse University, is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Brooks, for the vacation.

Mr. R. J. Devey has returned from Toronto after conducting Gilbert and Sullivan's "Mikado" in the Princess Theatre given by the Etonia Operatic Club. It was a most successful performance and 100 people including orchestra took part.

The theatre was crowded.

Mr. Percy Pichard of Hamilton is among the guests at the Munro House.

Mr. C. Hudson of Stratford, is in the city on business.

LAKEFIELD PERSONALS.

Lakefield, June 4.—Miss Ball has returned after spending a couple of months in Norwood.

Mrs. Robinson of Norwood was the guest of her sister Mrs. Ball.

Dr. M. Graham is spending a couple of months in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. Perks of Peterboro and family have taken up their residence in the village.

Mrs. Ergarart and Mrs. McDonnelly of Peterboro were the guests of Mrs. Munro on Wednesday.

Mr. Braden Blewett left on Monday for Peterboro where he has secured a position as chaffeur for Mrs. J. Woods.

Mr. Wm. Graham launched "the Magic" on Monday. Mr. Graham is preparing to go to Viamede for the summer.

Mrs. A. Northey spent Monday in Peterboro visiting friends.

Miss Ida Sawyer spent a couple of days in Peterboro visiting her sister, Mrs. R. McKee.

Mrs. Osborne spent Saturday in Peterboro.

Miss McKibbon spent Monday in Peterboro on business.

Mrs. L. H. Graham spent Monday in Peterboro.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Fitzgerald spent Monday in Peterboro.

Mrs. Warren Nicholls of Bridgenorth spent last week in the village visiting her mother Mrs. Simpson.

Mrs. J. Kidd spent a few days in Toronto visiting her son, Mr. Harold Kidd.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Cheyne of Gore's Landing spent a few days in the village last week visiting Mr. and Mrs. F. Waldon.

The Oddfellows and High School played a very splendid game of baseball on the exhibition grounds on Monday evening. The game ended in favor of High School with a score of 8-4.

Mrs. W. Gillman has returned after spending a few days in Peterboro the guest of Mrs. Yelland.

Mrs. Bavender and Miss Bravender arrived home on Saturday after spending the winter in the west.

CAMEO SHOE BUCKLES.

Novel Development of the Craze For This Jewelry.

The cameo plaque buckle has not fallen from grace, but merely descended to our shoes. It is such a beautiful thing that one would expect to see it at the throat, or at most as a buckle at the waist. But it is really used wherever an artistic ornament will catch the high light.

It fastens the new capes and cloaks. It is attached to a sash end. The capuchin ornament for a hat may prove on close inspection to be a cameo plaque buckle.

And now in special size and design we have the cameo buckle for shoes and slippers. Here it would reach the limit of its usefulness, one would fancy, but fashion strikes like lightning, and one never can tell.

The cameo plaque buckle is, however, both smart and of unusual beauty, and an instep seems very well designed for its display.

SIGN OF DECREPITUDE

When You Cease to Love a Circus!

A prominent magazine writer says:

"The fact that thousands of people thronged Robinson's Famous Shows' tents proves that the love of the circus is inherent in the blood of humanity as long as the red corpuscles exist. When a man no longer loves the smell of the sawdust arena he has surely arrived at the lean and slippery age when he fain must crouch before the fire to warm his thin blood.

"Though our locks may be gray and our footsteps slow, the tented city, the gold and tinsel, the odor of the dens, the smiling, bespangled, adorned creatures in filmy pink and cream appeal to us still, and sad will be the day when we shall cease to be thrilled by this most ancient but still modern, this altogether delightful potpourri of grandeur and nonsense, of reality and sham, the circus."

If the germs of youth are not altogether eliminated from your veins, you can satiate this normal, healthy yearning by visiting the splendid exhibitions given by Robinson's Famous Shows in this city on Wednesday, June 10.

Two performances will be given, at 2 and 8 p.m. Doors open one hour earlier, giving ample time to inspect our great educational, zoological collection.

YOUR SUMMER OUTING

The attractive beaches of the popular resorts of Long Island Sound in the vicinity of New London, Conn., reached by the Grand Trunk and Central Vermont Railways, have become more and more popular each year as Canadians have learned to know them.

A splendid train service to New London makes the journey an easy and comfortable one, and hotel, cottage and boarding house accommodation is available to suit the purse of all classes.

Write to Mr. C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, G.T. Ry. Sys., Toronto, Ont., for information as to rates, etc.

Constitutionalists Won't Let Up.

LAREDO, Texas, June 4. — Gen. Jesus Carranza, brother of the Constitutionalist leader, at Nuevo Laredo, yesterday refused to be interviewed on Huerta's announcement Tuesday night that he was will to resign. Other prominent Nuevo Laredo Constitutionalists, however, believed the certainty of their victory over Huerta would not warrant them in accepting the mediators' terms. They said they believed their leader would refuse an armistice.

Provost of Glasgow Chosen.

LONDON, June 4.—C. A. P. Cable—Lord Provost Stevenson of Glasgow was accepted last night as prospective Liberal candidate for Leith Burgh. Stevenson is an ardent home ruler on federal lines, and is a very advanced Liberal. Leith Burgh went to the Unionists at a recent bye-election.

Firemen Flooded Murderer Out.

CALGARY, June 4.—Affancy Seekoloff, 27, Russian, third of those suspected of the hold-up and murder of Paymaster Wilson, of the Exshaw branch of the Canada Cement works, was arrested in a vacant house after the firemen flooded the cellar in which he was hiding.

Sulzer Gubernatorial Candidate.

NEW YORK, June 4. — William Sulzer, deprived of his office as Governor of New York by impeachment, formally announced himself yesterday as independent candidate for the gubernatorial nomination.

Australian Immigration Laws.

Australians have the most rigorous laws against admission of the Japanese, who are their betes noir, but they are equally antagonistic to the immigration of colored races from other parts of the British Empire, such as Hindus from South Africa and Malays from Straits Settlements.

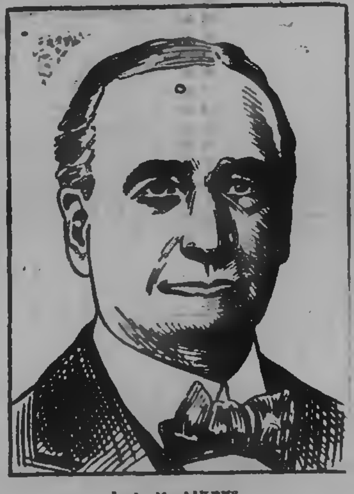
J. A. M. AIKENS, WINNIPEG, HEADS CANADIAN BAR

One of the most notable events of the year in legal circles in Canada was the formation of the Canadian Bar Association. Efforts had been made from time to time previously but these were unsuccessful. This year, however, Hon. C. J. Doherty, Minister of Justice, was the leading spirit in the movement and was ably assisted by J. A. M. Aikens, M.P., who has been untiring in his efforts to get a strong organization under way.

At the first meeting delegates from every province in the Dominion were present and two representatives from the American Bar Association came to Ottawa to address the distinguished gathering. These had been appointed by W. H. Taft, former president of the United States, who was unable to be present himself.

James Albert Manning Aikens is the first president of the Canadian Bar Association. He was born in Peel county, Ontario, 62 years ago and is a son of Hon. J. C. Aikens, who was Secretary of State in the administration of Sir John Macdonald, 1869-1872, and later lieutenant-governor of Manitoba. Mr. Aikens began the practice of law in Winnipeg in 1879, having previously been prominent in the Ontario bar. He is at the head of the firm of Aikens, Fullerton, Foley & Newcombe and is a member of the Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta bars. From 1879 to 1896 he was counsel at Winnipeg for the Department of Justice. In 1880, he was one of the royal commissioners to investigate and report on the administration of justice in the Northwest Territories. In 1900 he was appointed counsel for the Government of Manitoba. For many years he was treasurer of the Manitoba Law Society, of which he is senior bencher and has been president of the Manitoba Law Society since its organization. He was a solicitor for the Canadian Pacific Railway in western Canada from 1882 to 1911, when he resigned to contest Brandau in the House of Commons and was elected by a majority of 866.



J. A. M. AIKENS.

Mr. Aikens is honorary bursar of the University of Manitoba, a member of the council of the university, a member of the board of Wesley College and a director of the Manitoba Agricultural College. In 1884 he was created a Queen's counsellor

He has taken an active interest in military affairs, being honorary colonel of the Ninetieth Regiment, Winnipeg Rifles, and honorary lieutenant colonel of the Ninety-ninth Regiment, Manitoba Rangers. He is a director of several large insurance companies and financial organizations in the west and is legal advisor to several others.

Quaint Tavern Signs.

Curious indeed are the names of many public houses in Britain. Take the Pig and Whistle. What is the connection? None; not even the oldest inhabitant has a tale of a man who could whistle the most refractory pig home from market. Pige Washael was the name once, and it meant the Virgin's Greeting! The Bull and Mouth is what remains of a once popular inn sign, the Boulogne Mouth, where there was a naval victory. The Bell and Savage, with a lurid Red Indian and a bell, is only La Belle Sauvage transformed. So far, the Fleur-de-Lys has apparently escaped distortion because it defies twisting. Rotten Row, in Hyde Park, London, was once the Route du Roi —the King's Way.

Devotee of the Bicycle.

One member of the British House of Commons is a champion of the bicycle. While most M.P.'s have surrendered to the all-conquering motor-car, Sir Fortescue Flannery sticks to the bicycle as a handy and enjoyable means of travelling to Westminster. He is now alone in this distinction, and his arrival in Palace Yard is always an incident.

Not Government Operator.

OTTAWA, June 4.—The Government investigation of the complaint of John Black of Ottawa that the wireless operator on the Lady Evelyn had insisted on prepayment of messages from Empress survivors has resulted in a telegram from Captain Pouliot that there was no Government operator on the vessel, but that one of the rescued Empress' operators named Ferguson had been secured to send emergency messages. He was not told to charge for them.

Nearly $900,000 Needed.

LIVERPOOL June 4.,—In order to provide adequate relief for the dependents of those lost in the sinking of the Empress of Ireland, the sum of $900,000 is needed, of which $400,000 should be allocated to the families of the crew. This is the estimate given to the Lord Mayor of Liverpool by Duncan Fraser, the actuary connected with the Titanic fund.

NORTH IRELAND UNCONQUERABLE

LONDON, June 4. — The rumor that conversations on Home Rule between the leaders of the Opposition and members of the Government are to be resumed on Irish soil was picturesque, but improbable. The truth seems to be that leaders on both sides are at the moment sufficiently occupied with their own followers in consultations, and upon the results of these the future of inter-party negotiations must necessarily turn.

There were some dramatic moments at a great gathering of women which Sir Edward Carson addressed in East Belfast.

"Ulster is unconquerable. The Government," he declared with passion, "may put what they like into an act of Parliament, but Ulster, in spite of them, will remain free."

A Good Salesman.

"What?" cried the careful housewife, "you charge me $1 a bushel for these potatoes?"

"Yes, ma'am," answered the polite grocer. "That is the very lowest price we can sell them for."

"How is it that I can get them from Brown's for 90 cents, then?"

"I cannot say, madam. Perhaps Mr. Brown has taken a fancy to you. He is a widower and you are beautiful. Unfortunately, I— Yes'm, $1."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Sensitiveness.

"I'm horribly afraid," said the popular young actor, "that my wife will take a notion some morning to get a divorce."

"Well, you might prevent her from doing that by refraining from giving her any excuse."

"I know, but one hates to be called eccentric."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Small Tragedy.

"No, Gladys," said Mrs. Cumrox; "you cannot go to the party tonight."

"Why not?"

"Because we cannot be out of fashion. There is only one set of rainbow hair in the house, and I am going to wear that myself."—Washington Star.

Misunderstood.

"I've come," said the woman politician, "to ask you to support me."

"I'm sorry, miss," replied the man, "but you're too late. I've been married for years."—Detroit Free Press.

KILLED BY EXPLOSION.

Toronto Chemist Loses Life When Gas Is Ignited.

TORONTO, June 4.—Edward Foster, a chemist, thirty years of age, was killed and about eight small houses on Booth avenue damaged to the extent of about $2,500 by a terrific explosion of gas in the generator room of the Consumers' Gas Co. at the foot of Booth avenue yesterday morning. The concussion wrecked the blower room of the gas company and also ripped the roof off the immense generator building.

Foster, who was an expert chemist in the employ of the company, was in the generator room when the explosion occurred. He was evidently struck on the head by a flying brick bat, and was found unconscious among the wreckage of the building. The police ambulance, summoned to the scene, made a record run to the General Hospital, but Foster expired within a few minutes after he was admitted.

CONTRACTS AND INVENTORY OF COMPANY TO BE SENT TO HYDRO COMMISSION

Power Company Did not Forget to Include 26 Paste Board Boxes

A copy of the list of contracts and inventory of property of the Peterboro Light and Power Co., having been served on the City Clerk and Mayor Buller, the Power Committee, in session last night decided to forward a copy of each to the Hydro Electric Commission.

The Commission will decide the contracts to be assumed by the city and will also decide on the amount the city is to deposit with the company or Court.

The solicitor is preparing a by-law which must necessarily be passed by Council, althorising the execution of expropriation rights.

When the city makes the deposit—that is part of the purchase price—possession of the company's property can and will be taken. The Utilities Commission will then take charge.

The list of contracts is quite large, but the committee is confident that the Commission will do considerable pruning.

Seemingly, everything possible was included in the inventory of property, which includes office furniture, 26 pasteboard boxes, percolators, chisels, picks, one axe and numerous other articles.

The contract list and inventory are so valuable that they will not leave the City Clerk's office. Copies are being made for the Commission. The Mayor explained, that the company has fulfilled their obligations by providing one copy of each. Should they be lost, the company could not be compelled to provide other lists and the city would have to wait another year until a further legislative order was secured.

DR. CLINTON HAD WARM TIME IN SIMCOE HAMLET

Reeve Told Him to Pack His Kit and Get Out

Beeton, a small hamlet in the county of Simcoe gave a rather warm reception to Dr. Clinton, who endeavored to use the Beeton hall to display the Public Health exhibit. The Alliston Herald has the following :

Dr. George Clinton and his cinematograph operator came into Alliston on Thursday afternoon last with mingled feelings of chagrin and indignation. They were not accustomed to being chased from villages in their district and the inferential classing which they received with cheap shows touched a sensitive spot and did not arouse abounded admiration for Beeton. The district health officer and his companion went into the village after having announced their coming and when they conferred with the village health officer and another member of the board of health, proceeded to prepare the hall by excluding the light. While thus engaged the reeve appeared and asked some questions among which was one as to who gave the doctor authority to show in Beeton. He was informed that the government had given the necessary authority. The government or anyone else could not use the Beeton hall without paying for it. The doctor informed them it was unusual to ask for half rent in a case of this kind. The reply was that the doctor could pack his kit and get out, which he did. Blushes actually suffused Dr. Clinton's face when he reached Allison. It was the first time in his experience that he had not even been received cordially by the reeve of a municipality, but to be bundled out of one by the reeve was hard usage. The incident will be reported to the department.

NO MORE STRIPS

Railway Time Cards to be Withdrawn

The railways operating in Ontario have decided to issue no more strip time tables, according to the latest orders. The time tables were hung in hotel corridors and other public places and proved a great convenience for the travelling public. The abolition of them means that travelers will be put to the inconvenience of calling up the stations now in order to find out the time of the various trains.

ARTHUR HAWKES TO STUMP FOR THE GRITS IN THE WEST RIDING

Arthur Hawkes, publisher, orator, politician, defeated candidate in South Lanark, etc., has changed his politics. It was announced by G. N. Gordon of the Liberal Association this morning that the executive had arranged to bring Arthur Hawkes to Peterboro to stump the west riding on behalf of the Grit candidate ,who will be selected at the convention this evening. Mr. Hawkes will come to this city with N. W. Rowell on June 18, and remain in our midst for several long days. Mr. Hawkes stumped the country for the Conservatives during the reciprocity campaign. Later he sought the nomination of the party in South Lanark, but was turned down. As an Independent Conservative he received very few votes. Hence, he is a Grit.

TOOK WEAK SPELL AND FELL ON HEATED STOVE

Mrs. John Hickey of Ennismore Was Severely Burned

Overcome by a fainting spell at her home in Ennismore on Wednesday Mrs. John Hickey fell over a heated stove by which she was working and suffered burns of a very painful nature to her hands, arms and body. She was removed to St. Joseph's Hospital where her condition today is said to be very favorable. Mrs. Hickey was preparing supper when the unfortunate accident occurred. Without a moment's warning she was seized gith a spell of weakness and before she could walk to a chair or stagger out of danger she collapsed and fell on the hot stove. Luckily members of the household were home at the time and hearing the mother moan rushed to her assistance.

Dr. Gallivan was summoned, and Mrs. Hickey to taken in the ambulance to the hospital. The flesh on one of her arms was practically burned to the bone. She is mother-in-law to Thomas Lane of this city.

PHYSICIAN MADE SERIOUS MISTAKE

Campbellford Doctor Must Pay Damages

Toronto, June 5.—Chief Justice Falconbridge gave judgment at Osgoode Hall yesterday concerning the award of $1,200 damages given by a jury to Chas. H. Cassan,, of Campbellford, against Dr. Andrew Haigh, of the same town, for alleged negligence in his treatment of the plaintiff. From the records it appeared that in June of last year the plaintiff consulted the defendant for eye trouble. After examining the man's optic Dr. Haigh injected something, presumably cocaine, into it. Unfortunately he made a great mistake, and instead of injecting cocaine, used some other substance, with the result that instead of effecting a cure, or relieving the pain, it was intensified. In fact, the plaintiff alleged that he was temporarily deprived of his sight, and the eye was permanently injured. The defence was that no mistake had been made, the treatment given being the usual one in such cases, and that the symptoms complained of were due to the progress of the malady, which might have been remedied by further treatment. The Chief Justice said he concurred in the finding of the jury, and in his opinion there was no doubt but what the defendant had made a serious mistake. The plaintiff was entitled to damages, and the amount awarded by the jury was very moderate considering the nature of the injuries caused.

BILL TO BACK BONDS OF G.T.P. READ FIRST TIME

Premier Borden Says That as Result of Error at Time of Original Contract Government is Forced to Guarantee Issue.

OTTAWA, June 5.—Legislation to assist the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway in the completion of the mountain section was initiated in the House yesterday.

Mr. Borden, in presenting his resolution authorizing the Government to guarantee an additional issue of bonds by the Grand Trunk Pacific to the amount of $16,000,000, said the company claimed that the Government had obligated itself to bear three-fourths of the cost of the mountain section, whatever that might be, and that the agreement of 1905 was the result of a mutual mistake. The company contended that if the Government did not guarantee more bonds it would have to implement its original contract by paying in cash the difference between three-fourths of the cost of the mountain section and the amount actually realized upon the guaranteed bonds already disposed of. The Government had proposed submitting the question to the courts, but that would involve a delay of 18 months, during which time the road would remain uncompleted. It had therefore been decided to guarantee another issue of bonds for an amount sufficient to complete the road, including interest thereon, for three years. The Government would not have a first mortgage security to indemnify it, because since the execution of the first mortgage the Grand Trunk Pacific had given a mortgage to the Grand Trunk System and also another mortgage to the Government to secure money advanced by way of loan. However, the present accommodation was by way of compromise, and the Government gained some slight concessions.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there was no legal liability on the part of the Government to guarantee any more bonds to the Grand Trunk Pacific, but he quite agreed with the Prime Minister that the road must be completed, and that it should be completed without delay. He asked that the Government give details of the purposes to which the proceeds of the guarantee would be turned, and also of the cost of the section when completed.

Hon. William Pugsley said this was the time to have a complete understanding with the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway Co. The company should know once and for all whether that company intended to take over and operate the line between Winnipeg and Moncton. The road between Superior Junction and Cochrane had been completed for over a year, but there was no attempt to operate it. In his opinion the company could avoid taking over the Winnipeg-Moncton line because the standard of the road had been degraded.

Mr. Borden said in reply that the Government had no power to compel the Grand Trunk to operate a single mile of the Government section of the National Transcontinental until the entire line between Winnipeg and Moncton was completed. He was quite sure, however, that the Grand Trunk Pacific intended to take over and operate the line when it was completed this coming autumn.

The resolution was then adopted and a bill founded upon it introduced and read for first time.

The House then went into committee of the whole upon Mr. Borden's bill authorizing the Minister of Railways to perform the duties of the present National Transcontinental Railway Commission.

Hon. George P. Graham suggested that the measure should be entitled "A bill to get rid of Major Leonard."

Mr. Borden said that he had no complaint against Major Leonard, who desired to be relieved from duty, as the road was now virtually completed.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the road was far from being completed. It would not be ready for operation next fall or the fall after next for that matter.

The Farmers' Bank aid bill to indemnify the depositors of the defunct bank, was carried early yesterday morning in the House, the Government having a majority of 37. The vote stood: For 55, against 18.

The vote was not entirely along party lines. Duncan Ross of West Middlesex, J. Angus McMillan of Glengarry and E. W. Nesbitt of North Oxford voted with the Government on the Opposition side, while Paul Lamarche of Nicolet voted against the measure from the side of the Government.

The return of the legal bill of N. W. Rowell, K.C., brought down in the House in answer to a motion by Major Sam Sharpe, was held to be too high, and was reduced from $8,456 to $7,250. Mr. Rowell, it appears, was selected as associate counsel with R. C. Smith, K.C., of Montreal on the recommendation of Mr. Smith and Mr. Justice Maclaren to represent the Oka Indians in pending litigation.

LA PRESSE WANTS SIDE ARMS

French Paper Resents Prohibition of Weapons in Church Parades

MONTREAL, June 5.— La Presse last night comments editorially on the order of Hon. Sam Hughes which prevents the soldiers of the 65th Regiment (French) from carrying arms in the annual Corpus Christi procession, to be held a week from Sunday. Owing to the prohibition the regiment will not take part in the ceremony.

La Presse says: "So the 65th Regiment cannot do honor in the streets of Montreal to the King of Kings, because it is displeasing to the servant of the lodges. We do not make any comment on the order, which makes a liar of Gen. Amherst, who promised on Sept. 8, 1760, to the residents of Montreal, that 'the free exercise of the Roman Catholic and apostolic religion will subsist in its entirety (article 27) with the ordinary ceremonies,' (article 28.)

"It is possible that from to-day the enthusiasm of Catholics to serve in the army will show a falling off.

"It is possible also that Mr. Borden will regret the great confidence which he has placed in an Orange colleague."

BODY IS FOUND.

The body of Wesley Hicks, the employee of the Peterboro Lumber Co. who was drowned last Saturday on the Mississaga River while endeavoring to loosen a jam of logs, was found this morning about three miles below the point where he fell in. The body was taken to Burleigh where interment will take place tomorrow.

BANNED FROM CEREMONIES OF THE COURT

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, June 5.—The name of the women who created the scene at the King's drawing room last night is Miss Mary Bloomfield, daughter of the late Sir Arthur Bloomfield. She will be banned from future court ceremonies and her sister who was present last night but who was not concerned in the demonstration, was requested to leave the palace and departed without protest.

Miss Bloomfield was known to have strong suffragette tendencies but nobody dreamed she would go such lengths.

WAITING FOR REPORT FROM PROVINCIAL BOARD OF HEALTH

The matter of the local disposal plant being erected in Otonabee Township is being held up pending a report, the provincial board of health is preparing regarding the location of the plant. The report will be submitted to the township, for which E. A. Peck is acting, after which the township will be permitted to offer its objections to the locating of the plant on township land. The provincial board has supreme power in the matter, however, and after hearing argument on behalf of the township and the city, will decide whether the plant shall be located on the township site selected by the city.

SEAPLANE FALLS

Two British Sailors Drowned in Sea

PORTSMOUTH, Eng., June 5.—Commander Rice and Lieut. Thomas S. Creswell were drowned yesterday when an aeroplane in which they were making a flight over Southampton water suddenly plunged into the sea. Creswell was acting as pilot and Rice was a passenger. The seaplane was engaged with several other aircraft in manoeuvres.

A torpedo-boat rushed to the spot and recovered Creswell's body, which was strapped to the seat, but the body of Commander Rice was not found.

The aeroplane was one of the largest in the naval service, and of the latest model.

Not P. L. and P. Company.

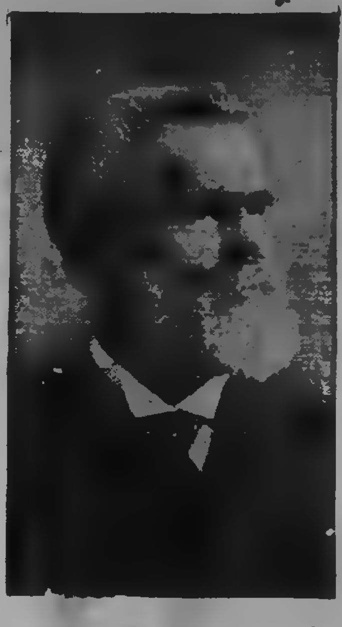
The power at the home of Edward Hiland is not supplied by the Peterborough Light and Power Company as stated yesterday.

ENTHUSIASM FEATURED THE RE-NOMINATION OF JAMES THOMPSON



REV. DR. MURDOCK MACKENZIE,
the retiring Moderator of the General Assembly.

Conservatives of East Peterboro Held Convention at Norwood, Some of the Delegates Travelling Sixty Miles to Attend

Norwood, Ont., June 5.—At an enthusiastic convention of East Peterboro Liberal-Conservatives, held here yesterday, at which every polling subdivision was represented, James Thompson, the previous member, was unanimously renominated. Both afternoon and evening meetings were largely attended, some delegates coming sixty miles. In accepting the nomination, Mr. Thompson made a strong speech, placing himself before the people on his own personal record and that of the Whitney Government. He drew attention to the vast improvements the Government had made in roads of the northern townships of the riding since its coming into power. Speaking of the temperance question, he assured the people he would do his utmost, as in the past, to advance the cause of temperance, but would not tie his hands by pledging himself. He pointed out that 43 amendments had been made in improving the license law, and the real results that had been accomplished for temperance under the Whitney Administration in the past nine years in comparison with the 30 preceding years of Liberal government. He also spoke on Hydro schemes for the Trent district.

J. L. Hart, M.P.P., East Simcoe ; C. L. Owen, ex M.P., of Campbellford, and J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., were speakers, while others also took part in the discussion in the afternoon. Resolutions of confidence in both the Borden and Whitney Administrations were heartily endorsed.

SUPERINTENDENT HAS RESIGNED

Notice Sent to Water Commissioners by Mr. Fawcett

In accordance with his statement to one of the members of the Water Commissioners, Superintendent Fawcett of the Water Works, sent his resignation last evening to the Water Commissioners, the same to take effect at the end of the month.

The Superintendent was instructed to connect up with the existing main in connection with the Monaghan Road sewer.

The new seal of the Public Utilities Commission was affixed to the minute book and adopted.

A communciation was read from Wm. Kennedy, Jr., regarding the balance due him, and asking for information in regards to the payment to the John McDougall Company. The secretary was instructed to give the required information.

AMENDMENT TO ACT GOVERNING INSURANCE AGENTS

Must Take Out Certificate at $3

The numerous insurance companies have forwarded circulars to their local agents advising them that owing to amendments to the Ontario Insurance Act, they will be expected to take out certificates before they can sell insurance. The new regulation takes effect on September 1. It will be necessary for every insurance solicitor to be a bona fide resident of the province before he can solicit, and he will also have to be acting for a registered or licensed company. The certificate fee is set at $3 per year, and the agent's qualifications must be vouched for by the company's local superintendent. For infringements of the amendments a fine of not more than $200 and not less than $20 will be levied.

MEET NEXT YEAR AT KINGSTON

Greetings to General Assembly From England and States

Canadian Press Despatch

Woodstock, June 5.—Commissioners of the Presbyterian General Assembly were invited this morning to meet next year at Victoria, Saskatoon, Sydney and Kingston but accepted the last named and will meet at Grant Hall of Queen's University on the first Wednesday in June next.

Business was suspended for half an hour while greetings from the Presbyterian Church in England were extended by Rev. T. Nichol Grieve, and from the Presbyterian Church in the United States by Rev. John R. Sutherland of Philadelphia. Reports taken up were the report of the committee on bills and overtures which was unanimously adopted ; Home Missions, eastern section and the augmentation comittee. This afternoon the Commissioners are being entertained at a garden party at the house of Henry A. Little. Foreign Missions will be discussed this evening.

A FREE TIP.

It might be of interest to automobile owners to learn that the police are paying strict attention to the rate of speed made by autos on the George Street pavement. The tendency to speed up is just as liable to be noticed south of Charlotte Street as uptown.

MR. DUMBLE LOSES HIS CASE BUT HE MANAGED TO CAPTURE THE HAT

An old panama hat was responsible for the cool disturbance in division court to-day, which almost prompted Judge Huycke to impose a fine of $100 for contempt of court on Magistrate D. W. Dumble, who was one of the counsel in the hat case. His Honor stated after the miniature row had been quelled that only the position occupied by Magistrate Dumble and his advanced years prevented him from imposing a fine of $100.

The action was one brought by Wm. Lech against J. W. Fitzgerald for the recovery of $1.50 which represented the cost of cleaning a panama. The defendant counter-claimed for $10, claiming that the hat he received was not the one he sent to the cleaners. Mr. Dumble acted for the defendant and J. Corkery for the plaintiff. The action was dismissed on the grounds that it was not the correct hat, and the counter claim was also dismissed, because it was shown that the defendant had sent it to Mr. Lech at "owner's risk." His Honor also directed that the hat be turned over to Mr. Leck in order to locate its rightful owner.

"It's an unfair decision," shouted Magistrate Dumble as he clutched the top piece with his magisterial right.

"Did you say the hat was to be returned to Mr. Lech?" asked Mr. Corkery of the judge. The judge replied that he had.

Mr. Dumble still persisted in carrying out the British principle of "what we have we hold."

Finally his Honor instructed the court bailiff to seize the sun protector, but Mr. Dumble was not to be won over so easily. He placed the hat behind his back and shook his fist in the face of the bailiff triumphantly.

The incident was closed when Mr. Lech and Mr. Corkery stated that he could keep the old hat for all they cared.

The magistrate would not say whether he would wear it himself or not, but at any rate he marched heroically out of the court house with his trophy safely tucked under his arm.

FACTORY CLOSES DOWN.

Orillia, June 5.—The Canada Refining Company has closed down. The company has been under constant misfortune between lawsuits and a heavy fire. It failed to fulfil its agreement with the town, so the factory building remains in the possession of the municipality.

WHY WE NEED PLAYGROUNDS.

COMING DOWN AYLMER STREET the other morning we saw a little girl of perhaps five years playing in the gutter. She was a pretty child with dark eyes and brown hair. Properly dressed, she would be an ornament to her home, but there she was, unkempt, in dirty clothes, playing alone in a pile of sand in the dirty gutter of the street.

That little girl should grow up to be beautiful and healthy, and with culture enough to be a lady among her sex, and a blessing to the community. Potentially, there is nothing lacking to prevent her from becoming so. She is susceptible to training that may make her everything desirable. Beauty is not entirely an endowment from nature, for children grow like plants. Where the plant has bright sunshine, fresh breezes, good soil, and gentle showers, it grows strong and beautiful with abundant blossoms and fragrant perfume. So this child with training, with good home surroundings, with proper schooling and with a place to give healthy expression to the play instinct, will become beautiful, and all that the state can desire for a high standard of citizenship.

You may say in haste that this cry for playgrounds is a fad, that it is an importation from the United States, or from some other country. You may say that playgrounds were not in existence when you were young, but are you answering the real question involved?—the need for a place to play? What does it matter where the problem was first broached? Does it exist and will it be answered? Note that certain facts show that the problem does exist. Bowling greens and tennis courts exist where the grown men and women may get exercise and change from the routine of daily toil. For the same reason we have curling rinks, skating rinks, golf courses, town and country clubs. There are many other things that exist as play grounds for grown people, but how few exist for the children! Yet there is that little girl in the City of Peterborough, sifting sand through her fingers in the gutter, grimy and exposed to disease, accident and bad influences of the street. Will she grow up beautiful and strong and trained for the duties of citizenship? Will boys in the same circumstances grow up manly and courageous? Perhaps they will. Great characters have arisen from such surroundings and survived the warring tendencies that would drag them down, but they are the exceptions—exceptions not without earmarks of evil conditions. The numbers of others who go to make up many bewildering social problems begin in just such an environment as that little girl has.

THE BENEFIT OF TORY RULE.

THE ROSS GOVERNMENT agreed to pay a million dollars towards roads in the settled districts. The Whitney Government amended this proposition by offering to pay a sum equal to one third the sum by municipalities for main county roads, increasing the grant for this purpose. In 1904, the Liberal Ross Government granted $91,527 for roads, while in 1913, the Whitney Government have expended $1,063,655. New Ontario, which is proving such a valuable part of the province, is being developed by an aggressive policy of road building. This was begun in 1912, when $236,833 were spent. This sum was enlarged to $1,063,655 in 1913, which accounts for the rapid growth of the north country and in some measure the ease with which old Ontario has weathered a rest period of financial stringency. Had it not been for the sound financial administration of the Whitney Government, Ontario would have experienced a severe period of hard times.

The Conservative Policy has succeeded in wiping out provincial deficits; it has increased grants to education by $1,000,000 a year; it has enlarged the grants to agriculture by $477,000 a year; it has given $1.80,000 more a year to hospitals and charities. In addition, the Conservatives have in seven years given $571,941 to municipal treasuries as their share of the receipts from railway taxation, while the appropriation for good roads has risen by $196,840.00 a year.

The Conservatives have done this while paying interest on large loans to construct the Temiskaming Railway and the Hydro-Electric project, and at the same time has rolled up a surplus in nine years reaching no less a sum than $1,463,029.

The Conservatives have thus conducted the affairs of the province in a careful and businesslike manner and if records for faithful service count for anything, a sweeping majority will be the answer of the people to this splendid administration.

OIL HAS UPSET THINGS IN CALGARY.

WHILE THE RECENT oil strike has proved a boon and a blessing to Calgary, local merchants and heads of public institutions are finding that it has its drawbacks, like nearly everything else. Clerks who were glad to work for $15 to $20 per week during the recent financial stringency, saw their opportunity to make some quick money, and promptly threw up their positions to become oil stock salesmen.

Stenographers who had been earning a like amount soon realized that they could make big money as extra staff workers with the company promoters, and as everything had to be done in a rush, they seldom returned to their former typewriters, preferring to take the big money paid in wages and overtime by the prospective oil barons. Many of these girls elected to take part in wages and part in stock, and should the field prove a large one they bid fair to become wealthy.

Naturally some of the stocks are beginning to have violent fluctuations, and rumors are circulated through the city, at intervals of a few hours. One man is known to have cleared up over $1,000 in one day through acting promptly on hearing that a certain well had struck favourable indications, and everyone is in the oil business more or less. The remarkable feature of the past two weeks has been the large amount of currency which has been put into circulation. Before oil was struck in commercial quantities at "Discovery" well, tradesmen and merchants were bewailing the fact that there was no money in the city, but once the oil excitement reached its pitch hundreds of thousands of dollars were spent in a few hours, purchasing shares which may or may not become of greater value than par.

TEACH P. S. PUPILS TO SWIM.

THE DISCUSSION at the recent Educational Association meeting in Toronto was not overburdened with athletic training in public schools. The recent Empress disaster has emphasized the need of as many people as possible learning to swim, and there is no better place for such training than in the public schools. The Montreal Journal of Commerce says in this regard:

> "As more details of the Empress disaster come to light, the evidence all goes to show that nearly all who were saved were able to swim. Swimming might well be taught in our public schools instead of some of the frills and furbelows which now occupy the attention of our children."

BRITAIN IS NOT DECADENT.

MR. JAMES J. HILL thinks Britain is plunging into economic ruin. No doubt everything isn't perfect in the old land, but Britain still keeps the pace without getting out of breath. The Journal of Commerce says:

> "Mr. James Hill will find himself at a loss to explain certain features of the decadence of this dying nation. For example last year Britain's 46,000,000 population had the greatest foreign trade in the world; she has the greatest merchant marine in the world—she has the fairest economic portions of the world included in her great empire. The standard of living of her people is the highest in Europe. At no time in her history were her people so busy, or her industries so taxed to fill orders, as during the past fiscal year."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

ACCORDING TO A CIRCULAR issued by the American Forestry Association, forest fires in the United States cause an annual loss of $25,000,000. In addition the loss from insects and from tree diseases which follow fires is placed at $50,000,000 per year. Seventy lives are lost each year through forest fires. The damage from floods, etc., is placed at "countless millions."

Going to Law.

Montreal Star.

It is very easy to get into law—it is sometimes much harder to get out again. Law is a costly business even when you win. Going to law is a case of "heads, you lose a little; tails, you lose a lot." The wise man regards the invocation of the courts as a course of last resort. He first tries argument, persuasion, compromise, concession. It is far better to reach an agreement, which may seem to you to fail to secure your full rights, than to fight a law-suit and finally get those full rights—at great cost in lost time, lost temper and lost money.

Lights at Evening.

By Charles Bancroft.

Along the coast I see the lighthous gleaming
As ships at sea keep passing to and fro.
The brilliant stars, the moon in silver streamlets,
Across the waves a tempting pathway throw.

The railroad tracks, where signal lamps are burning,
To nerve the speeding train upon its way.
These are the signs of danger and of safety,
That burn from sunset until break of day.

WILD OATS

By Walt Mason

You're sowing wild oats, William Henry Fitzjames, you're playing, with others, the dissolute games; when you should be sleeping you're still on the jump, a-painting the village clear down to the dump; and ancient tradition looks foolishly kind on chaps like yourself who are going it blind; it says, "Let them frolic like lunatic goats, for youths must be youths, and must sow their wild oats." But merry carousers who caper and prance must pay for the fiddler when done is the dance. Alas for the oats that you carelessly sow! You find they are thistles when started to grow, and though you may live for a cycle, my friend, they'll prick you and sting you right up to the end. I sowed fifty bushels of oats that were wild, and while I was sowing I recklessly smiled; I laughed at the future and lilted gay tunes, and now I am old I am harvesting prunes. With aches in my body and grief in my soul, and doctors and druggists despoiling my roll, the wearisome knowledge my consciousness totes, that all of my troubles are due to wild oats. Be wise in the morning of life, oh, be wise! And sidestep the bait of the father of lies; for wasting the moments and sowing wild oats will lead you to chewing the husks with the shotes.

LIFE'S SIDE-ROADS

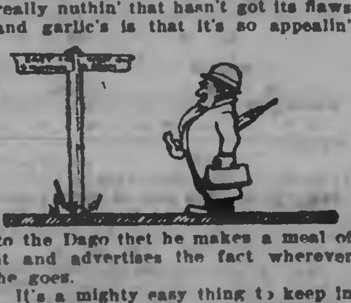
I reckon thet everythin' in the world was made fer a purpose. We have no right to set in judgment on anythin'. Old Jimmie Collins uster say thet a man who liked to see garlic growin' er liked his soup seasoned with it, had no right to condemn it jest because an Italian give him an unpleasant impression of it. And Jimmie is right, too, 'cause there is really nuthin' that hasn't got its flaws and garlic's is that it's so appealin' to the Dago thet he makes a meal of it and advertises the fact wherever he goes.



It's a mighty easy thing to keep in hot water all the time if we want to, only doin' it uses up energy and takes us away from the main thoroughfare of life. We're dodgin' up and down side-roads, so's to speak; we're losin' valuable time.

What we want to do is take things as we find 'em, overlook the flaws in 'em if we kin, or if we can't step around er over 'em. There's no use of us chacin' 'em up and down the side-roads in quest of the whys and wherefores. Better to stick to the main track.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

By Harry King Tootle

Copyright by A. G. McCLURG & Co., 1912

Sin and suffering were familiar to her in the abstract, sodden wretches she had seen invade even Fifth avenue, but that back of all were stories of weaknesses, misfortunes, oppression, inhuman exploitation, and man's inhumanity to man she had not considered. She believed they were born into their caste just as she was born into hers.

Now as she listened to this workman talk, heard his story from Mrs. Hayes, learned that he had little children dependent upon him just as she had been dependent upon her father before he had made a settlement upon her, making her independent, Gloria began to realize that there was such a thing as the fellowship of man. She was not uncharitable. Whenever any appeal had been made to her she had always emptied her pocketbook thoughtlessly and considered her duty done. Now the thought of personal service came to her. She was ignorant of what she could do, even of its power to bring her any measure of happiness, but it was worth trying.

They had driven in silence almost to town before Gloria turned to Mrs. Hayes and said:

"Mrs. Hayes, the next time you go to the mission I want you to take me."

Several days later Gloria went with Mrs. Hayes to view at close range the work being done in the poorer quarters of Belmont by the Presbyterian Mission. She met Mrs. Wallace, the matron, and from her learned the story of the humble but unfortunate toilers, and the evils to which they were constantly a prey through their ignorance and inability to protect themselves. Gloria then accompanied her on a round of visits, and soon the girl's interest was such that on the days Mrs. Hayes went to the mission she was glad to go with her.

The boss was disturbed at his daughter's trip into the lowest quarters of Belmont.

"This ain't no kind o' play, girl," he complained. "Why don't you stick to society?"

"Society!" she replied with fine scorn. "Why doesn't society stick to me?"

"What's the matter?"

He had been quick to catch the note of unhappiness. His daughter had not meant to say anything, but the words had slipped out before she could think. She now tried to erase the impression by saying:

"Matter? Nothing. Why?"

The boss' suspicions were not to be so lulled.

"You're keepin' somethin' back from me, Gloria. What is it?"

"No, I'm not," she insisted.

"Has anyone done anythin' or said anythin' to you?"

"Nothing."

"But somethin's back o' all this. You ain't happy. Anybody can see that. Now what's it all about?" He waited for her to reply, but she would not speak. "Can't you answer?"

Forced into a corner, unable to turn the conversation, Gloria saw no way of escape, and finally stammered:

"It's—it's—well—it's just an atmosphere."

"You go every place."

"To all the big things, yes."

"People are nice to you."

She hesitated, but finally said "Ye-es."

"Ain't they?"

"Oh, I suppose so," she admitted in a lifeless manner. "Perhaps I'm not used to western ways, yet the nice people look just like nice people look back East."

"What's different, then?"

"They seem to keep me at arm's length. I don't see why. You're the biggest man in Belmont, and yet I—" She did not finish the sentence.

"Yet—I—what?" he urged.

"I don't understand, that's all."

"Who, for instance?"

Gloria thought for a moment, and resolved only to name persons in a general way.

"Well, Letty Loomis."

"Old John Loomis' daughter?"

"Is he the big wholesale grocer?"

"That's him. What 'd she do?"

"I tell you—she didn't do anything. It's just—an atmosphere."

"Huh! A beautiful lot o' airs she's got a right to put on," snorted the boss. "D' you know how old Loomis made his money?"

"Out of groceries, didn't he?"

"Groceries, nothin'. That's just a stall. He's got a warehouse chuck full of rotten whisky he sells in prohibition Kansas. That's his real business. He don't sell enough groceries in a year to feed a first class boardin' house. I wouldn't let him sell anything to the poor farm. Don't let that girl o' his put it over you any. And they say he passes the plate in church! Gad, I hate a hypocrite. I'll make him sweat for it."

Her father was so wrought up that Gloria was afraid to speak further, but when he insisted she told of several instances of which she had been pleased to term antagonistic atmosphere, and in each case Kerr related some disgraceful characteristic of the head of the family. Once he did not hesitate to give his opinion of a society woman whose history he knew well. This intimate knowledge of Belmont affairs and his belittling references to leading citizens made Gloria reach the conclusion that in some way he was in a class by himself. This caused her to soothe him with the remark:

"Father, I think they're jealous because you're head and shoulders above them all."

She might not love him, but her pride in him and her loyalty to him were all the greater for the lack of love. She felt that she was at fault for not having that true filial regard which other daughters had for their fathers, and therefore whenever she could she strengthened her faith in him as Belmont's leading citizen. She was proud to be his daughter.

CHAPTER XI.

On the day of his interview with McMinitry Kerr had asked Kendall and Dr. Hayes to meet him at Judge Gilbert's office directly after luncheon. At this conference he intended to tell them they would have to acquire the News. The transfer of the property need not be made until after the election, but he wanted to know at once that it was his.

The boss was late, and the three men had to wait some time for him.

"I wouldn't want the boys to know it," said Gilbert disconsolately, "but I'm afraid he's got us beat."

Kendall was hopeful still.

"It's three days till election," he urged. "Anything can happen in that time."

"I wish I believed in miracles like you do," was Dr. Hayes' rueful comment.

"Only a miracle can save us," added Judge Gilbert gloomily.

"I tell you, gentlemen," insisted Kendall, "I still think Dave Kerr can swing it."

"All the same," answered the coroner, "when I went out to stick my good money in real estate options on factory sites I wish I'd been riding Balaam's ass."

The others' laugh at his expense was cut short by the entrance of David Kerr.

"How 's it look, Mr. Kerr?" asked Gilbert.

"It might be worse," was the reply. "We count the votes, don't we?"

Gilbert was not optimistic.

"I'm afraid it isn't going to be that close."

"Have you heard anything from the eleventh?" queried Kendall.

"I had a talk with Sweeney this morning, and he said he could put enough stock-yards people in the 'leventh to deliver the ward all right. Bauerschmidt was in my office at the same time. He's up against it in the sixth."

"Then we can't count on much outside the river wards," said Kendall.

A DEAD FLY
May be as Dangerous as a Live One!

It is certainly more repulsive, and, if left, will breed far more disease than ever it did when alive.

It is not sufficient to kill the fly. You must destroy the germs as well. These, if allowed to multiply, will spread disease and death. Give up using the fly swatter and the unsanitary sticky fly paper.

Buy WILSON'S FLY PADS—the only really effective method of exterminating the death-dealing housefly. They kill all the flies in the house in a few hours. No dead flies left lying about.

Be careful to follow directions found in each packet.

THE PANCAKE HAT.

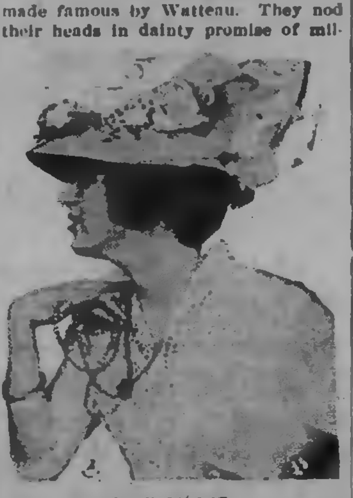
This Model Made Famous by Watteau Is the Rage In Paris.

The plateau, pancake or mandarin hat as it is variously called is a model universally becoming. If you doubt its piquant beauty look at the picture of the shepherdesses or the ladies made famous by Watteau. They nod their heads in dainty promise of millinery beauty, and you will do the same thing at any one who will look at you in the latest headgear.



LEGHORN HAT.

One of the natural accompaniments to the flat top is the bandeau. It is at the side or the back and gives a fascinating tilt over one eye or down over the forehead, and you can give the slightest wink at the turn in millinery affairs that things have taken.

Paris is mad over the plateau hat. Whether it is banked with flowers or ribbon or made femininely fluffy by malines and lace, it is here and will be the winner of approval and laurels in the race for favor.

The hat shown here is of natural colored leghorn. It has the picturesque Watteau tilt in the back and, of course, the necessary bandeau. The model is adorned with old blue ribbon and pink flowers.

A new oil gusher was struck yesterday within the town limits of Oil Springs, Ont. The new gusher has a capacity of 40,000,000 per day. The sinker and dip, weighing a ton, were blown a distance of fifty feet into the air.

Several foreigners declared in Toronto police court yesterday that Geo. Oconomoff had sold them buttons for $2.50 each, and had declared that these were a secret passport recognized by immigration officials. The accused was remanded on a charge of fraud.

CHILDREN'S FROCKS.

They Have the Style Tendencies of Adults' Garments.

EMBROIDERY DRESS.

Modern mothers display good taste in selecting dresses of charming simplicity. There are party frocks, of course, for special wear which are dainty, but the models for practical wear are sensibly made. The materials chosen for these frocks are washable and successfully withstand the wear and tear of weekly laundering.

Since cross stitch embroidery has been revived it is extensively used to decorate children's frocks. An effective example of this was a frock of fine white linen with a cross stitch design done in tones of brown. The bodice was gathered to the yoke and again to the narrow belt. The bishop sleeves had turned back cuffs and the skirt three inch wide hand run tucks adorning the hem.

Just like their elders, little folks are now arrayed in various types of tunic dresses. Illustrated here is a dainty model in fine machine embroidery in lace patterns. It has a pink tunic of indestructible voile and is adorned with a pink sash.

Homemade Beads.

Here is a formula for making the beads that are so much in evidence just now. They can be easily colored with paint, powder or any of the dyes and stains on the market:

Mix half a cupful of water with half a cupful of cornstarch and stir smooth; measure a cupful of fine white table salt and heat it very hot, but do not scorch; when hot pour it over the water and starch; it will make a soft paste that can be molded as liked. String, first passing a needle through each bead for the hole, and use clean broom straws as strings until the beads are thoroughly dry. Then color to suit taste and string on strong silk thread. If a little verbena or violet extract is added to the paste or to the salt the beads will be delicately perfumed.

FOOTWEAR VAGARIES.

Colored Hosiery and Shoes Are Considered a la Mode.

Colored hose are the thing. Of course this does not mean that black hosiery will not be worn. Far from this. It will be worn—and in quantity.

What is true of hosiery is true of all footwear styles. Color dominates and in artistic harmony with this season's costume requirements.

Dressy slippers made of brocades or other fancy materials are in high favor owing to their especial value for wear at dancing parties.

Street shoes, pumps and walking shoes will offer allurement in the shape of dark red leather, edged with black and mounted with jet buckles, as well as blue and green leather slippers far removed from the shapeless boudoir variety, but marshaled into trig, fashionable alertness in the form of pumps, ties and cothurns of immediate style fashioning.

Sandals, called Cleopatra sandals, beautifully fashioned, are for sale in all the smart shops and are to be seen without hose, but for indoor wear alone.

Planting Palm Trees.

Every housewife would like a palm, and if she will act upon the suggestion given here she will have a plant which will equal any palm bought at the florist's. When she purchases dates she should save the seeds and plant them in a jar with the crease side down. Keep quite wet, and the palm will repay the little trouble given it.

Keeping Rhubarb.

To have fresh rhubarb all the year try this way: Skin and cut in pieces tender rhubarb. Place in jars. Pour cold water into jars until it runs over. Seal tightly and place in cool cellar.

Have You a Cold? Try FOSSAL BALM!

There is nothing slow or roundabout in the way Fossal Balm gets after a cold in the head, nasal catarrh or irritation in the nasal passages.

The action of its antiseptic, healing ingredients is made more certain and effective by the handy way of applying it. The collapsible tube containing the Fossal Balm ends in a little nozzle about half an inch long, which fits into the nostrils and applies the ointment well up in the passages.

Here it works almost like magic, killing the disease germs, checking the inflammation, relieving that burning irritation, clearing the passages for easy breathing, and restoring normal, healthy conditions.

Use Fossal Balm at the first sign of a cold in the head—it will not only save you from all the miserable discomfort of it, but in doing so will protect you from the more serious diseases which follow neglected colds. Get a 50c. tube from your Druggist, or if he cannot supply you, we will mail a tube prepaid on receipt of the 50c. National Drug & Chemical Co. of Canada, Limited. 3

NORDHEIMER
"QUALITY-TONE"
PIANO

RENOWNED FOR DURABILITY

SIX distinct reasons why the Nordheimer is recognized as the Standard Piano of Canada:—

¶ Because the tone has that pure, delightful singing quality throughout the entire register.
¶ Because its wonderful resourcefulness satisfies the demands of the most exacting pianist.
¶ Because it gives the teacher the greatest opportunity for properly developing the pupil.
¶ Because the touch is responsive, and will not tire the beginner.
¶ Because of its artistic design and splendid durability.
¶ Because its intrinsic value is greater, and, therefore, gives a larger return for the outlay.

The Nordheimer Piano is manufactured from the finest materials throughout, and is an artistic production of the highest merit.

TWELVE VICTIMS OF EMPRESS ARE INTERRED IN QUEBEC

Crowds Line the Streets and Shops Are Closed Out of Respect to Members of Crew of Liner—Governments Represented and Capt, Kendall Attends Service.

QUEBEC, June 5. — Marching to the music of military bands, passing along the entire route between double rows of sorrowing spectators, hundreds of mourners, representing every class of society, from the vice-regal party to the humblest of toilers, followed, at ten o'clock yesterday, the remains of twelve of the Empress crew to church and cemetery.

Flags flew at half-mast on all public buildings, and during the evening Wednesday the Irish Catholic Church, where five of the bodies lay, and the Anglican Cathedral, where they were seven, were thronged with a pitying flow of people.

His Royal Highness did not personally attend the funeral but he was officially represented by Captain Buller, his A. D. C. Sir Francois Langelier, Lieutenant-Governor, attended the ceremony with Captain Victor Pelletier, A. D. C. The Federal Government was represented by Hon. G. H. Perley, while the Provincial Government was represented by the Premier, Sir Lomer Gouin, and four members of the Cabinet.

Strong men, hardened by the many fatalities they viewed in their seafaring life, could not keep back their tears, and the spectacle was too much for the physical strength of many, among whom, one of the surviving stewards of the Empress, who fainted and was taken outside unconscious.

Captain Kendall, who commanded the Empress when she went down, was present at the services, attending the ceremony at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

All the shops along the streets where the funeral passed closed their doors and pulled down all shades in the windows out of respect for the memory of the dead.

SNUFF BOX GONE

OTTAWA, June 5. — The Senate was seized of a grave question yesterday afternoon, when Senator Domville, rising in his place, asked "How is it that the snuff box has disappeared from the table of this honorable House. It has been here since time immemorial and has been of the greatest utility in keeping members awake."

"I shall make inquiries to ascertain when and why this time-honored institution has disappeared," gravely answered Senator Lougheed, Government leader.

"It is as important as the mace," added Senator Dandurand.

APPEALS TO KING

Young Suffragette Takes Plea to Head Quarters

LONDON, June 5.—The Court proceedings at Buckingham Palace were about half way through last night, and at their most brilliant, when a young, good-looking woman, who, approaching their Majesties as they stood to receive the ladies presented, suddenly dropped upon her knees and called out: "For God's sake, your Majesty, do not use force." It was just before the dubutante as she appeared to be, should have made her obeisance, and as she drew near royalties. Possibly her nervousness caused her to mistime her act. Possibly also, she was not regularly invited for the presentation and hurried to make her demonstration before reaching the Court official, who would have received her name. Before she could add anything to the words quoted two or three officials were beside her. One of them took hold of her arm and spoke to her. She rose from her knees without another word, and walked quietly out between the two officials. The scene was over in a few seconds; indeed, it passed so quickly that it was unnoticed, save by a person close at hand. The King looked on with an entirely impassive face, giving, in fact, no indication that he even observed it, though it is certain that he must have both seen the woman on her knees and heard her words, "For God's sake, your Majesty." At the time of cabling the woman's name was unknown. She was dressed in a black gown, in accordance with the requirements of Court in mourning.

A Spring Bouquet.

If you would have a delicate, feathery bunch of spring leaves select and cut carefully small twigs and branchlets (upon which the leaf and blossom buds are swelling) of sassafras, elder, birch, maple, wild cherry, willow or horse chestnut, set them loosely in a roomy vase or jug of tepid water and place them in a sunny window as near as can be to a stove or steam radiator.

Spray with an atomizer full of tepid water and keep replenishing the vase with tepid water. In less than three weeks the twigs will all come out in wee leaflets, tiny blossoms, tassels and catkins—a charming reminder of the great outdoors and a prophet of the coming spring.

REV. JOHN GARBUTT IS CHOSEN AS PRESIDENT

Missionary Problems Are Discussed by Rev. C. E. Manning

Napanee, Ont., June 5.—The 31st general session of the Bay of Quinte Conference assembled in Trinity Church yesterday at 9 a.m., Rev. Wm. Lambert presiding. Immediately on the completion of the organizations of conference and following an address by the retiring president, the election of conference officers was proceeded with. On the first ballot Rev. John Garbutt, Cobourg, was elected president. Rev. R. A. Delve, Wooler was chosen secretary on the first ballot. The following were appointed on the nomination of the secretary-elect:—Assistant Secretaries, Rev. Wesley Down and Mr. W. H. Hopper; Statistical Secretary, Rev. Montague Leigh, B.A.; Journal Secretary, Rev. S. T. Tucker, B.A., B.D.; Guardian Reporter, Rev. W. H. Clarke; Conference Letter Writer, Rev. W. H. Spargo; Railway Certificate Clerk, Rev. F. H. Howard.

On the assembling of conference in the afternoon session Rev. C. E. Manning, associate secretary of missions, gave the gathering a comprehensive address on the missionary problems of the Methodist Church. He set forth with startling effect the needs of Methodist missions, and urged the delegates to promote a spirit of increased liberality upon their respective fields.

Rev. S. T. Bartlett, general secretary of Epworth Leagues and Sunday Schools, addressed the conference. He laid great emphasis upon the need for intensive work in the local Epworth Leagues, and affirmed that every league should look well to its own local initiative in the affairs of the Epworth League. He then dealt with the Sunday school work of Methodism most enthusiastically, urging that Methodism keep her premier position in Sunday school work in Canada.

Two practical addresses on church finance were delivered by Wm. Flavelle, Lindsay, and Judge Deroche, Belleville. They advocated systematic liberality. The conference missionary anniversary was held in the Conference Church at 8 p.m., with Col. Adams, Picton, in the chair.

Missionary addresses were delivered by C. E. Weeks, Lindsay, and Mrs. Geo. Jackson, Port Perry, representative of the Women's Missionary Society.

THIEF OF "MONA LISA" ON TRIAL

FLORENCE, Italy, June 5.—The trial of Vincenzo Perugia on the charge of stealing Da Vinci's masterpiece, "Mona Lisa," from the Louvre, in Paris, began here yesterday. The disappearance of the picture on Aug. 22, 1911, caused a sensation throughout the world, and search for it was not successful until Dec. 12, 1913, when Perugia offered it for sale to a Florence antiquary.

Dr. Arnaldi at yesterday's hearing said he had made a prolonged and careful observation of Perugia, and had become convinced he was only partially responsible for his actions.

MOTHER AND CHILD HAD CLOSE SHAVE

Were in Path Taken by Runaway Team

About five o'clock last evening one of the teams engaged in drawing bricks to the addition to the Peterboro Creamery became frightened at a passing automobile and made a wild dash for liberty. They evidently liked the looks of the Y.W.C.A. for they cut across the street and were making for the main entrance. At the corner stood a lady with an infant in her arms also another lady. One of the horses struck the lady with the infant and the blow hurled her and the child back a few feet, sufficiently to allow the team and ponderous wagon to go by.

The horses changed their course and headed for Charlotte Street, along Aylmer. Chief Howard and Rev. R. Pogue were standing on the east side of Aylmer opposite Dr. Greer's residence and attempted to delay the team but to no avail. They clashed against another tree and then galloped down and around the Charlotte Street corner. At that point they turned too short and fell. Several workmen assisted the uninjured horses to their feet. The crash against the tree however had completely wrecked the wagon and it was left at the fire hall while the team was driven to the brickyard. The lady in the meantime had sufficiently recovered from the shock to proceed with the child to her home. Witnesses are still wondering how she escaped serious injury.

CONDITIONS OF LABOR HERE

Labor conditions in Peterboro are reported in the Gazette as follows:

There was a pronounced improvement in the condition of the labour market during April, especially in the building trades, but large numbers of both skilled and unskilled workers remain out of employment. Real estate transactions are brisk, and contractors claim that the work of construction in this city will be satisfactory. The new custom house and post office will be started during the spring; two new churches, many dwellings and smaller buildings will be erected. The Wm. Hamilton Company is busy, having secured the contract for the manufacture of three hundred ornamental lighting standards for the city of Windsor, and also the contract to supply 125 combination poles for trolley and light, and 375 ornamental standards for the municipality of Outrement, Quebec. One of the departments of the Canadian General Electric Company, which has been shut down since last fall, has started up full handed again. The Peterborough Radial Railway Company is extending its line, and also laying heavier rails on the old line. The paving of the streets in the centre of the city has commenced, and a large number of men have found employment at this and other civic work, on sewers and laying of sidewalks. The rate of taxation this year will be twenty-six mills, one more than last year.

Farmers were quiet until the latter part of the month owing to the ground being so dry that they could not start ploughing. The fall wheat and clover gives promise of a good crop. Potatoes are scarce, selling for $1.30 per bag. The cheese factories are busy repairing their plants and preparing for the season.

The outlook for the lumbermen is not good, the water being so low that they have not been able to commence logging operations.

The Central Railway is laying rails west of McAlpine. The contract calls for the completion of the work by December 31. This road will open up the whole of the north country.

Lindsay.—The Canadian Bovine Company is making large additions to its factory, and is busy. Mr. Jas. Bogue has the contract for extensions to the post office; the price is $25,000. The Lindsay Library & Office Fitting Company is filling an order for desks for New Zealand.

Hastings.—A boat and canoe factory is being built. The machinery is all ready to be installed, and a start is expected to be made by the middle of June.

TWO BOYS FINED FOR ILLEGAL FISHING

Arthur Maxwell and Willie Taylor, two south end boys were fined $5 each this morning by Magistrate Dumble for illegal fishing.

Taylor pleaded not guilty to the charge. Inspector Watt in his evidence stated that he had been warned numerous times about his illegal fishing.

John Kelly of Toronto was fined $2 on the charge of being drunk. Kelly had in his possession a summons to appear in the Toronto Police Court this morning on the charge of being drunk.

EXTEND EFFORTS ANOTHER WEEK

Y.M.C.A. Canvassers Secured Subscriptions of $2000

Nearly $2,000 was realized by the Y.M.C.A. in their four day financial campaign which closed last evening with a supper. The campaign will be extended another week in order to raise the required amount of $4,500. This was done owing to the fact of the busy week and a number of the canvassers being out of the city. Mr. G. A. Gillespie presided and spoke of the encouragement they were meeting with in their efforts. In the next week the remainder could be raised and the amount would carry them through the year. Other members spoke along similar lines.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A LETTER FROM MR. PECK.

Editor of the Review:

Dear Sir,—As by the action of the Liberal-Conservative Convention on Monday last I am called upon to retire (temporarily at any rate) from the public service, a few words from me to those whom I have represented in the Legislature for the past three Sessions may be expected.

I was the unanimous choice of the Liberal Conservative Convention held in July, 1911, and subsequently in December of that year was elected to the Legislature with a substantial majority of over 600. Since that time I have devoted myself earnestly to the best of my ability to the advancement of the interests of the riding. In doing so I desire to say that I endeavored to deal with every question strictly on its merits, and if I thought anything could be done to assist the City or the County I was ready to do my part to carry out the project. During my term in the House I assisted in legislation which has enabled the City to bonus and encourage the establishment of such important industries as the De Laval Dairy Supply Company, the Henry Hope & Sons Company, and the Vermont Marble Company, and also to deal with the question of sewage disposal. I also did everything possible to aid the City in its effort to deal with the Provincial Hydro Electric Commission, and I note with satisfaction that at a very early date, owing to legislation I assisted in procuring, the desires of the citizens of Peterborough in this regard will be carried out.

It will always be a pleasure to me to feel that I assisted in a humble way in the passage of that important piece of legislation known as the "Workmen's Compensation Act." A measure which assures to a workman, without any question, a reasonable compensation in case of injury while not bearing too oppressively upon the employer.

I have to thank the recent Liberal Conservative Convention for the kindly expressions contained in the resolution adopted by it with reference to my services. I feel that it recognizes the spirit with which I approached my work.

In attending to public duties one may expect and must submit to criticism from those who do not see matters in the same light. From reports which have reached me I have reason to understand that the result of Monday's meeting was due to resentment by some to some action, or want of action, on my part. If any have been inclined to take offence the manly and only proper course should have been to come to me and give me an opportunity of discussing the question in an open and frank manner. Often misunderstandings may be thus cleared up. I am pleased to feel that the complaints, which street rumor informs me have been made, have nothing whatever to do with my administration of the riding's affairs during my term of office.

I allowed my name to be submitted to the recent Convention, not to gratify my personal ambition, but because I believed I was the strongest candidate available, and I desired to assist in holding the riding for our worthy leader, Sir James Whitney. The Convention took a different view, and I must bow to its decision, and trust that events will show it made a wise choice.

I thank those who without any solicitation whatever on my part supported my candidature at the Convention, and I also desire to acknowledge the numerous and very kindly expressions of regret which have been tendered me by citizens of both political parties since the opinion of the Convention was expressed.

In conclusion I desire to acknowledge the very considerate personal treatment I have always received from the press of this city.

E. A. PECK.

Peterboro, June 5, 1914.

INSINCERITY.

Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir,—

As an independent supporter of Mr. Peck, I was glad to see in the leading editorial of its yesterday's issue that the Examiner made an eleventh hour confession of Mr. Peck's influence for good in the Legislature, and spoke in terms of adulation and fulsome praise of the part he took in the beneficial legislation under the Whitney Administration. But the insincerity of the Examiner is made manifest when we see the sinister motives by which it was actuated. It says that it was not a matter of surprise to the Examiner that Mr. Peck should have been turned down at the nomination but it ascribes a wrong reason for it by protesting that it had nothing to do with that clique of the Conservative party which had made a corrupt bargain with Mr. Stratton for selfish purposes to betray our party while we were fighting to death an uphill battle against a wily foe when Mr. Whitney was sitting in the dark shades of opposition. Mr. Peck did not belong to that clique, but they made themselves conspicuous on his behalf and thus alienated many of Mr. Peck's supporters which lead to his defeat. Mr. Peck might well exclaim, "Save me from my friends."

The motive of the Examiner, however, is quite apparent. It wishes to endorse Mr. Peck to place himself in opposition to Mr. Soden the duly selected nominee of the party in order that the splitting of the party would enable the grit nominee to get a chance of being returned, the only chance he will ever have. But Mr. Peck is too loyal to his party to sacrifice its best interests.

Yours, etc.
Conservative.

LIBERAL LEADER BEGINS HIS ABOLISH THE BAR CAMPAIGN

He Claims Credit for Good Roads and Hydro Radial Policies and Promises to Remedy Industrial Evils in the Province if His Party is Given a Majority —Many Suffragists Present.

TORONTO, June 5.—Massey Hall was filled last night on the occasion of the inauguration of the election tour of Mr. N. W. Rowell, Liberal leader of Ontario. The audience was made up of Liberals, temperance workers and a large number of supporters of women's suffrage.

Mr. Rowell opened his remarks by declaring that never in recent years had there been such a spirit of unrest and dissatisfaction with conditions as in the Province of Ontario to-day.

"Why has the Government elected to go before the people before their term is up? Because they recognize that their prestige is steadily waning, and their party is rent with internal dissension, and while Sir James Whitney retains his health they would rather face the country to-day than later on. In view of the Premier's recent illness, no reasonable man who knows expects him to be the dominant figure he has been in the past. You have to choose between Sir James Whitney, and we know not what, for who can tell what may come if the party goes back into power again without Sir James at its head.

With regard to the issues of the day, Mr. Rowell said that the Liberals had forced both good roads and Hydro-electric radials upon the Government.

"The real problems facing you are ones of social and moral reform.

"We are face to face with an anomalous situation. Ontario is as well adapted to mixed farming as any province in the country. Yet the rural population is declining and food products steadily diminishing. This is a problem which touches the foundation of national life.

"If I am put into power I promise you that the head of the Department of Agriculture shall be the ablest man that the province can produce, whether he be in the Legislature or not, and agriculture will no longer suffer. Not only are the agricultural districts decreasing in population but the cities are growing faster than we can provide houses for them, resulting in slums, tenements and a general overcrowding in our municipal communities. Our taxation of property on its real value will lower the tax rate to such an extent that the taxes on a workingman's home costing, say, $2,400, will be cut almost in two, thereby giving the working man an opportunity to own and support his own home.

In speaking of his "abolish the bar" policy Mr. Rowell said: "One way to abolish the treating system is by wiping out the place where the treating is done. In abolishing the bar we are not, as some of the Conservatives have maintained, simply putting a liquor shop in its place. Shop licenses will not be issued in place of bar licenses abolished. Liquor shops can be wiped out by local option on a majority vote.

"Two and a half years ago I promised to bring the 'abolish the bar' issue before the country. I have done so. The issue is before you now. I have discharged my responsibility thus far. It now rests with your conscience. I have gathered about me a party that if you give me a Government will absolutely 'abolish the bar'.

"My platform will be carried out at the first session. We have not the money of the liquor interests behind us, but we have the women. I put myself in the judgment of the people of this province irrespective of party. I admit differences of opinion in my own party. I was true to you, will you be true to me? If you will work as hard as I, my word is given that the 29th of June will sound the death knell of every licensed bar in Ontario."

Other speakers were Wm. Proudfoot, M.P.P., Ald. F. S. Spence, Ex-Mayor Oliver, Rev. John McNeill, Rev. Dr Macdonald, ex-Ald. Hales and J. M. Ferguson and Arthur Hawkes.

BLOOD FELL ON TABLE.

Austrian Boarders Have Gruesome Experience at Dinner.

FORT WILLIAM, June 5.—When drops of blood began slowly to ooze through the ceiling and drip upon the table where a meal was being eaten, a number of men in an Austrian boarding house, situated on Court street south, Port Arthur, rushed out into the street shortly after twelve o'clock.

Regaining their courage, they reentered the house and, on bursting open the door of a companion's room directly over the dining-room, John Ravio was found stretched out on the floor with his throat cut.

Lately he is said to have obtained word from Austria, that property of which he had been the owner, has been taken from him.

Convicted Murderer Hangs Self.

DAYTON, Ohio, June 5.—The dead body of Arthur Fowler, a British subject, found guilty Wednesday of the murder of John Jeames, was found in the county jail early yesterday. Fowler had secured a strap and hanged himself. He was to have been given life imprisonment.

CONVENTION DATE CHANGED.

Canadian Press Association To Meet on July 9 and 10.

OTTAWA, June 5.—At a meeting in Ottawa yesterday the executive committee of the Canadian Press Association decided to have the 56th annual meeting of the association held in Toronto on Thursday and Friday, July 9 and 10, instead of in Muskoka on June 26 and 27, as previously arranged. Owing to the elections for the Ontario Legislature having been fixed for June 29 many of the officers of the association and speakers at the meeting and many Ontario newspaper men would find it impossible to attend if the meeting were held on the date originally set. Arrangements are in progress to follow the convention with an excursion to Muskoka Lakes immediately after the convention, as guests at the Royal Muskoka Hotel.

Finds Kidnapped Boy.

CHATHAM, June 5.—Byron Fisher, a farmer, living three miles from Wallaceburg, looking over some old newspapers, read of $6,000 reward offered for the recovery of the young son of Warren McCarrick, a Philadelphia millionaire, kidnapped in March.

As, on March 17, a neighbor, Myles Griffith, adopted a small boy brought by a woman who said she was from Detroit, and as the boy answers the description of the missing youngster, Fisher has put in a claim for the reward.

"Squire" McKinlay of Ridgetown Resigns at 90.

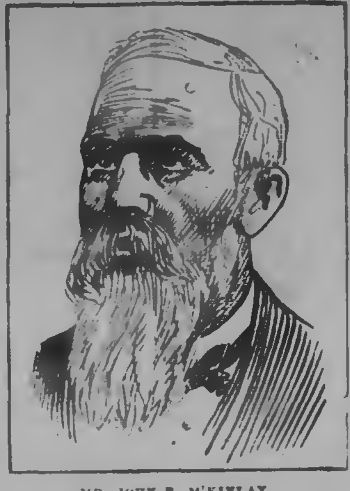
John P. McKinlay, who has just resigned the office of Police Magistrate of Ridgetown, Ont., has been for some time the oldest occupant of the Magisterial Bench in active service in Ontario. "Squire" McKinlay, as he is called, entered his ninety-first year on January 1 and is still in the enjoyment of sound health. He was born in Aldborough Township, the son of Peter McKinlay, a native of Perthshire, and after his school days learned the trade of carpenter. For a time he resided in Ohio, and then returned to Howard Township and purchased a farm near Ridgetown, where he lived until 1899, when he moved into town.



MR. JOHN P. M'KINLAY.

Mr. McKinlay always took an active interest in the welfare of Ridgetown, and was for years a member of the council. He was appointed Police Magistrate in 1886, and during his long term of office endeavored to "temper justice with mercy," seldom erring on the side of severity. In education, in sport, in industry, he has long been associated with every movement looking towards the advancement of these interests in the town. In his earlier days he was a strong supporter of the Reform party, but since accepting office he ceased to take part in party politics.

Puts In Word For Wife.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 5. — Pleading that his wife was a better director than he was a rector, Rev. Mr. Howe, Halifax, tried hard to persuade the Nova Scotia Anglican Synod to accept a report of the temperance committee which contained the statement that the enfranchisement of women would aid temperance and moral and reform movements.

A number of clergymen wanted the allusion deleted from the report, but Hr. Howe would not consent, and logic secured its retention in the report.

HARVEY COUNCIL

Assessment Appeals and General Business Dealt With

The Harvey Council met in the town hall, Lakehurst, on Monday, June 1st, as a Court of Revision and general session.

The members present were: Robt. Shaw, Reeve in the chair, and councillors Allin, Flynn and Wilson.

The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed.

The members took the prescribed oath.

Appeal No. 1 G. N. Hatton, lot 7, Con. 2, lowered $50. Appeal No. 2 Mrs. W. H. Miller, pt. 19, Con. 17, confirmed. Appeal No. 3, G. W. Taylor, re O'Brian's property, amended as requested.

A. G. Shearer asked to have the lots now assessed to the Rathburn Co. changed to himself as he had purchased them. Granted.

A few minor changes were made in the roll and the court adjourned till June 27th and council resumed to general business.

Communications were read as follows:

From H. O. Boyd re scarlet fever at Nogies' Creek.

From Prov. Treasurer re Railway district tax.

From Great Waterways Union.

From J. H. Burnham acknowledging resolution of appreciation.

From E. A. Peck re Colonization road grants.

From W. D. Ventress re valuing sheep killed.

From Mrs. Moore account for gravel.

From G. W. Bennett re Colonization road by-law.

Charles Kreger addressed the council re opening Con. lines to his place. The committee appointed to look up a road for Fred Bennett reported that they recommended that Mr. Bennett do half his work on the 9th Con. line until such time as the council sees fit to open the 8th Con. Line.

On motion Noble Cummings was allowed to clear out the road allowance between lots 10 and 11, Con. 12, sufficiently to erect a fence thereon.

The reeve was appointed to act with Mr. Moore in expending the money under the by-law and the clerk instructed to notify the different overseers of their appointment of the amount to be expended, of the wages they shall pay, etc.

By-law No. 327 was given its final reading and finally passed as requested by the colonization roads department.

Orders were drawn on the treasurer as follows:

Covering the Iron Board.

To make a practical ironing board cover buy two yards of unbleached muslin or denim, measuring off sixty six inches or enough to cover the length of your board.

Tear this lengthwise through the center or make a straight fold.

Now put the two pieces of cloth together and bind the side and the bottoms with cotton tape. Allow an underpiece of two inches for making the flap.

Make pockets for the iron holders, stand and wax from the piece of muslin or denim that remains. Then you always know where your things are when you want them.

To free the hands from disagreeable odors such as that of onions, cod-liver oil, etc., mix a little ground dry mustard with warm water and wash the hands well with it.

CRESWELL OUTPITCHED SHOCKCOR BUT SHAG'S MEN GOT ALL THE BREAKS

Sensational Fielding by Senators Stopped Petes From Winning Out in the Ninth

Lefty Rogers the Ottawa's big outfielder and pitcher and Frank Dolan the elongated first sacker have joined the fraternal order of thieves. They took it upon themselves to exemplify the degree themselves to exemplify the degree of the order yesterday at the expense of the Petes and to Rogers and Dolan must be credited the victory Ottawa scored over Curly Blount's luckless crew by a score of 3-2. It all occurred at critical times according to a dispatch. Welsh slammed one which looked good for three pillows when Rogers made one of the most sensational stabs ever pulled in Ottawa. Then as though to rub it in Dolan stabbed Gorman's poke which looked like a safety and completed a double with men on the bags in the ninth. Cresswell had the better of Shockcor in a pitcher's duel but the club had three boots behind him. Another element of Ottawa luck presented itself in the banishing of Shaughnessey from the game. Wager who hit for "Shag" rapped out the single that put Ottawa one to the good.

Ottawa, June 4.—After a flashy exhibition of fielding, the Ottawas defeated Peterboro by 3 to 0 this afternoon. Cresswell had the better of the pitching duel against Schocker, but the Ottawas gave their man wonderful support. Rogers speared a liner off Welsh's bat that looked good for three bases and Dolan ended the game with a spectacular double play, taking Gorman's liner and touching second when Peterboro grew very dangerous in the ninth.

Peterboro took a lead in the first with two runs and Ottawa tied it in the third. There was no further scoring until the seventh, when Wager singled and scored Fried from third. It was unfortunate for Peterboro, as Wager had replaced Shaughnessy after the Ottawa manager had been ordered out of the game by Umpire Miller for disputing. Bad weather continued, rain falling almost steadily. Score :—

Box Score Tales.

Manager Blount had another bingle yesterday of the two ply variety. He also had a run. It looks as though Curly has started after that .300 mark which he hit for four years straight

Welsh, Stewart, King, Gorman and Kelly had singles.

The errors are chalked up against Byrne, Welsh and King while Nill had Ottawa's solitary boot.

Dad Stewart continues to hit regularly and the old boy looks just about as good as the majority of the league outfielders. It is safe to say that few of the outergarden men will drive in more runs than Dad. Yet Brantford preferred Freight Car Ivers to Dad which leads us to believe that Tom Nelson is paying lunch counter salaries to some of his herd.

Cressy should have won his game. The luck broke against him. Any pitcher who can slab a game like he did on his first appearance with his club after a two weeks' illness is some pitcher.

DOUBLE HEADER IN MERCANTILE

The baseball attraction to be handed out by the Mercantile League tomorrow afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds will find the Bankers, victors over the Typos, and the Red Caps, victors over the Drafting Room, coming together for the first time this season while in the second fixture the fans will have an opportunity to decide whether the De Laval are stronger than the Drafting Room. The Draftsmen are out for blood in an effort to redeem themselves after last week's defeat, so a good game can be expected. The first game will be called at 2 o'clock.

As You Like It

Once again the Petes lost a game by one run when the Senators captured a 3-2 contest after having received only four hits off Cresswell. The Petes have lost more games by one run than any four clubs in the league. Surely we are not getting any of the breaks. The old story that a team which is low suffers from the breaks seems to be true.

Buck Freeman former fence buster of the big show has been signed as umpire by President Fetsgerald. Buck was the dean of clouters in his day and it is to be hoped he will be able to judge the balls and strikes and plays as well as he used to solve the hurler's shoots as the league is in need of a few real umpires. Miller and Bedford look like the only real ones who have worked to this stage. Umpire Walsh gotjuiced up in Erie the other night and was jugged. He is the fellow who caused all the trouble in London.

Get this from the Erie Dispatch :

Another small crowd was present yesterday. It is being whispered that unless the attendance picks up the team will be kept on the road, in Canada.

It may all be too true, that which is contained in the Erie paragraph. The club has not been drawing very well at home and why it should not is more than the moguls can understand as the team has been very good. The Erie fans seem to be prejudiced against anything Canadian which shows a spirit of narrow mindedness. Erie fans would do well to remember that Canada is not a village London is as big in population as Erie while Hamilton, Toronto and Ottawa are larger and that class of ball being played by the league is not inferior to that dished up in the central organization.

It is to laugh. The Mail and Empire claims that as there is a standing rule in the International League of two bases on a hit such as Blount made Wednesday that Umpire Hallanan was correct in his ruling. Surely the Mail and Empire scribe does not think that International League rules govern games in the Canadian League. Probably the hit was worth only two bags under ground lay out but some mention of rules should have been made by the officials.

The following is by Tom Flanagan who dopes for the Evening Telegram of which President Fitzgerald is sporting editor.

The action of the Peterboro team in refusing to continue yesterday was not exactly the way they should have handled the case. If they were right their chances would have been much better to go on after giving the umpire notice of a protest. Refusing to continue is not the way to handle any situation.

Meanwhile Peterboro, by defaulting, forfeit their share of the gate yesterday. That punishment goes according to constitution to a forfeiting club. The question of the game itself will come before the president in the form of a protest.

The Hamilton fans are clamoring for a winner. They clamored for the removal of Knotty Lee believing he was to the stumbling block or the halting place on the highway of success. They probably realize that had Lee been given the support he expected from the fans he would have done better. P. J. Jones among other harsh words concerning the Hamilton club asks: Why can't Hamilton have a ball club the same as any other city? Down here in Peterboro we have been trying to solve that question but have almost given up hope. In the lemon fields they have expert lemon pickers. Some men pick the good ones, others the bad. That is the nearest we can come to it. Then there is the old story that the early bird gobbles the worm and that money goes a long way. Probably Doc Yates believes that he who picks the night worm does not have to rise early from the hay.

Dave Hilliard, the former Pete, although he is not a regular with the Cleveland Club of the American Association, is making his worth felt when used, by clouting the hide in good style. Last Saturday he had a double and a homer. His average to date is 399.

FAMOUS FOUR BASE CLOUTS

Dave Hilliard's four play clout as a member of the Peterboro club when he met one of Lefty Dorbeck's offerings and swatted it over the left field fence and lost the pill in a vat of suds undergoing thirst quenching operations in the Calcutt Brewery. The longest hit on record in the Canadian League.

"Hans" Wagner's four-base swat in Pittsburg which broke the wind shield of an automobile standing outside the grounds.

"Big Bill" Lange's homer over the centrefield fence in Cincinnati. It smashed through a plate glass window of a saloon and broke up a pinochle party.

"Larry" McLean's peculiar wallop made on the Pacific coast. It sailed over a tree fifty feet from the fence and splashed into a creek.

"Buck" Freeman's drive off Chief Bender at old Columbia Park, Philadelphia. The ball went over a block of houses beyond the fence and landed in the second story window of a house in a side street between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth streets.

"Heinie" Zimmermans two homers, made over the left field fence in Cincinnati. He was the only player that ever put the ball over the wall.

"Cy" Seymour's hit from Boston to New York. The ball fell into a coal car attached to a fast freight and was found by a brakeman when the train reached New York.

Frank Baker's crash over the right field wall in Washington off Walter Johnson, which made the management decide to enlarge the park.

Miller Huggins' hit in Cincinnati, which fell twenty feet behind the right fielder, who lost the ball in the sun and did not locate it until Huggins had crossed the plate.

Walter Johnson's drive in Washington. The force of the blow tore the cover off the ball.

ANSWER TO "AMATEUR."

Sporting Editor Review;
Dear Sir:

In answer to "Amateur's" letter in the Review of last night, I wish to say that I did answer the paragraph regarding Riverside Park, published in the Examiner on Tuesday.

I wrote to the Examiner on the following day, but from lack of space or some other reason it was not published. Anyhow "Amateur" covered the ground better than I did and I am quite in agreement with all he says, except about my being satisfied.

From what I can gather, the Mercantile League are quite content with the Exhibition Grounds and I suppose that Riverside Park will remain unused except when the professional leaguers are in possession.

I remain, Yours, etc.,
MERCANTILE FAN,

TENNIS AT Y.M.C.A.

Tennis continues to be the predominating sport at the Y.M.C.A. Keen interest is being evinced in the Collegiate Institute tournament and also the Y. tournament. During the month of May fully two hundred and fifty games of tennis were played on the courts which are the best in the city.

The school boys' athletic meet will be held in the Central Park tomorrow morning. The meet includes the usual line of out door events.

Never move a cake in the oven until the centre is thoroughly set.

KING EDWARDS TWICE WINNERS

Capture Junior Championship Without a Loss

Catcher—Braund.
Pitcher—Bartley, Frost.
1st base—Frost, Bartley.
2nd base—Daynard.
3rd base—Blondon.
Short stop—MacLeod.
Left field—Fuller.
Centre field—Stevenson.

The above is the line up of the King Edward School team which has for the second year in succession won the shield for the Junior Public School Baseball League. Not only have the boys from the south won the league but they also went through the season without a defeat. The last game was to have been played last evening with King George but the latter defaulted. The teams in the league in the order which they stand are as follows:—King Edward, Central, Queen Alexandra, King George, Queen Mary, South Central.

LACROSSE

The postponed game between Havelock and Campbellford will be played to-night in Campbellford. Mr. E. Dillon will referee.

Peterboro's next game is on June 10. On the date the locals will journey to Hastings and endeavor to even it up with that town.

The application of buttermilk to the kitchen linoleum and oilcloth will work a more decided success than sweet milk, used in the same way, and is far less expensive. After washing with clear warm water apply the buttermilk, rub well, then polish with a dry cloth.

COMMITTEE IS AT ODDS

Fail to Reach Decision on Church Union

WOODSTOCK, June 5.—The Presbyterian General Assembly got down to work yesterday after the welcome of local clergymen had been extended to the visitors.

The committee on church union continued its sitting yesterday, and there were rumors of dissension among the unionist majority, some of whom were disinclined to coerce the minority. A great number of resolutions and amendments were submitted. One moderate unionist remarked in conversation, that "a big mistake had been made four years ago when three or four extreme anti-union men were put on the committee, and they had had nothing but trouble ever since." The committee was in conclave all day, and will meet again to-day, when the question of union will be discussed by the assembly.

Just as the moderator was about to announce the closing hymn at the evening session, a commissioner stepped on the platform and announced that those interested in the continuation of the Presbyterian Church would meet in the Carnegie Library to-day, for the purpose of organizing against church union.

The question of reducing the number of representatives to the annual assembly meetings came up yesterday afternoon. A motion by Rev. Dr. John Somerville to send the matter to the presbyteries, and suggesting that the number of representatives be reduced to one in eight, was carried.

The committee on church praise reported that the royalty on the hymnal had totaled $3,881.48, which had been apportioned between the aged and infirm ministers' and widows' and orphans' fund.

Rev. Dr. Grant presented the report on home missions, in which he said that the appointment of immigration chaplains at the large distributing centres had proved very satisfactory.

Mission work is being carried on amongst the French in twenty different centres in the Synod of Montreal and Ottawa, and there are three bilingual missions. At Chelmsford, in New Ontario, there is a French mission, also one in Weyburn Presbytery and one at Coleman, in the Kootenay district.

IS CHARGED WITH CHEATING

Courier's Actions Cause Hubbub in the Royal Household

LONDON, June 5.—Gossip is agog over the story of a card scandal that may have as sensational developments as the Gordon Cummings case at Tranby Croft, when King Edward, then the Prince of Wales, appeared as a witness in court. The new affair has already had remarkable consequences, among them the abstention of a number of guests invited to attend the King's dinner at Buckingham Palace on Derby night, and the decision of the King to remain in town over Whitsuntide holiday in order to confer with various people concerned in the matter.

The person against whom charges of cheating at cards are made is a member of the royal household. He has latterly been winning considerable sums at poker at St. James' and Marlborough Club. His chief accusers are two well known men.

The courtier denies absolutely that there is the slightest truth in any of the charges made against him, and declares his readiness to fight the matter out in a court of law if his accusers will formulate their accusations in such a way that he can take action for libel against them. The King will not allow this to happen if he can possibly prevent it.

LAID AT REST.

The funeral of the late Mrs. W. D. Earnett of Havelock took place this morning on the arrival of the C.P.R. 7.34 to the Church of the Sacred Heart and St. Peter's Cemetery. Rev. Father Meagher officiated at the church while Rev. Father McAuley conducted the service at the grave.

EIGHT MINUTES

Wireless Operator Tells Story of Wreck

MONTREAL, June 5.—Only eight minutes was allowed Ronald Ferguson, the Empress' wireless operator, in which to call for assistance before the dynamos failed, according to his story yesterday.

Directly after the collision Ferguson says he ran to the wireless room from his cabin, to which he had retired for the night. He sent out a message to Father Point, telling the operator there to "stand by, as the Empress had struck something."

A second later First Officer Steade ran into the room and told him to despatch the "S. O. S." call. The station at Father Point answered at once and he gave the position of the Empress. The moment after he received the assurance that help was coming the wireless stopped.

Ferguson went down with the ship, but came up, and after swimming for three-quarters of an hour, was picked up.

Ferguson then sent requests for clothes to Rimouski from the Lady Evelyn.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Rushing Hotel Work.

With the work being rushed with all possible rapidity, the Empress hotel formerly the National will probably be ready for the new proprietor George N. Graham by the first of next month.

Mr. Graham is arranging for a formal opening of the new hostelry.

When Driving Nails.

When a tack has to be driven into an inconvenient corner, force the tack through the end of a strip of paper and hold the paper instead of attempting to hold the tack. This will save the finger and thumb from the hammer and the recording angel from making an entry on the wrong side of your page.

Cakes without butter require a quick oven.

G. A. GILLESPIE IS THE LIBERAL CANDIDATE

His Was the Only Name Placed Before the Convention

The plank of temperance was flaunted in the breeze which swept over the Liberal convention last evening. The Liberal platform is composed of one thing according to the speakers at the convention. That one thing is temperance, and G. A. Gillespie when he received the nomination of his party by acclamation delivered a temperance oration which would have made even the most ardent supporter of I.O.G.T. cheer. His talk was nothing short of a promise to abolish the bar and support N. W. Rowell. He said nothing of what the Liberal party would do to advance the province along lines of progress. Whether Mr. Gillespie knew what the party which he is representing would do other than abolish the bar is not known because he failed to tell the electors of anything but abolish the bar. Men who were at the convention cheered the speaker and at its conclusion adjourned to the numerous hotels and "polished the bar" which is contrary to the party's policy.

Rev. R. Pogue was called upon by the convention to voice his views. The clergyman rose in the centre of the hall and stated that he would not take the platform but he was a strong supporter of the abolish the bar policy

H. B. Cowan was also there on behalf of the temperance element but declined to say which party his followers would support as the organization will interview the candidates today.

Mr. Gillespie's nomination was moved by J. H. Garbutt and seconded by Robert McGregor.

Truly the convention was enthusiastic over the temperance question but local hotel keepers state that after 9.30 the bar trade increased with much enthusiasm.

"What else is the party going to do for the country other than wipe out the bars," shouted one voter at the meeting.

The answer came not.

CLEVER DEVICE IS INVENTED BY PROF. FESSENDEN

Sound Transmitted Under Water for Ten Miles

Hamilton, June 6.—Prof. P. A. Fessenden, son of Mrs. Clementina Fessenden, this city, has secured letters patent for a device which, it is thought by experts, will be the means of saving many lives. It is a telephonic invention which makes possible the transmission of sounds for a distance of ten miles beneath the surface of the water. It is claimed that with this invention it would have been possible for the commanders of the Empress of Ireland and the Storstad to have spoken to each other, probably preventing disaster.

Prof. Fessenden is one of the scientific men of note on this continent. For some time he was head chemist in the laboratory of the Edison company. He has occupied professorial chairs in physics and mechanics in the universities of Perdue and Western Pennsylvania. Latterly he has acted as special agent of the United States weather bureau.

MISSING MAN IS FOUND AT BETHANY

After a five days' search, Jos. Cunningham, aged sixty, an inmate of the Peterboro Protestant Home, was found wandering near the Bethany Station, this morning in a dazed condition, due to exposure to the chilly nights and lack of food.

Finch Miller left for the Junction to bring the missing man back.

WELL KNOWN ORILLIA MAN MEETS DEATH

R. H. Jupp Was County Engineer for Simcoe

Orillia, Ont., June 6.—The whole town was shocked last evening to learn of the accidental death of Mr. R. H. Jupp through falling off a bridge at Alliston, of which he was superintending the construction in his capacity as county engineer. Mr. Jupp had been a familiar and popular figure in Orillia and throughout the county and district for many years past. He had taken a prominent part in public affairs, having been twice Mayor of Orillia, warden of Simcoe, and contested the riding of East Simcoe in the Conservative interest in 1902. For some years past he had been county engineer, and had superintended the expenditure of large sums on the roads of this county. Friends all over Ontario will learn of his untimely death with much regret. He is survived by a widow, four sons and one daughter.

BANDMASTER EDWARD HANNAGAN

of Toronto, father of little Gracie. He and his wife both were drowned when the Empress sank.

ON THE DIRECTORATE.

Among the directors of the recently organized Sunbeam Oil Co. of Calgary appears the names of Messrs. R. M. Glover and W. S. Davidson.

LADIES BUYING "COFFIN NAILS"

For Hubby Who Cannot Buy at Coroner Grocery

Just one month ago the local tobacconists were called upon to hand over $40 into the city treasury for the privilege of selling cigarettes. This morning a Review scribe paid a few friendly visits to vendors of the soothing weed and obtained their ideas on the real effect of the license.

Of course there was no small amount of objections but at that, the majority of them confessed that with the smaller stores out of the business, their trade in cigarettes increased. Another cause for the increase in the sale of the short smoke was the publicity they attained. It is generally recognized that if articles are advertised and placed before the people those articles will sell rapidly, hence when the cigarettes appeared on every page of the daily papers for a week or so they were the first form of tobacco that came into the minds of a purchaser when he stepped up to the counter.

The groceryman is selling fine cut and papers instead of the coffin nails.

One merchant remarked to the scribe that the customers are now sprinkled with more ladies. Don't get excited executive of the women council—they're only buying them for poor hubby who hasn't time to come up city to get them.

HON. A. MEIGHEN IS APPRECIATED

Presentations to Solicitor General and His Wife

Ottawa, June 5.—The members of the Government and their supporters in the Commons last evening presented to Hon. Arthur Meighen, the young Solicitor-General, a testimonial of their appreciation of his services for the party during the present session. Mr. Meighen has piloted the Canadian Northern bill safely through the Comons, and has been the Government's chief source of strength in the debate on this big issue, as well as on the National Transcontinental discussion and on all the other Government questions which have demanded defence, explanation or hard work.

Premier Borden, for the Conservatives presented to Mr. Meighen a gold watch and chain. At the same time he presented to Mrs. Meighen, on behalf of the party, a silver tea service. The Premier expressed the good-will and sincere appreciation of the party, and predicted still greater successes in public life for Mr. Meighen.

The latter gracefuly acknowledged the gift both for himself and for Mrs. Meighen.

NURSE GETS MONEY

Says Item Was Omitted from Patient's Bill

STRATFORD, June 6.—An interesting case from St. Mary's was heard before his honor Judge Barron in the Surrogate Court yesterday, in which a verdict of $3,540, with costs, was given the plaintiff, Jessie Moody, against John Hyslop, executor of the estate of Philip Hyslop of St. Mary's.

The deceased was an old bachelor and the plaintiff was his housekeeper, nurse and attendant for three years and two and a half months at the end of his life. He left an estate of $35,600 in property. The plaintiff claims he promised her a mortgage for $4,000, but she was not included in the will. Her claim could not be established in law and therefore she sued for services rendered, the judge awarding her $3,540 and costs.

DIVERS WILL INSPECT WRECK

QUEBEC, June 6.—H. M. S. Essex, at present in port, is scheduled to leave some time to-day for Father Point, where her divers will attempt an inspection of the wreck of the Empress of Ireland.

The Essex has the most modern outfits for submarine work, and her diving appliances do away with the air conducting pipes, which enables divers to penetrate in caves, through submarine growth and even through corridors of sunken vessels. This feature will, it is thought, greatly help the search of the hull of the sunken Empress.

MASTER RESIGNS.

Cobourg, June 6.—Mr. J. A. Bannister, B.A., who has been classical master at the Collegiate Institute for the past three years and a half, has resigned his position to accept the Principalship of Chesley High School.

BAY QUINTE CONFERENCE

Rev. H. A. Frost, Received Into Full Connection of the Methodist Church

Napanee, June 6.—The Bay of Quinte Conference continued its session yesterday. Rev. J. W. Aikens addressed the conference at the morning session. Miss Kathleen Morton, evangelist, was introduced and addressed the conference. The afternoon session was taken up with the election of delegates to the General Conference. Eight ballots were required to complete the election. The delegates appointed from the ministerial college were as follows: John Garbutt, Dr. S. J. Shorey, H. B. Kenny, Wm. Lambert, W. B. Tucker, B.A., B.D., W. G. Clarke, B.A., H. V. Mountier, Wm Johnston, H. S. Spence, B.A., B.D., Leonard Phelps, M. E. Sexsmith, B.A., LL.D., Chas. Coon, S. T. Bartlett, and S. C. Moore, B.A., B.D. Reserves: Wesley Down, Dr. Edward N. Baker, M.A., D. N. Burwash, J. P. Wilson.

Questionable Amusements.

The matter of questionable amusements brought out helpful discussion in the afternoon. When the pastoral address read by Rev. E. A. Tonkin came up for consideration, ex-Chancellor Burwash, of Victoria College, was called to the platform. He spoke upon this vexed question of the day, but in the spirit of optimism. Dr. Burwash claims that the craze for non-elevating pleasures is not as great among student life today as it was a few years ago. The evening session witnessed the reception of Harry A. Frost, B.A., into full connection with the ministry of the Methodist Church. Rev. M. E. Sexsmith moved and Rev. H. S. Osborne, B.D., seconded the resolution for his reception. It was carried unanimously.

A VANCOUVER VICTIM

MURRAY STREET ANNIVERSARY.

The anniversary of the opening of Murray Street Baptist Church will be celebrated to-morrow morning by a special service at which Rev. C. G. Smith of Belleville, will be the preacher.

Rev. Mr. Smith made many friends in Peterboro when last winter he discussed Winston Churchill's book, "The Inside of the Cup" at Murray Street Church.

At the evening service the pastor will preach while the Foresters will be the guests of the Murray Street people.

GRACIE HANNAGAN

Sitting on the port rail of the Empress of Ireland as she toppled over were Staff-Bandmaster Edward Hannagan of Toronto, his wife and ten-year-old daughter Gracie. When the vessel made her final plunge the waters of the river closed over the little group and Gracie alone rose to the surface. Having learned to swim while holidaying last summer she struck out and managed to cling to a piece of floating wood till picked up. Both her parents were lost.

PASSENGER ENGINEER OVER-RAN HIS ORDERS; THREE LIVES, THE TOLL

BOTH TRAINS RUNNING AT HIGH SPEED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Kamsack, Sask., June 6.—East-bound Canadian Northern passenger train number two, over running Cote siding, smashed head-on into a westbound freight, killing express messenger Arnold and two mail clerks and severely injuring Engineer Arnold of the passenger train and the brakeman of the freight. Two passengers, a man and a woman were slightly injured.

The accident occurred between ten and eleven last night when both trains were running at high speed. The passenger train was to meet the freight at Cote siding, but the engineer over ran orders and crashed into the freight train one hundred yards beyond. The bodies of the mail clerks had not been recovered at an early hour this morning. Engineer Arnold's condition is considered hopeless, but the brakeman's injuries are not serious.

ART PRIZES HAVE BEEN PRESENTED

The successful pupils have been made happy by the presentation of the medals and honourable mention cards for which the children of the different schools competed, and which were given by the local branch of the Woman's Art Association.

There were sixty-three honourable mention cards and six medals awarded.

One of the medals, a special prize offered for the best rug design was competed for by children from all the different schools.

The other five medals were competed for by the pupils of the different grades in the public schools.

Some of the work was particularly good and the local association is to be commended for their efforts to promote art in the schools of the city. The results have been very successful.

CLOSING OF SCHOOLS.

The Public Schools of this city close on June 26th and re-open on September 1st. The Collegiate Institute closes on June 9 re-opening on September 1st. The Normal School closes on the 19th of June.

PERMIT FOR CHURCH

A building permit for the new $60,000 Charlotte Street Methodist Church was issued to-day at the City Clerk's office. Contractor Langford will assume charge of the building. The building will be completed by October, 1915.

CANDIDATES INTERVIEWED.

Representatives of the Temperance Association interviewed the Conservative and Liberal candidates this morning and will issue a statement on Monday.

No Doubt He Would.

Tramp—I've walked many miles to see you, sir, because people told me you were very kind to poor, unfortunate fellows like me.

Old Gentleman—Indeed. And are you going back the same way?

Yes, sir, was the answer.

Well, said the old gentleman, just contradict that rumor as you go, will you? Good morning!—Lippincott's Magazine.

MABEL HACKNEY

wife of Laurence Irving the actor. They went to their deaths clasped in each other's arms when the Empress sank.

CAVATIES RETAIN WATER AND MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

The flushing of the pavements has afforded the citizens an opportunity to discuss the quality of the asphalt being laid on the main streets. Between the Review office and George Street on Hunter there are several small cavities which retain the water and the only possible means it has to disappear is by evaporation. On a dark, cloudy day the water will remain all day, as it does in the shady sections at present, and it is hardly necessary to state what effect water would have on the asphalt, which, by the way, is about 70 per cent. sand. Every vehicle which passes over one of these cavities enlarges it to a certain extent, and within a few years, repairing will be necessary. According to a few remarks heard on the street, it is generally desired that the proper authorities should investigate the matter.

HISTORIC CHURCH IS DESTROYED

DERBY, Eng., June 6.—The ancient and historic church at Breadsall, dating back to Norman times and containing many priceless relics, was destroyed by fire during the night. While no direct evidence was obtainable that the fire was started by suffragettes they are suspected by the authorities, as explosions similar to those caused by the bombs usually employed by the "arson squad" were heard before the fire was discovered. It is also pointed out that some weeks ago a suffragette meeting in the village of Breadsall was broken up by boys, and it is generally believed that the women burned the church for vengeance.

Says the Man Who Permitted It is the One to Blame

Ottawa, June 6.—Speaking in the House last night, J. H. Burnham, member for West Peterboro, dealt with the Trent Valley Canal investigation and referred to the action of the last government in giving a 50 year lease of the Burleigh Falls Power to what he termed, "a band of political favorites," at a rental of $1 per year. Mr. Burnham held that the concession was worth at least $500,000. It had been handed over to J. A. Culverwell and the Central Power Company.

The lease was granted at the repeated requests of the ex-postmaster-general Mulock, the Hon. Richard Harcourt and Senator McHugh.

It is generally considered, Mr. Burnham said,, that the transaction would net the lucky parties, several hundred thousand dollars in clear profits. But Hon. Frank Cochrane had promised Mr. Burnham that the fraudulent and disgraceful lease and consent should be cancelled and the property has been restored accordingly to the public. The assignment was consented to by the Government when Mr. Stratton was member.

Dealing with the report on the canal investigation, he said the system could not have been so well organized, so widespread and successful, if the member had not permitted and encouraged it. That was plain to the most callous. He himself would be to blame if it happened again. Then who appears to have made the most money out of it? That was the question; not the men most directly accused and implicated. They, poor fools, quite apparently to save their jobs, lost their heads. The man who permitted it, was to blame.

BOY SCOUTS.

Last night, at the armouries, the Boy Scouts held a meeting with about thirty boys in attendance. Acting Commissioner F. J. Sawers, Scoutmaster Milby and Assistant Scoutmasters McNeely and Sedgwick were also present. It was decided to hold a church parade to St. Luke's Church, Sunday evening, June 14.

SENATE PASSES RESOLUTION ASKING CHANGES IN MEASURE

Farmers' Bank Relief Legislation is Finally Passed After a Long Debate—Conservatives Have Another Legacy to Deal With.

OTTAWA, June 6.—By a vote of 84 to 22, the Senate last night adopted a resolution pointing out certain alleged defects in the Canadian Northern legislation as it came to them from the Commons and declaring "that this House desires to ascertain whether the Government would not be disposed to facilitate the aid being given on conditions which would not be open to said objections."

The resolution was moved by Senator Bostock, the Liberal leader, upon the motion for the second reading of the Canadian Northern bill. Speaker Landry ruled that the resolution was in order and its adoption would not prevent the second reading of the bill.

Yesterday's procedure has occasioned widespread discussion in the corridors, but many precedents were quoted. The Upper Chamber, having no power to amend a money bill can only request the Government to make amendments. If the Government sees fit to comply, the bill is returned to the Lower House. In the case of the Canadian Northern bill, however, it is altogether likely that the Government will insist upon the Senate passing or rejecting the measure without amendment.

In yesterday's debate Senator Bostock intimated that the Senate would not accept the responsibility of rejecting the bill, as such a course might precipitate a financial panic. He claimed, however, that the country was not adequately secured, and that Mackensie and Mann should be required to give their personal security.

Other objections raised by the Liberals in the House of Commons were incorporated in the resolution.

There was no reply from the Government benches and the Bostock resolution was carried on a party vote. Senator Melvin-Jones voting with the Government.

When the resolution was adopted, the Government leader desired to proceed with the second reading of the bill, but upon motion of Senator Bostock the debate was adjourned until Monday next. On Monday no doubt Senator Lougheed will inform the Senate that the Government declines to amend the measure, and the bill will then be proceeded with.

The greater part of yesterday's sitting of the House was taken up with another debate upon the bill for the relief of the depositors of the Farmers' Bank. The bill was given a third reading and passed after an amendment moved by Mr. Sinclair calling for investigation into all the bank failures since Confederation, was voted down.

The bill authorizing the Government to guarantee bonds of the Grand Trunk Pacific was reported from committee of the whole and stands for third reading.

The Robins Irrigation Co., about which there was much keen debate in the Commons six or seven years ago, has applied to the Government for assistance in completing its irrigation enterprise.

The company secured 380,578 acres of land in Alberta for one dollar per acre and undertook to irrigate these lands. The Conservatives then in Opposition, opposed the arrangement and they now declare that their attitude was justified. The company has not funds enough to carry out the undertaking. Five million dollars has been spent, but this is not enough.

The Liberals reply that evidently the bargain has not been so profitable to the company as the Conservatives endeavored to make out.

The Government has agreed to refund the money paid for the lands and to permit the company to buy the property at a later date at $1.25 an acre, conditional upon completing the undertaking.

Hon. Mr. Hazen, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, in the House yesterday morning said the English members of the royal commission to investigate the Empress of Ireland wreck, would sail from England today, and probably hold the opening meeting on Tuesday, June 16, at Quebec.

WARD ONE CONSERVATIVES.

A meeting of Ward One Conservatives will be held in Ruddy & Burnham's office on Monday evening at 8 o'clock for organising the Ward. All Conservatives of the Ward are requested to be present.

JOHN EDGAR,
Chairman.

SUPPORT THE CANDIDATE.

THE CONSERVATIVES of West Peterborough have nominated Mr. R. J. Soden as candidate for the Legislative Assembly. Whatever differences there may have prevailed at the convention, it is essential for the welfare of the Conservative party that a united front be presented in the coming contest. If there is a division, the breach will likely not be healed for a decade. On the other hand, the Conservatives in this riding have a good man in their candidate. He is aggressive and thoroughly conversant with the needs of the Province and of the riding he aspires to represent. Local Conservatives must remember that the riding requires an aggressive man, who will represent it in every sense of that word. Mr. Soden is an excellent platform speaker and should bring distinction to his constituency. He is a temperance man and has declared his intention to go a step in advance of his party in temperance legislation. In this regard it should not be forgotten that Sir James Whitney has said himself to be willing to grant further legislation as soon as the people manifest sufficient approval. The Conservatives maintain they have legislated in unison with public sentiment, and, if the people really want temperance legislation in advance of that already in existence, the Tory party will move with that sentiment, as Mr. Soden has already done.

But there is another strong reason why Conservatives should give Mr. Soden their hearty support. The Government of Sir James Whitney has been an able, vigorous administration. Ontario has shown greater prosperity, more rapid advancement and development during the ten years Premier Whitney has presided over it, than under any previous Government. The Conservatives have a tremendous record for efficiency, and in support of this record, in support of the Premiership of Sir James Whitney, the Conservatives of West Peterborough ought to stand to a man behind R. J. Soden. If any do not give him support they are opposing the excellent record of the Conservative administration and the premiership of one of the best political leaders Ontario has ever produced. No good will be accomplished in giving effect to personal feelings in this contest. Conservatives should sink any differences of that nature and uphold the cause of the Tory party, and the leadership of Sir James Whitney. Mr. Soden has received the nomination from the constituted authority, and, all who voted at the convention agreed by so voting to abide by its decision. Let Conservatives stand by their constitution, stand by their candidate and the Conservative party, and victory will crown their efforts.

ACREAGE IN WEST INCREASES.

IT HAS OFTEN been remarked that though the population in the west is increased every year by at least 250,000 new settlers, and sometimes double that number, the wheat acreage does not extend in a corresponding degree. The C.P.R. has taken the utmost care, after landing the emigrants, to put them on the land. It offers ready-made farms; advances them money at a low rate of interest; supplies stock; teaches scientific farming; and, in, fact, does everything that could be thought of to induce the people to stay on the land and make their homes there. But the company cannot use coercion. Not all who go upon the land remain there. That is the trouble. The towns and cities attract a floating population, and the land suffers.

Notwithstanding this, the wheat acreage this year will show, according to Mr. George Bury, vice-president, an increase of 2,000,000 acres. This has not been brought about by magic. It has needed years of patient effort in the individual case to offer this grand total. Twenty years ago there were not 6,000,000 acres under cultivation in the Northwest. The increase in wheat acreage may not have been so large as many would have liked; but, in latter years, it has grown surprisingly. These additional 2,000,000 acres, which make a total of something like 22,000,000 in all, will mean millions of dollars, business for the great transportation companies, and an increase of general prosperity. It will also mean new and enlarged needs, increased population, and an increase in industries to keep pace with the needs of the home market. At the same time, Mr. Bury and those whom he directs are preaching all over the west the gospel of mixed farming, with excellent results, The disposition to get wheat and the money for the wheat as the chief desideratum is not so noticeable now, as the people are learning that their true independence is found in mixed farming, which can never leave them stranded, as might be the case with a single wheat crop, which might fail, owing to climatic reasons.

A MACEDONIAN has been hailed in police court in Toronto for having charged three of his compatriots two dollars and a half apiece for collar buttons. He stated these buttons would give them a pass into the United States. The charm wouldn't work, hence the police court case. This is just another instance of the influence of high finance and our advanced civilization on the impressionable foreigner.

CONSERVATIVES AID AGRICULTURE.

IF THERE IS one industry that requires regular assistance, it is agriculture. The evolution of industrial methods is daily raising new problems, and particularly that of the most efficient way of conducting an industry. Agriculture is subject to the same changes, fc. inventions have greatly improved the machinery used in farming, while scientific study of soil and plants has also been the cause of better production. For these and other reasons, agriculture requires assistance as much as railroads and general education.

The Conservatives, under the leadership of Sir James Whitney, have fully recognized the necessity of giving aid to agriculture. Good roads have been built, legislative machinery for the encouragement of rural telephones has been put in motion. The Hydro-Electric service has been extended to farms and rural districts on a cost basis and effective plans for widespread agricultural instruction have been features of the Whitney policies for making Ontario agriculture more prosperous and satisfactory.

The work of the Ontario Department of Agriculture has been both aggressive and progressive, and marked by initiative and enterprise. Above all, it has endeavored to be practical and keep in close touch with the farmer and his problems. It directly served more people in the past year than ever before. Competent observers have expressed the opinion that the Department is now doing more effective and more efficient work than at any time in its history. To show that substantial progress is being made, it is only necessary to point to the fact that in 1912, according to the Bureau of Industries statistics, the total value of the agricultural assets of the province was $1,405,950,940, as compared to $1,127,915,338 inu 1904, an increase of $278,035,602.

The Government has been generous in making financial provision for agricultural work. This fact is especially appreciated when the record of the Whitney Government in this matter is contrasted with that of the Liberal Government which preceded it. Note the figures. Appropriations for Agriculture, 1904 were $475,678, which had increased in 1914 to $1,252,132, thus showing an increase of $776,454, or 150 per cent.

MR. THOMPSON AGAIN THE CANDIDATE.

MR. JAS. THOMPSON, M.L.A., has again been chosen unanimously to fight the battle for the Conservatives in East Peterborough. Mr. Thompson has ably represented his constituency, and his party appreciate his efforts in the public interest. He is a strong candidate and no one doubts for a moment the substantial majority he will have to his credit on the day of balloting. He is a good speaker and possesses a thorough knowledge of the requirements of a representative, and East Peterborough would go far to secure his equal.

THE BRIDES

By Walt Mason

I see the blushing brides go by, all sweet and blooming, to the church; and nothing fairer greets the eye, however far a man may search. As nearer to the church they draw, the bliss they feel is all unfeigned, for they obey a holy law, and lead the life that God ordained. The old maids stand around outside, and think upon the yesteryear; each had a chance to be a bride, and passed it up for some career. Each was ambitious to be known as lawyer, doctor or the like, and dismally each stands alone, and sees the brides go up the pike. From 'neath the churches' spires and domes the brides go forth to normal lives, to make and manage happy homes and join the ranks of gracious wives. The old maids leave the wedding scene, with hearts that feel as though they'd burst; they fill their stoves with gasoline, and cook their meals of weinerwurst. They chose the dross and left the gold, their lives are but a dreary blank; they have no men around to scold, no kids to cuddle or to spank. Their eyes are full of tears unshed, their hearts of griefs that ever gnaw; their hair is gray, their noses red, their temper like a cross cut saw. Imagine, then, how tough they feel, as by the churchyard gate they stray, and hear the wedding music peal, and see the brides in brave array!

JEB SAYS

OVER LIBERALITY

WHEN Caleb Witmark, who was noted fer bein' the stingiest man in all the countryside, got converted at a revival, he figured that the best way to show his change of heart was to practice liberality. He was right in thet, too, trouble was Caleb carried his liberality to extremes. He give away most everythin' he owned in the world, and then his wife, who had been instrumental in a way, in leadin' him to see the error of his ways, took a hand.

I reckon she figgered thet sooner or later, Caleb would be wantin' to give er to somebody, there bein' nuthin' much else left to give, so she took Caleb by the ear and led him round to the people he'd give his world's goods to and made him beg 'em back.

Of course Caleb felt thet this made a fool of him, so he back-slid and left the church. But Missis Witmark, who was a woman of extraordinary sound reasonin' said thet she reckoned arter all any body who was as easy as Caleb was here would be shouldered outin' anythin' wuth while in the hereafter. Witmark stayed converted though and lived right only he put the breaks on his liberality and run it about half speed.

And let me tell ye, it's possible to overdo anythin', even liberality.

Kerr nodded his head. He could have added that the river ward men would vote early and often, but that there was no occasion for it. It was an open secret that for several weeks floaters had been colonized in the levee district.

"We can't count on much besides them wards," explained Kerr, "unless the Belmont News goes out of business."

"What can we do about it?" inquired Hayes. He saw defeat staring them in the face.

"Sam," replied the boss after a moment's silence, "every man's got his price—in some form or other."

"News or no News, we've got to win," exclaimed Kendall desperately. "I've staked everything on it in Chicago and I must get results—and that means a franchise and nothing but a franchise."

"Then we've got to have that paper at any cost."

"It's mortgaged for all it's worth," said Gilbert.

"That won't help us in the next three days," snapped Kendall.

"There ain't no use mincing matters," concluded the boss. "We're up against it. There's only one thing to do; see what he'll sell for, and pay him his price."

Judge Gilbert looked at the matter from the point of view of a business lawyer.

"It won't be cash down for the whole thing. We merely assume the mortgage, and then pay him whatever he'll take to clear out."

Kerr had figured all this out. With him time was the most important consideration.

"We've got to get busy mighty quick," said the boss.

"When are you going to see him?" asked Kendall.

"Right away."

"We can't very well go to his office," said Gilbert. "Even that little move would give him more of an advantage."

"Get him over here," ordered Kerr. "Telephone him. He'll come. You needn't say who's here."

Judge Gilbert picked up the telephone on the table and asked Williams, his secretary, who sat in the outer office, to get Mr. Wright at the Belmont News on the line for him.

Judge Gilbert's offices consisted of an outer room where sat his secretary; within, where Kerr and his lieutenants were in conference, was the library, a large room looking out on the main thoroughfare of Belmont; and from this, opposite the outer reception room, then opened, two smaller rooms, one of which Gilbert used as his private office, the other as a room for consultations.

When Gilbert finished telephoning, he said, "He's busy going over the proofs of some late stuff for this afternoon's paper, but he'll be over in half an hour or so."

CHAPTER XII.

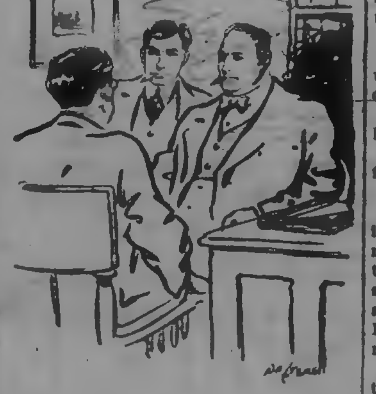
When Gloria found that the Presbyterian Mission was in need of money in order to extend its work, she suggested to Mrs. Hayes that they go among their friends, explain the situation and ask money for their charity. One of the first upon whom they called was Judge Gilbert. Williams explained that the judge was busy for a few minutes and asked them to be seated. He did not know if the men cared to be bothered with mere women on such a day.

When Williams announced that Miss Kerr and Mrs. Hayes wished to see him, Judge Gilbert asked Kerr if he knew the meaning of the visit.

"They got some sort o' mission work they're beggin' for. It's just a polite shake down."

"I didn't know she had taken it up that seriously. I just thought she went down with Mrs. Hayes out of curi- ception room, there opened two osity."

"Women is queer creatures, Amos. Gloria's spendin' lots of her time with Sam's wife savin' souls. You're in for it. She got me to subscribe a hundred dollars. Wanted my name to head the list. I told her to put me down as Cheerful Giver. Said I was castin' bread on the water without any hope o' gittin' it back. Them mission things is usually fakes."



"Them Mission Things Is Usually Fakes."

The boss' further opinion concerning settlement work was not voiced because, while Kerr was talking, Judge Gilbert had telephoned Williams to usher Mrs. Hayes and Miss Kerr into the library.

Followed by the other men, Gilbert advanced to meet them, and after the usual greetings had been exchanged, offered them chairs.

"You must pardon us," began Mrs. Hayes. "We did not expect to find you so busy. To tell the truth, we didn't expect to find two persons here whom we have already visited." She looked at Kerr and her husband.

"I'm the Cheerful Giver," said Kerr with a humorous grimace which pretended to show that the donation was not so cheerfully parted with.

"I'm not so cheerful, but I was a giver," added Dr. Hayes.

"I told Judge Gilbert to lock the safe, that I knew you would be after money," Kerr continued.

"Highway robbers, I call them," was Dr. Hayes' testimony this time.

"A bad reputation they've given us, Judge Gilbert," laughed Gloria, "and we don't deserve it, indeed we don't."

Kerr walked into the private office and Gilbert, catching his eye, followed him. The boss said something; Gilbert looked at the women and then nodded his head in assent. Dr. Hayes, also catching the boss' eye, strolled away from the group casually as the judge rejoined it. A word with him was all that Kerr required. The master of Locust Lawn was setting the stage with an eye that overlooked no detail. There was too much at stake for him to neglect to interpolate anything effective which chance might throw in his way.

As the two men walked back into the library, Mrs. Hayes was saying:

"Dr. Hayes and I have had quite an argument, and here are the lawyers, Gloria, who can settle the question for us. Can a woman steal from her husband, Mr. Kendall?"

Kendall knitted his brows in perplexity. "Really, Mrs. Hayes, that is a question I shall have to take under advisement."

"But a man can steal from his wife," Gloria put in. There was a general laugh at this which she did not relish. "I'm talking seriously. If it weren't so, we mightn't be here begging money."

"So you are after money," said Judge Gilbert lightly. "Then you must tell me why I should contribute to keep men from stealing from their wives, you who have no one to steal from you."

Gloria was not to be diverted from what she had to say. These men to whom she was talking represented to her what was best in Belmont, what was best in manhood. She wished them to see the truth as she saw it.

"It isn't that kind of stealing," she went on; "it's worse than that. Till I went with Mrs. Hayes to visit the mission I had no idea of the degradation and misery in a town even like Belmont. When I say men steal from their wives I mean they take money they should spend on their families and spend it for whisky and gambling.

"I think it's a shame that such men as you, Judge Gilbert, and you, Dr. Hayes, and you, Father, of all persons permit such things to happen here in Belmont. I wish I were a man!"

"You can't keep people from spending their money," said Kerr, as he looked at his watch.

Dr. Hayes caught the slight nod the boss gave, and said something to his wife. Then, interrupting the discussion, he said to Gloria:

"I'm already on the list of cheerful givers, Miss Kerr, and I'm going to ask if you'll let me carry off Mrs. Hayes for half an hour or so."

"But I'm only assisting her," she replied in surprise.

"You can tell Judge Gilbert about it even better than she can. I know how it is when married ladies come to my office and when unmarried ladies come."

"Yes," laughed his wife, "he keeps me poor, contributing to things that are none of our business just because pretty girls come in and he can't refuse them. Dr. Hayes says we won't be long, Gloria. You don't mind, do you?"

"Of course not. Where shall I meet you?"

"We'll come back here."

Gloria turned from saying goodby to Mrs. Hayes to find only her father in the room with her. Kendall and Judge Gilbert had withdrawn to the latter's private office.

"Where's Joe Wright been keepin' himself?" asked Kerr suddenly.

The girl did not betray the slightest interest in the question. She took her time about answering, and when she spoke it was in the most nonchalant manner.

"Mr. Wright? Oh, he's in Belmont."

"You don't go with him like you used to. He ain't been to Locust Lawn once."

"He says he's busy when I see him. I meet him occasionally."

"I thought you and him was good friends."

"Oh, we are."

Although she answered his questions in an off-hand manner, her father was not deceived. From what he had been told and also from what he had observed, he felt that his daughter had a genuine regard for the owner of the Belmont News. Of its depth he could not decide.

"He ain't been near you for a long time."

"I'm not bothering about him. I'm not bothering particularly about anyone."

The girl was glad that at this moment Judge Gilbert came from his private office. Her father was questioning her about matters she preferred to keep to herself.

"If Miss Gloria can spare you, Mr. Kerr," said the judge, "Mr. Kendall would like to see you in my office. I've come back to be persuaded that I ought to join the cheerful givers."

MRS. WINN'S ADVICE TO WOMEN

Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and be Restored to Health.

Kansas City, Mo.—"The doctors told me I would never be a mother. Every month the pains were so bad that I could not bear my weight on one foot. I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and had not finished the first bottle when I felt greatly relieved and I took it until it made me sound and well, and I now have two fine baby girls. I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for what it has done for me. I always speak a word in favor of your medicine to other women who suffer when I have an opportunity." — Mrs. H. T. WINN, 1225 Freemont Ave., Kansas City, Mo.

Read What Another Woman says:

Cumming, Ga.—"I tell some suffering woman every day of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and what it has done for me. I could not eat or sleep, had a bad stomach and was in misery all the time. I could not do my housework or walk any distance without suffering great pain. I tried doctors' medicines and different patent medicines but failed to get relief. My husband brought home your Vegetable Compound and in two weeks I could eat anything, could sleep like a healthy baby, and walk a long distance without feeling tired. I can highly recommend your Vegetable Compound to women who suffer as I did, and you are at liberty to use this letter."—Mrs. CHARLIE BAGLEY, R. 2, Cumming, Ga.

Cold Scorn.

Two New York men were touring Ireland last summer by automobile. On a hot July afternoon they came to an inn. Stopping, they went into the bar. A red cheeked peasant girl was the barmaid. The travelers ordered Irish and soda. The girl served them and then went on with her interrupted work of wiping the bar. One of the men tasted his drink and found it tepid.

"I say, my girl," he said, "won't you please put some ice in these drinks?"

Her mouth went wide open, and the mopping cloth was poised in midair. Amaze held her silent for a moment. Then she found tongue in a hurry.

"Ice, is it? And who the —— ever heard of ice in July?"

Whereupon she fell to polishing again.—New York Times.

WHEN BABY SUFFERS FROM CONSTIPATION

Mothers, if your baby suffers from constipation, if his little stomach or bowels are out of order, give him Baby's Own Tablets. They never fail to give relief and an occasional dose will banish constipation and keep the stomach and bowels in perfect order. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. J. H. Gagnon, St. Simon, Que., writes: "I cannot recommend Baby's Own Tablets too highly as a cure for constipation as I have found them the very best medicine in the world for this trouble." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Postal Traffic Grows.

The annual report of the Postmaster-General shows that 633,470,000 letters were carried through the mails in 1912-13, as shown by the sale of stamps. The net revenue of the fiscal year ending March, 1913, showed an increase of $1,578,221.04 over the year previous, as compared with an increase of $550,973.79 for 1910, and $478,001.65 for 1903.

Ontario leads the provinces in the postoffice statistics, with 262,333,000 letters for 1913, 36,485,000 postcards, 5,728,000 registered letters, 12,715,000 free letters, 6,215,000 newspapers, 59,180,000 circulars, 5,473,000 packets of merchandise, and 9,229 closed parcels for abroad.

Nobleman Roughing It.

A romantic story has been told at Magrath, Alberta. In the village of Welling, four miles east of Magrath, live a couple styling themselves Lord and Lady Mouston, who are said to belong to the English nobility. Lord Mouston works as a farm laborer, and his wife teaches school in a way which has endeared her to all who come in contact with her. Lord Mouston says he lost his fortune through investments in Transvaal mining stocks; then came to Canada, where he hopes, some day, to make sufficient money on a farm to enable him to reclaim the family estate, now owned by a wealthy merchant of London.

Queer Habit.

"Has that young man any bad habits?" asked the cautious father.

"No," replied Gladys Jane. "He never goes into a saloon."

"I know. But he looks as if he spent a terrible amount of time hanging around gents' furnishing stores."—Washington Star.

Woman's World

The Latest White House Bride a Social Favorite.

Photograph of Mr. McAdoo copyright by American Press Association.

SECRETARY M'ADOO AND THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER.

The youngest daughter of President Wilson, chosen as a bride by William Gibbs McAdoo, secretary of the treasury, is one of the most attractive and democratic young women who ever graced the White House. Tall above the average, with a slender and willowy figure, she commands attention wherever she appears. Her blue eyes are fringed with heavy lashes and arched by dark brows. Her mouth is expressive, and she has the chin that characterizes all the president's daughters. Her complexion is a fine clear one, and her shapely head is crowned with masses of soft dark hair. Her smile is a singularly attractive one. She has a keen sense of humor.

She plays tennis, rides, drives, swims, rows and is fond of dancing. Like her sisters, she is a good linguist, speaking French and German fluently. From her mother she acquired a taste for art. She spent several years at an art school and paints very well. She has studied music and is a charming singer.

At Cornish, N. H., where the Wilsons spent last summer, she was the most popular member of the colony. Actively interested in the question of the protection of bird life, she lent her influence to making the performance of Percy Mackaye's bird masque "Sanctuary" an artistic and financial success. As Ornis, the bird spirit, she was much admired.

Fond of society and a diplomat in her dealings with it, there is no question that the bride of Secretary McAdoo will become a notable figure in Washington's official set.

Nuff Sed.

"I noticed that you nodded to that young couple at the next table. Don't think me curious, but I am interested. They seem to be perfectly happy together, and that condition is so rare among young married people that I want to know about it. I don't believe they've ever had a quarrel. Please tell me about their circumstances."

"Why, he's a traveling man. What chance have they to be happy? He's only home once a month."

"Ah, I see!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

When I was sick the queerest things
I sometimes saw at night!
And oncet there was a cat with wings
Kept comin' round to fight!
And oncet a great big burglar thief
Was crawling on the floor!
And oncet a monst'ous Injun chief
Was standin' in the door!
And oncet I tumbled down a well—
I didn't seem asleep—
And miles and miles and miles I fell,
For it was awful deep!
I felt so funny, for I thought
I'd surely strike my head.
But at the bottom I was caught
All safe awake in bed!

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE HAT CASE.

Editor Review:
Dear Sir—

I see an account in your paper of how Mr. Dumble settled a case over a hat and took the hat himself for his trouble. This seems to be a rather unusual way for a magistrate to act, and if it is not in accordance with the rules of the court should surely be put a stop to.

Yours truly,
CITIZEN.

MANIFESTO IS ISSUED

An Appeal to Vote for Temperance Candidates

TORONTO, June 6.—With the president, Rev. Canon Green, in the chair, the Ontario Branch of the Dominion Alliance, at a lengthy session of the executive in the city yesterday, unanimously adopted a manifesto bearing upon the pending provincial elections.

The manifesto reviews the temperance situation in the province for several years past and calls upon the electors of Ontario to secure the nomination and election of men who will represent the people upon the issue.

"We urge all right-thinking citizens to put their temperance principles before any mere party preferences in the approaching contest," continues the manifesto, "and vote only for candidates who can be relied upon to support the most advanced temperance measure brought before the Legislature."

FRENCH CABINET

New Premier Has Practically Completed Ministry

PARIS, June 6. — Rene Viviani, Minister of Public Instruction, has accepted the Premiership in a new Cabinet to take the place of that which resigned early in the week, and last night promised to communicate to President Poincare to-day the names of the other members of his Cabinet. Except for some unforeseen contingency, the personnel of the new Government will be as follows:

Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, Rene Viviani; Minister of Justice, Bienvenu Martin; Finance, Joseph J. B. E. Noulens; Interior, Louis J. Malvy; War, Adolphe Messimy; Marine, Armand E. Gauthier; Public Works, Fernand David; Colonies, Millies La Croix; Commerce, Gaston Thomson; Agriculture, Maurice Raynaud; Labor, M. Godard; Public Instruction, Rene Renoult; Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs, Abel Ferry; Interior, M. Jacquier; Fine Arts, M. Maunoury.

DOYLE ON WAY WEST

LONDON, Ont., June 6.—Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, passing through London yesterday, declared that as a British tariff reformer, he was much struck by the way in which American industrial concerns are forced to establish branch factories in Canada.

As to woman's suffrage Sir Arthur declared that through the tactics of the militant the cause of suffrage in England is now completely lost.

He predicted a general election in Great Britain in the near future.

Sir Arthur is en route for British Columbia, where he intends to spend a short time in the mountains.

Bernhardt's Farewell Tour.

NEW YORK, June 6.—Madame Sarah Bernhardt, aged 70, will sail for this city on Oct. 10 to begin a professional tour of the world, during which she will visit five continents. The tour will extend over a period of twenty-six months, and several months of the time will be spent in the United States and Canada.

New Orleans is to have a 7,000 acre orange grove on its outskirts.

Montana and Idaho have a nine-hour day for working women.

WOMAN WHO ADDRESSED THE KING IS DISOWNED BY MILITANT SUFFRAGETTES

Intense Nervousness Reigns Among Court Officials as Result of Successful Approach to His Majesty and Garden Party is Dropped This Year.

LONDON, June 6.—Officials of the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant suffragette oganization, deny responsibility for the incident at Buckingham Palace Thursday night, when a woman interrupted the presentations by throwing herself at the King's feet and shouting: "Your majesty, for God's sake do not use force."

Miss Mary Blomfield, daughter of Lady Sara Louise Blomfield, widow of Sir Arthur Blomfield, an architect, was the woman who created the scene and she alone was concerned in the incident, although her sister, who also attended the court, was requested to leave the palace after the occurrence despite the fact that she took no part in the demonstration. She left without making any protest.

It is understood that there is no ground for further action against Miss Mary Blomfield except that she will be banned from future court functions.

According to The Standard seven forged cards of admission were presented at the court but all the forgeries were detected and the bearers of the cards persuaded to leave without creating a disturbance.

According to The Daily Express Queen Mary remarked after the Blomfield incident: "If this had been the worst thing the women had done they might perhaps be forgiven."

It is reported that Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary, have decided to hold no garden party at Buckingham Palace this year, because this function, to which thousands of invitations are issued, would give too great an opportunity to the suffragettes to create scenes. It is also stated that the invitation list to Thursday's night court was so rigorously scrutinized that the invitation of three women were withdrawn by special messengers.

Open air suffragette meetings at Balham and other places in London Thursday night were broken up by the irate crowds.

Rectors Fear Militants.

LONDON, June 6.—In consequence of militant suffragette attacks, churches in many parts of the country are being closed except for the usual Sunday services. A sample of the notices posted by the rectors is as follows: "Owing to dastardly outrages by frenzied criminals who have no regard for God or man, this church will be closed except during the hours of divine service."

Redmond Bars Suffragettes.

LONDON, June 6.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, yesterday declined a request by Irish women suffragists that he receive a deputation on the subject of the inclusion of women as electors for the Irish Parliament. Mr. Redmond pointed out that previous deputations of this nature had caused only unpleasantness, and reiterated the view that Ireland under home rule must decide for herself whether she wants women voters.

STRONG FEELING AT ASSEMBLY THAT TIME IS NOT RIPE FOR UNION

Meeting For Those Opposed to Church Union is Attended by Nearly a Third of the Delegates at Presbyterian Gathering in Woodstock—Dr. A. S. Grant Resigns Post.

WOODSTOCK, June 6.—On account of the determined opposition of many of the delegates attending the general assembly of the Presbyterian Church here the opinion is expressed that the effort to promote church union will be discontinued for the present. Those opposing union held a meeting yesterday in the Carnegie library, at which nearly one-third of the delegates were present. Rev. R. G. Macbeth presided. It was decided to make a proposal to the assembly, probably to-day, that the subject be dropped. The stand taken by opponents is that the time is not ripe for a decision, and that the issue should be decided by a vote of all the members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

The church union committee met again all day but it is understood that they cannot arrive at a conclusion. Those members of the committee opposing union, it is said, will not agree to any terms short of the shelving of the subject.

At the morning sitting it was decided by a large majority to accept the invitation of Dr. Jordan, moderator of the presbytery of Kingston, that next year's assembly be held in that city. Invitations from Victoria, B.C., Saskatoon, Sask., and Sydney, N.S., were also received.

Rev. William Munro, in presenting the report of the eastern section of home missions, said the salaries of ordained missionaries will be raised to one thousand dollars. Mr. Munro presented a resolution to this effect, which was carried.

The report of the augmentation committee contained several recommendations regarding the salary to be paid in the Maritime Provinces. Rev. W. P. Spencer moved that the minimum stipend there be one thousand dollars and a manse or free house, and that augmented congregations shall give no less than six hundred dollars and a free house. This was approved.

Considerable discussion arose during the afternoon session over the report of the committee on "overtures re standards," submitted by Rev. Dr. D. D. McLeod, of Barrie. The report stated that an elder in the church could not be appointed moderator. Judge Forbes, late moderator of the presbytery of St. John, N.B., when it was moved that the report be adopted vigorously protested against there being any distinction made between an elder and a minister.

The report on the motion of Judge Forbes was laid on the table.

Rev. A. S. Grant, D.D., of Toronto, head of the western section of the board of home missions and chairman of the finance board of the Presbyterian Church, has resigned. It became known last night that, after making a spirited address on home missions on Thursday night before the assembly he handed his resignation to the moderator, Dr. W. S. Herridge. He relinquishes all offices held, including membership in several minor committees.

When Dr. Herridge received the written resignation Thursday night he kept his own counsel regarding it in the hope that Dr. Grant could be prevailed upon to reconsider it.

Dr. Grant declined to-day to discuss the reason for his action.

SIXTY BODIES UNIDENTIFIED

QUEBEC, June 6.—According to Coroner Jolicouer, the number of unidentified bodies here is about 69, which means that about 128 out of the 188 brought up from Rimouski have been claimed.

Yesterday's identifications were: Miss Jennie Newton, Toronto, identified by W. Cook, her nephew.

Laura Tuffley, identified by Mrs. Drinkwater, Kamloops, B.C.

Mrs. George Bolton, Toronto, identified by sister-in-law, Mrs. Cascadas.

Mrs. Stevenson, identified by husband, Edmonton.

T. Scott, baby, and Thomas Usher Scott, identified by R. Purvis.

Ruling Passion.

"What were you doing off your beat at 5:30 yesterday afternoon?" asked the chief of police of the Chicago policewoman.

"Oh, you see, there was no mirror outdoors on my beat, and I went over a few blocks where I knew there was one to see if my helmet was on straight," was the frank reply.—Yonkers Statesman.

Business and Pleasure.

"Doctor, your examination of my eyes is very long," said the beautiful girl. "Do you apprehend anything serious?"

"No, my dear young lady, but it is such a pleasure to gaze into such lovely eyes and also get $2 per visit."—Pittsburgh Post.

BOARD OF EDUCATION DEAL WITH ROUTINE BUSINESS

At a meeting of the Board of Education held last evening it was decided after a short discussion to refer the refusals of the contractors Messrs. Johnston, Sheehy and Langford, to accept the award for extras for the two new schools, back to the Building Committee. Messrs. Sheehy and Langford are content to accept the amount set by the Board but Contractor Johnston claims an extra $125.

T. B. McGrath representing the Separate Schools was formally welcomed to the Board.

Leave of absence was granted to Mr. Stacey, Assistant Principal of the South Central, and Miss Minnie Warner of the Public School Staff owing to illness. Both have reliable substitutes according to the verbal report of School Inspector Mowat.

A communication received from the Deputy Minister of Education was to the effect that Public Schools would not be required this year for Model School purposes owing to the fact that the Model School would be discontinued at the Normal School. The schools were used by the Model teachers for practice purposes.

Applications.

Applications for positions on the teaching staff of the Public School staff were received from Misses L. Devell, city, Gladys Moore, Lakefield; Eva L. Furse, city; Ruby M Fusse, city; E. M. Outram, city, and R. Voader, Lindsay.

It was decided that the filling of any vacancies that may occur on the staff at present or end of term, be referred to the Committee of Appointments.

In confirming the payment of the accounts, Mr. Smith contended that the item of W. James for grading, etc., Queen Mary School was to his mind rather high. Such work as this could be tendered on. People had asked him why they were not given the privilege of tendering on this work. Members of the Board pointed out to Mr. Smith why they had to do this. Owing to the fact that it was impossible to know what work would have to be done in connection with the grading and what the costs, they were of the opinion that it was far better to take action such as has been followed.

Insurance for Schools.

"Why how often does a school house burn down," smiled Mr. Smith, in speaking of the terms of insurance for the various schools. Mr. Eastwood read the report. It was decided to put more insurance on the King Edward School and make some changes in the insurance program. The matter will be dealt with at a future meeting of the Board.

Mr. Crane of the Supervision Committee stated that more time would be needed to investigate into the matter of opening the Collegiate for the county pupils. This was discussed at a former meeting and the matter left in the hands of the Supervision Committee.

Collegiate Attendance.

The attendance at the Collegiate Institute for the month was:

| Form. | Enrolled. | Average. |
|---|---|---|
| 5 | 16 | 15 |
| 4 | 36 | 36 |
| 3 | 31 | 30 |

The usual reports were read.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by Official Scribe.

There was a fair attendance of delegates at the regular meeting of the Council on Wednesday last. President J. J. Hartley occupied the chair.

Government Labor Bureau.

A reply to the request for a Government Labor Bureau stated that it was too late in the session to deal with the question, but it would be considered early in the next session, probably about six months' hence.

Bancroft-Gibbons' Testimonial.

A communication was received from Toronto Trades and Labor Council with reference to the proposed Bancroft-Gibbons testimonial. Every worker in the Province of Ontario should take this opportunity of showing their appreciation of the excellent work done by Bros. Fred Bancroft and Joe Gibbons in connection with the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The Political Situation.

An interesting discussion took place with reference to the forthcoming Provincial elections. Several of the delegates were of the opinion that the Trades and Labor Council should nominate a candidate to uphold the cause of labor, and it was suggested that Bro. Dave Moore, formerly President of the Council be asked to accept the nomination. It was pointed out that a thorough organization of the workers was necessary to ensure success and it would not be wise to enter a candidate at this time, as only a few weeks would elapse before the elections took place. It was finally decided not to enter the contest, but it was strongly urged that the work of organization proceed at once, and that candidates be prepared to contest all elections.

Still They Come.

It was reported that a meeting in connection with the organization of the laborers had been held on the previous Monday evening. The result was most satisfactory and an application for a charter had been sent to the International Hod Carriers' Building and Common Laborers' Union of America.

Letter to Board of Works.

It was alleged that the City Dads had been handing out work to a certain local firm without having given other firms in the same line of business an opportunity to put in contracts. The Secretary was instructed to write to the Board of Works with reference to this matter.

A Pleased Customer

MIDLAND, Ont., May 12, 1914.

MR. A. A. FOWLER,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I am very pleased to advise that the glasses with which you fitted me some weeks ago, are giving me good satisfaction. I have been wearing them ever since received, and they certainly are a great improvement over the ones which I had been wearing previously.

Wish you would please send me up a few of those books for cleaning the lens, and if there is any charge, would be pleased to remit.

Thanking you for your favors.

Yours very truly,

LOCAL MARKET

The market this morning showed considerable improvement over the market of a few weeks back, both sellers and purchasers being present in large number. The untiring efforts of the Board of Trade and Retail Merchants in securing a morning train on the C.P.R. coming from Lindsay to bring passengers from small points north of Peterboro has already shown results, there being many new faces in the auditorium this morning. The farmers of this vicinity are having their off season between seeding and harvesting which undoubtedly assists in bringing them out in larger numbers.

Eggs sold from 19 to 21 cents although some parties asked as high as 23 cents. From general reports, the price of eggs is about to decrease. Butter remains around 24 and 26 cents.

On the market hay returned to $20.00 per ton after spending a few weeks in the Alpine region of $22. Potatoes can still be secured for $1.50 while apples call for $1.25 and $1.50. One farmer had three or four lots of chickens for sale and was asking $1.00 for six. For the hens he was demanding 90 cents each.

TERENCE O'GRADY'S RUSE

How He Saved His Head From the Block

By NORA O'NEIL

When James II. was king of England he would have liked to re-establish the Catholic religion, but he was driven out, William and Mary coming over from Holland to sit on his throne. Ireland, being largely Catholic, supported James, but the English people having become almost exclusively Protestant, though the Catholic Stuarts made several attempts to regain a scepter to which by right of inheritance they were entitled, the Protestant Hanoverian kings became a fixture and sit on the throne of England, Ireland and Scotland today.

Terence O'Grady's grandfather or some one away back in the line was a younger son, and Terence was not especially blessed with this world's goods. Being born a gentleman, he had little taste for hard work, and this gave him abundance of time to get into mischief. He was always seen on the turf when a race was on and, being an excellent judge of a horse, knew how to place what money he had for a stake and always won. He had also a great talent for games and rarely sat down to cards that he did not get up a trifle richer.

Terence was generous to a fault, and, no matter how flat was his pocketbook, he would divide with a friend in need. He was very popular with men, and there was scarcely a girl within a hundred miles of where he lived but was in love with him. Indeed, all the girls roundabout had a chance to make his acquaintance, for, poor as he was, he owned one of the fleetest as well as one of the most enduring mares in Ireland, and instead of staying quietly at home he was constantly flying about, never coming from a foray without bringing with him a new heart—not that he tried to influence the girls in his favor, but there was something about him that drew them to him as flies are drawn to sugar.

There was one girl, Kitty O'Neill, on whom Terence lavished all his bountiful affection. Kitty lived at Ballingarry, a long way from Terence's home, but that didn't matter as long as he owned Bess and would rather be in the saddle than anywhere else except sparking Kitty. The eighty miles that separated them was no barrier between their loving hearts, and Terence visited his ladylove frequently. Indeed, when inquiry was made for him the usual reply was, "You'll either find him on the road to Miss O'Neill's or with her."

O'Grady and his Bess were known everywhere. Many a time she saved him from the sheriff when that officer came down on him too suddenly for him to raise money to pay a debt. The way he came to own the mare was this: In a certain race Michael Donoghue, a frequenter of the turf, who had no end of money, told Terence that if he would name the winner he would reward him with the horse. Terence named Bess. Donoghue won £1,000 on the race, bought Bess for £500 and gave her to Terence. Her new owner entered her for several races and won enough money to set him well up, but he either spent it or gave it away. So in the end he had nothing left but the mare.

Terence was not caught in anything treasonable, always lighting on his feet like a cat after being thrown in the air, till one day a Scotchman, Alexander MacDougall, came to Ireland and stopped awhile in the County Tipperary, where Terence lived. No one could find out what was MacDougall's business or what brought him to Ireland. Then came reports from over the Irish channel that Prince Charlie had come from France, landed on the Scotch coast at the head of a considerable force and, marching toward London, was being joined as he proceeded by the Scotch clans.

It was known to the English government that emissaries had been sent to Ireland to rouse the people to assist Prince Charlie to regain his throne and that MacDougall was one of them. But while the sympathies of the Irish were with the prince there was no nucleus in Ireland about which to gather, and no movement was made in his favor. This was fortunate, for at the battle of Culloden the Stuart forces were routed by the Duke of Cumberland's army, and there followed a series of executions that drained Scotland of her best blood.

While these things were in progress Terence O'Grady, who was in favor of the movement to put Prince Charlie on the throne of England, was as sure to get himself into trouble as a frog is to jump from a log into the water and was in constant conference with MacDougall. One Hugh Handiside had been sent out by George II. from London to keep an eye on the Scotchman and nip in the bud any effort he might make in behalf of the prince. MacDougall soon got Terence under his influence, and the two were in constant secret communication. Handiside soon became aware of this, but was unable to gain any proof of it. There was no rebellion in Ireland, and the Englishman had been instructed to act within the law or not at all, for the government did not wish to inflame the smoldering sympathy with the Scotch movement.

However, Handiside kept a watch on the house where MacDougall was lodged day and night. One evening, just before dark, he saw O'Grady enter the house. He was admitted by MacDougall, and the door closed. In a few minutes a light appeared in a room on the second floor of the house, and Handiside knew that there would be a political conference between the two men. Handiside had found one person in the place who was an enemy of O'Grady, a man of the name of Rafferty, whom O'Grady had cuffed for rudeness to a woman. Handiside went after Rafferty and told him to come with him. On nearing MacDougall's house Handiside pointed out an apple tree growing near the window where the two conspirators were deliberating and told him to climb it, look in at the window and see what he could to fix treason on O'Grady.

Rafferty climbed the tree, found the sash lifted and heard O'Grady propose to raise a hundred men in the county to aid the cause of Prince Charlie. But Rafferty's presence was made known to the man within by the breaking of a branch. O'Grady thrust a candle from the window and saw his enemy. He did not know that Handiside had instructed the spying, but he knew that he would be arrested and tried for treason. And since it was well known that the government was hunting for some one to make an example of he would probably lose his head.

Something must be done to counteract the evidence that had been obtained against him. But what could be done? As soon as Handiside could swear out a warrant against him Terence would be arrested. Fortunately no court would sit till morning, and no warrant could be obtained till then. Terence had many friends who would have hidden him, but such a plan would be a mere makeshift, and for the present he would be obliged to continue in hiding indefinitely.

In times requiring quick action we not unnaturally turn to that with which we are familiar. Leaving MacDougall, Terence went by a roundabout way to the stable where he kept Bess and, mounting, set out for Ballingarry.

It was 10 o'clock when he started, but for half the night he had the moon to light the way, and fortunately Bess had not been out of the stable for a day and a half. She went off like a shot, knowing by the prick of the spur and the touch of the whip that quick work was required. It was not only quick work, but endurance, that was needed to save her master's life. While on the way Terence thought that he might better make for the coast and escape in that way; but, considering the times, he feared that the shore would be guarded and flight would be an acknowledgment of the truth of the accusation that would be brought against him. So he kept on his course.

He had eighty miles to go, but it might not be necessary for Bess to do it all. She did twenty miles when Terence gave her water and half an hour's rest. Then she did twenty miles more, but in much slower time. After another rest she did ten miles, when Terence, coming to a barn at 3 o'clock in the morning, borrowed a horse of a farmer whom he awakened, explaining his necessity and leaving Bess as security.

At a quarter to 6 he rode into Ballingarry, and since it was Sunday he found the people already turning out for early mass. Leaving his horse at a stable, he went to the church and after mass asked for a few words with the priest. He was taken into the pastor's private room, and he handed the father a guinea as an offering to the poor of the parish. He hoped by this to fix the fact on the priest's mind that he had been at early mass on Sunday morning.

Terence breakfasted with Kitty O'Neill and told her of the ruse by which he hoped to save his head. He remained at Ballingarry all day and that night. The next morning he made his way back home, picking up Bess and riding leisurely into town during the evening. Handiside was watching for him, and as soon as he appeared he was arrested under a king's warrant and thrown into jail.

Terence was not tried till the rebellion had failed and the government had begun sending those who had been concerned in it to the block. Then he was arraigned for treason to his majesty George II., king of England, in conspiring on a certain night to incite and take part in rebellion. MacDougall had fled, and the only possible evidence against O'Grady was that of Rafferty, who swore that on the evening of the 25th of April from the branches of a tree he had seen the prisoner through an open window and heard him tell MacDougall that he would furnish a hundred men to aid in placing Prince Charlie on the British throne.

O'Grady's counsel sent to Ballingarry for the priest who had seen his client at early mass on Sunday morning, April 26, and received a guinea for the poor of the parish. Kitty O'Neill also gave her evidence as well as several other persons who had seen Terence at mass. It was admitted that he would not have been likely to be in one place between 9 and 10 o'clock at night and in another eighty miles distant at 6 o'clock the next morning. So the case fell to the ground, the government released the prisoner, and, Ireland not having taken any part in the rebellion, there were no further prosecutions.

Not long after this Kitty O'Neill inherited some land from a relative. She and Terence O'Grady were married and settled down, Terence giving her charge of all their funds. She had a hard time with him for awhile to keep him from getting into debt, but finally he became used to the new regime, and they got on swimmingly.

Chow Chow Dog That Came From China.

About ten or twelve years ago there was imported into this country from China a dog that has become very popular and may be seen at all the big shows. The species are called chow chows, but of late this name has been abbreviated into just plain chow. The chows originally came from Siberia, where they were used to draw sledges. In China these dogs were improved and developed into very companionable house dogs. The chow has so thick and even a coat of long hair that when it is pressed down it rises again just as a sheep's wool will do. It has one characteristic that makes it different from all other breeds of dogs—a black tongue. Many dogs have black roofs to their mouths, but no chow is of the pure breed that has not a black tongue. There are two varieties commonly seen in this country, one all red and the other all black. The reds are the most often seen. The chow is a good tempered little animal, with a rather comical expression. For those who are fond of dogs, and most young people are, the chow is an affectionate and jolly companion. The chow pictured here won a prize at the last dog show in New York. He is of the red variety and is of the purest blood. As the picture shows, the chow is of compact and sturdy frame. He is of lively disposition and carries his tail tightly curled over the back.

The Traveling Ring.

The conjurer asks members of his audience to bind his hands behind him after he has seated himself in a chair among them. With his hands bound securely, making it possible for him to move but a few inches, he asks that somebody take a ring from his or her finger and place it in his teeth. Then he asks that they place a screen before him in order that the ring may not be embarrassed in their presence.

This accomplished, he asks them which of his fingers he shall make the ring leap upon. Of course everybody names a certain finger, and a moment later he asks that he may be released, when the ring is discovered resting upon that finger. Here is the way the trick is done. Immediately after you have been placed behind the screen lean slightly forward and permit the ring to drop into your lap. Then slowly let it slip between your legs to the chair. This must be done carefully or it will be heard as it drops. Then raise yourself, push it back with your body until it is within reach of your fingers. After that it will be easy to slip it on the proper finger.

Birds of a Feather.

"One day two little boys came very late for school. The teacher said to them, 'Come to my desk, boys.' And the boys came to the teacher's desk, looking at him as if they were going to cry. These boys' names were John and Benjamin. They were very good boys.

"And when they came to the teacher's desk the teacher said to John, 'Why are you so late?' and John said to the teacher, 'I overslept myself, teacher, and I dreamed I took a journey to New York, and just as I got to the station I awoke.' And the teacher said to Benjamin, 'Why are you so late?' and Benjamin said, 'I dreamed that I was standing by the station waiting for John.'"

Riddles.

Why should doctors be less liable than others to be upset on the ocean? Because they are more used to see sickness.

Why is gout like reciprocated love? Because it's a joint affection.

Why should soldiers be rather tired on the 1st of April? Because they have just had a march of thirty-one days.

Rights and Lefts.

Said the Right Hand to the Left Hand:
"You're lazy, sister dear.
I do three-fourths of all our work,
Though you are always near."

Said the Left Hand to the Right Hand,
"'Tis saddest truth you sing,
Yet when our lady's married
'Tis I will get the ring."

Said the Right Foot to the Left Foot:
"I find you very slow.
'Tis always I who makes a start
Whene'er abroad we go."

Said the Left Foot to the Right Foot,
"Of critics I'm the worst.
Still when we get in trouble
Don't you also get there first?"

BIGGEST ON RECORD.

New Gas Well Flowing at Rate of Forty Million Feet a Day.

PETROLEO, June 6.—Without exception the largest gas well ever struck in Canada was discovered on Thursday in Oil Springs, by the local gas company, with which is associated W. J. Aikens of Brantford. The well is about seven hundred feet to the southeast of the famous Fairbanks gas well, struck several months ago. The gas was encountered on Thursday at a depth of about 1,900 feet, and the supply increased as the well was being drilled deeper, until the pressure was so great that it blew the drill sinker, weighing more than a thousand pounds, through the top of the derrick, forcing the men to run for safety.

The well is flowing at the rate of easily forty million feet per day, and it can be heard over ten miles away. An effort will be made to cap the well to-day by experts, but great difficulty will be experienced. The supply of gas from this one well is great enough to supply all the cities, towns, and villages between Sarnia, Petrolea, and Hamilton.

The appliances for capping the well are being prepared by a special force of workmen. The roar from the well can be compared only to the roar of Niagara Falls.

MUNITIONS ARE LANDED.

U. S. Government Permits Passage of Arms to Carranza.

WASHINGTON, June 6.—Information reaching Washington late yesterday that the American schooner Sunshine from Galveston had landed ammunition at Tampico for the Mexican Constitutionalists without interference on the part of the United States or the Huerta Government, was received in official quarters here without comment.

State Department and Navy Department officials decline to verify the report, but it was learned that the presence of the Sunshine off Tampico with arms aboard consigned to the Constitutionalists had been known to the Washington Government for several days. The actual delivery of munitions of war to the enemies of Huerta without interference was regarded with significance.

With the Cuban steamer Antilla, en route from New York to Tampico with arms, consigned to Carranza's forces, there has been much speculation as to what the United States would do in case the Huerta Government should attempt a blockade of the port. Every indication to-day was that the United States would maintain its position that Tampico was an open port.

The movement of arms, pending results of mediation at Niagara Falls, and the proposals to the Constitutionalists to participate in the peace negotiations have been followed by rumors of disapproval on the part of the South American mediation envoys.

Secretary Bryan last night flatly declared that the State Department had received no protest from the mediators.

ANDERSEN GETS SYMPATHY.

Collier's Captain Has Many Supporters In City of Montreal.

MONTREAL, June 6.—No further developments in connection with the disaster to the Empress of Ireland have come to light within the past twenty-four hours. The public has settled down to await with patience the official investigation that is to be begun on June 16 with Lord Mersey as chairman of the commission of enquiry, though individuals continue to discuss the divergent statements about the shipwreck made by Captain Kendall of the Empress and Captain Andersen of the Storstad.

Some of the sympathy that was spent on Captani Kendall at the outset has since been diverted to Captain Andersen and the latter has many supporters here.

Premier Would Prosecute.

SYDNEY, Australia, June 6.—Premier Wm. A. Holman of New South Wales, whose comments on the loss of the Empress of Ireland have given rise to much criticism, denies that he prejudged the official enquiry, when he intimated that the Government ought to prosecute the directors of the C. P. R. as accessories of manslaughter. Yesterday the Premier said:

"The fact that the commercial men who agreed to send the public of Canada to Europe did, in fact, send them to the next world is sufficient to put them on trial."

Mayor Wants His Salary.

MONTREAL, June 6. — Mayor Mederic Martin is on strike because he cannot get $325 pay that was handed to his predecessor for two weeks' work before the present chief magistrate was sworn in after election owing to recount troubles. Yesterday morning he refused to attend the meeting of the Board of Control, and his lawyer, J. L. Perron, K.C., sent back a check for $840.22, money already paid his worship, with a notice that the city would be sued for the balance. Mayor Martin has been promised his full salary of $30,000 before his two-year term expires by the Board of Control, but he wants the $325 because he has grocery bills to pay.

Carnegie Makes Gifts.

PITTSBURG, June 6.—Announcement is made that Andrew Carnegie has given another endorsement gift, amounting to $2,000,000, to be divided equally between the Carnegie Institute of Technology and the Carnegie Institute, both of this city. This announcement was made by S. H. Church, president of the board of trustees of the Carnegie Institute, after a meeting of the board. The gift brings Mr. Carnegie's donations to local institutions of learning to $24,000,000.

PETES HAD BIG DAY AT THE BAT AGAINST OTTAWA PITCHERS

Wilcox Had One of the Longest Hits on Senators' Grounds —Dad Stewart Had Four Hits

Ottawa, June 6.—Peterboro and Ottawa staged their second game at Lansdowne Park yesterday afternoon, and Peterboro won out by 11 to 6. The Ottawas gave the most ragged exhibition of fielding ever seen at the local park. Fried booted three in the first two innings, and was then derricked, Wager going to third and Bullock to short. Wager then kicked a couple of runs away. Ottawa rallied with the score 7 to 1 against them, and tallied three in the sixth, but they never had a chance to catch the tailenders, who played fast ball all round.

Sterling pitched a good game, while Peterboro kicked Kane out of the box in the sixth. Lill closed the inning, and gave way to Kubat, who was succeeded by Peterson. Wilcox had a home run over the centrefield fence after one of the longest hits on the local grounds this year. Rogers went from first to home when Lage shot one to right field to "Dad" Stewart who had to relay the threw twice before it got back to the catcher. Powers again starred, stealing second and third, after beating out a bunt. The game became a burlesque towards the finish. Fine weather prevailed, and a big crowd turned out for the first time this week. Score :—

FIELDING AND BATTING

If anyone asks why Ottawa and London are leading the league tell them that class always proves its worth. The unofficial club fielding and batting averages show that the Cockneys and Senators are right up there. The averages which have been compiled are not officia.. They were taken from the box scores of newspaper exchanges. There is always an element of discrepency in the printed scores owing to wire mistakes, typographical errors, etc., but the estimates given below are very near the point. Peterboro is absolutely last in hitting but as the team has come along great in the past week we should not worry about hitting. The averages do not include the forfeited game. They are up to June 4 and follow :

ALLIANCE FIGHTING AGAINST SUNDAY BALL AT HULL

Rev. Dr. Rochester, secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, who will speak in local churches to-morrow, has spent the week end at Ottawa, for the purpose of deciding what action shall be taken in connection with Sunday ball in Hull.

COMMENT

As You Like It

The Petes have Catcher Mully Miller out of the game with a busted hand and First Baseman Swartling out with a bad shoulder, contracted after an attack of pneumonia. Both are Central Leaguers and good men. —Ottawa Citizen.

The Petes had their clouting rags on yesterday. They grabbed fifteen swats of the healthy variety. The boys were real mad, and it is to be hoped that they will keep up the spirit of soreness.

Joe Picard, speaking of the ball team, stated that in his opinion, the team was all right, and all that it needed was three or four pitchers, two catchers, three infielders and three outfielders. Joe says with a little strengthening the team will be O.K.

Hank Dink, manager of the Dink Hollow club, attended the Grit meeting last night. Hank says that as far as he can see Rowell and his supporters have not got a platform at all. Hank remarked that the "bolish the bar" thing was a mere splinter in an invisible platform.

Speaking about his ball team, Hank said that the boys were all in good shape for the elections. He's not going to run himself, but says that he knows who'll be elected. Hank went to New York a few days ago, and Mr. Porter, according to Hank, is some thief. This is Hank's idea of him. "He was a colored gent and jist as I gits into my bed I noticed he tuk all the shoes. None of them must of fitted him as he brought them back. I slept with mine on."

Hank had a great time in New Yawk. He says that the Polo grounds are even better than the grounds at Dink Hollow. He also adds that he discovered perpetual motion. Hank says he discovered it while looking for a dry spot on the towel in Hieny Kibuddler's wash room in Chicago.

Hank had a look at the bridge in Brooklyn off which Brodie jumped and says that he'd give a dime to anyone who could jump over it.

A. Nut, editor of the Keekly Squirrel has gone into the undertaking business. He says trade is dull because the doctors are on their holidays.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

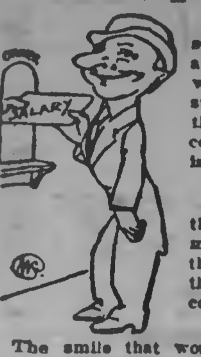
IF a man were born blind to annoyances and alive to opportunities what an irresistible chap he would be.

Nothing is more tiring than to discover that the other fellow has troubles too.

If you don't know just what your deserts are your neighbor can tell you.



Some people seem very much afraid that they will add to the stock of vanity of their friends if a commending word is spoken.

The automobile that makes the most noise isn't the one that ran the farthest or cost the most.

The smile that won't come off is sometimes the one that is drawing a salary.

Most men are kind to their families when there's company.

If everybody were contented what would the politicians do for an issue.

Adversity has its uses, but we aren't alive to them when we are trying to cover 1910 expenses with a salary of the vintage of 1808.

It really never seems to occur to some people to make their best better.

What will be fashionable at Palm Beach this winter isn't especially interesting to the man who hasn't paid for last winter's coal.

A friend warns us to beware of grass widows, but then she is a maiden lady.

Many people who stand around waiting for an opportunity to work immediately get busy when they see it coming—and dodge.

Many a good fellow has started something only to be invited by the officer on the beat to see it through.

Their Favorite Fodder.

"How did it happen you weren't elected?"

"Too many voting cattle."

"They pastured on the long green, I suppose?"

"Yes; I couldn't have kept the pace had I been disposed."

"Now, if chickens could have voted?"

"How would that help?"

"You could have passed around the chicken feed."

Just Tolerated.

This is a woeful world, but still—
No one the fact disputes—
We'll have to stick to it until
We find a world that suits.

Disastrous.

"How did he happen to go to the wall?"

"By reason of his wife's economies."

"Economies! How is that?"

"She was always using $5 worth of new material to fix over a dollar's worth of old stuff and then treating herself to some wild extravagance because she had been so economical."

Shocking.

"Don't ask your husband so many questions, Jane."

"Why not, mamma?"

"It isn't wise."

"But he tells such funny little squibs."

"Yes, but he may tire of it and tell you the truth one of these times."

Ingenious.

"I hate him."

"Why?"

"He lies so about me."

"Who cares for lies, anyway?"

"But he is so clever about it. Every one he tells might be true."

The Difference.

"What is an optimist?"

"The fellow who expects what he most desires."

"And a pessimist?"

"Expects what he most fears."

Companionable.

The odors of the smoking car
Have not the scent of attar
That spreads its perfume sweet afar,
Put, pray, what does that matter?
In it good fellowship indeed
Is found for one another.
The wealthy and the man in need
Mix here as man and brother.

Here men are neither bad nor good.
It's just a common meeting,
Where friendliness is understood
Without a formal greeting.
Here ancient enmities may sink,
Forgotten be, and often
The fellow with a grouchy kink
May find his manner soften.

The match to light a pipe of clay
That ancient is and dingy
Comes from a shark across the way,
That otherwheres is stingy,
And if tobacco should be short
Most any one is willing
To come across and be a sport
Just so a pipe needs filling.

His paper gladly he divides
And to a neighbor passes.
You know a man can't read both sides
With just one pair of glasses.
The high and low their wits unsheathe
To mingle in the joking,
For every one is underneath
The fellowship of smoking.

"If every girl had to make her own graduation gown how few of them would ever graduate."

PITCHFORD-AUSTIN.

St. John's Church was the scene of a pretty June wedding this afternoon at 2.30, when Miss Ethel Ivy Austin, daughter of Mr. John Austin, became the bride of Mr. Thomas Pitchford, son of Mr. Jas. Pitchford, of London Street. Rev. Canon Davidson officiated.

After a short honeymoon the young couple will reside in the city.

H. M. Pearson, son of Rev. E. A. Pearson of Hamilton, was successful in his second year examinations in English and History at Toronto University.

Rev. W. L. Armitage of Toronto, will preach at St. Luke's Church, Sunday morning.

The list of the local honor graduates of the Fourth Year in Medicine at the Toronto University should also have included Mr. Wilbert Hayes, son of Mr. John Hayes, Park Street.

Mr. Herb Conroy of this city, has been successful in obtaining his fourth year in medicine at McGill University.

In the results of first year in Arts at the Toronto University, Meredith Huycke was successful with honors in obtaining first standing in England history and second in classics. Other successful local students were K. J. Corkery, general course, Miss F. C. Galbraith, general course, Miss H. McDonald, general course. Miss F. Potter daughter of Rev. Mr. Potter formerly of St. Andrew's Church was also successful in obtaining her first year in arts.

Mrs. Ellis, of New York, formerly Miss M. Gamble, is in the city for a short time, at the Y.W.C.A., Simcoe Street.

Mrs. R. Johnston of Keene is in the city for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Cobb have sold their home on Aylmer Street, and have gone to spend a month with their son in Montreal. They will spend the remainder of the summer at the seaside.

Mrs. Foy, of Toronto, is in the city the guest of her sister, Mrs. Alex. Gibson, George Street, north.

Mrs. J. McCase of Toronto, is a guest in the city.

Mrs. Willis Chipman, of Toronto, is visiting in the city.

Mr. Frank Travis is spending the week end in Tweed.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.L.A., of Havelock, is a guest of the Oriental to-day.

Mrs. Jas. Fanning, George Street, is in Toronto.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

A meeting of representatives from the Peterboro Presbyterial Societies of the W.F.M.S. and the W.H.M.S. was held in St. Paul's Sunday School on Tuesday morning, June 2nd, to organize under the constitution of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church. The constitution was read and adopted and the following officers were appointed for 1914:

Honorary Presidents:—Mrs. Roger, 309 Park Street, Peterboro; Mrs. Craick, Port Hope.

President, Miss M. Dickson, 490 Dickson Street, Peterboro.

1st Vice President, Mrs. Waddell, Peterboro.

2nd Vice President, Mrs. Beattie, Cobourg.

Treasurer, Mrs. G. M. Roger, Cobourg.

Corresponding Sec., Mrs. Chisholm, 455 Hunter Street, Peterboro.

Recording Sec., Miss Munro, 459 Reid Street, Peterboro.

Mission Band Sec., Mrs. Purdy, Cobourg.

Supply Sec., Mrs. John, 418 Rubidge Street, Peterboro.

Messengers' Sec., Miss M. Robertson, Campbellford.

Strangers' Sec., Miss B. Thomson, Hastings.

On Tuesday afternoon a meeting of delegates from the Auxiliaries was held and the new Constitution was discussed and explained.

The first dance of the season, at the Floating Pavilion, given last evening by the Tool Room Athletic Club, provided a most enjoyable evening for some fifty daintily gowned young ladies and their gallant partners. The weather man must have been reserving all his fine qualities for a week or more, for the night itself was perfect, and not only was the pavilion a scene of activity, but also the river, which was alive with canoes and launches.

The Grand Opera House Orchestra's rendition of suitable dance music was beyond comparison, every number being enthusiastically encored. A few minutes before twelve a special car arrived and conveyed the young people cityward.

The committee, whose efforts resulted in the shining success of the affair was composed of Messrs. K. Galvin, R. Robson, W. Harris, B. Regan and F. Cassidy.

PASSENGERS FEARED FOR LIFE OF ELDERLY LADY

Passengers on the eight o'clock George street car going south last evening were given a shock at the corner of George and Lake Street. At this point the company are laying their new track. An elderly lady who was passing a few yards ahead of the car, tripped and fell. The passengers thought she fell in front of the car and that she would be killed but luckily she escaped the rails by inches. The car was stopped and several gentlemen assisted the lady to her feet and after a few minutes she was able to continue. The only result was a slight cut on her face.

JAIL FOR PAY ROLL PADDERS

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., June 6.—Convicted of padding the payrolls of the Sault Dredging & Construction Co., Nelson Vanluven was yesterday sentenced to three years in Kingston Penitentiary by Judge Stone. Roskelly, an accomplice, who turned King's evidence, was allowed to go on suspended sentence, while Eugene Guzzio and his wife, Maud Guzzio, who cashed the fraudulent checks, were sentenced to two years and one year in prison.

Huge Cost of Armament.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 6. — The Minister of Finance has informed the Budget Committee of the Duma that Russia within the next five years must spend $3,760,000,000 for the army and navy.

New Orleans is to build a $6,000,000 bridge.

RELIEF FUND IS GROWING

London Aid for the Wreck Victims Reaches $120,000

LONDON, June 6.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—Up to last night the Lord Mayor's fund amounted to $120,000 and the Liverpool fund to nearly $70,000. Sir Herbert Tree, in forwarding a check for $461, proceeds of the People's Theatre matinee, mentions that the author Bernard Shaw, and Mrs. Patrick Campbell, both gave their services, and that he makes himself responsible for other expenses. The National Seamen's and Sailors' Union have given $1,500 for dependents of crew.

General Booth opened a fund yesterday. He said the disaster had not only robbed the army of 144 of the most valuable and experienced men and women, but left them with a large number of their orphans and others depending on what they feel they must make provision for.

One of the most impressive scenes ever witnessed within the walls of London's vast hall took place at the Royal Albert Hall last night when a public memorial service for those who lost their lives on the Empress of Ireland by the Salvation Army.

The immense hall with its capacity of fifteen thousand people was filled to the doors, chiefly with Salvationists and friends and also a large number of the general public.

The service opened with a pathetic procession. It consisted of the international staff songsters, carrying their distinctive flags, followed by those members of the Canadian contingent to the international congress who had happily traveled across by other vessels. The Newfoundland party and Indian officers then followed. Relatives and friends of the lost Salvation Army commissioners and their wives came next.

BAND CONCERT ENJOYED.

The music by the 57th band pleased a large gathering at Victoria Park last night. The cornet duet by Lt. Gliddon and Jos. Minicola was a big favorite.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

DAMES AND DAUGHTERS.

Sarah Cornelius of Patchogue, N. Y., is 100 years of age.

Miss Marie Tompkins, a woman of unusual strength, is in charge of the detective squad in a Philadelphia department store.

Lady Paget, wife of Sir Arthur Paget, is planning to raise the sum of $15,000 for a copy of the statue of William Pitt, by MacDowell, to be presented to the United States by American wives of Englishmen.

Dr. Ethel Smyth, musical composer, has announced that she bequeaths the interest of her fortune to the Woman's Social and Political union, to be used for the suffrage cause until the women win the ballot in England.

Miss Emma R. Graves, eighty-two years old, has just rounded out fifty years' service under the government. She is a clerk attached to the office of the registrar of the treasury and detailed to the office of the treasurer of the United States.

Sir Richard's Honor.

In British Columbia they are said to take their politics more seriously than do the Eastern Canadians, but frequently there is a gleam of good-natured humor and badinage in the debates of the British Columbia House.

Not long ago Sir Richard McBride, the Premier of the province, went south and was the guest of a California university, which honored him with the degree of Doctor of Laws.

He returned, took his seat in the House, and the news of his new degree soon became noised abroad in the corridors.

It was not long until a Labor member of the Legislature arose and gravely drew the attention of the M.P.P.'s to a report of the honor done the Premier in a foreign land.

"I congratulate Sir Richard," he said, "for it cannot be gainsaid that he well deserves the degree. He has doctored more laws than any other man in this province!"

And even Sir Richard smiled.—Canadian Courier.

Tries To Recall Case.

OTTAWA, June 6.—William Thoburn (North Lanark) made an unsuccessful effort yesterday morning to have the Vineberg divorce case referred back to the private bills committee for further consideration. Permier Borden declared that the case illustrated the inadequacy of the present proceedings for divorce. If the question was to be considered by the judicial decision of the committee, all members of that committee should have an opportunity of hearing witnesses. Some legislation should be devised whereby a better way than the present could be found.

Thoburn's motion was voted down.

CANADIAN ORDER FORESTERS.

OFFICERS ARE VERY MODEST

But Passengers Tell of Storm on North Pacific.

Seafaring men never like to make much of any great deed which they perform, and, as a result, have often been branded as bashful, says The Victoria, B.C., Times. After nursing their ships through great storms, which the passengers believed would send them to their doom, captains and officers are always made much of by the travelers, who tell stories of how they were kept out of death's iron grip by the great seamanship of the men who commanded their vessel. But when a newspaperman approaches a captain to obtain his account of the great trials he is liable to get something like this: "Well, there isn't much to it. Of course, it was the worst weather I ever experienced in my 30 odd years' experience at sea. But still you know we are paid to bring our ships safely into port, and we're simply fulfilling our obligations to our company and the public."

Upon the arrival of the Empress of Japan, Capt. Hopcroft, from the Orient, it was not expected that the officers would make much of their terrible outward voyage. In reply to a query the master of the white liner would only say: "Of course it was a bad one."

A passenger on the Japan on her outward voyage writes of the trip and says that the waves on the Pacific were running mountains high. "I have never seen anything like them," he writes. "Rough weather was encountered at the start and it grew worse and worse the further the ship got out into the ocean. After the first four days not more than a third of the passengers came up to the saloon; some of the passengers, in fact, did not show themselves again until the vessel was almost in Japanese waters.

"The officers seemed to have no sleep, and those who were not on deck went from cabin to cabin comforting the many who were ill and making themselves friendly. And all this was done to keep us from very grave fears. We could not believe that anything was seriously wrong while the officers were in such humor. The captain and the chief officer seemed to take it in turns to be up and below all the time. No set of officers could have inspired greater confidence.

"The pitching of the steamship was simply terrific. At times the whole of the front part of the ship was under water, and as the bows rose up the water poured off the sides in two broad cataracts. Then the stern would go under in the same way, but not quite so badly, for the poop was never submerged. Altogether, it was a very exciting voyage, and none of the passengers wish for another such experience."

Record Wolf "Clean-Up."

So far as "clean-ups" among the wolves of the northern woods go, Arthur Sitch, of Hymers, a little place in Thunder Bay District, holds the record for the past winter. He has killed twelve since the cold weather set in, and received a bounty of $15 for each.

Seven small carcasses arrived in Toronto not long ago through the parcel post delivery, addressed to the Department of Provincial Police. They were pups of the grey timber wolf variety, cold in death.

On Good Friday Sitch was tracking an old she-wolf through the woods near his potato farm in the northern forests. She discovered the fact that he was on her trail and led him a merry chase, doubling and redoubling in her tracks, and leaping from log to log in order to confuse him, but finally led him within the neighborhood of a large uprooted tree, beneath which he found a hole that looked much like a lair.

Tracks leading into the burrow convinced him that some wolf had its dwelling there, whether it was the one he had been trailing or not. He reached in and touched with his fingers something furry and warm. Upon bringing it out it proved to be a puppy wolf. He puts his hand in again, and kept on until he had seven of the tiny cubs lying on the ground beside him. As they yelped at the capacity of their lungs when dragged out he made sure to respatch each one as he drew it forth to prevent their cries reaching the ear of their mother, who happened to be away at the time and might make things difficult for an unarmed man if she turned up while he was depriving her of her young. There were five females in the litter.

OLD LANDMARK GONE; SERVOS GRIST MILL WAS A RECORD OF LOYALIST DAYS

For One Hundred and Twenty-Five Years "Palatine Hill," Near Niagara-on-the-Lake, Has Been the Home of the Servos Family, Who Were Famous Among the Refugees Who Came From the U.S.

Landmarks of Canada's early history are passing one by one. Among the latest to go was a time-worn grist mill, which collapsed last year on the Miss Mary Servos farm on "Palatine Hill," situated four miles from Niagara-on-the-Lake. Erected in 1820 to replace one on the same property which had been destroyed by fire, the mill dated back to those pioneer days when, under severe but none the less romantic conditions, the history of this province had its beginning.

Not only age but association render Palatine Hill sacred to memory. A century and a quarter ago it was a centre of industry probably unrivalled by any in Upper Canada, and it was the handiwork of a notable character—Captain Daniel Servos, United Empire Loyalist.

Grist and saw mills were in those days the primal needs of the infant communities that grew upon patches of cleared land on the frontiers of Ontario. With their advent alone could the farmer and villager graduate from the log cabin and the crudest methods of grinding cereals.

In 1781, just one hundred and thirty-three years ago, a momentous event took place in the wilderness of Upper Canada. Some half-score families crossed over from Fort Niagara to the Canadian side of the Niagara river and founded what afterwards became Newark, now Niagara-on-the-Lake. They were United Empire Loyalists, refugees from the United States. As such they started life anew, possessing little else than their lives and a Government grant of fertile but forest-covered territory. The hardships they endured, the hostile forces, both human and natural, they had to face, were rendered romantic only by the valor with which they were met and subdued. These Loyalists finally won what they sought — namely, lasting peace beneath the British flag.

Of those who founded Newark and settled in the neighborhood, several belonged to the Servos family, than the history of whom few more noble records can be found in the traditions bequeathed to Canadians. One member of this family was Captain Daniel Servos, around whom this story chiefly gathers.

Following the thrifty and enterprising habits of his forefathers, who had won for themselves renown on the banks of the Charlotte river, on the borderlands between New York State and Pennsylvania, as millers, merchants, magistrates and soldiers under the King of England, Daniel did not delay long before he had erected a grist mill on the banks of the Four Mile Creek, on a farm which he was clearing, and which he named "Palatine Hill," in commemoration of his ancestral Palatinate home in Germany. This he built in 1785, the first in Canada West. Nor did he stop there. It was not long before the banks of the Four Mile Creek became a hive of industry. There was a saw mill and cider mill, a tannery, blacksmith shop and potash works. Add to these a general store, and Palatine Hill become a chief source of supplies for the whole countryside, not to mention Newark, then the capital of Upper Canada. The first grist mill was burned to the ground in 1812, but another was immediately erected to meet the needs of a growing population. This in its turn was destroyed by fire in 1820, to be succeeded by the one that collapsed a few months ago.

On the crown of the hill, in the shelter of giant oaks, from which position the glimmer of Lake Ontario could be seen through the forest, stood the Servos homestead, older even than the first mill, for it was built in 1783-4. It stands there today, a plain but dignified memorial of colonial days. Miss Mary Servos, the latest direct descendant of the family, is its present owner and occupant. Fringing the crest of the hill, as it curved gently towards the lake, was at that early date a line of houses, the homes of the toilers, which made complete the happy and thrifty community.

Captain Daniel Servos, who came to Canada, was the eldest son of Thomas Servos, who was slain by Revolutionary troopers. Daniel was married when the Revolutionary war began. He was absent fighting for the throne as an officer in the renowned Butler's Rangers at Fort Niagara on the occasion of his father's death.

After the close of the war in 1783, Daniel, by that time a captain in Butler's Rangers, made an energetic attempt to recover his estates on the Charlotte river, but all rights were denied him. Something more precious he did recover, however, and bring back to Canada. This was his daughter, Magdalene, who was then about nine years of age.

The story of that journey through the wilderness forms a page in the history of the family itself. Finally, in his welcomed arrival at Palatine Hill, Daniel Servos found recompense for the loss of lands and wealth amid southern foes. Daniel died after a brief period of peace in 1808 at the age of sixty-five years, and was buried in the family cemetery on Palatine Hill.

In the long run a man's services as a citizen are as valuable to the state as those of the soldier. During the long and happy era of peace that followed the later descendants of the Servos family numbered hundreds, and they have filled a considerable place in the life of this country.

Falmouth is probably the oldest port in England. It was used by the Phoenicians at least 2,500 years ago.

Roasted Nuts.

If you are fond of walnuts try roasting them for a change and you will not care to use them raw again. Shell the walnuts and put them in a pan with about one teaspoonful of butter to a cupful or more of the nuts. Sprinkle with salt and place in a moderate oven, stirring occasionally to prevent burning. Do not allow them to become too brown, as this spoils the flavor.

ROBLIN WAS NOT RECOGNIZED

Unusual Experience of the Premier of Manitoba.

To be the Premier of a province and appear at a Conservative banquet in Toronto and not be recognized by any of the faithful present was the unusual experience of Sir Rodmond Roblin recently.

Sir Rodmond, who had been visiting his father in Picton, arrived in Toronto on his way to Ottawa. He appeared at the North Toronto Conservative banquet at the Carl-Ritz Hotel, and was present for over an hour and a half and no one even knew him, which amused the Premier very much, as Hon. Geo. E. Foster was present and speaking at the time. No one would have known he was present had it not been for his meeting and greeting Controller Church coming in as he was about to go out of the dining hall on his way to the train.

Some of the local Conservatives present at the banquet were not any too well pleased at the action of those in charge at the banquet in not recognizing the Premier.

In Memory of J. H. Pope.

The Conservatives of the Eastern Townships have decided to erect a monument to the memory of the late John Henry Pope in Cookshire.

A meeting, held at Sherbrooke a few days ago, resulted in a decision to erect a monument in Cookshire, the home town of the former Minister of Agriculture and Railways and Canals. This had been the original intention but there was some talk of erecting the monument in Sherbrooke at first, a proposition finally decided to be unsuitable.

A subscription list will be opened at once and an endeavor will probably be made to interest the Dominion and possibly the Quebec Government in the project, which will require from ten to fifteen thousand dollars.

Willing to Help.

One morning a rather commanding looking woman entered a newspaper office and asked to see the editor. The editor was promptly produced.

"In your paper this morning," said the woman in a cold, hard voice, "you say that Mr. Jones is a bribetaker, a swindler, a mudslinger and a crook."

"It is a matter of politics, madam," said the editor apologetically. "I am very sorry that we are compelled to make statements of that kind on your account, for I take it that you are a relative."

"I am his wife's mother," answered the visitor, "and I want to say that you haven't told more than half the truth. The next time you want to publish his biography I wish you would send a reporter to me."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

A SURVEY OF ONTARIO'S NEWEST SOCIAL LEGISLATION

Compensation Act Passed by Provincial Government is Described as Being One of the Most Advanced in Existence.

The Workmen's Compensation Act, which has just passed the Ontario Legislature, has been subject to so many revisions that it is interesting to survey the measure as it now stands on the law books and to analyze that legislation which is acclaimed as one of the most advanced compensation statutes in the world.

It was prepared by Chief Justice Sir William Meredith on instruction from the Government. Sir William visited several countries to collect information for the bill. The object of the act is to provide payment to workmen who are injured during the course of their employment, or who contract diseases at their employment. The operation of the act is to be placed in the hands of a board of three men called the Compensation Board. This board will provide a fund to which all owners of factories and like institutions shall be compelled to subscribe on a basis of the number of employes engaged in such factories, and on other terms arranged by the board.

In certain classes of work employers will not be required to subscribe to the accident fund of the compensation fund, but in case of accident to their employes they will have to pay compensation at the rate provided by the act or decreed by the board.

The employer is liable to provide compensation for all injuries sustained by his employe unless the injuries do not disable the employe for a period longer than seven days. Unless misconduct results in death or serious disablement the employe is not entitled to compensation for accident happening through wilful neglect.

If a workman is engaged outside the province his dependants are entitled to compensation provided his residence outside the province does not exceed six months. This part of the act protects railway and steamship employes.

In case an action is instituted by a workman or his dependents, and an amount less than what the compensation would have been is secured by such action, then the balance will be paid out of the accident fund to equal the compensation. An employe cannot claim compensation and enter an action too. Should he not enter an action, when the accident was due to some person other than his employer, the board or employer may enter the action and the amount obtained shall go to make up the compensation.

The act provides that an employer carried on his own payroll at a salary not exceeding $2,000 shall be entitled to compensation for injury.

All agreements made between employe, dependent and employer to forego compensation in case of injury shall be void in the eyes of the board.

The amount of compensation in case of death shall be the necessary expenses for burial not exceeding $75; where widow or invalid husband are dependent, a monthly payment of $20; where widow or invalid husband and one or more children are dependent, $20, with additional $5 for every child under sixteen years, payments to cease when child dies or reaches age of sixteen; where dependents are children, $10 per month per child, the whole not to exceed $40 per month; where workman was under 21 years, $20 per month to dependents until he would have reached the age of 21 years; where dependents are other than those named above they shall be entitled to a sum proportionate to pecuniary loss occasioned to them through the death, sum not to exceed $40 per month.

Should a widow marry then her weekly payments cease, but she gets a sum equal to two years of payments, and this sum must be paid one month after marriage.

A monthly payment in respect of a child shall cease when the child reaches sixteen years or dies; where a workman leaves no dependents his compensation shall go to pay medical bills, etc.; in case of permanent disability the workman shall be entitled to 55 per cent. of his average weekly salary with the employer for whom he was working when the accident occurred; where permanent partial disability results the workman shall be entitled to 55 per cent. of the difference in the salary he formerly received and the amount earned by him after the accident; where the impairment of the man's earning capacity does not exceed 10 per cent., this compensation can be paid to him in a lump sum. The board reserves the right to invest the compensation for a workman or his dependent.

The compensation board will consist of three members appointed by the lieutenant-governor in council. They shall be members until removed for misbehavior or reach the age limit of 75 years. Each commissioner must devote his whole time to the work. The chairman will receive per annum $10,000; vice-chairman $8,500; and the other commissioner, $7,500.

The board has the power to grant compensation to a man who contracts an "industrial disease" as the result of his employment. Where a man's employer proves that the workman's former employer is to blame for the disease then the first employer shall pay the compensation. Farm laborers, domestic servants, and their employers are not included in this section of the bill.

The walrus, which was once so common in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, is still common at all seasons in Hudson Strait and along the northern part of the Hudson Bay coast.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

A SEASON OF SEPARATE TUNICS.

With one or two separate tunics a woman is forearmed for almost any of the demands of fashion. Made of ribbon on a net underfoundation, with a wide butterfly bow to the girdle and with suspenders that will give a completeness to the costume, here is a black taffeta tunic that will furnish up an old frock, that will give the latest touch to one's suit or can even be worn with a waist and skirt. It is slipped on in a minute with a few snap fasteners and off in a trice to put on with the next change.

FIGHTING A BIG ONE.

A Toronto Fishing Episode In the Canadian Northland.

"Over younder by dat rock," says Timmy Tabb, my half-breed guide, squinting his beady eyes across the white-maned stream, "feller fish here last year catch a six-pound trout, him."

"Oh, he did, did he?" I observe caustically. For over an hour I have been trying, without success, to plant my Ranger fly in the centre of an eddy forty yards out, against a wind that makes accurate casting an impossibility. Perhaps I consider Timmy's remark something of a reflection on my skill. I certainly resent being told what another angler was able to do, and much mingling with guides has made me sceptical of everything they say regarding fish and fishing grounds.

"He weigh six pound," repeats Timmy Tabb gently, "and one other big un get away, him. Dat feller no good on play feesh, lak you."

I allow the compliment to mollify me. I grin down at Timmy, crouched in the stern of the canoe, and throw him my tobacco pouch. He fills his pipe, black eyes still fastened to the almost perpendicular wall of rock that splits the current in mid-stream. "We'll go across if you like," I say, after he has lit up.

"Sure ting." Up comes the anchor and out we shoot, the sharp prow of the canoe clipping the champing teeth of the rapid and flinging beads of foam in my face as we run the gauntlet and strike the smooth water in the lee of the rock.

"Theer bagosh," grunts Timmy Tabb, as he lowers the anchor, "you able cast all right now, some; win' she fair, eh?"

"Wind's fair, Timmy," I answer. "Here goes for that big chap that got away from the 'odder feller'."

My Ranger fly, tied by Timmy's squaw-wife—one of the most adept fly-tiers I have ever known, by the way — zigzags across the brown tongue of water between the teeth of the rapid like a live thing. "Nothing doing," I answer to the question in Timmy's eyes. My guide smokes furiously while I reel in the balance of my line, then—

"Try um some more," he grunts, and, catching Timmy's enthusiasm, I do "try um some more." "Spack," falls the fly close to the wall of rock; "zee-zee" whines the reel, then "smack."

"Bagosh," exults Timmy, leaning over on his knees and reaching for the landing-net, "you get heem sure; what I tell you?"

I've got him all right, but can I hold him? That's the question. I know by the way he bellys the bottom and refuses to show himself that he is a big one; it's a pretty sure sign, that. He rushes straight towards the canoe, and I'm kept busy reeling in; then "swish-swish"—He has sighted us, and is off on the first mad rush, of which I know from experience there will be several before I can hope to get him under control.

I tremble for my tackle. I am using a nine-foot split bamboo rod and the lightest silk line procurable. All of the latter, except a few turns, is out before I am able to turn the big fellow; then he comes back like a flash. I reel in frenziedly. Twenty feet away from the canoe the big fellow half shows himself, then down he goes again, and once more I fight him and shudder to think what will happen when he gets all my line.

But once more I am lucky. I have about three feet of line left on the reel, when he turns and flashes across towards the rapid. This brings him closer to us, and I gain a part of my line. Another dash and I find it less hard to turn him. He is tiring. Timmy Tabb grunts his joy and says unmentionable things in the French tongue. "Now, Timmy," I say, and reel the big fellow slowly towards the canoe. Timmy tries with the net and misses, and once again the trout is away, fighting almost as strongly as ever.

Twenty minutes later we lift him into the boat. He has fought to the finish and killed himself on the line. Timmy fumbles for the scales in the kit and weighs him while the vermilion spots on his sides are still aglow.

"Look," eh says, pointing to the little brass indicator. I bend down and look. "Six and three-quarters, Timmy," I say. "Some trout, eh?"

"Bagosh, I know dere big trout stay here," says Timmy. "Last year a feller catch one weigh six pounds, him."

Twilight is falling. The blue-white mists are rising above the flashing waters, and above the shaggy wooded banks rests a long streak of mauve and crimson. Below it the great forest sweeps, like a sombre cloud, through which dips out to greet us as we paddle shoreward the red eye of our camp-fire.—Archie P. McKishnie in Toronto Globe.

ELECTRIC FARM INSTALLATION

Electricity Extensively Used on the Farm

Electrical News.

Mr. C. E. Locke, Edgeway Road, near St. Thomas, is one of a number of farmers who are taking advantage of the ample supply of electric energy in that district, and has had his farm buildings and residence equipped throughout with light and power. Mr. Locke has contracted for 2 h.p. on a flat rate from the lines of the Hydro-electric System and is receiving his power from the commission at 110 volts, 3-phase, 25-cycles.

The residence is wired throughout with the average run of fixtures in each room. Provision is also made for an electric grate in the parlor and an electric heater in the bathroom. It is also the intention to make use of a number of the modern household appliances such as irons, toasters, vacuum cleaners, etc. The house is of very commodious dimensions being the old typical farmhouse, brick construction.

Mr. Locke pays particular attention to his dairy department and will use considerable electric energy both for light and power in this connection. The milking room, cooling room, driving shed, stable and work shop have been lighted throughout with tungsten lamps. The farmyard and driveway, as also, of course, the house, will be lighted with tungstens.

In the barn he has also supplied a 2 h.p. Crocker-Wheeler motor, 110 volts, 25-cycle, 3-phase, which he uses for running the chopper, grinder, milking machine, turnip pulper, etc.

There is also installed an electric water heater of Hot Point variety for heating water in the milking room for cleaning the milking cans. The advantage of this heater is that it can be left in operation during the night when all other power is off and in this way it does not increase the peak load on the lines.

TO MEET IN TORONTO

TORONTO, June 5.—The Dominions Royal Commission will meet in Toronto for four days during the first week of September. Application was made and the request was granted by the controllers yesterday for the use by the commission of the Council Chamber for the meetings of the commission, who have been appointed for the purpose of gathering information relating to the natural resources of the British Empire. The commission have already met in New Zealand, Australia and in London, England.

PIGS AND FIGURES.

Porkers From the Standpoint of All Around Mathematics.

The educated pig of the old time sideshow, which gravely read figures on a blackboard, was only a type of a class. His modern prototype is quite his equal in devotion to the exact science. By both instinct and fate he is a mathematical animal. Subjectively and objectively he is great on figures. They are dealt out to him, and he deals in them himself. He desires his square meals to be regulated daily by the rule of three. In addition, he deals with his owner's indebtedness. He is able to reduce a mortgage to fractions with amazing rapidity. In measuring the available contents of a pail of slop he is a lightning calculator.

As a multiplier the pig has no equal, counting on six to the litter and two litters in the year. At this rate, barring accidents, the sow's progeny will amount to more than 1,000 in four years. A week old pig is up in geometry, finding the way home along the hypotenuse short cut. An old sow's quickness in boxing the compass in a potato patch is amazing. And when it comes to a troughful of skimmilk she is the least common divisor; she wants it all herself.

Objectively the porker finds himself stacked about with a bewildering array of figures—his gains every day on pasture, his gains every day on grain, his gains to the pound of grain, his gains on pasture plus a daily ration, his gains on vegetables and roots—these and a hundred other tabulations surround him. Profit or loss, so far as the pig is concerned, is almost purely a matter of feeds and feeding, and these are in their turn matters of almost pure mathematical measurements; hence have resulted the long listed calculations available to the farmer. — W. J. Harsha in Breeder's Gazette.

Whole Sermon From Memory.

One of the most remarkable blind girls in London, Eng., is Miss Mabel Green, who has been blind since infancy. Miss Green is engaged in secretarial work, and is an accomplished shorthand writer and an accurate and quick typist, but her outstanding gift is that of a prodigious memory. She went to the morning service at the Baptist Church, Park square, N.W., conducted by Rev. F. B. Meyer, and although she did not take a single note, except mentally, she afterward reported the whole sermon in shorthand on a special Braille machine invented by Henry Stainsby, the secretary general of the National Institution for the Blind.

THE GREEN SATIN COAT

And All It Meant to Two Girls

By CLARISSA MACKIE

"An express package for you, Nell," cried Grace Lane as she met her friend at the door of the room they occupied together. "Do hurry and open it. I'm dying to see what it contains. It must be precious," she rattled on, "because it's registered and stamped with all sorts of odd foreign characters."

Nellie Hilyer laughed as she tossed her hat and jacket on the bed and carried the interesting package to the window.

"It's from my Uncle Dan. You remember, Grace, I've told you about him—how he has lived for many years in China and is as rich as rich can be."

Miss Lane nodded her golden head and frowned. "Yes; I've heard all about your rich Uncle Daniel, and I think he's a stingy old thing. Nell—so there! If he wasn't he wouldn't permit his niece to wither away in this perfectly respectable but terribly gloomy boarding house or to continue the nerve racking occupation of teaching grimy youngsters their A B C's."

"What would you have him do, Grace?" smiled Nell.

"I would have him send you a perfectly enormous draft on New York, enough to enable you to buy a rose bowered cottage in the country and to raise chickens for the market. And, Nell, I could go and live with you and be your right hand man. Wouldn't it be great?"

Nellie sighed profoundly.

"It would be lovely, Grace, but I'm afraid he won't do a thing. You see, he quarreled with my mother years ago because she married my father, and we never heard a word from him for years and years. Then mother died, and still never a word from Uncle Dan. After father's death, a year ago, you know I was left entirely alone and quite poor—those long illnesses simply devoured the money—and now it seems Uncle Dan has remembered my birthday after all." She looked dreamily down into the grubby back yard of the city block.

Grace jumped up and pulled down the yellow window shades and lighted the gas jet.

"Now that he has remembered, dear, suppose you open it and see what it contains," she urged. "Perhaps he has sent you the rose bowered cottage after all."

Nellie untied the heavy cord that bound the package and broke the red seals that splotched it here and there. When the outer paper was removed she found that there was layer after layer of oiled yellow paper, and at last there was revealed a flat box covered with brocaded silk. The silk covered box was tied with golden cords, and when these were removed the lifted cover brought to light a most wonderful garment of green satin, stiff with embroidery and glistening with gold thread.

Nellie held it up for her friend to see. "A mandarin's coat," she said with a little choke in her voice. "Isn't it wonderful?"

Grace was examining the coat with critical eyes. On the broad back of the garment was embroidered a garden scene, and the fronts were equally splendid. On either flowing sleeve there blazed a golden sun, and as she twitched one of the sleeves aside there sounded a faint crackle from its voluminous folds.

She plunged her hand into the pocket-like cavity and drew out a rice paper envelope addressed to "Miss Nellie Hilyer."

Nellie opened the envelope and took out a thin sheet of rice paper. Across the top of the sheet her uncle Dan had written a few words: "To Nel... on her twenty-second birthday, from Uncle Dan." Then he had added: "Below is a fairly good sample of Chinese poetry. Are you fond of poetry?"

Grace read the poem aloud:

"The day is fair, like other days.
I stroll in my garden.
Through rose bordered paths I stray,
Seeking always for happiness and peace of mind.
At last I walk straight into the heart of the sun dragon—
I am swallowed up and turned into a glowing jewel of delight!"

"How odd!" commented Grace when she had finished. "It is without rime or meter, and"—

"But not without meaning!" interrupted Nellie excitedly. "Look, Grace!" She pointed at the outspread mandarin's coat that was on the bed before them. "I've been looking at that. I really think the poem applies to this garden scene on the back of the coat!"

"Fiddle-de-dee!" scoffed Miss Lane as she knelt beside her friend before the green satin coat. "I never yet saw the Chinese poem that ever appeared to express anything save the utter topsyturvyness of that upside down land."

"Read the poem again while I trace out the story," urged Nellie, her finger on the beginning of the embroidered brown path that trickled over the green satin garden.

Grace laughed and obeyed. It was rather fun to indulge in these pretty fancies after a hard day's work in the schoolroom.

"'The day is fair, like other days,'" she began.

"See, Grace? The sun is shining. That shows that the day is fair," interrupted Nellie eagerly. "Strolling up this brown path—see, my finger travels through the rose bordered paths—seeking for happiness and peace of mind. Those are represented by the lotus blossoms away off on another path. He misses the turning and goes on, on, straight toward the sun dragon. The brown path goes right into the heart of the sun, and my stroller is swallowed up in the heart of the sun. Greedy fellow! He must have a hard heart, Grace." She laughed as her pretty finger prodded the gold embroidered planet.

"That's because you're turned into a glowing jewel of delight," retorted her friend gayly.

"I wish it were a glowing jewel of delight instead of a very ordinary sun," sighed Nellie as she arose and folded up the gorgeous coat. "There's the supper bell, and I am so untidy. Do let's hurry or we won't get a bite to eat."

After supper it was a long, dull evening. Though both of the girls were apparently reading, each one of them was thinking of the beautiful green satin coat and how utterly useless it all was under the present circumstances.

Nellie carried her sober thoughts to bed with her, and for many hours she lay awake, wondering why Uncle Dan had sent her such an absurd gift when he knew that she was obliged to work for her living and that the mandarin's coat must be an extravagant accessory to her simple wardrobe.

"I can't understand it," she murmured sleepily. "Mother always said that Uncle Dan was eccentric, but she said he was hard headed, practical and scorned useless extravagance, so— Oh, I wonder, I wonder!"

Now she was wide awake and sitting up in bed. In a second her feet were on the floor and she was pulling the mandarin's coat from its place in her dresser. She pulled down the shades and lighted the gas. Grace sat up in bed and stared dazedly at her friend.

"What is the matter?" she demanded drowsily. "Are you crazy, Nellie Hilyer?"

Nellie turned her head away from the blazing sun, at which she was daintily snipping with her embroidery scissors. Her face was pink with excitement, and her eyes shone.

"Grace Lane, I believe there really is a jewel hidden under this embroidery," she cried eagerly.

Miss Lane opened her blue eyes wide and yawned. Then she hopped out of bed and sat down on the floor beside Nellie.

Out of the raised interior of the embroidered sun there rolled a large stone that caught the sordid gaslight and reflected it in javelin points of flame. Now it glowed redly, palpitating; now it was a still, crimson pool of flame. It was as large as a hazelnut.

"It is a ruby!" gasped Grace faintly.

"It certainly isn't glass," admitted Nellie. "So the poem did have a meaning after all, Grace. Isn't it wonderful? Uncle Dan was trying to see if I was clever enough to read the story on the back of the coat. Grace, do you know what this ruby represents?"

Grace nodded cheerfully.

"Vine wreathed cottage—chickens—pony cart—everything that we've dreamed about and never really expected to come true!"

Nellie was looking thoughtfully at the mandarin's coat. She turned it over and examined the blazing suns on the sleeves and on either front of the garment.

"Grace," she said quietly, "there are four smaller reproductions of the garden of roses, and in each blazing sun I believe we will find another jewel!"

"Let us get to work, then," cried Grace, fetching her own scissors.

The hands of the little alarm clock on the bureau pointed to 3 a. m. when the last blazing sun was despoiled of its jeweled heart.

The sleeves had given up two enormous pearls of great luster, and the fronts had contributed two blazing diamonds.

"I take back everything I ever said about your Uncle Dan," quavered Grace Lane as she went to bed with the gems hidden under the pillow. "He's a dear!"

"I think I'll say a prayer for him," murmured Nellie from the depths of a grateful heart.

Without a word Grace slipped from the bed and knelt beside her.

* * *

In faraway China an elderly man was dreaming of his home country, from which he had alienated himself for many years.

He was thinking of the secret contained in the green satin mandarin coat which he had sent to his unseen niece in New York.

"If she's clever enough to read the secret she will write me a letter of thanks, and if the letter is the sort of letter that shows her to be my sister Eve's daughter in disposition, why, I'm going home to spend the rest of my days with her."

One day the letter came, and it was the right kind of letter, for Daniel Drake severed his connections in the orient and took the first steamer for home, and when he arrived there he found the rose covered cottage and his niece, as well as another glowing young specimen of young womanhood, who was also willing to be adopted into his family. The green satin coat has been made into a beautiful screen, and it is one of Nellie's most precious possessions.

"It not only lifted us from poverty," she told her adopted cousin, Grace, "but it really brought Uncle Dan to us. And while one can get along without a whole lot of money it's nice to have some own folks belonging to you."

Fair Play.

Two motorists, having almost ruined their tempers—and their tires—in a vain attempt to find a hotel with a vacant bed, were at last forced to make the best of a small inn. Even then they had to share a bed, which was—and on this the landlord laid great stress—a feather bed.

They turned in, and one of the pair was soon fast asleep. The other was not. He could not manage to dodge the lumps and heard hour after hour strike on the church clock until 3. Then he violently shook his snoring friend.

"What's the matter?" growled the sleeper. "It can't be time to get up yet."

"No, it isn't," retorted his friend, continuing to shake him, "but it's my turn to sleep on the feather."—Everybody's.

OVERWORK AND WORRY

A Fruitful Source of Broken Down Constitutions

A little worry does a great deal of harm. Overwork and worry gives rise to headaches, nervousness, sleeplessness, weak back, lack of interest in your work, indigestion and sometimes a complete breakdown of the nervous system, leading to paralysis. If these are your symptoms you need a tonic. And the only way to tone up the nerves is through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are a direct nerve tonic because they make new rich red blood, which feeds the nerves and strengthens every organ in the body. Under the tonic influence of these Pills nervousness and all the other evils of worry and overwork quickly disappear. They restore the digestion and enable the body to take full advantage from the food eaten.

Mrs. J. C. Chapman, Omemee, Ont., says: "I became completely rundown and my nervous system shattered from overwork and worry. I always felt tired and exhausted and slept badly at night. I tried several medicines but did not find the hoped-for relief. Then I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I took them regularly for several months and they restored me to perfect health, and I have since been well and strong. I can recommend these Pills to any afflicted with nervousness or a broken constitution as I feel sure they will effect a cure."

These Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville Ont.

The One Best Sugar for Preserving is Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar

When you pay a good price for your strawberries, and spend a lot of time preparing, cooking and bottling them, isn't it too bad only to get after all, preserves that "might have been better"?

Yet that is what you do get, unless you use the very best sugar as well as the finest fruit.

Every trace of impurity in the sugar has a bad effect on the flavor and the keeping qualities of the preserves.

Redpath Extra Granulated Sugar is refined to absolute purity, and put up, without being touched by human hand, in 2 and 5 pound Sealed Cartons and in 10, 20 and 100 pound bags.

Buy Redpath Sugar in these original packages and you get Canada's finest sugar, at its best. Make your preserves, jellies and jams with Redpath Extra Granulated and you'll get the most gratifying returns from your time, skill and money.

Try this way of preserving Strawberries —it works splendidly.

Hull and clean the strawberries and put them into jars which have been sterilized with boiling water. Fill each jar, but do not pack the fruit down.

Make a thin syrup by boiling for ten minutes 3 parts of REDPATH Extra Granulated Sugar in 5 parts of water. You will need nearly as many pints of syrup as of fruit.

Pour the syrup over the fruit, filling the jars. Screw on the covers, without the rubbers, stand the jars on strips of wood in a wash-boiler, and cover them to within an inch of the tops with cold water. Bring this water to a boil and cook for from 15 to 20 minutes, according to the ripeness of the berries. Watch closely after they have boiled 15 minutes, and when cooked remove at once.

Have the syrup, which was left over, very hot. With a fork gently stir the fruit so as to get out all the air bubbles, then fill each jar up with the hot syrup and seal, being careful no leave no air inside.

Strawberries, raspberries or any other fruit preserved in this way keep their shape and size, and retain much more of the fresh fruit flavor than if they are cooked up in the ordinary way

THE NEW HIRED MAN.

DEAR SIR—As to Peter, our "jobless" newcomer, he Has been surely a rare joke for Fonda, Montgomery.
The screw in his head is so loose it would rattle,
And the straw that I showed him for bedding the cattle
He spread for the pigs—let me laugh if I can.
This happened to Peter, our new hired man.

My boy, you have seen him, my fun loving Nicholas,
Put our Peter at stunts that were wildly ridiculous,
Like watching the ducks at the edge of the water
To keep them from drowning. One jumped, and he caught her.
His clothes were a sight for our country bred clan.
This happened to Peter, our new hired man.

In driving the chickens to drink he was dutiful.
How Nick fooled him so I can't guess. It was beautiful.
Pure fun 'twas, not dangerous, jolly and silly.
It was worse when he saddled the one-year-old filly.
She pawed him a bit. For the railroad he ran,
And he jumped a slow freight train, our green hired man.

He's gone, and forever. Our Nick will be missing him,
And so will our Towser, who always was "kissing" him.
The moral is this—that, no matter how gritty,
A farm takes the starch out of men from the city.
'Twas so with fresh Peter, our new hired man.
He'll not forget Fonda. Yours jestingly,
DAN.

Our Hero Disputes a Theory and Will Prove It False

By M. QUAD

"WHAT'S happened now?"

"Nothing very startling."

"But you are not sick!"

"Never felt better."

"And you are not going to paint or —or anything?"

"You will know in good time."

Mr. Bowser had come home unusually early and had a laboring man and his shovel with him. The man was at once set to work at digging a hole in the back yard. When finished the excavation was eight feet long, three feet wide and two feet deep, and then Mr. Bowser stretched two electric wires the length of it and made the ends fast pegs. Mrs. Bowser had a lively curiosity to know what all this meant, but she forbore to ask questions. The cook's curiosity partook of trepidation.

"I'll ask you, ma'am," she cautiously whispered as she walked around on tiptoe and glanced over her shoulder, "if that is a grave they are digging out there?"

"I don't think so," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"Then, is he boring an oil well?"

"He can't be."

"Is he digging for Captain Kidd's gold?"

"Hardly that."

"And it isn't a coal mine?"

"No."

"That's what scares me, ma'am. I've thought of this and thought of that and can't make it out at all, and I do believe he's going to fill the hole with water and bring a whale to play with during the summer."

WAITING FOR A MAGNETIC TREMOR.

Solemn and Inscrutable.

During dinner Mr. Bowser's face looked as profound as a pumpkin in a cornfield, and Mrs. Bowser with all her chatter on neighborhood news, failed to interest him. She bided her time, however, and when the proper moment arrived she carelessly queried:

"Are you thinking of trying to grow a new variety of potato in that hole out there?"

He looked at her with mingled contempt and pity for a minute and then replied:

"Mrs. Bowser, it is not exactly your fault that you were created a female, and so I suppose I should not blame you for your lack of brains. I can scarcely hope to make you understand me, but still I will make the attempt and at least satisfy your curiosity. Have you ever heard that there is a magnetic current passing through the earth?"

"I—I believe I have."

"But you are not sure. While you have been reading novels and chewing gum the magnetic current has been flashing along under your feet without a thought. In what direction does this current pass?"

"It dodges around, doesn't it?"

"That's the woman of it, of course, but I will go on. The accepted theory of scientists for the last hundred years is that this current passes through the earth from north to south, or from pole to pole—in other words, the poles are sympathetic."

"Yes."

"I say this theory is the accepted one and has never been disputed, but, Mrs. Bowser, but"—

"But what?"

"But here is a man who disputes it," he continued as he tapped his breast and swelled up with importance. "Yes, I have not only dared to do it, but I hope to prove that it is a false theory. Indeed, I have every hope that I shall be able to prove to the world that before daylight tomorrow morning that this magnetic current passes through the earth from east to west instead."

"And that's what the hole and the wires are for?"

"Exactly. If there is a current from east to west the wires will catch and indicate it."

"But how are you going to know?"

"I shall be right there, Mrs. Bowser right there, with a connecting wire in my hand, and I shall not miss the faintest tremor."

"I don't see what you are to gain if you do establish a new theory," she said after awhile.

He'll Become Famous.

"Great Scott, woman, but you must be brainless!" he exclaimed. "If I can establish the fact that the magnetic currents pass from east to west I'll be the most famous man of the day. My name and discovery will go down to posterity along with the greatest. I shall have honor, fame, medals, riches, a crown of laurel. It's the one chance of my life, the one great chance, and I hope you will say nothing to discourage me."

"I—I won't," she said, "but if you are going to sit by that hole all night you ought to suck a lemon at intervals or you will get hoarseness."

"Heavens above, but suck a lemon at such a supreme scientific moment!" he gasped at her. "Woman, don't run this thing into burlesque. If the world heard that I established my new theory while sucking a lemon I'd be driven to suicide in a month. No; there will be no lemons or catnip tea or bread and butter with sugar on it. You let me alone and don't worry!"

From that hour until 10 o'clock Mr. Bowser was nervous and uneasy, as all men are when on the point of making a great discovery. He read up on magnetic currents in the encyclopedia, and he got down his map of the world and figured out the countries an east and west current must pass through. He was in quite a nervous state when he finally started for the back yard, and the cook whispered to Mrs. Bowser:

"He looks as if he was going to the dentist's to have three teeth pulled and his jaw broke!"

Mr. Bowser carried a chair with him, and when he had placed it he attached what he called his circuit wire to the main ones and sat down with the end coiled about his hand. He was pale, but dignified. He was nervous, but determined.

"You are sure you won't have a lemon?" asked Mrs. Bowser, who had followed him out, with the cat tagging on behind.

He gave her a look of contempt and motioned her to be gone.

"He's like my brother Patrick," said the cook, as Mrs. Bowser returned to the house. "You can never get Patrick to suck a lemon when he don't know who's going to hit him with a brickbat."

At a quarter past 10 Mr. Bowser sat stiffly in his chair waiting for a magnetic tremor.

At half past he was expecting one every minute.

At 11 he felt sleepy and wondered if the current was not taking a night off.

Asleep at the Switch.

At midnight two policemen and a citizen entered the yard by the alley gate and Mrs. Bowser, who was keeping vigil from an upper window, went down and joined them. Mr. Bowser sat in his chair with his chin on his breast and his hat fallen off and he was fast asleep. The magnetic current was playing tag through the earth, but he heeded it not.

"Is he watching for cats or rats, ma'am?" softly asked one of the officers.

"No, it's an experiment," she answered.

"With a new sort of burglar alarm?"

"I think so."

"Then I hope it will prove a success. Can I do anything more for you?"

Mrs. Bowser thought for a moment and then replied:

"Why, why, he would have more room out in the alley."

"Sure he would. Take hold of the chair, Mike. Now go softly."

Mr. Bowser was softly and safely transported to the alley and placed with his back to a cowshed and all went away and left him. It may have been one of the policemen that five minutes later shied a tomato can that way with such true aim that it rattled against Mr. Bowser and woke him up with a yell. It took him fifteen seconds to realize that a magnetic current had thrown him over the fence and was still after him, and after another wild yell he fled into the darkness down the alley and returned home.

"Well, was it east or west?" Mrs. Bowser called.

"None of your business!" growled Mr. Bowser as he made his way upstairs and to bed.

GARDEN FURNITURE

Plain Wooden Sets Preferred to the Once Popular Rustic Ones.

WHITE BENCHES AND TABLES.

These Show Up Well Against Green Hedges and Shrubbery and Are So Comfortable as to Be Great Promoters of Outdoor Lounging.

A pleasing change from the rustic furnishings (which are painfully overdone in many gardens) is found in the plain wooden benches, settees, circular seats and various types of wooden resting places after old English designs in garden seats.

The wooden frame pieces are appropriate where rustic pieces are entirely out of place. It is true that the latter are attractive and harmonious in garden groves among trees and shrubbery and occasionally when built around the big tree trunks, but the English garden seats of wood painted white and placed among screening box or privet will prove far more desirable for most garden spaces.

The delightful privacy of a screened seat that is so thoroughly appreciated in England is but little known in this country. With the cheap and rapid growing privet used for close screening, we may achieve many interesting and picturesque retreats. Circular seats with high backs surrounded with a privet hedge trimmed even with the top of the seat is a favorite design.

WHITE ENAMELLED GARDEN SETTEES.

Within the center of the large circle a garden table, fashioned after the same pattern as the frame seat, offers a permanent place for serving afternoon tea in the open air.

Semicircular seats, rather closely outlined with the high pivet or box, is another pleasing design that is gaining well deserved popularity in this country. A novel English design is carried out by placing a number of the high backed semicircular seats in a secluded garden retreat and having them so outlined and surrounded by the privet that each seat will be screened from the other as well as screened from the walk or the public highway.

A lavish use of the screening privet may be indulged in, as the small bushes may be secured in large quantities at little cost.

For the plain white seat of attractive English design, intended for placing in an open space or beneath a large tree, select a spot where it will have a green background of shrubbery, trees or a vine draped trellis. Thorough semiannual painting with good white lead paint mixed with linseed oil will preserve the wood indefinitely, and white is always desirable against the background of green.

Illustrated here is a covered garden settee and one of the semicircular style. They are both finished in white enamel. The covered seat is protected from sun and rain and may, therefore, be made more comfortable with bright colored cushions. These, if finished in heavy crash, linen or denim, will stand a good deal of rough usage. The circular seat may be used in the garden or upon the veranda. If vines are trained to run over the covered settee it will be very attractive.

TONIC FOR PLANTS.

A tablespoonful of good olive oil once a month around the earth of your house plants will preserve and beautify them. If the leaves or fronds are bathed once a week with water in which a tablespoonful of sweet milk has been dissolved the plant will glisten as if varnished.

Convenient Cabinets.

For small spaces in the hall or bedrooms very charming cabinets are now shown for both men and women which are marvels of convenience. The interiors are especially designed for every variety of garment and all sized apparel.

They may be had in all sizes to fit any space, and many people prefer them to a built in closet, for they do not cut off wall spaces from a room and are both hygienic and dustproof, besides being a personal possession.

Another advantage to be considered is they can be moved like any piece of furniture. They are well designed and add rather than detract from the furnishing of a room. A stationary washstand, if not absolutely necessary, should be abolished from a bedroom.

And sobs for the fellow who lost.
The winner without your indorsement can live,
The world with a smile he may face,
But who consolation large hearted will give
To him who lost out in the race?

The hero, resplendent, has plenty of friends
To slip him a coin or a cheer,
And it is a favor if he but unbends
To listen to those who are near.
The poor, sorry dub with the bruises and bumps
Who wasn't ace high in the scrap
May still have a heart that with tenderness thumps
And be a most likable chap.

The victor feels hardly the need of the fawns
Around him so friendly and thick.
He listens with much inattention and yawns,
For he his companions can pick.
The one who went down in the heat of the fray
Finds little enough friendly talk
And no one to toss him a single bouquet,
Though once he was cock of the walk.

Then come to the front for the man who is down,
Who cannot a favor bestow.
There's plenty to cheer for the pride of the town
And hail him as all of the show.
It cannot be said that for money you walk
On him who is laid on the shelf,
And who can assure you that sooner or late
You may not be down there yourself?

Vinegar and honey mixed in equal parts is a great relief for a cough.

NEVER AGAIN.

ON Greenland's icy mountains
The people wait around
And at their luck throw snowballs
Because the pole is found.
No longer will explorers
With toys and good advice
Go northward to employ them
To gambol on the ice.

The yearly summer outing
They can, with hopeful eye,
Look forward to no longer
Excitement to supply,
For learned men of science
They may no longer hope,
With gifts of grub and bracelets
And canned sardines and soap.

They will not have the pleasure
Of going on a dash
And winning fame for some one,
Besides a bunch of cash.
They will not have to journey
To where it never thaws,
Where ice is free and plenty
To aid a worthy cause.

The pole has been discovered,
Or so the claim is made.
This stops the hardy native
From working at his trade,
And on the ship's provisions
He may no longer feed.
The pole has been discovered.
It's sad for him indeed.

Made to Order.

Bishop Fallows of Chicago says it is the supreme duty of every man to be happy. Here is a case where duty wouldn't have to rap a man over the head with a stuffed club to wake him up if he only knew the combination.

Man has not yet arrived at a state where he can touch a button and be happy. He is willing all right, but he goes about it as an amateur.

In the morning of life he pursues the bright lights only to have his wings singed when he catches up with them. Then he tries other ways that are just as foolish, with similar results.

It is easy enough to point out his duty to him, but with the landlord coming round regularly and with the grocer and the butcher following in his wake how is the wayfaring man to get away with the made to order results?

Generally.

"Is he a good doctor?"

"I have never seen him misbehave."

"Smarty! I mean can he cure you?"

"He never has."

"Imbecile! What I want to know is if he is a successful physician."

"He is worth half a million."

"Do his patients recover?"

"Always unless death intervenes."

"Are you always affected with idiocy?"

"Usually when I come in contact with it."

Its Finish.

The bookworm is no friend of man
And must be brought to book,
For science plainly has decreed
That it must get the hook.

No longer can the lazy man
Have this as an excuse.
They'll send him to the hospital
And jar his bookworms loose.

No longer can he sit at ease
And take a summer nap,
And mighty sorry he will be
When he has lost his snap.

True Index.

"Does your watch keep good time?"

"In good times it does."

"But how about in bad times?"

"Then I have it in soak."

Correct.

"What is the first thing a man does after he gets fired?"

"Smokes, of course."

The Value of a Comma.

Charles Dickens was particular about the placing of his comma, and one can understand such precision when recalling what a hash a misplaced point can make in an author's meaning. At a woman's dinner, recently, one of the toasts ran, "Woman! without her, man is a brute;" but the compositor set it up as "Woman without her man, is a brute."—(London Chronicle.)

When mixing a cake, never beat the butter, sugar or eggs in a tin basin.

COMPANIES HARD HIT

Increase in Arson is Costly for Insurance Concerns

"A period of depression, such as the present, causes a serious drain on the fire insurance companies of Canada through the deplorable increase of arson."

The man speaking was an Ontario manager of one of the largest Canadian fire insurance companies.

"The frequency of arson in the Province of Ontario is recognized by every insurance manager and adjuster. But arson is about the most difficult of all crimes to prove conclusively, and while we are thoroughly satisfied of its presence in many cases, we are obliged, for lack of evidence, to swallow our medicine."

"What proportion of Ontario fires since 1912 would you say were deliberate crimes?"

"All a matter of guessing. Some insurance men put it as high as thirty-five and forty per cent.; others think five per cent. is enough. It is impossible to know with any exactness, because while we may have grave suspicions in case after case, we have no conclusive proof. Take, for instance, the circumstances of a great many country town fires. All the retail stores are lined up in the same block, all of frame construction, all about an equal risk from the insurance viewpoint. One is a millinery shop, another a dry goods store, another a bank, and so forth. Did it ever strike you as queer that a fire during hard times seldom or never starts in a bank? It is not a matter of luck so much as the fact that a bank has nothing on its shelves to sell to the insurance companies. If fire were left to itself it would strike home with all the uncertainty of lightning. But because it is not left to itself it manages to visit far too many stores and factories with large stocks of goods just a little past their season and therefore a dead weight on the proprietor's hands.

"A Toronto man lost a certain kind of building the other day by fire and put in a request to me for several thousand dollars insurance money. I was mentally satisfied his fire was crooked. Inquiries brought the information that the banks were pressing him hard, that his business had run down badly, that he was up against it for ready cash. And on top of all that away went the building and stock in smoke. Do you blame us for laying a big percentage of our losses to arson?

"When a proprietor of a stock of unsaleable goods determines to turn his hopeless wares into a hundred cents on the dollar, he never hands the job to anyone but himself. The dishonest policyholder is his own firebug. He tells no one his plans, and does the deed at an hour when observation is unlikely. Unless circumstantial and corroborative evidence can be secured the court cannot convict on a company's mere suspicion.

"In all instances of suspected arson the onus of proof is placed upon the companies. That were fair enough if the crown bore the expense where the evidence warrants an arrest. But not only must insurance companies work up the case by their own solicitors, but in the event of a culprit being sent to prison the companies bear all the cost of prosecution. As a matter of fact, the state is far more concerned in eliminating arson than an individual company, for the people actually pay the piper."

YOUR HAIR NEEDS PARISIAN SAGE

It Quickly Removes Dandruff, Stops Falling Hair and Scalp Itch.

Just because your hair is full of dandruff, thin, streaky, dull, and never will do up to look pretty, do not think it must be so. Beautiful hair, thick, fluffy, lustrous and absolutely free from dandruff is only a matter of a little care. Hair is like a plant—it needs attention.

A little Parisian Sage, one of the most helpful and invigorating tonics, frequently applied and well rubbed into the scalp, will work wonders. Just one application stops itching hear, removes dandruff, cleanses the hair and scalp of all dust and excessive oil. It goes right to the hair roots stimulating them and furnishing the nourishment that is needed—the hair becomes soft, fluffy, abundant and radiant with life.

Parisian Sage not only saves the hair and stimulates it to grow long and heavy but gives it that incomparable gloss and beauty so much desired by both girls and women of all ages.

Get a bottle from The Warne Drug Co. at once. Use it as directed and if you are not both surprised and delighted with results he will return your money.

Parisian Sage is faintly perfumed—no lasting odor—not sticky or greasy, and is sold in 50 cent bottles at drug and toilet counters everywhere. There is no other "Just-as-good." Accept nothing else.

REWARD OF REFINEMENT.

Why Clarence Was So Crazy About the Fair Hortense.

"I DON'T ever want to see you no more."

Hortense Hulligan's voice trembled with poorly suppressed emotion as she spoke.

"Why should we let anything come between you and I?" Clarence Atterberry asked.

Anguish was depicted in every lineament of his handsome countenance.

"You and me have came to the parting of the ways," the girl coldly replied. "You have went too far."

"Hortense, you ain't got no right to say them kind of things to me. I never done anything to make you unhappy."

"You took Ethel Cummins to the movies last night. Ain't that doin' nothin'?"

"I couldn't help it. I had to take her on a bet."

"Oh, you took her on a bet, did you? What was the bet and who was it with?"

"It was with Tom Burkett. Him and me had a bet about she and you."

"About she and I? Her and me ain't never been friends. Why should you bet about we two?"

"Well, you see, it was this way. He bet me that when we went to the tango party night before last Ethel would make more people talk about the way she could twist herself than you, and I bet him that you would keep folks so busy watching your motions that they wouldn't notice her. If I lost I was to ask Ethel to go to the movies, and if he lost he was to take you. I think they must of put up a job on me. Anyway, Ethel wore such a thin, short skirt and danced so hard that everybody was watchin' her and talkin' about her. So I lost."

"Clarence, have you spoke the truth to me?"

"Them are the solemn facts."

"Forgive me for the wrong I done you. But if I wouldn't of had a headache and a sore toe I would of showed her where she got off."

"Darling, you don't know how happy them words has made me. Do you know why I love you so?"

"Break it to me gentle, Clarence."

"Because you're so refined."—Chicago Record-Herald.

In the proportion of two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch to one of wheat, the cooking done properly, collars, cuffs, shirt bosoms, etc., can be beautifully stiffened at home.

Sir John's Advice.

The late Rankin McKee, the widely-known actor, who died recently, was a Canadian, born at Sandwich, Ont., in 1844, the son of Lieut.-Col. Rankin, a member of Parliament. While at Upper Canada College, Toronto, he had a disagreement with his father over his association with the dramatic society there, and ran away with an actor. He made his stage debut in Rochester under an assumed name. His father found him and made him return to accept a Government clerkship.

"About two years later," Rankie has said in reminiscences, "the great Sir John A. Macdonald, who was then Premier of Canada, told me what he thought of the Government service. 'You keep on and on, and in the end you are only an old hack,' he said. 'I've heard that once you were an actor. Why don't you go back on the stage'."

Rankin was quick to follow his advice.

He Remembered.

Thirty-nine years ago James O'Brien, now license inspector for South Wellington, Ont., rescued Geo. P. Armstrong from a watery grave in Birge's dam, on the River Speed. Mr. Armstrong, who is now a professor at Harvard University, dropped into the inspector's office at Guelph the other day and presented him with a gold watch as a token of his appreciation.

Fishing Craft Driven Ashore--Eight Bodies Have Been Recovered

Canadian Press Despatch.

Quebec, June 8.—It is reported that the storm Friday night wrecked forty New Brunswick fishing boats on the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the Bay of Chaleur shores and twenty fishermen were drowned. The majority of the lost boats were driven ashore on the islands of Miscou and Shipegan, at places remote from telegraph communication, and news has only just come in. Eight bodies, all French Canadians or Acadians, were brought to Caraquet to-day. The storm did considerable damage to property along that coast.

DR. M. A. MORRISON RETURNS FROM TRIP TO WESTERN CITIES

Dr. and Mrs. M. A. Morrison have returned from their two weeks' trip to Winnipeg and the west. While away Dr. Morrison attended the convention of the Canadian Dental Association held in Winnipeg from May 26th to 29th. The convention was attended by some of the ablest men in the profession of the United States and Canada. Papers were read and clinics given, which were extremely valuable. The City Council and Dentists of Winnipeg left nothing undone to make the convention a success professionally and socially.

In Manitoba the crops were nearly all sown. The wheat was nearly all above ground, and prospects of a copious harvest are general, the rains having come just when they were needed. Dr. and Mrs. Morrison took in the trip through the lakes on the way out and report an excellent lake voyage. Among the Peterborough people met in Winnipeg were Mr. Wm. Harstone, wife and daughter, who were returning from their Pacific coast trip. Friends of Mr. Harstone will be pleased to know that Mr. Harstone is much improved in health.

WEST PETERBOROUGH CANDIDATES

R. J. SODEN
For Conservatives.

G. A. GILLESPIE
For the Liberals.

BOTH CANDIDATES HAVE TEMPERANCE PLATFORM

Temperance League Interviews Mr. Soden and Mr. Gillespie—Their Statements

The following was received by the Review, from an official of the Temperance League:

On Saturday morning, the members of the executive committee of the Citizens' Temperance League and officers of the County Temperance Association waited in turn on Mr. R. J. Soden and Mr. G. A. Gillespie, candidates respectively of the Conservative and Liberal parties in West Peterborough for the Ontario Legislature, and on behalf of both organizations, asked both candidates the following questions:

"Are you in favor of the abolition of the three-fifth handicap?

"Will you vote with either political party for its abolition and favor a straight majority vote on every possible occasion in the Legislature?

"Will you vote with either political party on every possible occasion for

"(a) The abolition of the open bar?

"(b) Club Licenses?

"(c) Shop Licenses?

"(d) And all other legislation looking for the restriction of the liquor traffic?"

On Friday, anticipating that Mr. Gillespie would receive the Liberal nomination that evening, a copy of the foregoing questions was shown both to him and to Mr. Soden, in order that they might be prepared to make their stand known when called upon by the deputation, which they were advised would call upon them for their decision on Saturday morning.

When seen on Saturday morning, Mr. Soden, as the candidate of the Conservative party, declined to give a direct answer to any of the questions. Instead he furnished the deputation with the following signed statement:

Peterboro, June 6th, 1914.

"Gentlemen:—

"There has entered into the politics of the Province of Ontario a question which is not a political question, but which has been used as a football between political parties too long. It concerns the man and his conscience.

"While I admit that the Conservative party has given to the Province of Ontario during their term of office more permanent temperance legislation than has been given by any previous Government, yet I personally believe in the abolition of the bar and the shop and the club licenses, and will allow no person to dictate to me as to how I shall vote on these matters."

(Signed)
R. J. SODEN.

Mr. Gillespie's Stand.

Mr. Gillespie, as candidate of the Liberal party, furnished a signed statement in which he answered all six questions in the affirmative. In addition, he promised to give the cause of temperance his unqualified support.

Mr. Gillespie was led to go beyond the policy of his party leader in the matter of the abolition of all liquor licenses by the fact that a substantial majority in favor of the abolition of all liquor licenses, including shop licenses, the polls in the City of Peterboro, and because shop licenses are the means by which liquor is supplied to the surrounding country districts.

Since the foregoing statements were issued Mr. Soden has requested that both temperance organizations delay their pronouncement in regard to the respective stands of the two candidates for 24 hours pending a reconsideration by him of his statements. The final pronouncement of both organizations has been delayed in accordance with this request. It will be published to-morrow, Tuesday.

In East Peterborough the Conservative candidate, Mr. James Thompson, of Havelock, was seen for a few moments Saturday morning in Peterboro. He said that he would give his reply on Tuesday or Wednesday of this week.

Mr. W. A. Anderson, the Liberal candidate in East Peterborough, was waited upon by representatives of the County Association Saturday afternoon, immediately on the close of the Liberal nominating convention in Norwood. Mr. Anderson signed all six questions in the affirmative. He stated in the convention that he was a total abstainer and that nothing but a temperance issue would have led him to accept the Liberal nomination.

Signed
H. B. COWAN, President.
A. B. CUNNINGHAM, Acting Secretary.

PETERBORO MAN MEETS HIS DEATH AT BUFFALO

Was in Charge of Milk Wagon Which Was Struck by Automobile—Remains Will be Brought Here for Burial

Harry Sandiford, aged 25 years, son of Mr. William Sandiford, of Brown Street, Brownton, was almost instantly killed Saturday morning in Buffalo, N.Y., when the milk wagon which he was driving was struck by an automobile. Details of the fatality were not given to his parents in the message received Saturday afternoon. The body will arrive in the city this evening and the funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3.30 o'clock from the home of his father, to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The unfortunate young man was employed in the brass department of the Canadian General Electric Co., here till March, when he was laid off. He went to Chicago, then to Detroit and was in Buffalo just one week. His parents, four sisters and three brothers are left to mourn his untimely death. Two of the brothers are in England.

IS ACCEPTED AS THE GOVERNMENT CANDIDATE

Hon. Dr. Pyne Assures Mr. Soden That His Platform is Thoroughly Acceptable

Mr. Soden, the candidate of the Conservative party in West Peterborough for the Provincial Legislature, went to Toronto this morning to see the Conservative Executive for the purpose of securing one of the members of the Cabinet to speak for him. In order to quiet all rumors as to the acceptability of his platform, Mr. Soden laid it before Dr. Pyne, who thoroughly approved of it, and said that Mr. Soden was entitled to have a perfectly free hand in temperance matters as the policy of Sir James Whitney is and has been from the beginning to give the people temperance legislation in accordance with what he considered they really desired. Sir James has repeatedly said to the people, "If you want advanced legislation, send me men here to support it and I will give it to you," and Mr. Soden comes in under that provision. Mr. Soden's temperance platform goes as far as the most ardent temperance reformer could wish, and is consistent with the principles laid down by Sir James, although not with the policy actually in practice at the present time. In all other respects, Mr. Soden is at one with the Government, and it is very gratifying to find that he has thus received the full endorsement, both of the Conservatives of West Peterborough and of the Government which they support. Meetings will be held at once throughout the Riding. Announcements will be made to-morrow through the press. The Honourable Mr. Lucas will address a public meeting in Mr. Soden's interests in the near future.

MISSING MONEY IS RECOVERED

Man Arrested in Toronto had $2500 in Stolen Bills

TORONTO, June 8.—Harry J. Matthews, aged about 44, who claims New York as his home town, and declares he is in town negotiating for a moving picture site, was arrested by Detectives Guthrie, Newton and Montgomery at a down town hotel, early Saturday morning, with over $2,500 of the $273,000 stolen in the celebrated New Westminster Bank robbery in the early part of 1911, in his possession.

The police believe that Matthews can throw a lot of light on the famous robbery, if he can only be made to talk; but first efforts in this line Saturday morning proved a decided failure.

The police were first notified of the passing of the stolen money by the clerk of the hotel, who had taken down the numbers and compared them with the list kept in all the large hotels. The three detectives arrived just as Matthews was dressing and placed him under arrest. The money was found in a small club bag, done up in packages of $500. There were five packages, each containing 100 five-dollar bills and 13 loose five-dollar bills making a total of $2,565. Every bill was identified as one of those stolen from the Bank of Montreal. Matthews was lodged in No. 1 station and will be charged in to-day's police court with receiving stolen money.

Matthews is the second man caught in Toronto passing some of the stolen money. Over a year ago a man named Davis was arrested at the Palmer House in company with a woman, who were found to have over $6,000 of the bills in their possession. Davis was sent to New Westminster to stand trial for taking part in the robbery, was acquitted and brought to Toronto and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary on a conviction for bringing stolen money into Canada.

MURDERER IN STEEPLE

Madman Holds Entire Village at Bay

BUDAPEST, Hungary, June 7.—A mad murderer, August Tomsics, has since Friday morning made an impregnable fortress out of the steeple of the village church at Hoeflany, where, armed with a repeating rifle and 500 cartridges, he took refuge after killing a farmer and his wife and wounding their daughter. Police tried to reach the criminal, but were met with a fusillade, which killed two and wounded fourteen others, and caused them to retreat.

A large force of police surrounded the church Saturday, but their commander confessed that he was helpless until Tomsics decided to surrender voluntarily or used up all his ammunition. A narrow stairway is the only approach to the steeple, and whenever anybody has attempted to ascend it Tomsics has been able to force him quickly to descend again. In the course of Friday he fired 200 out of his 500 cartridges, and, besides killing and wounding a large number of people, destroyed the altar and some pictures in the church.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH UNION COMMITTEE PRESENTS REPORT

It Recommends That the Altered Basis of Union be Submitted to the Methodists and Congregationalists and if Accepted Referred Again to the Members of Church for Their Approval.

WOODSTOCK, June 8.—After several days of discussion the Presbyterian committee on church union presented a report to the General Assembly on Saturday recommending a new basis of union and asking that another joint committee be called for the purpose of laying it before the representatives of the Methodist and Congregational Churches.

The report said:—

"Your committee recommend to the general assembly that the union committee be reappointed, vacancies which have occurred in its membership being filled; that the assembly respectfully invite Methodist and Congregational Churches to meet in joint committee with union committee of this church, to consider the amended basis appended to this report, and prepare basis of union that may be submitted to the assembly in 1915.

"If approved by the assembly of 1915 such basis of union, together with a statement presenting views of both minority and majority within the church shall be sent down to presbyteries, and also to sessions and congregations, that the judgment of the whole church may be had, and such issue as may then seem wisest, be given to what has been subject of negotiations for so many years. And further, that the general assembly earnestly assure the other negotiating churches of their desire to reach that issue without any unnecessary delay."

Some of the most important suggested amendments to the basis of union dealt with the appointment of ministers. It was proposed that there shall be for each conference (synod or union) a settlement committee, consisting of ministers and laymen, and appointed annually by the conference, and upon which each presbytery will be represented.

That the duty of final inquiry into the personal character, doctrinal beliefs and general fitness of candidates for the ministry representing themselves for ordination or for reception as ministers of this church shall be laid upon the annual conference (synod or union). The original paragraph omits the phrase "or for reception as ministers of this church."

"It shall be the policy of the United Church to foster the spirit of unity everywhere, both in its own midst, and, so far as it can, in other Christian churches, also in the hope that this sentiment of unity may in due time, so far as Canada is concerned, take shape in a church which may fittingly be described as national."

At their final meeting Saturday afternoon, the home mission board and the board of social service and evangelism decided to recommend on Tuesday morning that they be amalgamated. The motion will also recommend that Dr. A S. Grant and Dr. J. G. Shearer, the present heads of both departments, be appointed as provisional superintendents. If Dr. Grant does not withdraw his resignation it is understood that an endeavor will be made to have Dr. Shearer appointed as head of the committees.

CYCLONE SWEEPS FARM-HOUSE TAKING LIFE OF AGED COUPLE

Thomas Hartley, Aged 74, and His Wife, Aged 65, Meet Sudden Death When Whirlwind Shortly After Six o'Clock Strikes Their Home and Scatters Fragments Over Adjoining Fields.

WOODSTOCK, June 8. — Thomas Bartley, 74 years of age, and his wife, 65 years of age, were killed about 6.30 o'clock last night when his farm house was picked up by a cyclone. Portions of it were scattered through adjoining fields for several hundred yards.

The disturbance appears to have originated near a bush between the 12th and 13th concession lines, north of Woodstock. The wind took a southerly course, crossing the field in which an asylum stands, taking trees and fences with it along the south side of the cross road.

A slaughter house belonging to J. Milson, Woodstock, between the 11th and 12th concessions, lost its roof but a litter of pigs in the barn were not injured.

When E. Kinsman, who lives on the cross-road, saw the approaching white column of dust, fences and trees, he immediately rushed his family into the cellar of his house. His house is the first one west of the home of Thomas Bartley and did not suffer damage.

Bartley's residence was a frame dwelling two-storey house and stood on a stone foundation, about two feet and a half in thickness. All that remains is the foundation. The heavy joists of the structure were found across the road and stones from the foundations were scattered by the cyclone for many feet on both sides. The foundation was cleaned to the level of the ground.

Allan Barker, whose father's farm adjoins that of Bartley's at the back, was one of the first to arrive on the scene. He found the body of Mrs. Bartley lying in a huddled position on the west side of the house, and the body of her husband in front of where the house had stood. When Bartlett was still conscious, but died in a few minutes.

Kinsman says that Bartley's body was strangely contorted, his head resting upon the foot of his right leg, which was broken. He was badly cut about the head. It is thought that he had just finished his supper when the wind struck the house. Mrs. Bartley a few minutes previous to the accident had been sitting on the east side of her home, and on account of the suddenness of the onslaught it is probable that she was still there when the house was wrecked.

A graphic description of the cyclone was given by two boys living at the Benfield farm. They saw it from start to finish. The column was only about 100 yards in width and perfectly white. Starting in the black clouds of the raging thunderstorm, it looked like a dust storm. They could discern trees, telephone poles, fence rails, all in the whirling mass. While they were standing in front of their homes they saw it cross the 11th concession line, close to the asylum, traverse the opposite field, taking with it all the trees and fences. After it passed the residence of Kinsman it took a southerly course, rising from the ground and passing over a field in which about 25 cows were feeding.

Back it came in a wide circle straight to the Bartley house, struck it and in a second nothing was left except whirling masses of broken timber scattering across the road and over the field towards Entwhistle's house. It then crossed several more fields, laying six maple trees across the road. When it had traveled a short distance north of the road it vanished as quickly as it had risen.

LIEUT. COLIN W. C. GIBSON of the 13th Regiment, Hamilton, who will be Adjutant with this year's Canadian Bisley team. Lieut. Gibson is the son of Sir John Gibson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario.

VILLA IS HUMBLE

Content to be Mere Leader of Military Division

TORREAN, Mexico, June 8.—The power and authority of Gen. Venustiano Carranza, who is about to declare himself Provisional President of Mexico, has been increased by Gen. "Pancho" Villa's humbly accepting a place as the mere commander of one of the four military divisions into which Carranza has divided that part of Mexico already conquered by the rebels.

Villa, who has been the supreme military commander of the rebels, was to have met Carranza Friday, but instead remained at Chihuahua and had a long communication with the supreme chief by telegraph, as a result of which he acknowledged Carranza's authority and said:

"I am ready to make any sacrifice for my country, provided always that making such sacrifices will aid the greater cause for which I have been fighting."

REV. W.M. TURNBULL AT THE TABERNACLE

Peterboro friends and acquaintances will be interested to learn that Rev. W. M. Turnbull, son of J. C. Turnbull formerly of this city will speak in Bethany Tabernacle, Tuesday night.

Rev. Mr. Turnbull recently accepted the principalship of the Wilson Memorial Academy, Yack, N.Y. He has labored in India and his address should be very interesting.

A BIG CAMP FOR ONTARIO

Niagara Too Small now says Col. Sam Hughes

OTTAWA, June 8—Appropriations amounting to approximately ten million dollars were voted for the Department of Militia, at Saturday evening's sitting of the House.

To the majority of the items there was little opposition. During the discussion of a plan for acquiring a militia training area in New Brunswick, Hon. Sam Hughes announced that it was the intention of his Department to secure a similar area in Toronto division. The Niagara camp, he said, was large enough to drill soldiers on, but not large enough to manoeuvre bodies of troops. He said that 60,000 were expected to attend the summer camps of instruction. The proposed area while primarily a militia camping ground would also be suitable for a picnic and excursion ground for the surrounding district.

As to the camp at New Brunswick, to which Mr. George Fowler (Con., Kings and Albert, N.B.) took exception, Col. Hughes denied that it would be as expensive as Mr. Fowler represented. It consisted of 69,000 acres of partly cleared land, contained enough timber to pay for its purchase price, and its value was shown by the fact that right of way for the National Transcontinental through it had cost the Railways Department $13 per acre.

Prorogation of Parliament is about definitely fixed for Thursday next, with a possibility of winding up a day earlier.

The Prime Minister said Saturday that all the Government legislation which may be described as at all contentious is all through the House. In the Upper House there are three distinct sittings daily, so that bills can be facilitated much more readily than in the Commons.

Hon. Robert Rogers declared Saturday night apropos of redistribution, that "everything is off absolutely."

Next year the Government will likely bring in a redistributing bill directly, and not refer it to a committee at all, he declared.

MAN ROAMED THROUGH PALACE

Enters Buckingham and Prowls About

LONDON, June 8.—A sensational incident of the day, and one that has caused grave anxiety owing to exploits of the militant suffragettes, was the discovery of a young man, who gave his name as Harry Pike, in Buckingham Palace, where the royal family spent Sunday. In the early hours of the morning Pike entered the palace, as he explained afterwards, to prove that entrance could be easily effected. He scaled the wall and wandered through the corridors for some time. Once he was near the Queen's apartment. He was finally discovered, however, and overpowered in the servants' quarters. He will be arraigned to-day in the Bow street police court on a charge of having been found on enclosed premises for unlawful purposes. This is the only offence provable against him, so far as the evidence shows.

There is nothing to show that Pike is connected with the women's suffrage movement. He gave his occupation as an engineer.

Pike was ignorant of the interior of the palace, and had several adventures while wandering about inside. Notwithstanding the heavy guard of soldiers and police, who are supposed to patrol the grounds closely, Pike managed to scale the palace wall, and climb into a basement window on the north side of the building, in which Queen Mary has her apartment. He entered several of the vacant rooms, and in one changed his clothing, which was torn and soiled through scaling the wall and crawling along the driveway to reach the palace building. The suit he exchanged for his own belonged to one of the servants.

The discovery of Pike resulted when he opened the door of a room where a servant was sleeping, saying to the servant, who had been awakened by his entry: "Excuse me, I was looking for number twenty." The servant suspected the man was a burglar and aroused other servants, who crowded him into a corner and held him there until the police came and took him away.

ANDERSON IN EAST PETERBORO

Reeve of Otonabee is Nominated by Liberals

W. A. Anderson, reeve of Otonabee, was nominated by the East Peterboro Liberals in convention at Norwood on Saturday, to carry forward the Liberal cause in the elections of June 29. C. J. Darling of Dummer was also nominated but when the majority for Mr. Anderson was announced, he withdrew and asked that the nomination of his opponent be unanimous.

The speakers included S. Armstrong, Otonabee, F. D. Kerr and H. B. Cowan, Peterboro.

REGISTRARS APPOINTED

The registrars for the forthcoming provincial elections have been appointed as follows: Ward one, Frank Dobbin, ward two, J. G. Sherry; ward three, R. Morrow; ward four, D. W. PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, JUNE 8, 1914

G. A. GILLESPIE, LIBERAL CANDIDATE.

WE CONGRATULATE the Liberal Party on the choice they have made in nominating Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie as their candidate in the provincial elections. He is a strong man, doubtless the best runner that party, in its present disorganized state, could produce. But, as he failed to get a majority in the mayoralty contest, he is not expected to be the winner in the present elections. The reason is obvious; he is opposed by a stronger man. So far as the personal element is concerned, the Conservatives have reason to feel confidence in the result of the poll.

But there are other reasons which make Mr. Gillespie's candidature a sporadic effort. He is not as strong a man for the temperance party as Mr. Soden, because when they both have the same plank in their platform, Mr. Soden has the Government behind him. It is quite impossible to wipe out the evils of intemperance at one sweep. The Government may legislate, but the will of man to do good or evil remains still a citadel under his own judgment. The Government can only make it more difficult for men to do evil through intemperance by restrictive or prohibitive laws, and Premier Whitney has declared himself willing to do this as soon as the people manifest their desire in this regard. Between the two parties temperance reform has more to gain by electing a Conservative temperance man, who will have the Government behind him.

The Liberals are appealing to the people on one issue alone. Much as every fair-minded man would like to see the evils of the liquor traffic wiped out, that question constitutes only one of many problems with which the Ontario Government has to deal.

Electors should consider this important point in casting their ballot. One social reform may be much desired, but it would be a disadvantage to be blind to many important matters while advocating one. In addition to the temperance issue, there is the Good Roads policy of the Whitney Government. There are also such questions as the bi-lingual school question, the Workmen's Compensation Act, the development policy for New Ontario. What has Mr. Gillespie to say about these? What has Mr. Rowell to say?

The whole Liberal party has virtually left every question save that of temperance to the Conservatives, and in so doing they are trying to blind the electorate t[illegible] just as important as the temperance que[illegible]ack of a settled policy on other probl[illegible] intemperance, constitutes a great weakness in the Liberal appeal, and in West Peterborough will no doubt prove a fatal mistake.

BUSINESS CONDITIONS IMPROVING.

PRESIDENT WILSON, in a recent talk to the newspaper people, at the White House, said that the general business of the country was sound; it was improving; all the wheels of commerce were busy. The farmers in the west were talking of needing 100,000 men for the harvest in the fall. The business houses were doing a brisk business. The only elements which appeared to suffer were the railways and the steel business. The latter was largely dependent on the former; and the former could not give the orders they would like to give on account of the stringency, which the railways felt the most of all, especially as they had to disburse great sums latterly in wages and betterments and extra cost of material, and were still awaiting the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission. The President did not commit himself one way or the other respecting this decision, but he did seem to hint his sympathy with the railways in the situation in which they found themselves. At least, the address would read that way. The railways felt more or less depressed, and this depression would not be lifted till the decision was known. At the same time the depression of the railways communicated itself to other activities, and especially to the steel industry, which felt the loss of the big rail orders they should be getting regularly. The President, however, strongly deprecated pessimism, which he himself refused to entertain, convinced, as he was, that the tone of general business was improving rapidly and markedly, and that only in the instances he had mentioned did dullness prevail, and that for special reasons which might be overcome. The address was stimulating, and, timely as it was, it may have an inspiring and beneficial effect.

THE C.N.R. BILL.

HON. J. A. LOUGHEED, Government leader in the Dominion Senate, stated that the original C.N.R. lines had become wedged in between the Canadian Pacific and the Transcontinental, and unless something was done to extend it, it must either be absorbed by one or the other. Recognition of this fact, and of the need of another trans-continental railway, had caused the late Government to commit itself to the principle of Federal aid, until it was recognized in the money markets that the work was "so interwoven in the political organization of Canada that the Government must stand behind it."

The credit of the country, he argued, was at stake in the money markets of the world and the retention of that credit was contingent upon this bill passing. To force the company into liquidation would cause financial panic, destruction of the country's credit for a generation in the money markets of the world and chaos in Canada owing to failure of the company to meet its obligations to the banks."

OIL VERSUS COAL.

THE USE OF OIL instead of coal on ships is likely to cause many changes in ship construction and cost of navigation. After an experiment with the American revenue cutter McCulloch on the Pacific Coast, the officials of the service announced that it had been converted to the use of oil fuel. The trim little vessel was equipped some time ago with oil burners, and its officers have discovered that not only has the cost of driving the ship been decreased, but her radius of steaming power has been greatly increased. It is likely that the other revenue cutters of the United States on the Pacific coast likewise will be equipped and that in time all of the vessels will be propelled by fuel oil instead of coal.

THE SPIRIT OF PARTY CONTESTS.

THE REVIEW has no intention of vilifying the nominee of the Liberal party. Electoral contests have in the past been frequently degraded by resorting to personalities, to an ungenerous and picayune criticism that is not politics and which obscures the real issues before the people. Mud-slinging we can leave to others. What is of interest and importance in this campaign is a judgment on certain political problems. The two candidates will declare themselves on these questions, and the voters will be asked to approve or disapprove of certain proposals for the solution of these problems. Every voter should ponder well what the candidates have to say and try to understand just what the political issues raised in this election mean for Ontario and its future. We believe the Conservatives have played a great part in Ontario's growth, that their administration has been in the public interest, but, whatever may be the politics of the individual voter in this riding, let him decide the case on its merits, not forgetting that it involves more than one problem and more than one answer. Politics will be the better for it. Just criticism will do no harm; men are of many minds, but when reasonable can usually agree on a practical answer. Not personal aims nor the gratification of party spite, but disinterested public service, should be the aim of contests for the suffrage of the people.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SOME CONSERVATIVES have criticized the Review for not commenting in a more pronounced manner on the action of those who spoke vigorously at the Liberal Convention on abolishing the bar, and after the meeting went downtown and abolished the bar. The Review has no desire to moralize on sordid details of this nature, or to use them for party advantage, even though they have a bearing on the present contest. It is interested in the issues before the people, and believes that the Conservative answer to these issues will receive the support of a majority of the people.

IT IS OFFICIALLY STATED that the joint contribution of the Krupp family and firm at Essen to the $250,000,000 "war tax" now being assessed in Germany is $2,151,750. Baroness Bertha Krupp von Bohlen and her husband will pay $1,725,000, the Krupp Company, $211,750, and Frau Krupp, the "Cannon Queen's" widowed mother, $215,000. Betwen them the Krupps will pay 57 per cent. of the entire contribution of the City of Essen.

On a visit to relatives who fruit-farm in Canada, she exclaimed: "What quantities of fruit! What on earth do you do with it all?" They thereupon trotted out their time-honored witticism: "We eat what we can, and can what we can't." It went very well. Returned to England, at her first afternoon tea she began, with a laugh: "Heard such a funny thing while I was in Canada. I asked them what they did with all their fruit; such quantities, my dear! And they said: "We eat what we can and bottle the rest.' I laughed till I cried."

Abandoned.

Toronto Globe.

Fainter and fainter, slowly disappearing into the northern sky like a floating, curving, waving thread of black, the curlew pass to their summer home. Lacking the military rigidity and angled formation of migrating swimmers, their line bends, elongates, and loops in the concealing clouds. Grouped points become visible like thickened knots after the attenuated lengths of the thread have vanished in the distance. The strained vision eluded by the thinned curves catches the faint blot of a momentary group, but soon the grey clouds refuse the faintest revelation. It is fascinating to triumph over distance with a field glass. Again the clouds seem peopled with half a hundred curlew, surprisingly near, their rotund bodies distinct and their graceful, curved wings fanning the clear air. Again the varying line curves, loops and extends, its uncertain windings seeming in fancied contrast with the unvaried, instictive purpose that impels the migrants on their long journey.

It was discouraging to see them ignore the marsh whose characteristic exhalations are generally accorded an inquiring inspection and sometimes a visit. After the clear, easy journey across the open lakes the odors of marsh vegetation are a tempting welcome. The curved line swerves, turns, circles inquisitively, and again swings northward with reluctance, sometimes returning to pass again through the inviting vapors. To a whistled call the arrested flock droops and lowers as if the northward impulse were momentarily arrested. The combination of marsh and sandy beach is sometimes irresistible to a small flock, and they line up on the shore, their long, curved bills held in striking outline, and their graceful, rotund forms giving a new animation to the ceaseless urge of the waves. They are giants beside the sand-pipers and other shore waders resting with them on the long journey. It seems in protest at the destruction of the marsh and the prospective spoliation of the beach that this flock passes over, ignoring the remaining and disappearing charms that have attracted curlew for ages.

GARDEN SASS

By Walt Mason

Oh, luscious greens! Young beets and beans, fresh peas and new potaters! With fork and spoon, morn, eve and noon, we push them in our craters! The pale wax bean is good, I ween, and succulent and tender; the carrot red is thoroughbred, the onion's clothed in splendor. When noontime comes my stomach hums—at least I have that notion; and as I throw the greens below it trembles with emotion. Sometimes it stalls at codfish balls, and balks at beef or mutton, at corn beef hash and kindred trash, and hints that I'm a glutton. But I may pass down garden sass until I'm tired of chewing; my stomach makes no cranky breaks, it still is up and doing. Too much we eat of pie and meat, the doctors oft inform us; in summer days we stupid jays devour the things that warm us. Fresh garden sass, good sparrow grass, the onion, beet and lettuce—these are the things to eat, by jings! then health will not forget us. So let us swat the garden plot, and rob it of its treasures; oh, let us feed on yarb and weed, and taste the simpler pleasures.

THE HOSS-SWAPPER

A hoss-swapper is a man who knows a hoss from his shortest nose-whisker to the longest hair in his tail and kin tell you in picturesque language how much better a nag the one he's driving' is than the one you're drivin', and convince you that the opportunity to swap your old skate fer a thoroughbred that has won six prizes fer speed and a diploma fer gentleness is so golden that it casts a yaller shadder.

Of course you've allars felt that when a golden opportunity happened along you'd grip it, so you swap, and you ain't long larnin' that you've been done, and done proper.

And you say ter yerself, "What swapper has done can also do," and you take your new hoss by the bridle and go over to try and do Bill Jones. You give Bill the same spiel the swapper give you. You strive to show him his golden opportunity of swappin' his two-year-old fer your newly-acquired relic. But Bill jest grins and shakes his head and says you orter be 'shamed of yerself ter cheat a neighbor. And you lead yer old skin sadly back to the stable and you set down on a bale of hay and you think it all over. And by and by it dawns on you that a hoss-swapper is born, not made.

Care of London's Statues.

The brilliant emerald and blue-green stains which have appeared so conspicuously on the stonework of the Gladstone Memorial recently in London have attracted much attention. The memorial has just been cleaned, and it is the washing of the dirt off the stone that has made the stains, which are old, so very conspicuous.

Enormous care is taken of London's statues and memorials, according to Mr. Barnes, chief architect of the Office of Works. "Since we took over the control of statues and monuments recently," he said, "I have been making a special study of the cleaning question. We never touch our bronze statues with anything but soap and water, and rub them with brushes. Sometimes they are simply polished with dry cloths. I keep skilled men who rub and dry softly, and wash and polish. It is fatal to chisel, and scrape, and scrub and sandpaper. We do not try to remove the black deposit of soot on the statue if it forms an even coating all over, and does not destroy the lines of the original. It acts as a preservative."

"I'll tell Kendall, Gloria, that he's got to join the lodge," were Kerr's parting words as he went into the inner office.

Remembering that Miss Kerr had not been given the chance to explain her visit fully, Judge Gilbert took a chair beside her and said:

"Now, I'm at your service, prepared to believe the most terrible things about our fair Belmont."

"When you talk like that, Judge Gilbert, I'm afraid you're laughing at me."

Of late Gloria's seriousness had far outweighed her old mood of joyousness, and she now insisted on being taken seriously.

"You've lectured me so long for being shocked at what I've found that I'm afraid to say any more."

Judge Gilbert was seeking in his mind for some plausible reason to advance which would be sufficient to remove Gloria from the work she had undertaken, when Williams entered.

"I beg your pardon, sir," said the secretary, "but Mr. Wright is here."

"Mr. Wright," exclaimed Gloria. She almost rose from her seat, but feeling the eyes of the lawyer upon her, sank back again and tried to appear quite at her ease.

"Tell him I'll see him in a minute."

"Yes, sir."

Williams went out, and left Gloria feeling as if she were on the stand, a witness in her own defense. She was provoked because she knew the attorney had heard her exclamation. Something within her made her wish to rush away. But this wish in an instant gave place to one more ardent. She would see him, speak to him, learn the truth from his own lips if he were man enough to speak, and then go away forever. Deep down in her heart, however, she heard a whisper out of the leaves of their "birthday book," words he had whispered:

Spring in the hills, Beloved,
On the side of a meadowed slope;
And Love in our hearts, Beloved,
Love and Spring and Hope.

CHAPTER XIII.

Wright had no means of knowing what it was Judge Gilbert had to propose to him, but he felt certain that it had some connection with his newspaper and with the campaign now ending in a lurid blaze of political pyrotechnics. Gloria Kerr was the last person he would have thought of meeting in Gilbert's office. He had promised himself that after the election, no matter whether it went his way or not, he would see her and make his excuses for not having had the time to be with her as he had wished. He would also begin to look about for a purchaser for the News. He hoped he would have no difficulty in getting Gloria to leave Belmont. Then for the new life with her where they could be ever together, one in heart and hope and happiness.

When Williams told Wright that Judge Gilbert was ready to see him, he opened the door and saw the lawyer advancing to meet him with extended hand. The adviser of Belmont corporations knew the value of a handshake and a cordial greeting. It made a visit to his office take on the air of a social affair.

"I'm so glad you came," he said to the editor, shaking hands heartily.

"I came as soon as I could." Wright was not going to be outdone, and therefore used his most genial tone, although the shaking hands on his side was a perfunctory performance. He knew Judge Gilbert's real attitude, and undue cordiality under the circumstances savored too much of the Greeks bearing gifts.

"Miss Kerr and I have just been speaking of you."

"What!" exclaimed Wright. Looking past the judge, for the first time he saw Gloria. At mention of her name the girl rose from her chair. She really thought she merely wanted to speak to him, once more look into his eyes, and then take her departure.

At sight of her, Wright stepped forward and said, "How do you do, Miss Kerr? It's a great pleasure to see you. I certainly did not expect to find you here."

They shook hands in rather a constrained manner, Gilbert watching them closely the while.

"Naturally not," she replied. "I came to see Judge Gilbert on a matter of business and am just leaving." Despite herself she could not help adding, "My friends find me most of the time at Locust Lawn."

Something in her manner brought the lawyer at once into the conversation with a turning of the subject.

"I couldn't tell you very well over the 'phone what I wanted," he explained to Wright. "It'll be a little while before I can talk to you. I need a few minutes more to ascertain fully the wishes of my clients."

The conversation was so businesslike that Gloria forced herself to say:

"I must be going. Please don't let me keep you from your work."

But at this Gilbert held up his hand appealingly and begged, "Please don't go. I want you to do me a favor. Wait for Mrs. Hayes. Until I've finished this conference, won't you be so good as to act as hostess here and entertain Mr. Wright?"

"Really, Judge Gilbert, I—"

"I'm sure Mr. Wright wishes it." He interrupted her because he did not know what she might say, and he knew his remark would bring from the newspaper man a request that she remain.

"I wouldn't have Miss Wright make a martyr of herself," Wright said with quiet dignity, "but if she would be so kind—"

"Didn't I tell you," the judge said to the girl. "Not a word. You must take my place until I return. If you'll pardon me, I'll be with you again in just a few minutes."

There was no time for them to protest. He slipped into the office where Kendall and Kerr were closeted, and closed the door quietly after him.

The situation was not without its embarrassment. Taking into consideration everything which had happened in the last month, there was little wonder that each felt constrained. In addition to that, Gloria felt as if she had just been figuratively thrown at his head. To a high-spirited girl this in itself was mortifying. They sat without a word until the silence became painful. Wright was desperate. Here was the one woman in all the world, and he was afraid to open his mouth. At last he mustered sufficient courage to remark:

"Beautiful spring weather we're having."

This remark served only to punctuate the silence. It seemed to him, from the length of time before she replied, that Gloria was mentally inspecting the records of the weather bureau for the last twenty years.

"Yes," she said, a word that did not appear so ponderous as to require all that time to bring it forth.

This did not prove conducive to further conversation. He felt that the weather had not been exhausted by her voluble reply, however, and used it again.

"They tell me it's liable to be bad for another month."

Again Gloria seemed to make a mental survey of all the weather records of the last twenty years. Wright had almost forgotten what he had said when she at last gave the conversation football a dainty kick by saying:

"Yes."

This time he was ready for her. His embarrassment was wearing off and he began again promptly:

"Don't the rains make the road pretty bad out your way?"

"My friends manage to get out to see me."

This was a chill rejoinder, and Wright felt he had lost several points in their game of indirection.

"Locust Lawn is quite a distance out," he ventured.

"Not far enough to discourage my friends."

This goaded him to an apology. He regretted that she was not making it easy for him, but he forgave her because he knew she did not understand.

"Because I've been so busy, please don't think that I'm discouraged."

"Why should I think of it at all?" she replied with spirit.

Her remark hurt him, both her words and her manner of speech. It tore away his reserve and made him burst forth in protest.

"That's not like you, Gloria. We've been such good friends."

"We have been good friends," she admitted promptly. "Is there any reason, Joe, why we should not be now?"

His heart beat high within him at her words. They were so direct, so honest, so like the one woman of his dreams. It grieved him that he could not be as direct with her; but that was impossible, for over them was the sinister shadow of David Kerr, her father, the boss of Belmont.

"There's no reason why we shouldn't be good friends, Gloria. What put that idea into your head?"

"My circle of friends in Belmont seems to have grown smaller and smaller."

"Please don't put me on the outside."

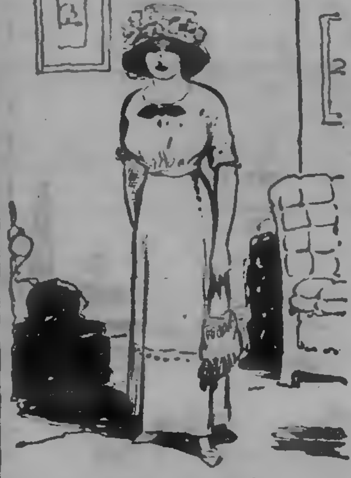
"You seem to have put yourself there."

The conversation lagged. There was so much to think about. Gloria was seeking to reconcile his explanations with her own observations. Looking at him closely she saw that he did not have that fresh, robust look which a month ago had made him seem fit for a gladiatorial contest. As he sat in the big office chair he seemed to relax with fatigue. His face was thinner, and there were little lines of worry about his eyes. Between his brows and on either side his mouth were to be seen creases which the girl thought proclaimed to the world his strength of character. A month ago she had not noticed them. She had felt he was such a man, but the wrinkles, confirming her belief, could almost be called a source of joy to her. They had made away with some of the youthfulness, but in his face she now saw something which more than compensated. It had greater strength now, strength such as was written on her father's countenance.

"You look tired." Her low, sympathetic tones and her solicitous look did what nothing else could do. They melted his stern purpose to bear it all in silence for yet a few days into a desire to take her as much as he dared into his confidence. With a woman's quick perception she would understand that he was unhappy. Her sympathy and her confidence in him would nerve him to fight the good fight as nothing else could and his heart was stirred by the possibility."

"Yes," he admitted, "I'm tired and sick at heart.'

"Why don't you take a vacation? Go to Europe."



"Yes," She Said.

"I can't pick up and run away like that; but I'd do it anyway if it would bring back the dear old days."

"The days I knew?" the girl made bold to ask.

"The days you made so—delightful."

"Can they be gone forever?"

"You mean—" Wright did not dare to put his hope in words.

Carried farther than she had intended, Gloria beat a retreat by saying:

"Who knows? We may meet in Paris again some day."

"Some time soon, I hope. I'm sick and tired of it all here, Gloria. To-day it has seemed like the game isn't worth the candle. What do you think?"

"I'm all in the dark, too," was her confession. Slowly and surely in the shadow of her shattered hopes and his unhappy conflict of duty and desire were they being drawn closer together than even they had been when they laughed with the spring and dreamed of the days to come in a radiant sunshine of unwhispered love.

"I don't know what to think," Gloria went on in a low tone. "I don't seem to understand Belmont."

"Why don't you go away? Don't you want to?"

"What for? I know the life out there." She made a sweeping gesture which seemed to encompass all the world outside the four walls which shut them in together. "It wouldn't really satisfy me any more—to live as I used to live."

"Yet your life here—" He left the rest to her.

"No, this doesn't satisfy me either."

"In a word, Gloria, you're not happy."

Instead of replying directly, she asked with a dropping of her hands to her sides in a hopeless fashion:

"Is anybody in the whole world happy? Are you happy?"

FUTILE SACRIFICE.

A Tragic Story of the High Cost of Juvenile Diversions.

"I HEARD a cynic talking on the futility of self sacrifice the other night," said a New York lawyer. "I didn't agree with his conclusions, but his theme recalled an incident in my youth that was certainly a case in point on his side.

"When I was a youngster the dog faced boy was in his prime. We lived in the county seat of a county up state. My only sister—always my great pet—and I were intensely excited when we heard that the lad with the canine countenance was to come to our town.

"We had saved up all our pennies, and when the boy arrived we had twenty-five. We figured the admission would be 10 cents and we would have a nickel over for candy, for what's seeing a dog faced boy without candy to chew while staring?

"Well, the boy arrived, and we went down to the tent where he was being displayed. To our horror the admission was 25 cents. We puzzled long, but the tragic conclusion was always the same—only one of us could go in. So with tender fingers I drew forth the twenty-five pennies, and in a voice husky with the emotion of disappointment I said: 'Here, Dot, you go in. I don't mind, and you can tell me all about him when you come out.'

"My sister protested, but finally she went. In five minutes she was back. I was all eagerness to hear every detail of the famed face.

"'How was he—how was he, Dot? What did he look like? Is he a really, truly dog? Tell me quick.'

"Dot gazed at me, and her lip quivered. 'Oh, Jack,' she said, 'when I got in I was so scared I couldn't look at him.'"—New York Times.

Seeking Expert Opinion.

A Chicago business man, with many relatives, some of whom were well to do, but grasping, recently sought the services of his lawyer to draw up his will. When, after much labor, the document was completed, the client asked:

"Have you fixed this thing, as I wished it, tight and strong?"

"I have done my best," said the lawyer.

"Well," continued the client, "I want to ask you another thing—not professionally, however. As a friend and man to man, who do you think stands the best chance of getting the property when I am gone?"—Harper's Magazine.

Not So Far Out of the Way.

"Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he reap." Johnny repeated it after his father several times and seemed to have mastered the correct wording.

As they drew near the Sunday school the father gave Johnny his last rehearsal. "Now, son," he said, "let's have the Golden Text once more."

This is what he got:

"Whatsoever a man sews always rips."—People's Home Journal.

TRIM CHECKED COAT.

Smart Model Suitable For Street or Motoring.

NEW CHECKED COAT.

This simple checked coat is an attractive model for street or motoring wear. The raglan shoulders, the convenient pockets and adjustable collar are smart and convenient features of this new wrap.

Plain jackets are worn with striped or plaid skirts and vice versa. Rolling collars made of lawn are popular worn over a collar of the suit material that can be removed and laundered. The linings of coats usually trim the collar and cuffs. Novelty silks, printed crapes and modern art colorings in stripes and checks are used for linings.

The cape is the latest idea in outer garments. It appears in various lengths, from a short cape reaching to the waist line to the one that envelops almost the entire dress. The cape coat is also smart. For everyday wear fancy worsteds in Scotch mixtures, small checks, invisible plaids and novelty materials are used. The new cotton velvet in bright shades is used for capes and cape wraps.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

Schneider Bros., the well known jewellers have taken over Clarke's Jewelry Store, north of Turnbull's new building, and from now on will conduct the business. Their business at 391 George Street will be continued and the stock sold at reduced prices for a month or so but after that the business will be confined entirely to the new store. It is to be fitted up with new and up-to-date fixtures and the repair department will also be given the same careful attention as the repair shop in their present place of business.

African Farmers Coming.

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, June 8.—A party of 53 farmers, under the leadership of Johannes Adriaan Nesser, member for Potchefstroom in the Parliament of the Union of South Africa, left yesterday for England on their way to America, where they are to make a tour of investigation of agricultural methods.

Voted Out Trust Bills.

WASHINGTON, June 8.—The Senate Interstate Commerce Commission Saturday voted to report out only the trade commission measure of the trust bills. The action was construed by many as an indication of limitation of the administration's program at the present session of congress.

TORONTO JOINS WITH THE SALVATIONISTS IN MOURNING FOR DEAD

With Ten Thousand Inside the Arena and a Hundred Thousand Outside, Toronto Witnesses a Scene Unparalleled in History of Province.

TORONTO, June 8.—Saturday and Sunday were days of mourning in Toronto. Saturday's funeral service for the sixteen whose bodies have been recovered from the Empress of Ireland disaster was by far the biggest affair of the sort ever seen in this city.

Round the Arena one hundred thousand people surged, vainly striving for entrance or patiently awaiting the conclusion of the service.

Stirred to their profoundest depths, their every feeling levelled to the universal plane of human sympathy, ten thousand hearts o' Toronto's citizens throbbed in unison with those of the mourners.

During the service official messages were read from Gen. and Mrs. Bramwell Booth, Evangeline Booth, Canadian delegates at the congress in London, and from branches of the Salvation Army in different parts of the world.

Representatives were present from Provincial Government, city, Toronto Ministerial Association, C.P.R., fraternal organizati-ns and other societies.

On Sunday there were three services, in the morning, afternoon and evening. The first was a memorial for the officers and soldiers of the Salvation Army "promoted to Glory from the Empress of Ireland at daybreak on Friday, May 29th," held yesterday morning in Massey Hall.

Despite the terrible storm which swept the city during the afternoon the Arena was filled. Sir John M. Gibson, the Lieutenant-Governor, presided, and speeches were made by Mayor Hocken, Hon. Dr. Pyne, Rev. W. Brewing and Mr. T. B. Coombs.

The prominent figures at the evening memorial service in Massey Hall were Staff Captain David McAmmond, Major Attwell and Ensign Ernest Pugmire, all of whom were survivors of the wreck.

TWO BOYS ARE KILLED

Lads Put Black Powder In Their Pockets and It Ignited.

BELLEVILLE, June 8—Two boys, James Thompson, aged 16, and Jos. O'Connor, aged 13 years, who resided with their parents in Tyendinaca Township, were on Friday night the victims of an accident which caused their death.

The lads, while walking along the newly-constructed C. P. R. track, discovered a keg which contained a quantity of black powder. They filled their pockets with the powder, and after walking a short distance made an effort to blow up a stump by placing a quantity of the powder beneath it. An explosion occurred and the powder in the boys' pockets became ignited.

O'Connor was frightfully injured and died almost immediately. Thompson, who was terribly burned and lacerated, lived until an early hour Saturday morning.

An inquest will be held.

To Summon Cabaret Men.

MONTREAL, June 8.—The Court of Appeal Saturday gave its decision on the question of licenses for four local cabarets by ordering the license commissioners to consider new applications from their proprietors. Cabarets were first refused licenses by the license commissioner, this being quashed by Judge Charbonneau because copy of the commissioners' judgment was printed in the papers before being delivered. The commissioners again refused licenses and matters were further complicated by appeal against every judgment delivered in the problem, the appointment of a new commission and an order of the mayor instructing the police to summon cabaret owners who in the beginning of the proceedings kept open without their licenses for selling intoxicating liquors.

Most men might be fairly happy if they could forget all the mean things they know about themselves.

POWASSAN HAS BAD FIRE.

Damage In Conflagration Is Estimated at About $300,000.

NORTH BAY, June 8.—The thriving little town of Powassan, situated on the G.T.R. twenty miles south of North Bay, received a heavy blow yesterday morning in a disastrous fire which wiped out twenty-five buildings, including some fine business buildings and residences.

The loss is estimated at about $300,000, with insurance of about half the loss. A quantity of pulpwood and bark were also destroyed.

The fire broke out in the cellar of the Queen's Hotel at two o'clock yesterday morning, and spread with great rapidity, assuming such threatening proportions that the local brigade was unable to cope with it, and assistance was summoned from North Bay.

Two Perish In Fort George.

FORT GEORGE, B.C., June 8.—Two persons were killed in a fire which destroyed the Palace Hotel, South Fort George on Friday. The dead are: Bert Moody, G.T.R. timekeeper; — Soklowski, bridge worker. The loss was $20,000.

To Champion French.

OTTAWA, June 8. — Napoleon Champagne, M.P.P. for East Ottawa, and again Conservative candidate in that riding, in an interview with a local French paper expresses his intention of opposing the famous bilingual regulation, 17, and opposing everything derogatory to the interest of Catholic French-Canadians. He declares that if the Opposition proposes a vote of censure on the Government for the way it has dealt with the school question, he will vote for it.

Thaw's Chauffeur Killed.

NORTH STRATFORD, N.H., June 8.—Frank Cantin, the chauffeur who drove Harry K. Thaw in a wild flight from Norton's Mills, Vt., across the state line to Colebrooke, N.H., after Matteawan fugitive had been deported from Canada Sept. 11 last, was instantly killed when an automobile he was operating capsized Saturday. Cantin, who was on his way from North Stratford, to Colebrooke, was traveling alone.

NEW KIND OF POLITICS.

Sir James Scores Mr. Rowell For References to Health.

TORONTO, June 8. — Sir James Whitney has given the following to the press: "My health is steadily improving, and as far as my judgment goes is in some respect perhaps better than it has been for a number of years. I observe, however, that this is not the opinion of the leader of the Opposition, who is reported as saying at the Massey Hall meeting that the Conservatives are well aware that Sir James would never again be able to lead them in the House. Although apparently the wish is father to the thought in his case, yet I am sorry to observe this new method of conducting a political contest, introduced by the leader of the Opposition. I hope the public will excuse me for mentioning this matter, but justify it on the ground of the remarkable course taken by Mr. Rowell."

"Mother" Jones Enters Canada.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 8.—"Mother" Mary Jones, organiser for the United States Mine Workers of America, left for Vancouver by steamer Friday night without hindrance, the Canadian immigration officers who prevented her from embarking on the previous day, having been overruled by their superior officers at Ottawa.

The British Columbia Government ordered the exclusion of "Mother" Jones, who had announced her intention of addressing the striking coal miners of Vancouver island, on the ground that she would be likely to stir up trouble.

To Teach Deaf and Dumb Prince.

MADRID, June 8.—Don Jaime, second son of King Alfonso, who is deaf and dumb, is to be put under the tuition of Miss Annie Mansfield Sullivan, whose success with Miss Helen Keller, the blind, deaf and dumb genius, is still a subject for amazement to the scientific world. Miss Keller is said to be one of the six most remarkable persons who have ever lived, but she owes practicly everything to Miss Sullivan, who has great hopes of being able to do much for Don Jaime.

Charged With Conveying Durgs.

LONDON, June 8.—For conveying to Holloway Jail letters and drugs to the militant suffragette, Grace Roe, a summons was issued Saturday at the instance of the public prosecutor, against Arthur Barnett, clerk to Mr. Marshall, secretary for the Women's Social and Political Union. The case has evoked much interest in view of the charges brought by Mrs. Mildred Elk Mansell, one of the organizers of the militant society, who declared on June 2 that the militant suffragettes were being drugged in order that they might be forcibly fed.

Grace Roe was one of the women arrested on May 21 during a police raid on a west end flat, and later charged with conspiracy. She is now awaiting trial.

BIG GRAIN COMPETITION

New Feature of Prize List of Canadian National Exhibition

A Grain and Sheaf Competition open to the world is an added feature of this year's Prize List of the Canadian National Exhibition, which is now being distributed. The prizes in this competition are $100 and Medal each for Spring wheat, Fall wheat, barley, oats, Flint corn, Dent corn, beans and peas. All exhibits must be the product of the crop of 1913 or 1914 and must be sent through the Minister of Agriculture, Commissioner or Secretary of the Province or State, or Officer in charge of an Agricultural Department. The exhibit shall consist of two bushels of grain in sack, accompanied by one sheaf of the same grain. Sheaves are not required for entries of beans and peas.

The other departments of the Prize List have been carefully revised, and the total amount to be awarded for Live Stock and other products of the farm and home is $55,000. The List has been specially framed to protect the interests of the small exhibitor.

The Grenadier Guards' Band from England will f[illegible] the music, while two concerts daily will also be given by Creatore's Band, the most famous concert band on the American Continent. The spectacle, "Babylon," is on a more magnificent scale than ever before, and the other special attractions promise to show marked improvement.

THE $25,000 ARABIAN STALLION

"White Cloud," the $25,000 Arabian Stallion, with Robinson's Famous Shows, is one of the world's real marvels. He possesses near human intelligence, counts exactly up to sixteen, picks any one of six colors, winds and sets a clock at any minute told to, writes his name, plays football, and finishes his act by retiring in an ordinary bed, donning his night robes, turning out the light, turns back the covers, lays down, pulls the covers over him, yawns and snores. All this he does without an attendant near him. He is the most beautiful animal ever bred. See him do it at two performances of Robinson's Famous Shows in Peterboro on Wednesday, June 10th.

ANCIENT ORDER FORESTERS AT MURRAY STREET

Members Hear Fine Descourse by Rev. J.R. Webb

More than one hundred members of Court Stanley Ancient Order of Foresters attended divine service at the Murray Street Baptist Church last evening and listened to a brilliant sermon by the Rev. J. R. Webb. The pastor took his text as follows: "For every man shall bear his own burden." (Galatians Vi. ch. 5 vs.) Referring to the statement made by St. Paul in his message to the Galatians the pastor stated that the apostle's message could be interpreted as meaning man's load. He believed that Paul meant that every man should bear his own load in life but when that load became a burden his fellowmen were expected to help him shoulder the burden. It was for just such purposes that the Ancient Order of Foresters was organized. The speaker was glad to know that the organization had taken upon itself the duty of attending church. He thought in such action the order had sought enlightenment of the work of God for after all one of the fundamentals of fraternalism was to give a helping hand to a brother and that was one of the principles made clear in the work of God. Speaking of man's load the pastor said that men were expected to work for their bread. Some men were overloaded by illness and lack of work and it was then that life became a burden and then when his fellowmen should help in the carrying of that burden. The Empress of Ireland was loaded when she steamed out of Montreal. She was burdened when the bows of the Storstad rammed her steel. No form of unionism whether it had fraternalism for its base or not could succeed unless the power of God was recognized. In olden France a faction clamored for equality of rights but it did not recognise God. Ruination followed in its path. The speaker stated that he was not a member of the A.O.F. but that was probably his loss. He was pleased to know it was doing good work in helping brothers who were overburdened and expressed a wish that the work would continue with greater success.

At the morning service Rev. C. G. Smith of Belleville preached an anniversary sermon and at the conclusion of the evening service he stated that he had never heard a more meaty sermon than that delivered by the Rev. Webb.

WANT FISH HATCHERY.

Reeve Bottum at the County Council on Friday introduced a question of a fish hatchery for Bobcaygeon, saying that fish were being depleted in the lakes, and needed replenishing. Hatcheries are being placed in different parts of the provinces, and the centre of the Kawartha Lakes should not be without one, not that he wanted one at Bobcaygeon especially, but that it should be central.

Mr. Mulligan wanted the hatchery established in his own particular pond near Omemee.

The matter will be pushed if possible, and presented at every available opportunity.—Lindsay Post.

A Pleased Customer

MIDLAND, Ont., May 12, 1914.

MR. A. A. FOWLER,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I am very pleased to advise that the glasses with which you fitted me some weeks ago are giving me good satisfaction. I have been wearing them ever since received, and they certainly are a great improvement over the ones which I had been wearing previously.

Wish you would please send me up a few of those books for cleaning the lens, and if there is any charge, would be pleased to remit.

Thanking you for your favors.

Yours very truly,
J. G. MANLEY,

GOOD TURNOUT FOR ANNUAL CHURCH PARADE

Rev. H. J. Keith Delivers Address to Canadian Order Foresters

Courts Peterboro, Littlejohn and Langton, Canadian Order of Foresters turned out in strength for the annual church parade last evening to Knox Presbyterian Church. Rev. Bro. H. J. Keith delivered an appropriate sermon and the discourse assisted as it was by the music by choir and organist, made a bright and helpful service, in appreciation of which, the Foresters passed a vote of thanks on their return to the hall.

In his remarks, Rev. Mr. Keith pointed out the fact that our social obligations are such that they compel us to God and we must recognize that compulsion and act with God, if as an organization or as individuals, we wish to successfully carry out the obligations and responsibilities imposed upon us. The Gospel of Christ is a social Gospel.

The man who fails to recognize this fact has got a very poor glimpse of the Gospel of Christ who not only sought to redeem but also to inspire men to go out and help his brother. His teachings are such, that as they have been doing, will continue to transform the life of the world. If his teachings are followed then will be brought about, that which we are striving for.

The Gospel was a social Gospel in the days of the apostles. There were many instances where the disciples gave all that it might be used for those in need. Strangers were not forgotten. Cities made their offerings to help strangers in other places, and whom they had never met, in order to fulfil their obligations.

Today, emphasis is being made that the gospel is a social gospel. It seeks to inspire men to assume their obligations. The keeping of the Sabbath Day and other reforms are of the gospel of Jesus Christ which is seeking the highest for mankind throughout the world.

The preacher went on to show that fraternal organizations were in sympathy with the gospel of Christ and with their high aims are at least parallel to that gospel.

Fraternal organizations today are in a condition of transition. Times and conditions have changed. Wealthy insurance corporations have grown up, there is a tendency to forget the obligations which we ought to assume; there is the increased cost of living. In some organizations men are not as true to their obligations as they should be. At burial services, there were days gone by, when the whole organization would turn out, no matter how humble, the member might have been. Why is it today, only a corporal's guard respond to the appeal?

Sorrow and distress are not less in the world. There are still widows and orphans left behind.

In order to make our organization strong we must consider the source of our organization and emphasize the principles of brotherhood. Our social obligations have this compulsion that they compel us to God. There is not enough in human nature to compel us. It must be the Supreme Being, which means a sincere friendship which every one can experience. No one who experiences this Friendship can refuse to go out and help another to bear his burden.

Then when we help others through God, our own souls are blessed more than if we sought the help of God for our own needs. He who goes out to help his brother is forced back to God as the compelling force and as he falls back he receives help to go out and help others. This must not only be recognized by the organization but also in the individual life.

Y.M.C.A. DOINGS

Encouraging reports concerning the effort of the financial teams of the Y.M.C.A. to raise the amount of $4,500 continue to be made to Secretary Meserve. Over $2,000 has been collected so far and reports show a daily increase.

Some twenty-five members of the Boys' Department of the Y.M.C.A. enjoyed the first war canoe trip of the season down the river on Saturday afternoon under the supervision of Boys' Secretary Galley.

The first war canoe trip for the Seniors will be held tonight.

Enthusiasm is being evinced by the junior members in regard to the coming annual camp at Sandy Point. Arrangements for every convenience for the campers is being arranged for and a lively time is anticipated. Boys who intend taking in the trip should communicate with Mr. Galley.

CHANGE IN DATE.

The Sacred Heart Church Lawn Social and the Merchants' Picnic were arranged to take place on the same date, Thursday, July 16th. It would be detrimental to both to have two such large functions opposing one another, thus the Retail Merchants endeavored to change their dates but owing to boat service were unable to do so. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, has now decided to hold the lawn social on Tuesday, July 14th, and the Merchants' picnic will be held as was first announced on July 16th.

BIG PRICE FOR LOT.

Mr. J. J. McBain, of Peterboro, has sold a vacant lot on Russell Hill Road to Mr. J. W. Allward for $8,250, or at the rate of $165 a foot. It has 50 feet frontage by a depth of 190 feet. A large residence is to be erected on the lot, which is situated a little north of St. Clair Avenue. This is the largest price paid for vacant lots on this street.—Toronto Telegram.

DISPUTE OVER AN ELEVATOR

Claim and Counter Claim in Division Court

The action of Green vs. Roland Denne was taken up by a jury in the division court this afternoon but a judgment had not been rendered at present time. Mr. Kerr, of Peck, Kerr and McElderry acted for the plaintiff and George Hatton for the defendant. G. Walter Green the plaintiff installed an elevator in the defendant's premises and after it had been in operation for some time it went out of commission temporarily. The plaintiff repaired it and seeks his charge for doing so. The defendant refused to pay claiming the elevator went out of commission owing to a defect in installing it. A counter claim for damages is also filed by the defendant. The plaintiff claims that the fact that the elevator went out of commission was merely because of an accident.

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. THEOBALD.

The death occurred this morning at her late residence, of Mrs. William Theobald of Smith at the age of twenty-eight. The late Mrs. Theobald was born in Norwich, England, but has been a resident of this vicinity for the past five years. She leaves to mourn her demise a sorrowing husband and three small children.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday afternoon to the Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. R. Webb will conduct the services.

SACRED HEART T.A.S.

The members of the Sacred Heart Total Abstinence Society attended seven-thirty mass at the Church of the Sacred Heart yesterday morning and received Holy communion in a body. Rev. J. J. O'Brien, spiritual adviser celebrated the Holy Sacrifice and likewise spoke a few words, commending the work of the Total Abstinence Society and urging each and every member to do all in his power to protect the young men and boys. The society's new badges of red, on which a picture of the Church and His Lordship Bishop O'Brien, D.D., founder of the society are imprinted were worn for the first time.

TRIAL TO-MORROW.

Thos. E. Harrison, a Monaghan farmer, will face Judge Huycke tomorrow morning on the alleged charge of threatening to shoot Chas. Beatty, a bailiff, on the 24th of March. Beatty was serving a writ on the defendant at the time when the fracas occurred. R. Ruddy, K.C., is defending the prisoner.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

John H. Eatle a prosperous Cavan farmer sold about June 1st, at Cavan Station seven fat cattle for the sum of $638.00, being an average price of over $91.00 each. Pretty good price when you consider that three of them were only 18 months old. Yet we hear it said farming does not pay.

ST. PAUL'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE POLL TAX.

Editor Review:—

Dear Sir,—Does it seem right sir, to fine a man who is out of work and has been out of work for several months for inability to pay his poll tax? Yet a Magistrate told the undersigned on the street this morning that he would have to fine him if he used the streets and lights even when out of work and unable to pay the tax. We are willing to work and willing to pay our tax as soon as possible but it does not seem right to fine a man when he is unfortunate. Suppose I get a summons. What defence am I to make in view of his statement?

Yours truly,
C. Duggan.

Every inch of old tablecloth should be saved. When the tablecloth is past mending, it can be cut into tray cloths, bread cloths, kitchen tablecloths, and it will make very good kitchen towels for wiping glassware.

A good chicken is known by soft feet, smooth skin, and soft cartilage at the end of the breastbone. An abundance of pinfeathers always indicates a young bird, while the presence of long hairs denotes age.

BOWSER'S MAGIC

Our Hero Turns His Attention to Mental Telegraphy

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

MRS. BOWSER knew it by the way he grinned.

She knew it by the way she heard him chuckle now and then.

She knew it by his blandness to the cat and the cook.

Mr. Bowser had something up his sleeve, but she must wait.

It might be a patent mop handle that could also be used for a broom, a club, a feather duster, a fire poker, a burglar alarm and a pancake turner.

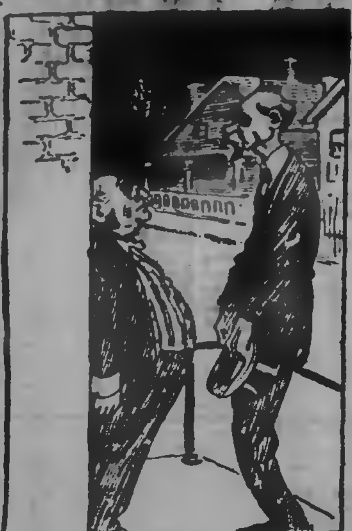
There was no telling what he was going to bring forth until the moment came.

Dinner was finished and he grinned. Mrs. Bowser had picked up some sewing and worked at it for about ten minutes when Mr. Bowser burst out laughing. She looked up inquiringly, and he explained.

"It's a wonderful thing, and I'm firmly convinced at last!"

"What is it you find wonderful?" she asked.

"You've read and heard of what they call mental telegraphy, I presume? Well, I've been experimenting on you for the last half hour, and the results are wonderful. When you first sat down I mentally telegraphed to you to look at the clock. You did so. Then I telegraphed to you to cross your feet. You did so. Then I ordered you to scratch your nose, yawn and rock back and forth, and you obeyed."



IT DIDN'T HAPPEN TO BE JONES.

"What nonsense!" said Mrs. Bowser.

Mr. Bowser Is Vindicated.

"There's no nonsense about it. It is an idea as old as the world. Why shouldn't one person's thoughts fly through space and be communicated to another? What did you do at exactly 3 o'clock this afternoon?"

"I went out to order meat for dinner," answered Mrs. Bowser, after a moment's thought.

"Exactly—ha, ha, ha! At 3 o'clock I telegraphed you to go out after meat, and you went. Don't talk about fads. It is positively wonderful, and if you would only go in with me we would develop it to an astounding degree. There you go! I just telegraphed you to raise your left hand, and you lifted it to scratch your ear."

"Is it possible that you really believe in such twaddle?" asked Mrs. Bowser.

"Anything you can't make out is twaddle. Of course I believe in it, as do millions of others, and it won't take me half an hour to convince you. I don't know how it will work on animals, but I'm going to experiment. There's the cat under the piano. I will telegraph her to come here. Watch me. I lean forward and fix my eyes upon hers. I say, 'Come here—come here!' She gets nervous. She moves. She comes. She"—

Something Goes Wrong.

The cat yeowled and spat and made a sudden rush over Mr. Bowser's feet and disappeared down the hall and upstairs.

"It—it wasn't exactly a success," he admitted after the flurry was over, "but that's easily explained. A cat hasn't a soul. She felt my mental influence to an extent, but couldn't make out what I wanted."

"Haven't you got a corn on your right foot?" inquired Mrs. Bowser, as she took up her needle again.

"What if I have?" he asked.

"You'd better get down your old razor and shave it off, instead of wasting your evening."

"I'll do nothing of the kind! I've set out to make some experiments in mental telegraphy, and I'm going to do it in spite of a million corns. I needn't expect any help from you, of course, but I don't want it. I will now telegraph to Jones to run in here. At the office today we understood each other perfectly."

Mr. Bowser closed his eyes, concentrated his thoughts, and a mental dispatch was sent to Jones next door. There was silence for three minutes and then the doorbell rang.

"Ah! You don't believe it, eh?" he exclaimed as he rose up to answer it. "I think you'll call this something besides twaddle before the evening is over!"

The door was opened, but it didn't happen to be Jones who stood there. It was a man who explained that he had lost his all in the great Chicago fire and had never recovered from the blow, and if Mr. Bowser could spare him 10 cents"—

The door closed and bit the conversation in two.

"Why doesn't Jones come in?" asked Mrs. Bowser as Mr. Bowser returned.

"That's easily explained. A confounded old tramp interrupted the message. He probably was standing on Jones' doorstep at the moment, and the dispatch couldn't pass through him."

"You ought to have a corkscrew dispatch, so it could have twisted around him."

The Cook's Turn.

As Mr. Bowser glared he felt his heels lifting up and his ears working, but by a powerful effort he restrained himself and after a minute or two he said:

"I will now experiment on the cook. I will telegraph her to come up to the head of the stairs and ask you whether you will have oatmeal or pancakes for breakfast."

He sat down with his head on his hands and there was a silence for thirty seconds. Then there came a crash and a yell from the basement. Both ran down to find that the cook had shoved her elbow through a pane of glass while pulling down the window.

"Were you about to come upstairs?" asked Mr. Bowser, as she made her explanation.

"I was, sir," she replied.

"To ask Mrs. Bowser about breakfast?"

"No, sir. I was going to hand you the gas bill."

"Now you see what nonsense it is," said Mrs. Bowser as they went upstairs.

"I see nothing of the kind," was the tart reply. "The trouble is that you are antagonistic. I'll get along without you, however. I wonder where the cat is?"

"You'd better let the cat alone. If you sit and glare at her again she may go mad. Better try Jones again."

"That's sarcasm of course, but I'll fetch Jones over here, dead or alive! You sniff and scoff at this thing, but that only shows your ignorance. Go out among your neighbors and talk as you do to me and they'll put you down for an idiot. Why, woman, the theory of mental telegraphy is older than the hills. It was known 3,000 B. C."

"But there's nothing in it," she persisted.

"But there is, and I'll prove it. Now you sit down and be passive and I'll try it on Jones again. Don't antagonize me in your mind, but give me a fair show. Now I have my thoughts on Jones. He is sitting on the lounge. He begins to hitch around. Now my message is becoming communicated. He says to his wife that he is going to drop in here for a game of checkers. Now he is at the hall tree. Now he is out on the stoop. Now he is at our gate. Now he rings the bell."

At that instant the bell rang, and it was such a curious coincidence that Mrs. Bowser turned pale.

"Didn't I tell you so?" grimly observed Mr. Bowser as he started for the door.

Mr. Bowser's Ire Aroused.

He pulled it open in the firm belief that Jones was standing there, but it didn't pan out that way. It was the same man who had called before. He had returned to see if there hadn't been some misunderstanding. It was possible that Mr. Bowser had understood him to say that he had lost all on a horse race or a dog fight and for that reason had refused him financial assistance. He was making an explanation when Mr. Bowser interrupted. He seized the mendicant by the collar, and at that instant the cat came flying downstairs. Mental telegraphy had notified her that the front door was open and that the promenading felines of the neighborhood awaited her arrival to lead the grand march. As she went out on the jump she struck Mr. Bowser's legs, and the next instant two men and a cat were rolling down the steps. It was three minutes later when Mr. Bowser limped into the hall. The fire sufferer had hoofed it with his coat ripped up the back, and the cat had dodged the issue and scaled three fences.

"Why didn't Jones come in?" asked Mrs. Bowser, who had not left her chair.

Mr. Bowser did not answer. Reaching for the banister, he pulled himself from step to step with a clump, clump, clump! and she heard him kick a door as he reached the upper hall. Then she knew that the performance was over.

Has Salvaging Contract.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., June 8.—Lieut. Commander R. H. S. Robinson, general manager of the Lake Torpedo Co., announced yesterday that he had secured a contract to salvage valuable freight from the wreck of the Empress of Ireland, sunk in the St. Lawrence river.

Street Traffic In Old Time London.

On Jan. 19, 1635, an attempt was made to solve the problem of London traffic by restricting the number of hackney coaches. Charles I. issued a proclamation setting out that "hackney coaches are not only a great disturbance to his majesty, his dearest consort, the queen, the nobility and others of place and degree in their passage through the streets, but the streets themselves are so pestered and the pavements so broken up that the common passage is thereby hindered and made dangerous, and the prices of hay, provender, etc., thereby made exceedingly dear. Wherefore we expressly command and forbid that no hackney coaches or hired carriages be used or suffered in London, Westminster or the suburbs thereof except they be to travel three miles out of the same. And also that no person shall go in a coach through the said streets except the owner of the coach shall constantly keep up four able horses for our service when required."

An Error In Geography.

On one occasion the British lost a point in their war with Russia by reason of an error in their geography. This was when Commodore Elliot had succeeded in blockading the Russian fleet in the gulf of Saghalin, on the east coast of Siberia. The Russians were in a cul de sac, and the British ships waited contentedly for such time as the enemy should venture to put to sea. But they waited in vain, and at last an investigation was made. It was found that the Russian fleet had vanished. While the British commodore waited at the south end of the gulf, the Russian ships slipped away through the shallows at the north end into the sea of Okhotsk. Until this discovery was made the British government had believed Saghalin to be a peninsula. Now, too late, they learned that it was an island, with a very narrow channel at the north end of the gulf running into the sea of Okhotsk.

Digestive Marvels.

An Eskimo has been found—and no very unusual Eskimo at that—who eats, when he can get it, four pounds of boiled meat per day. When an Eskimo can get all he wants to eat he makes a business of it. He doesn't store it in the refrigerator, but in his stomach.

Yet the Eskimo is a healthy creature, peculiarly free from digestive disorders.

A Copenhagen doctor has a subject—he isn't a patient nor a "case," but an exhibit—who is keeping up wonderfully on potatoes and oleomargarine. He eats, it is said, eight pounds of potatoes a day when working hard. He likewise enjoys capital health.

It is strange in view of these two instances that a prominent medical authority should venture to inquire whether many of the rigid rules of physicians who prescribe systems of diet are well founded.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THERE is only one woman who makes anything by resorting to tears, and she is the one who appeals to her average male acquaintance.

Even when a humorist dies it is hard to get his acquaintances to take him seriously.

A man is apt to think that well spent money is that that his wife didn't get.

Ever notice how smoothly things seem to run that have never had the benefit of your advice?

An empty head is seldom either heavy or stupid.

Having a good time is rather expensive when times are bad.

It is being a good fellow that tends to render him good for nothing.

The second time a man marries he can't plead either inexperience or illusion to account for it.

Anybody would like to be honest, but everybody makes it so hard for him.

There are plenty of us who have good principles that have no interest for us.

Some women find it so difficult to be pretty that it makes them cross all the time.

A hobo is a man who is too lazy to work and whose sense of fair play has caused him to give over caring much for the products of labor.

Saving Quality.

In trying patiently to climb
The man need not be dense.
Who doesn't think it is a crime
To show some common sense,
Who ventures in that way to plod,
Although some folks may call him odd,

For common sense will pull him through
When genius calls for aid.
It will assist him to pursue
His calling or his trade,
And then the fickle ones will say
He is not made of common clay.

Not making his achievements hum
With clatter and display,
But doing little things that come
Along from day to day,
On duty striving to attend
And thus accomplishing his end.

Thus, to the very great surprise
Of those who love to knock,
Above the level he will rise,
And up will go his stock,
And when returns begin to show
They will declare, "I told you so."

Don't be afraid to number out
Your stock of common sense.
When genius shakes its head in doubt
Just tell it to go hence.
Depend on it through thick and thin,
For in the long run it must win.

Strong on Utility.

"We ought to do something nice for Senator Jabbeafter all he has done for the country."

"That's so. What would you suggest?"

"We might give him a loving cup."

"What is that good for?"

"It is fine to look at."

"I know, but couldn't we expand the idea and make it a bathtub?"

Getting Used to It.

"Why are you so disturbed?"

"I am in love."

"What!"

"Fact. And the first time too."

"Oh, just wait until you reach the stage of your second marriage and you will take it quite as a thing of course."

After, Not Before.

To lie in state is counted great,
A special honor giving,
And is for those, you may suppose,
Who do not lie while living.

Insinuating.

"You tell everything you know."

"I don't either."

"You do too."

"I don't talk as much as you do."

"No; you say very little."

Couldn't Be.

"I think Brown is out of his mind. Don't you?"

"No."

"He acts like it."

"That may be, but he never had a mind to get out of."

But There Was One.

"He is no fool."

"How do you know?"

"Cost me $25 to find it out."

"Well, he wasn't in that transaction."

Peace.

Lives of great men all remind us
That we, too, 'll be moving on
Where collectors cannot find us
Nor berate us when we're gone.

I am going to seek a great perhaps.—Rabelais.

PLAY WRITING.

It Is Profitable But Full of Heart breaking Delays.

Not a seat in the theatre is vacant. In the stalls are men who have won distinction in public life — famous judges, barristers, politicians, doctors, well known society people, and —in the eyes of the management most important of all—the dramatic critics of almost every paper in the metropolis that pays attention to the theatre. The circle and the gallery are crowded with people who are proud to boast that for years they have not missed a "first night."

In one of the boxes there sits Smith, the author of the new play. Now and again he tugs nervously at his tie or runs his hand through his hair. He groans when a sparkling piece of dialogue is so delivered that its point is lost on the audience; he wishes very much that he could steady his nerves by putting on that old briar pipe that helped him to write the play.

The actors, too, are nervous. Success or failure means so much to them. The weeks of rehearsal for which they have had no payment will all be wasted if the play is not a success.

But it is a success. Enthusiasm grows steadily, and at last the delighted "house" cheers again and again, and calls loudly for the author. Possibly the author does appear on the stage to stammer his thanks; more probably the chief actor announces that Mr. Smith has left the theatre.

Perhaps Smith, hitherto an unknown man, is now walking along the Embankment with his head among the stars. His achievement is doubly remarkable — he has not only written a play that promises to charm the public, but he has actually succeeded in getting it produced. Many dramatic aspirants are quite convinced that it is more difficult to get a good play produced than to write one.

Managers of West End London theatres are bombarded with plays. Hundreds come annually, many from the very last people who might be expected to attempt this form of art, and who betray their inexperience by the most absurd blunders. One well-known dramatic critic relates that in a play submitted to him he found this stage direction: "Enter Henry, smelling of tobacco." Managers receive some three-act plays that would only last half an hour, and others so long that they would have to be presented in serial form, and would even extend over several nights.

But managers, and particularly actor-managers, are very busy men, and have little time for wading through reams of manuscript. So unknown dramatists have to exercise the patience of Job while their plays are being considered, and in the case of some unbusinesslike managers plays have been known to languish in the archives of the theatre for two or three years before the luckless authors received them back.

Experienced dramatists do not as a rule approach managers with a complete play, but write instead the first act and a full synopsis or "scenario." If the plot appeals to the manager he pays, perhaps, $5,000 down on condition that the play is finished by a certain date, and he has the right to purchase it on stipulated terms.

If he likes the play when it is finished, he writes another check, and agrees to produce it within a certain time. If he fails to do so the author has so much money to the good and has still the play to dispose of.

This is a merciful arrangement; otherwise some struggling dramatists would be in danger of starving before they received a penny of the royalties when at last the play is staged. The royalties, of course, are governed to some extent by the fame of the author. A fairly common scale is 5 per cent. on the first $5,000 gross receipts and 10 per cent. on the remainder.

Lord Haldane's Cigar.

Lord Haldane is reputedly the heaviest smoker in the present British Cabinet, and very rarely indeed arrives at the meetings at No. 10 Downing street, on Cabinet days without puffing at a choice cigar. It is amusing to see him slacken his footsteps on approaching the House as if to get the most possible from the cigar, and then on the very doorstep take a deep pull before obviously reluctantly throwing it into the street. "Lulu" Harcourt and Earl Beauchamp are both inveterate cigarette smokers, the only difference being that the Colonial Secretary uses a holder. John Burns, on the other hand, very rarely is to be seen smoking. Only after his day's work is over does he indulge.

No Labels on Royal Wine Bottles.

The King is extremely averse to affording gratuitous advertisement to business firms. When you dine at Buckingham Palace you will notice that the champagne is not decanted, nor is there a silver holder round the bottle. It is not even wrapped in a napkin. But both the label and the gold "collar" have been removed, so that it is impossible to recognize the brand, unless you are a great expert. A champagne bottle without a scrap of paper on it looks an odd, naked thing.

Convinced.

System For Cleanup Time.

Housecleaning ought to be more than the mere scrubbing and polishing of the house. It should be a time to take account of stock and to clear out the unserviceable or unnecessary.

Before the cleaning is really begun it would be a good plan to go all over the house and put aside what is no longer needed, what can be given or thrown away and what needs to be repaired.

If three large boxes are placed in an unused attic and labeled "Charity," "Junk" and "To Be Repaired" every one in the household may contribute to the contents, and all will know just where to put the various things.

Unusual.

"Why do you feed every tramp who comes along? They never do any work for you."

"No," said the wife, "but it is quite a satisfaction to me to see a man eat a meal without finding fault with the cooking."—Pittsburgh Post.

A Human Churn.

Brunetta—Mr. Beanbrough seems to be sitting out a good many dances this evening.

Blondine—Yes; he just told me he is drinking cream for his health, and he is afraid of tangoing it into butter.—Judge.

Still a Bachelor.

Patience—What good did it do your brother to join the militia?

Patrice—Why, he's been mixed up in four engagements, and he hasn't been taken prisoner yet.—Yonkers Statesman.

STRIKEOUT DAY IN THE MERCANTILE BALL LEAGUE

Bankers Down the Red Caps and De Laval Fall Before the Drafting Room Nine—Huycke and Flaherty the Boss Foolers

| | Won | Lost |
|---|---|---|
| Bankers | 2 | 0 |
| De Laval | 1 | 1 |
| Red Caps | 1 | 1 |
| Drafting Room | 1 | 1 |
| Wm. Hamiltons | 0 | 1 |
| Typos | 0 | 1 |

Thus does the Mercantile League stand after the games were played on Saturday afternoon. It is a trifle early in the season and the old rivalry between the clubs has not been very deeply rooted as yet nevertheless the attendance was good and the interest taken in both games warrants the statement that the fans like to see a little amateur ball on the side.

In the opening game the De Laval, last week's conquerors of the Wm. Hamilton brigade, were pitted against the Drafting Room who were only too anxious to "come back" after their defeat the week previous at the hands of the C.G.E. Red Caps. The Draftsmen came back. When the last man was out in the ninth and the final curtain rung down the score read Drafting Room 12, De Laval 4. Right off the reel the C.G.E. crew fell on Mahoney's offering and at the close of the first frame had sent four men across the triangle board. From then till the finish they were never in danger. Mahoney gave way to Mr. Robert M. Carson, who mounted the rubber with a white pleated bosom effect and cuffs attached. He was strongly urged to remove his collar and tie but "Lefty" couldn't be persuaded. After pitching two innings he arrayed himself in a De Laval shirt and from then on handed out a variety of curves that even puzzled "Dank" Barrie. The De Laval team played very ragged ball and the seven errors chalked against them were all very juicy.

Jo Jo Henderson who did the twirling for the men of the fine art was going very well and received excellent support. Two errors were credited to his team men but neither was very costly. The Draftsmen had 12 hits while the De Laval secured 5.

Doing the same thing, over, over and over again—20 strikeouts for Huycke.

The team :—

De Laval :—Lafave c., Mahoney, Carson p., Spratt 1b., Callahan 2b., English s.s., Heily. 3b., Pilling r.f., Smith, Kennealley m., Taylor l.f.

Draftsmen :—Stanton c., Henderson p., Walker 1b., Olaga 2b., Barrie s.s., Jackson 3b., Gorman r.f., Metheral m., Cranfield l.f.

Bankers Were Winners.

Bankers were winners

The second attraction, in which the Red Caps suffered defeat at the hands of the Bankers, was without question one of the best Mercantile games witnessed this season. Meredith Huycke was in the box for the Bankers and the fact that he struck out twenty men speaks for the kind of ball the boy was pitching. For the first seven innings or so Huycke was the whole works and struck out opposing batsmen as quick as they faced him. In the meantime Ernie Rahmel, the C.G.E. pitcher was leaned on for five runs and when replaced by "Yebble" Flaherty the game looked "soft" for the Bankers. The old boy was there, however, and for the next four innings he and Huycke sent across some of the nicest beaders and Walter Johnson speed, that could be desired.

The ninth opened with the score 5-1 for the Bankers and Flaherty succeeded in striking out the three batters, making a total of ten strike outs in four innings. Huycke filled the bases, in the Red Caps' half, with nobody out and the excitement that reigned, could hardly be described.

Guerin's Attempt to Break up the Game was Ice Cream for Moran.

Mac Guerin the big first baseman of the Pilling's clan had two and two on him, when bingo—the apheriod flew out to deep centre. Fred Moran who guarded that section of the field ore after it and with a spear a la Joe Agler styled he saved the game. Rahmel who was on third had started for home, but had not time to touch the bag and score. Kendry the next man up fanned, Rahmel scored and Primeau fanned, which brought the innings to a close. The score stood Bankers 5, Red Caps 2.

The teams :—

Bankers :—Cavanah c., Huycke p., Parson 1b., Paton 2b., Minorgan s.s., Smith 3b., Akins r.f., Moran m., Sheehy l.f.

Red Caps :—Swanson c., Rahmel p., 3b., Guerin 1b., Flaherty 2b., p., Kendry s.s., Primeau 3b., O'Hearne r.f., Keenan m., Conners l.f.

SENATORS WON SATURDAY GAME

Lefty Rogers Out of the fray for a Week

Louie Schettler failed to hold the Senators on Saturday, the "Shag" bunch collecting fourteen safe clouts off his delivery, two of which were triples and two-base clouts. Kubat hurled for the winners until the eighth, when he was chased by Umpire Miller for disputing a decision. Lefty Rogers sprained his ankle sliding to second in the seventh, and will be out of the game for a week or more. A despatch says:

Ottawa, June 8. — The Senators beat Peterboro here this afternoon, 4 to 1, in the third game of the series. Kubat held the Petes to five hits up to the eighth, when he was chased from the game by Umpire Shocker taking his place. The champs hit Schettler freely throughout, getting fourteen safe wallops off him, bunching their hits in two innings, and two in four frames. Rogers sprained his ankle sliding to second in the seventh, and may be out of the game for a week. The score:

Score by innings:

| | | R | H | E |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| Peterboro | 0 0 0 1 0 0 0 0 0 | —1 | 6 | 1 |
| Ottawa | 1 0 0 1 0 0 0 2 * | —4 | 14 | 1 |

COMMENT

As You Like It

Have a good look at George Ort, short stop for the Beavers and manager for the St. Thomas Club, last season.

The Mercantile League is two weeks old and remarkable though it may seem, no protests have been entered.

Will somebody please inform Mossy Huycke that the weather is particularly fine at Stoney Lake ports.

At the next meeting of the Mercantile League, the Red Caps may be expected to ask permission to use larger bats.

The handwriting has appeared on the baseball wall of Hamilton and it looks as though Doc Yates is nearing the parting of the ways. Get the following by Bobby Robinson in the Hamilton Spectator :—

Judging from the remarks passed today by some of the Hamilton Baseball club directors, there is going to be a sudden ending to the present order of affairs in connection with the local team. The continued poor work of the local squad has aroused some of the directors to such an extent that they have decided upon sharp and drastic action, and it would not be surprising if some very important changes were made to the line-up this evening, for the directors will meet tonight to settle a few matters which require attention. The team's inability to get going at all good and the failure of Manager Yates to tighten up the weak spots has aroused some of the club officials to such a pitch that they are about ready to break loose in a wild rampage, and indications are that a warm time is being prepared for somebody at this evening's session. As one of the officials said this morning : "We have grown tired of the team's failure to more than break even on the games played, tired of the poor ball that is being dished up, and extremely tired of the failure to fill the gaps in spite of the fact that Manager Yates has been given a free hand and told to lose no time and get the players regardless of expense. Manager Yates was given until the end of this week to bring about the needed changes to the team and his report tonight will be awaited with interest."

Should the Hamilton Club deport Yates he will have the distinction of being the first manager of 1914 to be sent back home. Judging by the way some of the other clubs are travelling Mr. D. Yates will not be alone in his journey.

Heinie Smith the former Erie pilot was the first to go but as he left of his own free will he cannot be regarded as having been "oofed out."

The Senators refuse to play favorites and hopped on Schettler's shoots Saturday for fourteen grown up clouts. Louie has not displayed consistent form at all this year but can be depended on to come through.

J. Pluv unloaded a tank of damp at Ottawa yesterday and the Lord's Day Alliance was shorn of a chance to proclaim against Sunday ball at Hull.

The sooner some of the players in the Mercantile League get hip to themselves and understand that the umpire, appointed by the executive, is the boss during the game, the better for the league. There is altogether a little too much "crabbing" and in most cases it is not done to express dissatisfaction at a decision but to let everyone of the spectators know what they know the game. On Saturday the conduct of some of the players was a little raw and Umpire Andrews would have taken the wisest course had he ordered them off the field. Fans go down there to see ball games and have no desire whatever to listen to some "con shooter" airing his ideas in loud unparliamentary tones. It is impossible for the Mercantile League to have an O'Loughlin or a Klem to handle the games but the men they select are the best and they do their best, and a little judgment on the part of a few would make things a great deal more favorable.

Jimmy Archer, the Cub backstop, and rated as the greatest of the big mit brigade, broke his right arm in Brooklyn yesterday. Daubert, the Superba's initial sacker, struck out on a wild pitch. The runner raced to first and Archer went after the ball, which went towards the Brooklyn dug out. He fell headlong into the dug out, and his arm crumpled up under the weight. Jimmy Archer commenced his baseball career as a City Leaguer in Toronto.

Ty Cobb broke into the game for the Tigers after an absence of a few weeks and Detroit won. Cobb had two hits and four put outs.

KNOTTY LEES' BEAVERS HERE FOR THREE GAMES

Petes Get Shortshop Fried From Ottawa When Smykal Reports

Knotty Lee and his band of pennant chasers arrived today for the three game series with the Petes. Included in the Toronto bunch are Irwin Trout the former Pete and Marty Killilea who covered the infield for Hamilton for three seasons. Killilea went south with the Big Leafs in the spring but later he was awarded to Grand Rapids. He was purchased from that club by Knotty a few days ago. Meyer a brother of Dynamite Benny formerly of the Leafs but now a Red is another newcomer. The team is without Shultz and Schnieder. The former left the team at Erie to visit his mother in Pittsburg but missed train connections and will be in tonight. Schnieder, according to Knotty is lost forever. The big first baseman has jumped and Knotty says he is not worrying. He will play Trout at first today and when Shultz arrives he will be sent to the initial sack. Roberts will do the heaving for the Beavers and Harkins the receiving while Sterling and Kelly with a possibility of Miller will be in the points for the Petes.

The Peterboro Club will be strengthened by the addition of Fried the youthful Ottawa shortfielder. The youngster will be sent to the local club as soon as Smykal reports to the Senators. Smykal was loaned to Fort Wayne when Fried commenced to play such sensational ball for Shaughnessey but "Shag" has decided that he is just a little below the caliber of Smykal and for that reason has re-called the latter. Smykal is expected to report to the Senators at Hamilton today. As soon as he reports Fried will be sent here. King will then be shifted over the keystone sack.

Speaking of the forfeited game at Toronto, Secretary Dobson states that the Petes were the last team to leave the field. Manager Blount did not throw up the sponge but the umpire for reasons which he best knows, and without using his watch declared the game forfeited to Toronto. "Dobby" has the local club's share of the receipts and will hang on to them until the league decides whether the umps shall be upheld or overruled in his decision.

LACROSSE

The executive of the Peterboro Lacrosse Club are endeavoring to have the game between the locals and Hastings which is billed for Wednesday evening, postponed. The circus has an attraction for the Peterboro gang and they are also assured that if the game is played at a later date a larger deputation of rooters will be on hand.

GOLF

The draw for the semi-finals in the Stratton Trophy has resulted as follows :

A. H. Stratton vs. N. H. Campbell.
R. M. Hamilton, bye.

The game must be played by Saturday, June 13th.

The mixed foursomes competition will take place on Saturday, June 13th. Players are requested to be on hand not later than 2.45 p.m. as the draws for the game will be made at that time.

A very pretty June wedding was solemnized in St. Peter's Cathedral this morning just as the bell tolled the Angelus at 6 o'clock when Miss Kathleen Watters and Mr. John Peel were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Father Meagher.

The bride was assisted by her sister Miss Violet Watters while Mr. Marten Watters acted as the best man.

After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Peel will reside in this city.

MAHONEY—CALNAN.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized by Very Rev. Dean McColl in the St. Peter's Cathedral this morning at eight o'clock when Mr. Joseph Mahoney of Toronto was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Miss Mary Calnan of this city. They were attended by Mr. William J. O'Connell of Lakefield and Miss Margaret Mahoney of Toronto. After the ceremony the happy couple and a few intimate friends adjourned to the home of the bride's mother at 498 Sherbrooke Street, where wedding breakfast was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney left this morning for Toronto where they will reside.

Mr. Joseph Edgar, who is the Conservative candidate for the Legislature in the Parry Sound District is a brother of Postmaster Edgar and Mr. Jas. Edgar of Peterboro. The nominee is a merchant at Sundridge and has always been an active and able representative of Conservative principles. His opponent in the Convention was Mr. John Galva who has represented the constituency since the Whitney Government came into power.

Master Sam Whitehouse sang at St. Paul's Church, Port Hope, Sunday evening.

Rev. W. L. Armitage, of Toronto, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Lundy, while in the city.

LEAVES HOSPITAL WITH NEW FACE

Ross Allen Recovers From Trying Operation

Baltimore, Md., June 7.—Ross Allen of Whitby, Canada, was discharged yesterday from St. Joseph's Hospital with practically a new face built by surgeons. Allen fell across a saw plane at his home at Whitby three years ago, and a great part of his face was sheared off and the muscles of his arms torn out. Grafting was tried in Canadian hospitals to offset the disfigurement, but without success. Allen entered St. Joseph's the latter part of last November for treatment which included the grafting of skin from his arms and forehead, and the use of cartilage taken from the rib near the heart.

Allen is well known in this city having resided here for several months and he also operated a saw mill in the northern section of the county.

NEW CABINET FALLS THROUGH

PARIS, June 8.—A heated discussion arose in the Cabinet when the statesmen chosen by M. Viviani met informally Saturday to prepare their declaration of policy to be laid before Parliament. The question whether the new combination should unreservedly support the three years' military service law or modify it found a hopeless division of opinions.

As a consequence of this confusion M. Viviani at once proceeded to the Palace of the Elysee and told the President he had decided to give up his attempt to form a Cabinet.

WATTS-DUNTON DEAD.

Celebrated Poet and Friend of Swinburne Passes Away.

LONDON, June 8.—Walter Theodore Watts-Dunton, poet, novelist and critic, died yesterday. He was born Oct. 12, 1832. Mr. Watts-Dunton was the close friend of Algernon Charles Swinburne. The two poets lived in the same house for thirty years, and on the death of Swinburne in 1909 he left Watts-Dunton his entire estate.

The late novelist was born at St. Ives, Huntingdonshire, Eng., but lived for many years at Putney. He practiced as a solicitor in London for a short period before devoting himself to literature, adding his mother's name—Dunton—to his father's in 1897.

For many years he was chief critic on a number of important London periodicals, including The Examiner and The Athenaeum, 1876-1898, when his connection with all critical journals ceased. He published in The Athenaeum much poetry during his twenty years' connection. He contributed to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

Moth Causes Tuberculosis.

That in addition to being a destroyer of fruit and ornamental forest trees, the Brown Tail Moth is a threat to the health, is amongst the discoveries made by the Entomological Experiment Station of the Dominion Government at Fredericton. The investigators have found that whenever the hairs of these insects come in contact with human flesh they produce a most painful itching and eruption, the effect of which may last for months; when breathed into the lungs they have been found to cause inflammation and become productive of tuberculosis.

New Brunswick is making strenuous efforts to purge itself of the Brown Tail Moth invasion. In the vicinity of Sussex the exterminators, armed with cans of petrol, have succeeded, it is reported, in exterminating 19,000 of the pests and destroying their nests. The moth is the most dangerous pest that destroys trees and orchards that has yet appeared in New Brunswick.

Woman's World

Queen of Bulgaria to Visit America.

QUEEN ELEONORE OF BULGARIA.

Few royal women have visited America. Now and then a male royalty makes his way to our shores and departs graciously praising us, but feminine royalty has held aloof. Those royal ladies who have come to see us have with few exceptions been minor notables. The announcement that Queen Eleonore of Bulgaria is to make us an unofficial visit has aroused wide interest. It is said the object of her visit is by public addresses to correct the impression that the Bulgarians were guilty of unwarranted cruelties in their war with the Turks.

Queen Eleonore of Bulgaria has been known to her subjects and to most of Europe as "the nursing queen" since the two devastating wars through which Bulgaria fought her way at a terrible cost in human suffering and lives. The queen was unflinching in her devotion to what she considered her duty. She personally supervised the hospital service and labored night and day at plans of relief for the sick and starving families of the peasant soldiers in the wilder parts of the kingdom, as well as the poor in the towns. Since the latter of the two wars she has also been occupied in trying to solve the problem of the disposition of the scores of thousands of Bulgarian refugees who have been expelled from the territories occupied by the Greeks and Servians.

The queen is Czar Ferdinand's second wife. She was born a princess of Reuss of the Cadet branch, Aug. 22, 1860, and was married to the Bulgarian ruler at Coburg, Feb. 28, 1908. Queen Eleonore is very wealthy in her own right, and it is quite probable that the expenses of her trip to the United States will be defrayed from her private purse. In Bulgaria the queen is greatly admired. One phase in her character that has won the approval of her subjects has been the seriousness with which she has taken her duties as the mother of her stepchildren, the Crown Prince Boris, Prince Cyril and the Princesses Eudoxia and Nadejda, whose own mother, the late Queen Marie Louise, was a member of the house of Bourbon-Parme.

Queen Eleonore expects to spend six or eight weeks with us and will visit various cities. She intends to bring only a small suit and travel in as democratic a manner as possible. Although a very wealthy woman, her tastes are very simple, and much of her income has been spent in helping the poor and unfortunate of her husband's country. She is anxious to study social problems in America, hoping to learn much that may be helpful in dealing with the social and economic problems of her own country. Her visit is not with the object of collecting any funds, as admission to her addresses will be free and probably largely by invitation.

"Do We Really Mean It?"

There is no misunderstanding the attitude of Rev. Isaac Couch, pastor of McLeod St. Methodist church, on the temperance question. He said: "Personally I am in favor of wiping out the bar. Bring out a straight, clean, honest, abolish-the-bar candidate and be he Reformer or Conservative, I will vote for him."

Mr. Couch added that because a Conservative did not vote for the Conservatives or a Liberal for the Liberals it did not follow that he had ceased to be honest in his convictions. Synods, conferences, district meetings and the like had been passing resolutions year in and year out, and the question now was: "Do we really mean it?" —Ottawa Citizen.

MEN TRYING TO MURDER HIM

Stranger Tells This Tale to Police

A stranger who looked very much the worse for wear and telling a story that he was afraid some men were trying to murder him, was a guest of the police station yesterday.

He said he had worked on a boat running out of Kingston and that he had trouble with members of the crew because he refused to drink. He left the boat only to be followed via the "bumpers" from Kingston to Peterboro.

On arrival here he fled to the shelter of the iron clad cages at the Water Street hostelry. He told the Chief he wanted to reach his home in the States. Buffalo would do. Last night, he was escorted by a blue coat to the G.T.R. station and took the train bound for Port Hope.

But he didn't reach the town of Gulverwell. Near Garden Hill, he jumped from the train, his means of exit being through one of the windows. Apparently the man was not seriously hurt, as the Police Chief has been informed that the rescuers of the "train jumper" are sending him back to Peterboro.

Meanwhile he is held at Millbrook.

LADIES HEARD AN ADDRESS BY MRS. NEEDHAM

Mrs. Needham of Toronto, representing the Woman's Liberal Club of Toronto, and the Dominion Alliance, addressed a meeting of ladies at the Oriental Hotel, yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was held in the interests of the Liberal party. The main points upon which Mrs. Needham spoke were taxation, the franchise for women and the abolition of the bar.

The speaker neglected to give the Conservative party credit for what they have accomplished, but mention was made of what has not been done and what Mr. Rowell would do were he placed in power.

Mrs. Hunter was appointed convenor of the Literature Committee to receive literature and arrange for its distribution in the different wards.

The usual vote of thanks to the speaker was passed. About twenty ladies were present.

RELIEF BILL KILLED

Senate Gives Six Months' Hoist to Farmers' Bank Measure.

All Party Lines Are Broken in Unexpected Move on Part of Upper Chamber—Eleven Conservatives and Twenty-One Liberals Support Senator Power's Motion.

OTTAWA, June 9. — The bill to reimburse the depositors in the defunct Farmers' Bank was defeated in the Senate last evening by 32 to 25. The defeat of the measure was not unexpected, but it was anticipated that the division would be on party lines. The vote of the Conservatives was evenly divided for and against the motion, while fourteen Liberals vote to give the bill a six months' hoist.

The following was the division:

Conservatives, for six months' hoist, moved by Senator Power—Bolduc, McKeen, Daniels, McKay, Ross (Middleton), Corby, Murphy, Lariviere, Curry, Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Monplaisir—11.

Liberals, for six months' hoist—Belque, Fiset, Legris, Thibodeau, Godboul, Kerr, Dandurand, Power, Thompson, Forget, Jaffray, Tessier, Roche, Farrell, Dessaulles, Choquette, Yeo, Beith, Gillmer, Cloran and Lavergne—21.

Conservatives against—Lougheed, Baird, Mason, Gordon, McLaren, Taylor, Pope, Smith, Donnelly, McCaul, DeBoucherville—11.

Liberals against—Mitchell, Divet, McHugh, Domville, Casgrain, Bostock, Derbyshire, Develler, Young, Watson, Ross (Moose Jaw), Rats, Boyer and Talbot—14.

The two party leaders, Messrs. Lougheed and Bostock, both voted for the bill, while Sir Mackenzie Bowell, the old Conservative Premier, voted against.

Several Liberal Senators alleged that the purpose of the bill was merely to fulfill election promises and blacken the character of the former Finance Minister, Hon. W. S. Fielding.

Senator Bostock declared that notwithstanding the information which was said to have reached Mr. Henderson of Halton, that member had not taken the trouble to go across the floor of the House and tell Mr. Fielding.

Practically the whole of the afternoon's sitting of the Commons was taken up with a discussion of the mail service between Canada and Great Britain, with the rivalry between St John and Halifax as mail ports forced to the front by Maritime Province members. On the Liberal side the existing service came in for considerable criticism, while Hon. L. P. Pelletier and other Government men cited improvements since the present Ministry took office.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH TAKE OFF THEIR COATS

Bakers Fail to Appear With Recommendations for Handling of Bread, But Dr. Amys Comes to the Rescue

With coats off and enjoying the cool atmosphere of the committee rooms, the Board of Health passed a very uneventful one hour and a half this morning, when a few accounts were passed and one or two minor subjects discussed.

Medical Health Officer Dr. McPherson reported that a Mr. and Mrs. Cowan had been appointed to the position of caretaker for the Isolation Hospital. Miss Grace Burrit was appointed to assume the position of nurse at the Isolation Hospital caused by the resignation of Miss Wray.

The conditions of Lafayette and Jackson Avenues came in for considerable discussions. Both these streets are without sewers and according to the report of Sanitary Inspector Spence, sewers are badly needed. The matter was referred to the Peterborough Utilities Commission to deal with.

The Bread Regulations.

"What about the bread delegation waiting on us?" asked Dr. Amys, as Mayor Buller prepared to depart.

"Well, I won't support it, so I'm going," said the Mayor.

Dr. Amys then outlined a new scheme whereby the baker could wrap the bread classed by him as the bread of life, meaning the common white bread, made in uniform loaf. With the fancy bread he could do what he thought best.

"So you would let those who eat fancy bread suffer," remonstrated the Mayor. "Well, we will eat bread the same as they have for the past thousand years, and do it the same as the bakers did a thousand years ago."

"There were no bake shops a thousand years ago," contradicted Dr. Amys.

"I see you don't read the Bible," smiled the Mayor as he departed.

TRUE BILL RETURNED AGAINST THOS. HARRISON

Action for Damages for Alleged False Arrest is in Progress at County Court This Afternoon

In the Amy vs. McGregor action, the jury gave a verdict of $150 and costs for the plaintiff.

The list of cases on the roster of the June sitting of the county court and sessions of the place, which opened this afternoon, was very small, only one civil and one criminal action being listed for settlement.

The civil action was one for false arrest, the plaintiff being Samuel Cuny and the defendant Geo. McGregor. The criminal action comprised a charge of threatening to do bodily harm to a sheriff's officer, preferred against Thos. Harrison of Monaghan.

In addressing the grand jury, His Honor Judge Huycke in touching on weather conditions, congratulated the jury on the lightness of their duties. He referred to the one criminal action and outlined briefly the law covering threats. He asked the jurors to deal with the criminal action as quickly as reasonable. He also referred to the visit of the Duke of Connaught and stated such relationship with royalty created a spirit of good in the community.

It was the duty of the jurors to report on conditions existing in the county institutions. They were to exercise their duties in the interests of the taxpayers. It was the privilege of the jury to investigate public accounts, investigate how the inmates in the various institutions were cared for. There is no suggestion that they were being ill treated, but any suggestion the jury would make for the betterment of the buildings and conditions would be acted upon. In closing, His Honor urged that special attention be paid to fire escape and prevention equipment.

The Grand Jury.

The Grand Jurors follow: Wallace Anderson, Arthur Franks, Alex. Fitzgerald, Fred Gardner, James Garside, Alex. Gibson, Albert Hunter, James Lynch (foreman), M. Pethick, Robert Tanner, Chas. Tanner, Harry Buck, and Jas. T. Brown.

True Bill.

During the afternoon, the grand jury returned a true bill against Thos. Harrison, indicting him on a charge of threatening. He will be tried to-night.

Case Closed.

When the action of Curry and McGregor was called, G. N. Gordon asked for an amendment to the statement of claim, seeking to insert $500 as damages, instead of unstated damages.

R. Ruddy asked for an adjournment as his client was in the west. The application was denied, and the case commenced. Only two witnesses were called by the plaintiff, himself and Wm. Morgan. No witnesses were called by the defense, and the case went to the jury about 3 o'clock.

The alleged false arrest took place at Little Lake Cemetery on January 19, of this year, when Curry was attending a funeral. He claims damages for humiliation and alleged defamation of character, as well as for assault, which he claims the bodily force used in the arrest constitutes.

The jurors who tried the case were: Albert Darling, Douro; W. J. Sanderson, Asphodel; Thos. Davidson, Asphodel; Bert Hamilton, Peterboro; Arthur Jury, Douro; E. Hawthorne, Dummer; Wm. Godfrey, Peterboro; Emory Jeffries, Peterboro; Wm. Robinson, Monaghan; J. W. Kindred, Otonabee; J. J. Turner, Peterboro.

Curry when called to the witness stand stated that while he was attending the funeral of Mrs. Davenport on January 19, McGregor, a man named Stairs, and Huffman, approached him and Stairs, who had lost the coat, approached him and said the witness had his overcoat. McGregor then told the witness he was arrested in the name of the King. The witness was then taken to the police station, where the mistake was

A CLASH ON CHURCH UNION

Debate in Assembly Over Majority Report

WOODSTOCK, June 9. — The expected clash between church unionists and anti-unionists took place at yesterday's session of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. Dr. W. T. Clark of Westmount, Que., who presented the report for the committee, and Rev. Dr. D. D. McLeod, of Barrie, represented the opposing forces.

The minority report will be presented by Dr. Scott of Montreal today, along with an overture signed by 82 commissioners.

Both the minority report and the overture ask that negotiations with the Methodists and Congregationalists be shelved for some years.

Dr. Clark, in opening the discussion, said the amendments offered were the result of a large number of suggestions the committee had received from time to time. He also called the attention of the assembly to the change of opinion going on in their ranks. "At least six members of the committee who, when they joined, were strictly opposed to church union have now come to think the same as I," he said.

Dr. McLeod took exception to several of Dr. Clark's statements and gave a vigorous address in support of the minority report. He asked the assembly to banish from their minds the opinion that the members of the minority are narrow-minded. "They want to deal with the subject with an open mind," he said. "I do not think that the time has come for the end of the Presbyterian Church."

The question of the resignation of Dr. A. S. Grant was referred to a special committee, which is to report to the assembly.

In presenting the report of the finance committee for the eastern section the treasurer said that the year had been a good one from the financial point of view. The receipts for 1913-14 totalled $151,204.32, against $140,913.88 for 1912-13. The western receipts were $13,638.76.

REGISTRATION DATES.

It was incorrectly stated that the dates for registration were June 17, 18, 19 and 20. The correct dates are June 10, 11, 12 and 13.

ACCIDENT AT TEST OF GATE LIFTER

Engineer Pretty Was Making Official Test

While making an official test of a gate lifter on the new Welland canal a few days ago W. H. Pretty, Trent Valley canal engineer of this city had a narrow escape from serious injury. Mr. Pretty is still out of the city and his version of the mishap cannot be secured. The Welland Press says of the accident:

The test was being made by lifting on the new steel dump scow laying at the dock and when a heavy strain had been taken the cables apparently parted suddenly with the result that when the heavy weight was released, the gate lifter, which is fifty feet high, turned over backwards without a moment's warning and floated upside down in the canal.

At the time about a dozen men were on the boat, some of them being in the engine room, and how all escaped either serious injury from the flying cables and blocks or drowning when it capsized is a miracle. Fortunately no one was even injured to any extent.

Among those on board when it turned over were, Engineer Waddell, of the Beatty firm, Government Engineer Pretty, W. E. Anger, J. J. Haffey, Roy Beatty and John Perrine.

What the loss will be as a result of the accident has not been ascertained.

The craft lies to the west of the centre of the canal and there is a channel for boats to pass on the east side.—Welland Press.

FIRST MEETING OF CAMPAIGN THURSDAY NIGHT

Conservative Speakers at the Grand Opera House

R. J. Soden, the Conservative candidate will open his campaign with a meeting in the Grand Opera House, Thursday night, when Hon. Jas. Duff, E. A. Peck, M.L.A., J. H. Burnham, M.P., Mayor Buller and the candidate will speak.

POLICE COURT.

Martin Hopcroft, who neglected to secure a tag for his dog visited police court this morning and deposited 85 cents as compensation for the trouble he gave the police. He will also contribute the price of the tag.

For allowing his cows to roam at large, the owner was assessed $2 and costs of $2.60.

ROWELL'S PLATFORM FOR COMING ELECTION

Liberal Leader Begins by Claiming Achievements of Whitney Government and Then Makes Pledges to Improve Departments, Cure Industrial Conditions and Abolish the Bar From the Province.

TORONTO, June 9. — Mr. N. W. Rowell, K.C., leader of the Liberal party in the Province of Ontario, has issued a manifesto to the electors, presenting his platform in the coming elections.

After declaring that the present contest is premature and unnecessary, Mr. Rowell says that the measures referred to by the Premier in his manifesto are not the controversial issues in the present contest. Workmen's compensation, the good roads policy, and the Hydro radial policy, are all Liberal proposals, says the manifesto and the only question regarding them is whether they shall be administered by their initiators or by a Government which has resisted them inch by inch.

With regard to the development of New Ontario the manifesto says:

"We propose to enter upon this policy of development and settlement as a business and patriotic enterprise, put the department of colonization under a Minister who will devote the necessary time and ability to this great task, and if the creation of a new department should prove necessary we will not hesitate to create it.

"We disapprove of and protest against the alienation by the present Government of 3,000,000 acres of our finest land by way of land grants to railways, and we propose to put a stop to this policy.

"We protest against the financial waste of the present Government, of which Government House serves but as an illustration, while the Government last year cut down the grants to our rural public schools twenty-eight per cent."

The Department of Agriculture comes in for criticism and concerning it the Liberal leader says:

"We promise, if returned to power, to put at the head of the Department the best man to be found in the Province of Ontario, whether elected at this general election or not."

Mr. Rowell then deals with industrial conditions and concludes:

"We have presented to the Legislature and the people during the past three sessions important and far-reaching proposals, indicating the first steps to be taken along the line of progress. I shall not take space even to enumerate them all here. They deal with the settlement of New Ontario and the improvement of our educational and agricultural conditions; reform in land taxation; a department of labor; enlarging the opportunities of women to help us solve our problems, social legislation to improve the conditions of the workers; stopping the alienation of the public domain, and the extravagance and waste and expenditure of public money, and the curtailment of the liquor traffic."

With regard to the last named, the Liberal leader says the party's policy would result as follows:

"Hotel liquor licenses. Every one wiped out. This means that liquor connot be sold anywhere on the premises.

"Club liquor licenses. Every one wiped out.

"Treating system. Abolished.

"Shops would be further restricted and could be wiped out by local option on a majority vote.

"In nine-tenths of the municipalities, therefore, our policy means the complete abolition of the retail sale of liquor."

"I believe the conscience of Ontario is against the open bar," says Mr. Rowell in conclusion. "To that conscience I appeal with confidence. Every vote cast in this election is a vote for or against the bar. Which will yours be. We are fighting your fight. We ask every man and every woman to do their utmost from now until June 29; and if you do the open bar in Ontario will be forever wiped out.

SENATOR COFFEY

Prominent Politician and Editor Passes Away

LONDON, Ont., June 9.—Senator Thomas Coffey died here last night, at his home, 504 Wellington street. Heart disease was responsible for the death of the Senator, who had been confined to his bed for three weeks.

Senator Coffey, who was in his 72nd year, was well-known throughout the Dominion as the editor and proprietor of The Catholic Record of this city, which he founded in 1878 and conducted up to the last. He was born at Castle Connell, Limerick County, Ireland, coming to Canada with his parents when a child. He was educated in Montreal, and in this city, entering the newspaper business as a journeyman printer. The deceased had held high offices in the Catholic Mutual Benefit Association, and was one of the stalwarts of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. He was honored by Ottawa University with the degree of LL.D. in 1907, and was called to the Senate by Lord Minto, in 1903. His name had frequently been mentioned in connection with a Cabinet position under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, who was an intimate friend.

DIVER SEES WRECK

Expert Will Try to Bring Bodies to Surface

RIMOUSKI June 9. — The first step towards recovering the 800, or more bodies lying imprisoned in the wrecked Empress of Ireland, was taken Sunday afternoon when a diver descended from the Canadian Government lighthouse tender Druid and for upwards of an hour investigated the accessible parts of the sunken liner. The Empress was found to be lying on her side in about 180 feet of water.

On board the Druid, besides several Government officials, were Capt. Walsh, marine superintendent of the C.P.R., and George Weatherspoon, wrecking expert, who has been engaged by the railway company to undertake the task of bringing the remainder of the victims of the disaster to the surface, several divers and embalmers. The last-named will carry out the work of preparing the bodies for burial immediately they are recovered.

LARGE CROWD ON FIRST MOONLIGHT

Nearly three hundred people enjoyed a delightful sail on the Otonabee last evening, the occasion being the annual moonlight excursion of the Young Men's Bible Class of St. Paul's Church on the steamer Stoney Lake. It also marked the opening of the moonlight season, the excursion being the first this year. Huycke's Orchestra supplied music.

MOSSUM M. BOYD PASSES AWAY AT PHILADELPHIA

Word was received today by W. H. Dunsford, Manager of the Bank of Commerce, of the death of his cousin Mr. Mossum M. Boyd of Bobcaygeon in Philadelphia yesterday. Mr. Boyd was well known in this city. He was a son of the late Mossum Boyd of Bobcaygeon. He went to Philadelphia about two months ago where he has since been under medical attention.

The funeral will take place from the C.P.R. train on its arrival here tomorrow morning from Toronto to the Little Lake Cemetery. Dr. Hammond and Dr. Belcher are both cousins of the late Mr. Boyd. The funeral will be private.

93 AGAIN TODAY.

The official record given out today was ninety-three the same as yesterday. Indications are for a good thunderstorm which is being hoped for by the general populace.

SEVERAL BARNS ARE DESTROYED

BELLEVILLE, June 9.—This section of the community was visited by a severe electrical storm, which did considerable damage. Barns belonging to C. H. Bonisteel, in Sydney Township; Walter Meyers, in Thurlow Township; Mr. Hamblin, in Sydney; William Collins, in Huntingdon, and William Preston, in Rowdon were burned, with their contents. A number of horses and cows were killed by the lightning.

SOON TO START ON A LONG CANOE TRIP

Mr. A. R. M. Lower, a Barrie graduate of Toronto University, who will head a party to investigate fisheries in Hudson Bay for the Dominion Government.

RIBOT WILL TRY

French Legislator Accepts Invitation to Form Cabinet

PARIS, June 9.—Senator Alexander Felix Ribot last night accepted President Poincare's invitation to form a Ministry. He has already obtained promises of adhesion from Leon Bourgeois for the Foreign Office, Theophile Delcasse for the Department of Marine, and Jean du Puy for public works, and hopes to be able to present a complete list of the new Cabinet before to-night.

M. Ribot is in his 73rd year and has held various positions in previous Cabinets, as well as the Premiership.

Doubts, however, persist in political circles of his ultimate success, and these are strengthened by the undisguised opposition of the Caillaux radical, who have called a meeting for to-day, at which it is stated a motion affirming in the plainest terms the party's hostility to a Ministry led by M. Ribot, will be proposed.

One of the burning questions of the day is that relating to the three-year military service, and if the new Cabinet adheres to this measure it will have to face a strong Socialist opposition in the Chamber of Deputies.

PLAN PRESENTED

U.S. Representatives Propose New Government

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 9.—The United States Government, through Justice Lamar and Fred W. Lehmann, yesterday presented to the three South American mediators a complete plan for the pacification of Mexico.

It is the same in principle as that presented by the mediators and already agreed to by the Huerta Government. It contemplates the establishment at the earliest date practicable of a new provisional Government in Mexico City, which would conduct general elections for a permanent Government.

The plan written by the American delegates, after consultation with the Washington Government, is brief, and includes several counter propositions of which the Huerta delegates will be advised to-day. From the mediators themselves it became known that the differences in the two plans are slight. A full conference of all delegates and mediators is planned for to-day or to-morrow. This is for the formal consideration and final drafting of the protocol.

The announcement that General Huerta had decided not to blockade Tampico against arms for the Constitutionalists relieved all fear of a breakdown in the negotiations.

WOULD "LET THEM DIE"

British Public is Losing Patience With "Hunger Strikers"

LONDON, June 9. — "Let them die!" is becoming a rather popular slogan in connection with the "hunger striking" suffragettes, since the public has become so profoundly resentful of the actions of the militant women.

It is reported to-day that the Government had decided to take a step in this direction by introducing legislation to indemnify the prison authorities against the consequences of allowing suffragettes to starve themselves to death while in prison.

The Evening Standard yesterday interviewed a number of prominent people including clergymen, on the subject, and all of the latter who are quoted by the newspaper, express themselves in favor of the proposal.

Father Bernard Vaughan, brother of the late Cardinal Vaughan, replied "There would be nothing ethically wrong in letting them die. Let them start at once and make up for lost time."

Rev. Arthur Waldron, vicar of St. Matthew's, Brixton, said "If the women refuse food they should be allowed to die.":

Rev. Richard Free vicar of St: Clement's, Fulham, replied: "I think the suggestion very good. I have advocated it for many months."

Several of those interviewed denounced impartially both forcible feeding and the "hunger strike," while Willoughby Dickinson, a Liberal member of Parliament; Lady Cowdray and Lady Mui-Mackenzie dismissed the suggestion as preposterous.

Armed Men Guard Structures.

LONDON, June 9.—The guardians of ancient structures in all parts of the county have adopted the most stringent precautions to protect the buildings against the vandalism of the militant suffragettes. Guns and dogs have been requisitioned for the service. Two men armed with rifles and accompanied by two bull dogs have been placed on guard in the in the grounds of the historic priory of Christchurch, Hampshire, which dates from the twelfth century. This plan also is being adopted at other places.

WHAT HAS THE SCHOOL BOARD TO SAY?

NO CHILD in a place situated as Peterborough is should be unable to swim. A definite part of a child's education should be teaching him to swim. When a school in the United States was burned and several hundred children lost their lives because of the lack of a few safety devices, no time was lost in equipping all schools and public buildings with fire escapes, with doors opening outwards, and in having the children instructed in fire drills. Self-preservation was the reason for these things, which grew out of a terrible accident.

Now we have another terrible accident in the loss of the Empress, and its thousand dead should teach us the necessity of using every means to provide safety. Not alone for those who cross the ocean should instruction in swimming be given. In Canada we have thousands of lakes and rivers with boats of all kinds, good sea going vesels, and old hulks that might go to pieces any time, navigating them, and when a bad accident will occur, we do not know. Besides, there are the risks arising from smaller craft, and in all these dangers those who know how to swim have a fighting chance for life.

Swimming instruction should not interfere with school studies. It is a clean, healthy exercise, and, being a welcome variation to study in the class room, could be taught after school hours, and at the same time conduce to the health and strength of the pupils.

The cost of instruction of this kind is not excessive. Athletic places like the gymnasium of the Y.M.C.A. could be utilized, or where a river or lake exists, a swimming place could be easily constructed. But the cost of this instruction is of secondary importance. It is essential to the safety of life that it be given. Since the City Council has side-tracked a beginning in instruction in swimming, it would be well for the School Board to consider the matter.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN WATCHED.

CONSERVATIVES all over Canada are pleased with the recognition accorded the Hon. Arthur Meighen, the brilliant young Solicitor-General, when he and his wife were made the recipients of gifts by Premier Borden. Mr. Meighen received a gold watch and chain, and his wife a solid silver tea service. The presentation was simply to mark the esteem with which the party regarded the work of the Solicitor-General. The Hon. Arthur Meighen piloted the C.N.R. bill through the Commons in a manner that was gratifying and the wonder of the House. He won his spurs as one of Canada's ablest debaters on the discunssion on the Naval Aid Bill and the Closure Rule. He has shown a most intimate knowledge of Corporation law and high finance. His services to Canada cannot now be estimated at their true value, but he has laboured hard and disinterestedly to bring in the best solution possible to some of the most intricate and important problems that ever arose in the House of Commons. He approaches his work in the true spirit of a public man and Canadians generally are proud to honour his brilliant and forceful work in the deliberations of their Parliament.

ROWELL NEED HAVE NO GREAT HOPES.

THE FOLLOWING paragraph from the Montreal Gazette is not very reassuring for the Liberal cause in the present campaign.

> "Mr. N. W. Rowell and his Ontario followers should not build too many hopes upon the enthusiastic reception given the provincial leader at the opening meeting of his campaign at Massey Hall. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's appearances in the Ontario capital always attracted thousands ready to fight for an entrance to the hall, while Sir George Ross and Sir Oliver Mowat were invariably sure of huge audiences, but on polling day Toronto returns a solid phalanx of Conservative members, and it is fifteen years since a Liberal represented any of the city ridings in either Parliament or the Legislature. The term, 'Tory Toronto,' first applied as a jibe, has been gladly accepted as the truest patent of civic nobility."

WINNIPEG'S CITY PLANNING.

THE AUTHORITIES of this city have taken no action as yet to institute a comprehensive plan for the city's future growth. Every day this matter is allowed to remain unsettled increases its difficulty and responsibility. Peterborough should note that Western cities are not letting this matter hang fire. In June Canada Monthly the work which Winnipeg is doing to beautify and improve its living conditions is described by A. V. Thomas in an article called "The Weight of a New Broom." Part of the work of the city-planning organization is outlined as follows:

"An important project which the Winnipeg Housing and Town Planning Association has very much at heart is one which the Association's name suggests, viz., the laying down and establishing of a physical plan for the future growth of the city. Such a plan to be of any use would, of course, have to have the sanction of law. Town-planning legislation of this kind has already passed in the Canadian provinces of Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. As almost everyone knows, the principle of town-planning is deeply rooted in Germany where most of the cities are planned for long years ahead. The principle has also found wide acceptance in the United Kingdom and in the United States.

The city will employ expert town-planners to draw up a physical, or, as it is often called, a super-imposed plan. This is simply a map showing the lines and directions of future growth. Railway entrances will be provided for, arteries of traffic, public squares and parks, while neighborhood centres, creches, community wash-houses, comfort stations, recreation grounds, etc., will be planned on up-to-date principles.

Most important of all, perhaps, the superimposed plan will set apart sites for public schools. All sub-divisions will, of course, have to take cognizance of this physical plan and will have to meet its requirements as to streets, school sites, park sites and all community needs. Land needed by the city will be acquired by expropriation, but no fancy prices or speculative values will be paid. The price will be the price obtaining when the plan was filed, plus interest. This will permit the opening of new streets, etc., without incurring the present enormous expense of so doing.

These are some of the big things which the Winnipeg Housing and Town Planning Association has in hand and on behalf of which it is conducting a campaign of popular education. Nor has the immediate present been forgotten. For a couple of summers past, and particularly last summer, the Association did a splendid work in beautifying vacant lots and in encouraging owners of vacant property to do the same.

Formerly these lots were chaotic wastes covered with tin cans and other evidences of satisfied human wants. Now, in the summer time, these waste places blossom forth with every kind of flowering plant and leafy shrub.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WOULDN'T IT SHOCK YOU, for instance, to pick up an oil company prospectus which set forth in plain and truthful terms the fact that no other form of investment could be so highly speculative in its character.—Calgary Herald. The appearance of this jocular remark in a Calgary paper on oil companies is so singularly truthful that we almost had an attack of something.

MR. HUGH GUTHRIE, K.C., who handled the "attack" on the Trent Canal investigation report for the Opposition, is one of the ablest members in the House of Commons. He fired as in duty bound and then fell back quietly, and the "incident" closed.

THE GLOBE is exceedingly anxious for a real banish-the-bar Conservative to run in East Durham against Mr. Preston. Why not a Grit banish-the-bar candidate? The poor old Globe can't find one there, that's the reason.

A HAMILTON PAPER says many people there have invested in Calgary oil. We have a heartless suspicion there will be fewer ambitious Hamiltonians for a while.

THE CALGARY HERALD has an editorial on prospectuses. Having received a good many dollars, we presume, from advertising them, it ought to be an authority.

TORONTO must be a nice place to live in, even though it is very conceited for Sir Wilfrid says it always gives him a splendid reception but never a supporter.

OF COURSE it is natural for Hamilton papers to speak well of their exposition—but we remember a certain Centennial that took place there.

OH, NO. The Review will not try to make capital—political or otherwise—out of the depravity or moral weaknesses of its political opponents.

GILLESPIE goes to the woods, Soden's to sit in the Legislature—Yes, that sounds all right.

WHITNEY and Good Government — Rowell and retrogression.

GET busy and register. Don't wait to be looked after.

DON'T let Rowell fool you—he lined his own nest well.

JUNE bugs and brides are becoming plentiful.

THE caterpillars are on the rampage.

REMEMBER the Ross Government.

WE want Whitney.

Soden stands strong.

WHITNEY Wins!

Forgot That.

Judge.

Mrs. Crabshaw—Have'nt I taught you to put things in their right places?

Willie—Yes, mamma; but you never taught me how I could find them afterward.

One on Calgary.

Canada Monthly.

"Going to get out here and stretch your legs?" asked the travelling man of his companion, as the train stopped.

"What place is it?" inquired the other.

"Calgary."

"No, I had a leg stretched here once before."

Severe Testimony.

Hamilton Herald.

Here is some testimony by one of the rescued passengers—Major Frank Morris of the Salvation army: "It took us hours after arriving on shore to get telephone or telegraph messages through, because we had no money, and no wires would be opened for us unless we paid." Consider the sweet reasonableness, not to mention the humanity, of a corporation which, through its agents, demanded money of half-clad unfortunates who had just been dragged out of the water, many of them in their night clothes!

THE COW

By Walt Mason

When summer comes the poor old cow finds sledding hard and comforts few; deep lines of trouble crease her brow, for grief is hers, the season through. Ten million flies light on her back, ten million more are on her legs, and every place the hide is slack, they build their nests and lay their eggs. All day she wields her weary tail, and swears in husky bovine tones; what wonder if she kicks the pail, or tries to break the milker's bones? Alas, the milker ponders not upon the woes that gave her bats; he reaches for a wet elm knot and plays a solo on her slats. We should be patient with the cows when flytime drives the beasts insane, for every minute, while they browse, they suffer many kinds of pain. If Bossy kicks you on the chin, or puts her trilby in the pail, or tries to drive your whiskers in by blows repeated with her tail, don't let your angry passions rise, or for a large spiked bludgeon reach, but gently brush away the flies, and tell the critter she's a peach. Then put your mangled face in splints, and write a screed, serene and wise, insisting that the public prints should call on folks to swat the flies.

OVER EXERCISING

WHEN I see a hundred and ten pound man tryin' to show an eighty-pound dumbell his superiority over it, I feel sorry ter think that any man is fool enough ter strain his strength beyond its endurance through a false impression that proper exercise depends on tryin' to do somethin' next to impossible.

An athlete who kin run twenty miles in a certain time is considered somethin' of a marvel, but—when ye come to think on it—no other animal 's fool enough to do it.

Exercise is all right in it place but when ye start makin' a hobby of it it's like turnin' little Johnnie loose on a plum puddin' and sayin': "Go as fer as ye like." It's human natur' fer Johnnie to go too fur. Same with exercise, over do it and yer bound to suffer.

"Don't you think I am?"

"I'm afraid not."

The appealing way she looked at him, her whole soul welling up in her eyes, brought him to his feet and set him to pacing nervously up and down. He looked fatigued, distressed, beside himself with care. She forgave him everything but his studied refusal to let her share whatever weighed upon him. Could he not see, she thought, how she yearned to tell him that whither he went there she would go also, that his joys would be all her joys and that his burdens would be divided with her, that love divided all sorrow and doubled all joy?

Wright could stand it no longer. He saw her before him, trembling with that same emotion that shook him, aflame with the same fire that burned within him, mutely questioning him with her big, soulful eyes. How could he make amends for that month of neglect except by telling her what she long ago had guessed, but what more recently she had a right to doubt? He felt weak where he wanted to be strong. To hear from her lips that she loved him was all that he needed to make him invincible. With her acknowledged love in his heart there was nothing he could not do.

"Oh, Gloria, I can't tell you what a fight I'm making. You wouldn't understand. Business is business, outside a woman's realm, but I've missed you so much this last month."

At this declaration she caught her breath. Joy, she found, could sometimes prove the twin of pain. That this man, this strong, fearless man, in his struggles had missed her, had intimated a longing for dependence upon her, made her heart bound. Love, even when his banners have been flung forth to the breeze leagues before the castle wall is reached never ceases to be a surprise when at last the knock at the gate is heard.

"You've no right to say your work is outside of woman's realm if you've—if you've missed something a woman could supply."

"Something the one woman could supply," he corrected.

"I must be going," she said, rising from her chair; "I'm afraid Mrs. Hayes isn't coming."

He stepped between her and the door, letting her take several steps forward, because they brought her closer to him, before he said:

"No, Gloria, you must hear me. I didn't mean to speak now, of all times, but it had to be some day, and perhaps it is all for the best now."

The woman leaned her hand upon the table for support, turning half away from him.

"Don't Joe, please don't," she murmured. "I must go."

"No, no, I must tell you. You've asked me if you could help me. I want you to help me; you can help me always. I love you. I want you to be my wife. I have loved you, oh, so long; and, most of all, I've felt that you have needed me. Don't tell me that it was just selfishness, dear, that made me feel that my protecting arms should be about you always. Love is love, a law unto itself alone. We must recognize it and bow to it, because it brings us happiness."

He came a step nearer, but she did not turn to him. She stood half turned away, her eyes downcast, her lips parted into half a smile. Her breath came fast and she could feel her heart beat. Then she heard him say in a lower tone, so gently:

"Nothing to say, Gloria? Can't you believe me?"

She turned to find herself gazing into his eyes.

"Yes, I believe in you—as I believe in my father."

This answer was not enough. He had asked her to be his wife. Not yet had she replied.

"Say that you care for me, Gloria; tell me that you love me."

"I've always cared, Joe; I do love you."

"For better or worse?" He held out his arms.

"To the end of the world," she whispered as his arms were folded about her.

And as their lips met in their first kiss, Wright saw in her eyes the light that never yet has shone on land or sea.

CHAPTER XIV.

Even as Wright held Gloria in his arms there came back to him her words:

"Yes, I believe in you—as I believe in my father."

They were like lead about his heart, and cautioned him that he must get her away from Belmont as quickly as possible. Words of love must be postponed, new-found bliss be treated as commonplace, until he had finished his hard task of persuading her to go away.

"You've made me supremely happy, Gloria. I want you to believe in me and trust me—always."

She smiled up at him her love and confidence as she answered, "I do, I do."

"I want you to be happy, and I know you're not happy in Belmont. You must go away at once. I'll follow you."

"But why?" she questioned. The smile was still there, but surprise peeped forth from her eyes. "I'm happy now."

Wright laughed at her with that delightfully patronizing air of possession that lovers assume, caught her in his arms once more and kissed her.

"I know, dear, but you'll be happier. I can't explain. You wouldn't understand. Can't you trust me?"

"Ye-es, but father would—"

"He won't oppose your going, I know he won't." At thought of David Kerr and the fierce fight they were waging Wright became insistent. "Do this for me, Gloria. You can get a late train for St. Louis tonight. I'll have Mrs. Gilbert go with you. Next week I'll join you, and we'll make plans for the wedding."

"But, Joe, that's so foolish," she complained. "I like Belmont immensely now." Then she struck a more serious note. "Besides, it wouldn't be fair to father. He's put me through, and I'm not going to disappoint him. To go away—well, I feel it would be disloyal."

"You can write him we're engaged," he pleaded. "Then I'll go to see him."

Gloria could not altogether understand his insistence. Then, too, to send her away just after they had found each other was something she could not explain to her father.

Further discussion was put out of the question by the appearance of Judge Gilbert.

"Would you object to waiting for Mrs. Hayes in this office?" he asked, pointing to the room next to that in which the men had been conferring. He smiled as he added, "Mr. Wright came on business, you know."

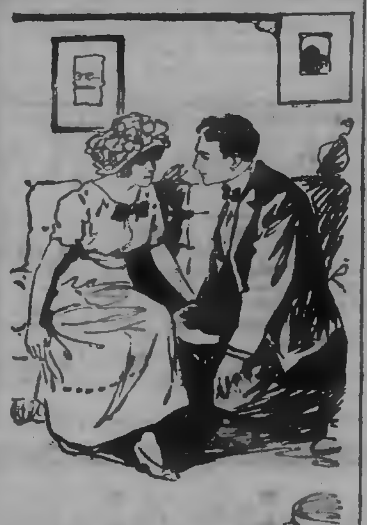
"I think he transacted it with me, Judge Gilbert," she could not help replying. Then she asked Wright with a smile, "You won't be long?"

He walked with her to the door, to Gilbert's surprise, crossed the threshold and went into the little office. Somehow or other—such things are always mysteries, certainly they are accidents—the door seemed to close of its own accord.

"Wait for me a little while," he said, taking both her hands in his. "It's going to be such a glorious world for us. I never knew what happiness meant till now. To be wherever you were has always made life sweet, but now everything takes on a new meaning transmuted by the glory of being loved by you."

She loosed one hand from his grasp and put it over his mouth.

"Naughty boy, you must go back to work. You're playing truant here. I mustn't listen to you. When I listen to you, you make me forget every thing but that I love you. And now I want to be alone and think."



"I Like Belmont Immensely Now."

To leave her for an instant was like having his life's sun in eclipse. At last she freed herself from his arms and bade him go. He had gone as far as the door, his hand upon the knob when she quickly crossed the small space between them, threw her arms around his neck and whispered:

"Remember, dear, in whatever you do, I'm with you. May my love and my confidence support you ever."

It seemed to him like a benediction. Again were his arms around her, again their lips pledged their hearts' lasting love. Gently he released himself from her embrace, and with a parting smile was gone.

Wright stepped into the library, his eyes upon Gloria until the closed door shut her from his sight. He turned to find himself face to face with David Kerr.

While Wright had been talking to Gloria, Kerr and Kendall had joined the attorney in the library. As soon as the editor saw with whom he had to deal, he recognized how hard pressed were his friends the enemy, since no go-between was employed. He was being asked to treat with the boss of Belmont himself.

"You know Mr. Kendall and Mr. Kerr," Gilbert said, without resorting to his social manner, as was his custom. This he knew to be a case of diamond cut diamond, and there was no occasion for any seeming show of friendliness.

"I had the pleasure of meeting them at your house."

Check these Colds in the Head with FOSSAL BALM

As you know, "catching a cold" simply means allowing the germs of a cold to catch you.

Usually these germs, which abound wherever people congregate, gain their first foothold in the mucous membrane lining the nasal passages. Here they multiply if unchecked, and quickly set up an inflammation. Then follows that smarting, burning, stuffed up, "headachy" feeling that cold in the head that is so depressing and so likely to develop into something more serious.

Fossal Balm goes right to the spot, kills the germs and checks the cold. Fossal Balm is an antiseptic, healing ointment, put up in a collapsible tube with a long, nozzle-shaped opening. This little nozzle, inserted in the nostril, carries the Fossal Balm well up into the passage, where it quickly spreads over the inflamed membrane, destroys the germs that are causing the trouble, soothes the irritation, clears the passages, and gives grateful and lasting relief.

HEADACHES ALMOST DROVE HER WILD

Until A Friend Advised Her To Use "Fruit-a-tives"

NEWBURY, ONT., May 29th. 1913.

"About four years ago I was in a dreadful run-down condition, weak and hardly able to walk up stairs. Weakness peculiar to women was the chief trouble. I had Headaches that almost drove me wild, and most distressing constipation. I took many dollars' worth of medicine from the doctors without any good results.

A neighbor advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and they proved to be the best medicine I ever got and the only medicine to do me any good. Today, I feel as a young girl, and am able to go about my household duties as usual. My health is splendid and "Fruit-a-tives" is the cause of it". MRS. WM. CRIM.

LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

JUST THE THING FOR OUTING.

Developed in golden brown linen with a pin stripe of white and one of the new Windsor ties of brown and white silk, here is a belted coat suit that may be used as a dress which will give the best sort of use for summer wear, for sports, for travel, and for work. The lines are staple, yet ultra smart in the wide collar the shoulder lines, belt and pockets. A brown straw hat and tennis ties or tan buttoned walking boots are the right accessories. The same suit would be equally attractive in white or dark colored mohair-and-wool.

A Favorite.

The fellow with a smiling face
  Finds friends at every turn.
He doesn't have to search the streets
  Nor for companions yearn,
For people like to shake his hand
  And look into his eye
And catch the twinkle lurking there
  For every passerby.

The good right hand of fellowship
  Extended is to him
Or be it in the market place
  Or in the social swim.
For in the radiance of the face
  Of this same smiling one
The people like to sit and bask
  As flies bask in the sun.

The children greet him on the street,
  For he is just their style.
They stop their play when he comes round
  And throw back smile for smile,
And even babies in their cabs
  Look up and say, "Ah, goo!"
And he looks down at them and smiles
  And says, "The same to you."

He harvests pleasures as he goes,
  His friends his praises sing,
And as for foes—well, on the square,
  He hasn't such a thing.
The world looks very bright to him,
  In joy the day is spent
And best of all, as you'll observe,
  It doesn't cost a cent.

Couldn't Overdo It.

"Don't you think he talks too much?"

"Oh, no!"

"But he pours forth a perfect volume of sound continuously."

"Do you know what his contract calls for?"

"Ten cents for every word."

Culinary Notes

Food Value of Cheese.

Care should be taken in cooking cheese not to burn it or even cook it thoroughly, for there are various digestive disturbances which may arise from the consumption of burned or decomposed fats.

For this reason in preparing dishes au gratin—that is, dishes baked with a sprinkling of cheese—the cheese should not be added till the cooking process has been completed. The cheese should be added at the last moment and allowed merely to melt, but not to brown.

The Italian who makes his midday lunch on bread and cheese and a little greens dressed with oil and possibly a little light wine and sweet, ripe fruit has about as sensible and as well proportioned a meal as he could get, though he had studied the science of dietetics all his life.

One of the best ways to make use of the food value of cheese is to use it on vegetables. Potatoes, cauliflower, cabbage and all the various macaroni products may all be baked with a generous grating of any sort of mild cheese applied before they go into the oven.

Soft Boiled Eggs.

When soft cooking eggs allow one pint of water for one egg and one-half pint extra for every additional egg. Have the water boiling in the cooker.

Draw the vessel to the side of the range. Put the eggs in swiftly, but lightly, that they may not crack.

Use only a utensil that has a perfectly tight lid and see that it is put on promptly and exactly.

The cooker may stand on the edge of a coal range, the shelf over a gas range or on a wooden table. Allow it to remain covered from four and a half to six minutes. The exact time depends upon individual opinion as to the degree of firmness for a jellied egg and also upon the freshness of the original article.

Fruit Stained Hands.

To remove vegetable and fruit stains from the hands and fingers the following is excellent: Dip the fingers in very strong tea for a few minutes and then wash them in clear, warm water.

Keeping Egg Yolks.

The yolk of an egg will dry quickly if left exposed to the air. If dropped into a cup of cold water it will keep good for a couple of days.

Oldest Building Torn Down.

An old wooden building at the rear of the United States consulate in Prescott has been torn down. This building was perhaps the most ancient in Prescott, the oldest residents of the town having no recollection of its erection. The timbers used in its construction, probably 100 years ago, were found to be as sound as the day the structure went up.

FARMER MET SUDDEN DEATH

CORNWALL, June 9.—Alexander Lauson of Williamstown was instantly killed at the G. T. R. crossing near Lancaster Sunday, by being struck by a westbound express. Lauson was watching a freight train and did not see the express approaching. His son-in-law was in the rig with him at the time, but was thrown out and escaped injury. The horse was not injured. Lauson was 48 years of age and leaves a widow, six daughters and two sons.

Will Be Re-united In Death.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 9.—In fulfilment of her last wish, the ashes of Mrs. Robert Louis Stevenson, who died some months ago, will repose beside the body of her husband on the summit of Mount Vaea, Samoa. To this tomb there will be no means of access, except a rough mountain path.

INSURGENTS ROUTED

Albanian Government Troops Win a Signal Victory

VIENNA, Austria, June 9.—Albanian Government troops yesterday completely routed a force of 5,000 insurgents in the vicinity of Tirana, to the east of Durazzo, according to a despatch from the Albanian capital. The insurgents after a victory over the Government troops had threatened to advance on the capital.

Although the insurgents declare themselves ready to submit to most of the demands of the international commission in regard to the future of Albania they steadfastly refuse to recognize Prince William of Wied as their ruler and demand the nomination of a Moslem prince. Most of them favor Essad Pasha., former Minister of War, who was recently deported and went to Italy.

All Had a Lucky Escape.

MONTREAL, June 9—After a wild dash down Frontenac street hill, an automobile owned by Gabriel Jarry, in which were three men and three women, struck an express wagon loaded with furniture, that was being driven up the hill by Henry Watson and his son. Both vehicles were wrecked and the horse killed, but nobody was seriously hurt.

John Kendrick Dead.

BROCKVILLE, June 9. — John Kendrick, 80, a lifelong resident of Elizabethtown, died Sunday at his residence in New Dublin, after a short illness. In his younger days he was a farmer, but of later years he had devoted himself to the raising and care of bees. His wife and one daughter survive.

Largest Dairy Farm.

The largest dairy farm in the world is nearing completion at Head Lake, Headingly, a suburb of Winnipeg. When completely stocked the farm will contain 2,500 head of cattle within its fences. With 1,500 of these giving milk, the total yearly output of milk and cream is expected to be about 3,000,000 gallons.

FOREST FIRES

Park Ranger Blames Lightning and Railroads for Damage

How do forest fires originate? This is a question that is frequently asked, and a question upon which opinions differ to a great extent. Ask the guides that are always to be found at the summer resorts in Algonquin Provincial Park, and their answer, ninety-nine out of a hundred times, will be "tourists." With them the tourist is the all-guilty party. When a fire occurs, the first guide to hear of it will invariably charge it up to a tourist "traveling without guides," says Mark Robinson in Toronto Saturday Night.

However, it is my intention to give a few facts gleaned from my private diary, covering a period of six years' service on the Algonquin Provincial park ranging force. I am stationed at Joe Lake on the G. T. R., this point being the gateway to the north and south of the Park. There are fairly good chances to make notes on the question. During the past five years, lightning caused forty per cent. of all fires in the section patrolled. Sixty per cent. of the large fires in the park season of 1913 are traced to lightning. Twenty-four per cent. of fires are charged up to railroad engines, employes, etc. The burning of old ties and rubbish along the track has caused a few of our worst fires.

I have been told that the desolate fire-stricken country along the Madawaska river, which the Canada Atlantic branch of the G. T. R. follows, is due in a large measure to carelessness in burning old ties, etc., along the road, and to engines dropping fire from fire boxes, as well as sparks from the flues.

There are other causes that no doubt cause many of the fires charged to engines and employes. Among them is the cigarette. Many times have men and boys, smoking a cigar or cigarette at the open windows of trains, cast out the lighted stub. The breeze from the rushing train carries it out far enough to reach the dry grass, and the result is a fire charged up to trainmen or sectionmen.

Guides have been responsible for three per cent. of the fires in this period. Camps were destroyed in two instances with all equipment. The guides dropped out of the park service in every instance.

Park rangers and fire rangers have been responsible for forest fires. Like the guides, they are no longer in the park service. Glass bottles, etc., cast aside around camping sites, when exposed to the strong rays of the sun in dry weather are said to start fires. I have found fires started where bottles were lying on the ground exposed to the sun, but cannot say that the fires originated from that source. During the dry season of 1913 I watched different bottles that were lying exposed in grass and on rotten wood, but no fires occurred.

Ranger S. Watters experimented with bottles last season under most favorable conditions, but failed to even produce a spark of fire. A piece of broken mirror exposed to the sun started a fire on a trail where it might have proved disastrous, had it not been noticed by parties passing that way. Tin cans exposed to sun rays are said to produce fire. However, there is reason to believe this is one of the tales of the camp-fire, easily told and as easily forgotten.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

FOR SUMMER DANCES AND DINNERS.

For the summer functions of home or at the resorts, there will be nothing so appropriate and so useful and at the same time so light and airy as this frock developed in a very fine cream batiste machine embroidery in a simple kimono blouse that displays the edge of the embroidery and in a tunic skirt over a plain batiste skirt. The arrangement of the sash is most attractive, of blue ribbon with pink and blue French flowers, bowed at the belt and bustle wise below. The fastenings are effected with snap fasteners which do not tear these sheer materials.

Found 1812 Rifle.

While excavating near the glass works at Thorold, Ont., workmen found an old flintlock musket, bearing the date of 1812. It is believed to be one of the weapons used in the battles of Beaver Dams, Lundy's Lane and other fights in the war of 1812.

Russians Win Trophy.

LONDON, June 9.—Russian cavalry officers yesterday, for the third year in succession, won the $2,500 gold vase, founded by the late King Edward VII. for military horsemanship. The vase thus becomes the permanent property of Russia.

The event, which is regarded as the most important on the program of the International Horse Show, attracted teams from most of the European armies. The vase had previously been carried off twice each by Russia and France and once by Belgium.

COURT SAT TILL ELEVEN O'CLOCK

Two Division Court Cases Before Judge Haycke

Two Division Court cases were tried before His Honour Judge Haycke yesterday; Court sitting until eleven o'clock at night.

The first, Roland Denne vs. G. Walter Green Company, store account $53.45, judgment for plaintiff for full amount and costs.

Second, G. Walter Green Company vs. Roland Denne, tried before a jury, action was for $[illegible].00 repairs done to a hand hoist manufactured by G. Walter Green Company and placed in position by the plaintiffs. The machine went to pieces the first time a load was placed on it, doing damage to the premises and to the stock. The machine was repaired by the plaintiffs and still found unsatisfactory, repairs were again made, leaving it in its present condition, this the defendant claimed was not according to agreement, the agreement being that it should be of the same kind as the one at present in the McLaughlin Garage, now Duffus, on Simcoe Street.

Defendant claimed that he had no right to pay for the repairs to the machine, as it was not according to agreement, and therefore counterclaimed for loss of time and damage to building and stock.

The jury gave plaintiff full amount of their account and to defendant the sum of $55.00 for loss of time and damage to building and stock and estimating costs of making machine in proper running order. The verdict in all for defendant for $10.00 and the costs of the Court.

G. W. Hatton acted for Mr. Denne and F. D. Kerr for Mr. Green.

TRUE BILL RETURNED

found out, and the witness was liberated.

Cross examined by Mr. Ruddy, the witness said McGregor had apologized to him. The witness also admitted that he wanted some money for damages. Witness also said he had not taken any action against Huffman who caught him by the arm and he had not commenced action against Stairs who accused him of theft. He said McGregor was drunk and he was the man who said: "I arrest you in the name of the King." He did not know who owned the rig which conveyed him to police station or who paid for it.

Wm Morgan stated that the alleged arrest was made as soon as the casket had been lowered. He accompanied Curry to the police station where the Chief questioned Curry, and a man from Grafton's store identified the coat worn by Curry as his own.

Are You Going to Muskoka This Summer?

If so take the 10.20 a.m. fast express from Toronto, daily except Sunday, via Grand Trunk Railway and arrive Muskoka Wharf 1.45 p.m. where direct connections are made with steamers for points on Muskoka Lakes. This train carries Parlor Library Buffet car and first-class coaches and passengers are assured of a comfortable ride along the most interesting route to Muskoka Wharf, which is the original gateway to the far-famed Muskoka Lakes.

The curative odor of balsam and pine, and the preponderance of water area to land surface, together with the high altitude (1000 feet above the sea) render hay fever an impossible condition and perfect immunity from this annoying ailment is assured.

Return connection is made with train leaving Muskoka Wharf at 10.30 a.m. daily except Sunday, arriving Toronto 2.55 p.m.

Tourist tickets at low fares are now on sale to Muskoka Lakes points, good for stop-over and valid to return until December 30th, 1914.

If you are contemplating making a trip ask Grand Trunk Agents for full particulars or write C. E. Horning, District Passenger Agent, Union Station, Toronto, Ont.

FELL FROM PULPIT.

During his address to the congregation of the Queen St. Methodist Church Sunday morning Dr. Thompson, of Omemee, who occupied the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, stepped too near the edge of the elevated platform and lost his balance. He fell to the lower platform, but fortunately was in no way injured, and continued his discourse, which was interesting as well as helpful.—Lindsay Warder.

Indigent Accounts.

In future the indigent accounts of the Board of Health will be collected by City Relief Officer Miller in accordance with the decision of the Board this morning.

Any account unable to be collected by Mr. Miller will be handed over to the City Solicitor.

WHIFFS FROM THE INCINERATOR

Smells are Discussed at Board of Health

"Can you smell anything wrong with the incinerator?" asked Mayor Buller of Medical Health Officer Dr. McPherson this morning at the Board of Health meeting.

"Well, I smelt something right at my own residence one night, that came from the incinerator," remarked the M.H.O.

"Some told me," continued the Mayor, "that you mentioned to them the smell of the incinerator was so bad that you had gone to the outskirts of the city to get away from it."

"Nothing like it," was the answer of the M H.O.

"Well something will have to be done if the complaints keep coming as they have," was the remark of the Mayor

"The smell will soon drive all the residents out of the city," another member said.

"Well, the taxes will also drive everybody out of the city," said Dr. Amys.

"Remember that when you are passing estimates," retorted Mayor Buller

Housekeepers are more or less bothered with the appearance of ants or other insects on their closet shelves, but if these are wiped with water which is hot with cayenne pepper the insects will keep away, says an authority.

FIRST TENNIS TEA

For Club of Charlotte Street Church

The first tennis tea of the Tennis Club of the Charlotte St. Methodist Church was held yesterday evening and was a distinct success. About 50 were present and a good number of games were played. Those who can use the court in the daytime are requested to do so in order that those who go to business may have the use of them in the evening. It is hoped all will use the court as much as possible for it is available any time. The nets are expected to arrive tomorrow and schedules of games will be arranged shortly. The thanks of the club are due Mrs. R. Neil, the Hon. President and Miss Morrow for their work in making the inaugural tea the success it was. The second tea may be held next week.

SANITARY INSPECTOR GETS MANY COMPLAINTS

Sanitary Inspector Spence is evidently much in demand by the general public. When anything goes wrong call the inspector is the slogan. This morning at the Board of Health meeting he reported on some hundred investigations he had made since the first of the year.

The list included complaints only. A few of them are: cattle feed, milk, butter, buttermilk, wells, sewers, cows, chicken houses, and poultry.

LAD SEIZED WITH APPENDICITIS AT SCHOOL GROUNDS

While playing in the play ground of King Edward School this morning, Reggie Moule, an eleven year old pupil was suddenly seized with appendicitis. The principal and teachers took the lad to the office and made him as comfortable as possible till medical aid could be summoned. When Dr. Frederick arrived, he immediately called for Belleghem's Ambulance and had the boy removed to Nicholls Hospital and an operation followed.

Reggie Moule is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Moule, Lock Street South. This is the second attack with which he has been seized.

IT WAS ONLY A DREAM.

The Best of Intentions Come In For an Unkind Jolt.

"THERE is a young couple in our apartment house," he remarked, "that my wife and myself took quite a fancy to. They used to come in occasionally, and we got very fond of them."

"Quite so."

"I used to sit and think of how I'd like to do something handsome for them if I ever got rich. You know how a fellow will dream about those things. Ever sit and speculate on what you'd do for your friends if you ever got hold of any money?"

"Oh, yes."

"Well, I'm quite a hand for dreaming that way. For one thing, I was going to give this young couple a fine party. They are both musical, and this was to be an event of some magnitude. I figured I'd have Caruso to sing and Paderewski to accompany him. Some class there, eh?"

"Yes, indeed!"

"I used to dream by the hour of the big party I was going to give this young couple if I ever got rich. But they dished the whole scheme."

"How was that?"

"Gave a big party and left us out of it."—Judge.

STORM PLAYS HAVOC WITH FISHING FLEET

Loss of Life the Worst in History of Shipping on the North Shore

ST. JOHN, N.B., June 9.—During a severe storm on Friday night the fleet of fishing vessels on the shore of the province was badly crippled, and reports vary concerning the number which have been lost, though it is definitely known that nine have been drowned, eight from Caraquet, N.B., and one from St. Simone.

The reports which reached the city only yesterday said that at least forty small fishing vessels had gone down in the storm which raged along the coast. Some of the crews of one or the other of the smacks were rescued by the more sturdy vessels of the little fleet, but it was impossible, owing to their being so widely scattered, to save all. No less than five bodies were buried yesterday morning at Caraquet, and many homes have been bereaved by the disaster, which is one of the worst in the shipping history of the north shore.

The latest word with regard to loss in the storm on Friday on the north short was to the effect that two vessels had gone down and a third was missing. Nine men were drowned, and the crew of the missing schooner have not been heard from. Eight of the men were from Caraquet and one from St. Simone, while each of the vessels was from the former place.

On board each of the schooners a father and two sons went to a watery grave. Joseph Carlault was the master of one of the little vessels and his two sons, John and Arthur, sailed with him. All three were drowned and a neighbor named Dugas also. The master of the other schooner was R. S. Albert and his two sons, Laroin and John, were member of his crew as were his father and another man, Oliver Paulin.

Storstad Owners Coming.

MONTREAL, June 9.—The formal petition for the bailing out of the Storstad, the collier which rammed the Empress of Ireland, was presented to the Admiralty Court yesterday and arguments were postponed until the representatives of the owners of the ship who are coming from Norway, reach here. The vessel was placed under arrest by the C. P. R. as security in their $2,000,000 damage suit against her owners, the Actieselskabet Maritime Co. of Christiania, Norway.

Frenchwomen In Business.

If the Englishwoman fails in business that proves her inferior in one respect at least to her sisters across the channel. Frenchwomen succeed as shopkeepers, and many large businesses are entirely under feminine control. The difference between the two nationalities in this respect is indicated by the name above the shop doors. Who ever saw "Mr. and Mrs. ——" above an English shop? In Paris, however, "M. and Mme. ——" and even "M. —— et femme" are quite common.—London Opinion.

Bending Amber.

To bend articles of genuine amber drop them into hot melted beeswax. After they have been immersed for a few minutes take them out and hold them before the fire and bend to the desired shape.

Eating Before Sleep.

"Is it safe to eat before going to sleep?" asks Sibyl.

"Oh, yes, much safer than eating afterward, we should say! It is so hard to see what you are eating when you are asleep, you know!"

When Noah Entered the Ark.

March 17 was celebrated in the middle ages as the day on which Noah entered the ark, and a very busy day it must have been if we are to believe the mediaeval dramatists, for Noah's wife was always the typical shrew of the period.

In the Chester cycle when Noah tells her of the coming flood she sneers at him for his credulity and abuses him for always bringing bad news. "Bidden hold her tongue," her abuse only becomes more stinging. Noah strikes her, she hits back, and a good set-to ensues till the man retires to make the ark. When it is finished she refuses to enter.

"Wif, com in," says Noah. "Why standes thou there?"

Finally her sons bring her in by force, and Noah welcomes her.

"Welcom, wif, unto this bote," and for his welcome he gets a whacking which makes him exclaim:

Lorde, that women be crabbed aye!
And non are meke, I dare well saye.

KELLY'S POKE IN THE TENTH GAVE PETES FIRST OF SERIES

Return of the Blountmen Celebrated With Victory Over Toronto Beavers --- Plenty of Good Baseball --- Both Teams Used Brace of Twirlers

KELLY'S famous slide now occupies a position in the baseball hall of fame equal only to that of Kelly's famous poke over third base in the tenth innings of yesterday's pastime at Riverside Park. It was Kelly who smeared one of Mr Galm's offerings with vicious intent and with glorious results from a local standpoint as Messrs. King and Gorman were on the pillows and the first named scored, thereby putting the Petes on the long end of a 4-3 victory with Knotty Lee's troupe feeling the dismal sting of defeat. Truly it was a great day for the Irish, not including General Lee of the Beavers.

Usually a story is told from the beginning but sometimes even the most serious bookworm takes a peep into the final chapter while filling his pipe, prior to wading through from the beginning to the end without a look ahead. So, when it comes to pass that a ball team wins an overtime struggle the last should be the first as the last is the vital part of the game's play. Here it is.

King drew a pass, his second of the day. Wilcox sacrificed him along, his second sacrifice of the day. Gorman was safe on Ort's error. Then appeared Mr. Kelly and biug, away went the old ball game. His worthy club met the pill squarely on the snoot and the Spalding invention raced along the third base line and King had scored, writing into schedules another of Father Chadwick's famous pastimes and ending the 4788999 chapter of Mr. Official Scorer's epistle to the Boxscoreations.

The fans and players alike had clamored for warm weather. Yesterday they got it but the temperature rose with such rapidity from Sunday afternoon until yesterday at noon that the weather man was accused of flooding the market with a sample of Hades in a manner which showed not the least regard for one's feelings let alone the high stiff collars. It was a great day for the laundry trade and the pea nut market not to mention ice cream and other well known beverages.

The game itself lagged somewhat owing to the sudden rise of temperature which seemed to "vapor bath" some of the enthusiasm from the hired men. Both clubs used two pitchers. Tracey started for the locals and went along in good style till the sixth when he was relieved by Bob Sterling who held the Beavers to one stingy hit for the balance of the game. Tracey was badly shaken up when he was out at the plate in the fourth, the collision resulting in a nasty fall for Ken. He pitched neat ball however. The Beavers could do nothing with Sterling the big fellow having steam and everything else. During his first inning on the mound he seemed lost in fielding the pill but got away without any serious trouble. Roberts took up the firing for the Beavers at the commencement of hostilities and sailed along fairly well, a little loose play by Ort and Trout's inability to keep his foot on the first base bag being responsible for much of the hot water he found himself in. He was relieved in the fifth by Galm who pitched fairly good ball. The contest was a free hitting one all the way and good work with men on the paths kept the score down.

Petes Drew First Blood

The Petes gathered a run in the second when Gorman drew a pass, Kelly singled and Ort threw badly to Trout in an effort to complete a double. Two were added in the fourth when King was hit in the ribs by one of Robert's twisters, Wilcox sacrificed, Gorman doubled, Tracey drew a pass and Blount and Byrne singled. Tracey was cut off at the plate in this innings and suffered a severe shaking up. The winning tally in the tenth has already been related.

The Beavers grabbed a deuce in the fifth on Robert's hit, Trout's single, Burrill's poke and Ort's sacrifice fly to Blount. Another came in the sixth on Isaac's hit, Loud's sacrifice and Harkin's single.

Summary:—Two base hit, Gorman; sacrifice hits, Welsh, King 2, Loud; sacrifice flies, Ort; stolen bases, Welsh, Kelly, Burrill 2; first base on balls, off Roberts 3, off Galm 3, off Tracey 1; struck out, by Tracey 1, by Sterling 1, by Galm 1; left on bases, Peterboro 12, Toronto 7; hit by pitcher, by Roberts (King) 2; hits, off Tracey 9 in 6 innings, off Sterling one in 4 innings, off Roberts 6 in 4 innings, off Galm 4 in 6 innings. Time of game 2 hours. Umpire Miller.

Whew! how'd youd collar feel and have you doped out your laundry average?

---

Bob Sterling had a funny session of it in the seventh frame which was the initial bow of the game. Burrill first up laid one down and Bob almost kissed it in picking it up but got the runner. Then Killilea let one drive and Sterling was looking for it to shoot through second when he realized it had struck him in the foot. Killilea was thrown out by inches.

---

Moseley was robbed of a double in the second on a fast throw to Wilcox, by Welsh.

---

Gorman pulled a nice play in the first which trapped a Beaver chance. Trout got on by Wilcox's error but was out at third when Gorman scooped up Burrill's grounder and laid it across the diamond.

---

In the same inning he pulled another worth while. Ort singled, Burrill going to third. Isaac laid one down to Joe Byrne who threw wide to first and Gorman had no chance to get the runner so he whipped the pill home and Kelly got Burrill by yards.

---

Wilcox will never make a second baseman. He is an outfielder. The big fellow tries hard but is out of place at the keystone sack and will surely boot away more games than his hitting will win if kept in his present position.

---

Ort was hit behind the ear by a bad bounding ball in the first and dazed for a few moments.

---

Trout had great difficulty in locating the first sack with his feet. A few tango lessons would help some. Trouty looks nicer behind the plate with a mask on. Not that we desire that his face should be masked but because there are few better catchers in any of the minor leagues than the former Pete.

---

By the same token, our own Mr. Kelly makes them all step some and so far we have failed to see any better paraded before us in the Canadian League of 1914.

---

Bob Sterling liked the warmth. He says he can pitch ten times a week now and win 'em all.

---

The pitching staff should come along in great style now with Cresswell and Sterling in shape and Tracey counted on to win regularly. Schettler has been off just a little but Louie has the stuff and will be high up when the averages are announced. Mr. Knute Belting will also be heard from.

---

Knotty Lee says that he thinks Erie will be the club to beat.

Two ex-managers figured in the game yesterday, Geo. Ort and Dad Stewart.

---

Swartling hit for Tracey in the sixth and singled to right his first bingle of his three appearances as a pinch hitter.

COMMENT
As You Like It

Cresswell is the likely choice for today with Kelly doing the receiving. Knotty Lee will send Graham a former member of the Leafs in against the Petes and is eager to get away with the win. Judging by the form the locals are showing with the club it will take some pitching to stop them. Joe Byrne's hitting has been one of the features of the recent games. Yesterday he fattened his average with two pokes. He also accepted seven chances without a slip. Joe looks as good as any of the league third basemen at the present time.

A youngster named Belmont who performed on the coast last year was given a try out by Manager Blount after yesterday's game. He is a second baseman and a big fellow. He shaped up fairly well but seemed to lack condition as he has not played before this year.

---

Knotty Lee is endeavoring to purchase Tyson from the Wilkesbarre club. Tyson played good ball for Hamilton last year and broke up many a game. Knotty will use him at first base if the deal goes through.

---

No further word has been received regarding Fried but the Ottawa youngster will be sent along to the Petes as soon as Smyl al reports to the Senators.

---

Bob Sterling's work during his last two starts has been gratifying. With the control he lacked at the outset with him again, the big fellow should prove one of the best men in the league. He prayed for warm weather and it is here.

---

The Petes' weakness is around the keystone sack. King is rightly a second baseman while Wilcox is not a second baseman. Weakness around the middle station makes an entire club look bad and when Fried reports and is shifted to short and King to second the team should start on the upward journey.

---

Ump Miller who handled the battle yesterday will remain here for the entire week and the fans are therefore assured of good impartial judgment by his umps as the gent with the large sized vocabulary looks like the best official on the circuit.

---

The following from the Erie Dispatch strikes an encouraging note.

The Yanks go away this time with the confidence of Erie fans behind them. In the days they spent at home under the management of Gygli, the boys rose from mediocre baseball to exhibitions of the highest class. Life and the old fight are their winning qualities now.

---

The directors of the Hamilton Club had fire in their eyes on Saturday and instructed Doc Yates to show some class by next Thursday. Suspended sentences seem to be chronic in the league this year.

After looking over Knotty Lee's club it must be admitted that with a first baseman of some class Knotty will have a neat infield as Isaac, Killilea and Ort are good men. The catching staff with Harkins and Trout is well fortified. The outfield does not look like world beaters. Burrill is showing good form while Loud in centre although a little fellow shaped up pretty good. Moseley in right is also a small man. The pitching staff on paper looks good but seems to have failed to play consistently.

MUST PLAY GAME AGAIN

President Fitzgerald's decision in Disputed Contest

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 9.—President Fitzgerald has ordered the disputed Peterboro-Toronto game played over again when Peterboro next visits here. Toronto was awarded the game nine to nothing when Peterboro disputed a decision.

The above dispatch means that the teams will have to play the recently disputed battle over again by working in a double header at Toronto. The game was played in Toronto last week. In the tenth innings Blount drove a ball to left field which disappeared in a runway. The local manager claimed a home run but the umpire ruled that Blount was only entitled to three bases which he made on the hit. A dispute arose and the game was awarded to Toronto.

LACROSSE

The first out of town game for the local lacrosse team will take place tomorrow afternoon at Hastings. The train leaves at 1.30 from the G.T.R. depot and it is possible to return at nine o'clock in the evening.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

THE coward is a man who when be gets scared acts just like the rest of us would do if we dared.

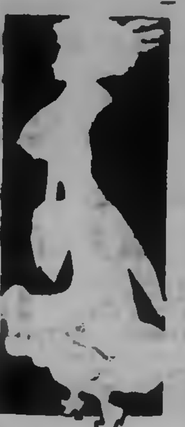
One way to keep books is not to lend them. It is just the opposite with money.

To flatter an elderly man stock him up with things designed for the youth.

How is a man to recognize opportunity when it doesn't bark?

If a secret is a corker it should be kept bottled up.

When getting a job is the best a man can do he accepts the situation.



If you want to enrage your enemies to the uttermost try graciously forgiving them.

It is hard for the average child to realize that its schoolteacher is really made of the same kind of stuff as other people.

The world owes a living to the man who collects it.

A golden haired girl looks dainty and bewitching and fairylike, but it takes the income of a millionaire to keep her looking that way.

Truth crushed to earth by a steam roller in a paving contract finds it hard to rise again.

Necessity, the mother of invention, is the father of lies.

The reason why some of our esteemed fellow citizens are so absurdly rich is because they have to be or else go to jail.

RICHARD HALL & SON LIMITED

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

HISCOX—SOLLITT.

On Wednesday, June 3, a quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Free Methodist Parsonage in Uxbridge by Rev. R. Burnham, when Clara Isabella, second daughter of Mrs. Wm. Sollitt of Scott, was united in marriage to Mr. Matthew Hiscox, formerly of Peterboro.

The wedding march was played by Miss Nellie Ball of Quaker Hill. The bride wore a becoming gown of cream serge trimmed with cream satin. Miss May Burnham, the bridesmaid wore a gown of raw silk. Mr. Ernest Sollitt, brother of the groom was best man.

The newly married couple took the three o'clock train for a short trip, the bride travelling in a navy blue corded cloth suit and white hat.

They returned on Friday to the home of the bride's mother on the 6th concession of Scott where a reception was held, a large number of guests being present.

The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts, evidencing her popularity with a large circle of friends, all of whom extend best wishes. Mr. and Mrs. Hiscox will reside in West Toronto.

JACKSON—DIXON

A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized by Rev. R. Pogue in St. Paul's Church Manse, this afternoon when Miss Margaret Gordon Dixon of this city formerly of Hull, England, was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. George F. Jackson of this city.

They were unattended. Mr. and Mrs. Jackson will reside in the city.

PRIMEAU—DORAN.

This morning at seven o'clock in St. Peter's Cathedral, Rev. C. J. Phelan united Mr. Leo F. Primeau, son of Mr John Primeau, East City, to Miss Mary A. Doran, daughter of Mr. Michael Doran of Ennismore in the bonds of matrimony. They were attended by Mr. Arthur Primeau and Miss Laura Duffus. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Primeau will reside in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. David Lee of Kemptville, announce the marriage on May 23, of their daughter, Eva Mills, to John Wilson Taylor, B.A., son of Wilson Taylor, B.A., and Mrs. Taylor, of Peterboro, formerly of Chatham. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor will reside at 6 North Street, Toronto.

Mrs. Rossana Fox announces the engagement of her niece, Miss Alice Edith Free of Campbellford, to Mr. William Wilson Gould, C.A., of Edmonton, Alta. The marriage will take place late in June.

Peterboro friends of Judge Harding of Lindsay will be pleased to learn that his honor, who has been seriously ill, is improving.

Dr. J. A. Faulkner of Belleville sustained a fracture just above the wrist of the right arm, when cranking his auto on Sunday.

Mr. G. A. Gillespie was in Lindsay yesterday attending the meeting of the Chees Board.

Bishop O'Brien, who spent Sunday in Lindsay was presented with an address from the C.M.B.A. Knights of Columbus and St. Mary's Catholic Club.

Rev. C. J. McNeil of Winnipeg, Rev. V. G. McFadden, P.P. of Wooler, Rev. Father Ferguson of Lindsay and Rev. Father Bretherton of Hastings are in the city.

Friends of Mr. Chas. Noyes, the G.T.R. gateman at Charlotte Street, will regret to learn that he is confined to his home with illness.

Mr. Fred Denison, who has been "back north," is in the city.

Senator Thomas Coffey, who passed away last night in London after an illness of several weeks, had many friends in this city who will regret to learn of his death. Founder and editor of the Catholic Record of London, and closely allied with Catholic movements, the late Senator was present at many Catholic ceremonies all over Ontario, including the ordination of Rev. D. A. Casey at St. Peter's Cathedral and the Consecration of His Lordship Bishop O'Brien.

Mr. and Mrs. P. McDonald of New York, are guests in the city.

PIANO RECITAL.

The pupils of Miss Bessie Elcome gave a delightful recital at the Conservatory Hall, last night. The selections by Alice Cocks, Florence Harrison and Helen Kendrey were played from memory. The program:

Duet—"Faust Waltz"—Ch. Gounod.—Frances Austin and Grace Read.

"Evening Greeting"—C. Heins—Isabel Donnelly.

"Sunshine and Shadow" — Max Werner—Louise White.

(b) "Torch Dance"—German.
(c) "The Harmonious Blacksmith"—Handel—Ethel Buckham.

"Prelude" in C Sharp Minor — Rachmaninoff—Ruth Man.

(a) "Rondo," in C Major—Op. 51, No. 1—Beethoven.
(b) "Shepherd Dance" (from "Henry VIII Dances") —German—Olga Fowler.

Duet "God Save the King"—Evva and Verne Wall.

Peterboro Choral Society.

A meeting of the executive committee will be held tonight at 8.30 p.m. in Coleman's Parlors. Important business will be brought before the meeting, including the selection of the musical work to be taken up for the next season.

B. Read, Secretary.

St. Luke's Church.

A meeting of the ladies of St. Luke's Church is called for Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Sunday School room. The Chancel Guild will meet the same evening in the vestry.

Biggest Rubber Tree of All.

What is believed to be the largest rubber tree in the world stands in the Brazilian territory of Acre, on the frontier of Bolivia. Its stem is twenty-seven feet two and seven-tenth inches in circumference at the base. For 120 days every year this colossus gives twenty-two pounds of rubber a day. At present prices this brings in $2,100 a year, or a fair interest on about $40,000, to its owners, a family of seven Seringueiros.

The Way He Lost.

The McSkinner—Two shillin' to gang to Holborn! Na, na. But—weel, I'll toss ye, double or quits. Sporting Cabby—Well, I'm goin' that way any'ow, so 'ere goes! 'Eads! The McSkinner—Heads? Weel, ye've won. So I'll jist hae to walk!—London Punch.

Contradictory.

"You assure me that this is the very latest fashion?"

"Yes, madam."

"And it won't fade?"

"No, madam. I am sure it won't. We have had it in the window for two years."—London Tatler.

TRAIN IS SAVED

Hunter Prevents Wreck of C.P.R. Freight

WOODSTOCK, June 9.—By taking off his coat, tieing it to a gun, waving it, lighting matches, and shouting, Edward Dutton of this town, succeeded in stopping a C.P.R. freight train and thereby preventing it from being wrecked through running on a section where the tracks had been washed away by the rains about three o'clock yesterday morning.

Dutton was returning from a hunting trip, and he came across the washout at Pine Pond, 12 miles east of Woodstock. He and several companions began to hurry to a point where a warning might be given to the railway officials, but they had proceeded only 200 yards when they saw a freight train coming thundering along. After it was stopped and the crew had examined the condition of the roadbed, it backed up to Woodstock, and the auxiliary was sent to make the repairs.

It is a wise thing to raise some okra and dry the pods. They will keep indefinitely, and there is no better flavor for soups and bouillons.

Base-ball Spelling.

A successful spelling contest which has proved very popular in more than one school is described by the teacher who originated it in these words:

Did any of you ever conduct a spelling contest, "base-ball fashion" on Friday afternoons? It worked so successfully for me, that I want to give others the benefit of my experience. The school chooses sides as for ordinary spelling contests. Let the best speller on each side act as "catcher," who "catches" all words misspelled by the "batter." Another acts as "pitcher" who pronounces the words. Others act as first, second and third basemen.

As the "batter" (from the opposite side) comes up, a word is pronounced by the pitcher. If it is spelled correctly, the batter proceeds to first base. If the word is missed, the catcher spells it and another word is given to the batter. If the third word is missed, and the catcher spells it correctly the batter is out and another takes his place. Proceed as in baseball. Give only one trial for each word. As a batter starts for a base, if there is already one at that base, the first one there should move on to the next base. If the pitcher pronounces a word to the baseman and he spells it before a batter gets to the base, the batter is out. Three outs on each side make an inning, and six innings make the game. If a batter succeeds in passing all three bases and getting "home," a score is made for his side. The teacher should act as umpire, calling outs and keeping scores.

They Certainly Keep It Dusted.

Women in all lands are the custodians of speech. They preserve its purity. To them must go much of the credit of the improvement in American English.

One may dominate moral sufferings only by labor. Study saves from discouragement.—D'Abrantes.

A meeting of the Liberal-Conservative workers of number Four Ward will be held at Lee's Shop, Corner George & Smith Street tonight at 8 p.m. Also those wishing to have their names put on the Registered List are earnestly requested to attend.

To Investigate Wireless.

LONDON, June 9. — A state organization to study, in the public interests, the science of wireless telegraphy, ordinary telegraphy and telephony is proposed by the Postmaster-General's committee of experts, whose report was issued last night. The committee suggests the establishment of a national research laboratory and a national committee of research to conduct theoretical investigations and experiments, and to co-ordinate and supplement the work now being done by Government Departments.

HONORABLE ACQUITTAL FOR THOS. HARRISON

Defendant Denied Having Made Threats — He Had Made Payment of $200 Which he Understood Would Carry Him Over for Some Time

Thomas Harrison of Monaghan was honorably acquitted by a jury at the sessions of the peace yesterday afternoon on a charge of having threatened and intimidated Sheriff's Officer Chas. A. Beatty. Mr. Harrison was defended by R. Ruddy, K.C., while Crown Prosecutor Wood looked after the case for the prosecution. The jury was out about an hour. In his defense of the accused Mr. Ruddy showed that Harrison was led to believe that his lands should not be seized and he also brought out the fact that the sheriff's officer had not served the writ of seizure in the proper manner.

Deputy Sheriff F. J. A. Hall stated that it was Beatty's first attempt at serving a writ of seizure. The writ was issued in March of this year and he instructed Beatty to serve it but after the latter had been threatened or alleged to have been threatened Mr. Beatty refused to make another trip to Harrison's home. The writ of possession was afterwards served by another officer, without any trouble.

Mr. Beatty told of approaching Mr. Harrison at his home in Monaghan and Harrison told him they would not put him out on the road. His son was nearby and the father stated that he could use his fists and the son the rifle and he would blow the witness's head off if he touched a thing.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Ruddy, the witness admitted that the prisoner produced a check book which showed that he had paid J. R. Stratton $200 on his mortgage. The check book showed the date to be December 20, 1913. The witness could not swear that the prisoner had said "I cannot understand what more they want?" but he would not deny he had not made the statement. When the officer left the farm he and Harrison were on friendly terms.

Henry Smith who accompanied Beatty in the interests of the party seeking possession stated under cross-examination that in his opinion Mr. Beatty did not take the proper course to serve the papers and they were not served at all. He claimed that Harrison made threats and also that he and Harrison "wet their lips" from a flask of joy juice.

Harrison denied he had made any threats but said he might have been a little angry to think that his lands and chattels were going to be seized when he had understood the payment of $200 would carry him over for some time. His son corroborated his evidence.

The Crown Prosecutor in summing up the case demanded a conviction on the evidence of the sheriff's officer and Mr. Smith.

Mr. Ruddy delivered a strong address to the jury in which he brought home the facts that a proper service had not been effected nor a proper attempt made at service and also that Harrison was slightly provoked which may have caused him to speak in rough terms of the action taken, if he really did assume such an attitude, which on the evidence, Mr. Ruddy claimed he had not.

REGISTER EARLY

If you stay away from the registration booth and the poll because your candidate will win anyway you are refusing your encouragement to a Government that looks for the endorsation of the people for its honest, faithful service, not only in the election of its supporters, but in the aggregate vote that sent them to the House.

The registration booths opened today and registration will continue till Saturday, and every manhood suffrage voter who can get half an hour to himself should make a trip to the registration booth in his ward. Register early and be ready when the polls open on the 29th of June.

MEETINGS FOR MR. THOMPSON

At Graystock Hall and Stewart's Hall This Week

The Conservatives of East Peterboro are working hard in the interests of Mr. Thompson the present member and candidate for re-election. On Thursday evening of this week a meeting will be held at Graystock hall and on Friday evening a meeting will be held at Stewart's Hall in Otonabee. The candidate will speak at both meetings while J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., will also speak. Arrangements are also under way to have one of the well known Conservative members of the local house stump the constituency on behalf of Mr. Thompson.

ASKS DAMAGES FOR LOSS OF TWO HORSES

Aftermath of Action of Sheriff's Officers

An action of unusual interest will be commenced in the high court in the near future as a result of the action of the sheriff's department in turning loose, horses and other live stock from the farm of Thomas Harrison, of Monaghan. Yesterday Thos. Harrison, who was ably defended by R. Ruddy, K.C., was acquitted on a charge of having threatened Sheriff's Officer Charles Beatty, when the latter attempted to serve a writ of possession last March. It now seems that another sheriff's officer on a visit to the Harrison farm turned loose horses and cattle, which were the property of Harrison's brother, and did not belong to Thos. Harrison whom the writ concerned. Two of the horses were killed, a few days after being turned loose, by a railway train. In yesterday's case it was shown by the defence that Harrison was led to believe that the $200 he paid on his mortgage would carry him over and also that the sheriff's officer had not served the writ of possesion in a proper manner.

On the occasion when the horses and cattle were turned loose there was no one on the farm. The action which Harrison's brother is preparing with his Orillia solicitors will be for trespass and damages for the loss of the two horses. The crown and the officers from the sheriff's department who turned the live stock loose will be co-defendants to the action.

BOYS LOSE THEIR LIVES

Bathers in Various Parts Meet Watery Grave

BRANTFORD, June 10.—John Howarth, 14 years of age, son of Fireman Fred. Howarth, stepped into a hole while bathing in the Grand river yesterday afternoon and was drowned. When the body was recovered after 45 minutes search the pulmotor was used, but to no avail. Howarth could not swim.

Electrocuted and Drowned.

PORT COLBORNE, June 10—Two young lads, Fred Brennan and John Archer, each about 14 years of age while bathing yesterday evening near the Government spur line, touched a live wire and were instantly electrocuted. Another lad, Wilbur Lewis was badly burned, but will recover.

Got Beyond His Depth.

GUELPH, June 10. — Getting beyond his depth while bathing above Goldie's dam in the Speed river yesterday evening, Roy Norrish, son of Harry Norrish, a Guelph merchant was drowned. Young Norrish was with several other boys, but although he came to the surface twice and cried for assistance his young mates were unable to rescue him. He was 15 years of age and was unable to swim.

One at St. Mary's.

ST. MARY'S, June 10. — Oswald Mossop, 13 years old, was drowned in the Thames river yesterday afternoon. The lad had been in bathing with a number of other boys. He got in beyond his depth and was unable to swim.

FORMER LOCAL PASTOR RETURNS TO THIS CITY

Ministers Transferred by Bay of Quinte Conference

Rev. J. P. Wilson, of Napanee, a former pastor at George Street Methodist Church, has been appointed by the stationing committee of the Bay of Quinte Conference to succeed the late Rev. T. J. Mansell, at Charlotte Street Methodist Church.

Rev. C. E. Cragg, of Mark Street Church, has been transferred to Grace Church, Napanee, where Rev. Mr. Wilson is now pastor, and Mr. Cragg will be succeeded here by Rev. L. Phelps of Brighton. Mr. Phelps has been chairman of the Brighton district, and he is one of the prominent ministers in the conference.

Rev. H. A. Frost, who has been supplying at Charlotte Street Church and who was received into the full connection of the Methodist Church, is appointed to the Methodist Church at Pontypool.

The ministers who are leaving their present charges are expected to preach farewell sermons on Sunday, June 28.—Owing to arrangements already made, by which he takes part in services at Garden Hill on that date, Rev. Mr. Cragg will say farewell to his congregation on Sunday, June 21.

Rev. Mr. Wilson and Rev. Mr. Phelps will begin their pastorate here on Sunday, July 4.

In the draft of the stationing committee of the London Methodist Conference, Rev. E. A. Pearson of Hamilton, is appointed to Park Street Methodist Church, Chatham.

PLAN REJECTED

Huerta Wanted to Name new President

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 10.—The United States is unwilling to extend recognition to a new provisional President if named according to the method prescribed by the Mexican delegates, which is that Gen. Huerta would appoint as Minister of Foreign Affairs the man who is agreed upon here to head the new Government. The Washington administration contends that if Gen. Huerta is permitted to name the Foreign Minister, who, by constitutional succession, would be elevated to the Presidency, even though the selection be made here, such an act would be constructed as recognition of the Huerta Government.

On this issue the mediating plenipotentiaries came to a flat disagreement late yesterday, at a conference held for consideration of the exact method by which the new provisional Government in Mexico would be created out of the present regime.

Although the three South American diplomats argued strongly from the Mexican viewpoint, there is good reason to believe that the Mexican delegates will not insist on this arrangement if they find the United States absolutely determined against it.

Rebels Land Arms.

NEW YORK, June 10.—The Ward Liner Antilla, laden with a cargo of ammunition for the Mexican Constitutionalists, will land and discharge her cargo to-day without interference, according to the opinion expressed by A. G. Smith, vice-president and general manager of the Ward Line Co.

WANT TO KNOW WHY

Local Police Sent Stranger to Port Hope

Karson, the Finlander, who claimed recently to the police that men were trying to murder him and then topped the affair by jumping from the Port Hope train near Millbrook, lies to-day at Millbrook in a rather critical condition. In his jump for freedom, he sustained a dislocated collar bone and other injuries when he rolled down the thirty foot embankment from the car window.

Constable Hayward of the local police force left on the noon train for Millbrook to give evidence in regard to the man's conduct while here.

Karson will be charged with attempted suicide.

Port Hope Guide.

The passengers on the 10.10 train last night were given an exhibition of the sensational high dive. A man about 35 years of age was sitting in a seat in the smoking coach, when, without the least warning, he plunged headlong through the open window. The train was between Millbrook and Carmel, and travelling at a fair rate of speed. It was immediately brought to a standstill and trainmen and passengers searched for more than an hour, but no trace of the man could be found. His hat was picked up, but it is thought that by some miracle he made the leap without injury, and was able to escape into the woods.

We have learned that the man was of unsound mind, and was placed on the train by the Peterboro police ticketed for Port Hope. The Peterboro authorities will be asked to explain their actions in endeavoring to dump indigents in our town.

TO CONTINUE NEGOTIATIONS

Assembly Favors Further Action Towards Union

WOODSTOCK, June 10. — By a vote of 286 to 109 a majority of the Presbyterian General Assembly yesterday afternoon adopted a resolution in favor of continuing for two more years negotiations with the Methodist and Congregational churches in the cause of church union. The motion embodied a request that the Methodists reappoint their union committee which was dissolved last year and demand a vote of the congregations.

The minority report, which asked that the matter be shelved was defeated on a vote of 297 against 117 for. Another amendment, moved by Dr. McQueen, of Edmonton, along substantially the same lines as the minority report, was defeated by a vote of 278 against, 114 for. Dr. A. S. Grant did not vote.

The discussion on the church union question was opened yesterday morning by Dr. E. Scott, of Montreal, who presented the minority report. He reviewed the history of the fight for union since it commenced twelve years ago. "We cannot see at the present time that organic union is right," he said.

"I cannot vote for church union because I will be coercing a minority into a union which they do not want," stated Dr. A. S. Grant during a short address. He did not think that it was time for church union, and argued that the different departments of the church could not be successfully carried on in the divided state that was in the opinion of some likely to follow organic union.

The discussion was closed by a short address by Dr. Clark, who moved the adoption of the motion. He could not understand the position assumed by Dr. Grant and advised the commissioners not to take it seriously. He appealed to the minority in closing to set aside the spirit of contention during the next two years and to cultivate the spirit of the Lord.

An Honor Indeed

A patronizing young lord was seated opposite a famous scientist at a dinner one evening not long ago. During a lull in the conversation, he adjusted his monocle, and leaned toward the scholar.

"Thank you," said Jones quietly, "Thank you very much."—Harper's Magazine.

GOVERNMENT AID FOR WRECK VICTIMS

OTTAWA, June 10.—The Government has decided to vote $50,000 for the sufferers of the Empress of Ireland wreck. Additional supplementary estimates to cover this amount were laid on the table of the House yesterday morning by Hon. W. T. White, Finance Minister. There were also an additional amount asked for, of $10,000 to carry on the enquiry into the Empress of Ireland disaster.

OFFICES RAIDED

Search is Made of Suffragette Premises

LONDON, June 10.—Another raid was carried out by the police yesterday on the premises occupied by the Women's Social and Political Union, the militant suffragette organization, where a thorough search was made for documentary evidence of the activities of the society. Since the closing of the offices in Kingsway early in May the women have established new headquarters in Westminster, and yesterday the detectives succeeded in collecting there a quantity of documents, books and letters. The descent of the policemen was quite unexpected and caused great excitement among the occupants of the offices, who, after being searched, were ejected. No arrests were made.

King George and Queen Mary were able to enjoy the brilliant state ball at Buckingham Palace last night. There was no interruption by suffragettes, thanks to the rigorous police precautions which had been taken.

Canadian Press Despatch.

Moose Jaw, June 10.—Fifty mounted policemen are scouring this district in search for three desperadoes, concerned in the murder of J. D. Chivas, of Amisk, Alberta

Dr. Michael Clark Congratulates the Government on Move and Twits Leader of His Party.

OTTAWA, June 10.—An echo of the naval debate of a year ago was heard in the Commons yesterday when the House, dealing with the naval estimates, came to the consideration of Hon. Mr. Hazen's proposed naval volunteer force.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he doubted the wisdom of having two training stations on the great lakes. Canada was simply to be a training station for the royal navy. The Niobe and the no less despised Rainbow were to become training ships. He thought this surely was revenge on the Postmaster-General, the Minister of Inland Revenue and the Secretary of State.

In reply to questions, Mr. Hazen said 40 students were taking the three years' course at the Halifax naval college, and that they would serve in the Canadian navy, "When we have a navy."

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said it was a policy "surreptitiously sneaked in." In the dying days of the session, the Government was reverting to the Laurier naval policy, and "perverting its sense in order to do mysteriously what they have not the courage to do openly." It was "trying to sneak a few Canadians into the Imperial navy, to please the frothing and seething jingoes of Toronto, Winnipeg and Montreal, who supported them against the farmers of the country in 1911."

Dr. Michael Clark rose to congratulate the Government on its new policy as far as he understood it. Mr. Lemieux had said that the Government was receding from its position. Well, there had been considerable receding all around. He did not notice any particular enthusiasm now for two fleet units.

"I hope," proceeded Dr. Clark, "that this is a step towards a policy which will be creditable to the country, towards a policy which will be worthy of a self-reliant people." He protested against a partisan view of the question.

THIRTEEN LIBERAL SENATORS IN FAVOR OF ASSISTANCE

C. N. R. Bill is Passed by Senate

Measure to Give Effect to Bond Guarantee Agreement Has a Majority of Fifteen on Final Reading in Upper House

OTTAWA, June 10.—The bill to give effect to the agreement which was entered into between the Government and the C. N. R., whereby the Government will guarantee the bond issue of that railway, which is necessary to raise funds to complete the system, and in return for which the Government receives a forty-million dollar interest in the Mackenzie and Mann hundred million dollar enterprise, passed the Senate yesterday. The bill was given its third reading by a vote of 35 to 20.

The majority was not so great as that by which gave it a second reading, it being then 41 to 7, and probably this is accounted for by the fact that Senator Choquette made a violent speech in condemnation of those Liberals who had voted with the Government.

Thirteen Liberals voted in favor of the bill on third reading. They were Senators Bostock (Liberal leader), Mitchell, David, Ross (Moosejaw), McHugh, Frost, Thibodeau, Edwards, Derbyshire, Deveber, Young, Watson and Talbot. All the Conservative Senators voted in favor on the measure except Senator Montplaisir. He is the oldest member of the Upper House, having been appointed to the Senate in 1891 by Sir John Macdonald.

Four Liberals who voted for the bill on the second reading, but voted against it on the third reading, were Senators Fiset, Beith, Dessaules and Ratz.

The analysis of the vote, therefore, is that 13 Liberals and 22 Conservatives voted for the bill on the third reading, with 19 Liberals and one Conservative against.

In the above estimate, Sir Lyman Melvin-Jones is counted as a Conservative. He has voted with the Government since his announcement that he had left the Liberal party.

In opening the debate Hon. Mr. Lougheed declared that Senator Bostock's objections were not well founded. The security the Government is getting is ample, he declared, and he did not believe it was reasonable that Messrs. Mackenzie and Mann should be required to pledge their personal fortunes for the successful completion and operation of a 10,000 mile railway system such as the C. N. R. The statement that they had built up colossal fortunes for themselves out of the construction of the road were not borne out by evidence.

On motion for third reading, Senator Choquette (Quebec) offered an amendment providing that the bill should be sent to the railway committee of the Senate, and that the committee should have the power to summon witnesses and require evidence to be given. Senator Choquette said it appeared that Mackenzie and Mann were stronger than all their opponents combined. Never had he seen such a farce as was being enacted in the Senate. He referred to the fact that Senators had voted to prevent farmers who had lost money in a business venture (the Farmers Bank), being recouped, and now when Mackenzie and Mann came along these same Senators voted to repay them for money lost in their financial ventures.

Senator Choquette's motion was seconded by Senator Jaffray (Toronto). He considered it most dangerous for the Government to enter into a partnership with the Canadian Northern, or what was virtually Mackenzie and Mann.

Senator Choquette's motion was voted down 35 to 20.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN WARFARE AGAINST LIQUOR

Recommendations of Social Service Committee For Steps Towards Suppression of Trade in Alcohol, and to Secure Dominion-Wide Prohibition Adopted by Assembly

WOODSTOCK, June 10.—Important recommendations contained in the supplementary report of the committee on social service and evangelism were passed at last night's session of the Presbyterian assembly They were in brief:

That the assembly instruct the board and its officers to co-operate with others in pressing for the complete suppression at the earliest possible date throughout Canada of the traffic in intoxicating beverages.

That the assembly commend the social service council of Canada for the institution of a campaign of education and total abstinence during the coming winter in which Rev. R. J. Patterson of Belfast is to take a leading part.

That the assembly instruct the board to endeavor to secure new activity on the part of the Dominion council of the Dominion Alliance, and if it should be found necessary to co-operate with sister bodies in forming a new organization which will aggressively lead in efforts for the securing of Dominion-wide prohibition.

That the assembly express their gratification at the rapid advancement in temperance sentiment as shown by the present position of the question and urge all ministers and congregations throughout the Dominion to set principle before party and to unite by vote and influence in the support of this movement for the immediate abolition of the open bar.

The proposal to amalgamate the committees of home missions and that of social service and evangelism was referred back to the committee for further consideration. They will report to the assembly before final adjournment. Dr. A. S. Grant, superintendent of home missions, said the matter had been under serious consideration by two special committees appointed by the larger committee for the purpose.

Dr. Shearer, convenor of the committee on social service and evangelism, drew the attention of the commissioners to its varied activities, pointing out that it conducts campaigns for moral reform, political and personal purity and makes a study of the problems of industrial life.

Dr. John Somerville, who moved to send the recommendation back to the committee to be reported on at the assembly next year, said the Women's Missionary Society was considering plans in which the social service and evangelism committee would be interested in.

The committee which has been conferring with Dr. A. S. Grant, concerning his resignation, has not been able to persuade him to change his mind. It is expected that his resignation will be normally dealt with by the general assembly to-day.

STORM ON COAST

Gaspe Shore Suffers Heavily From Hurricane

QUEBEC, June 10.—A special despatch to this city from Barachois de Malbay, Gaspe County, says that in a hurricane 250 fishing boats rode their anchors in the harbors where they were sheltered and were smashed to pieces in the breakers and on the rocks. The damages arising from the loss of all the fleet and from houses and barns being wrecked on shore will approach half a million dollars.

The steamer Canada of the Gaspe Line was on Chaleurs Bay when the hurricane struck her and she came close to foundering out at sea. She is badly damaged.

Windmills on shore were torn from their foundations, barns were reduced to mere kindling wood and a number of houses were overturned.

No loss of life is reported in the section.

Six inches of snow fell at various points along Chaleurs Bay and Gaspe coast.

TEMPERANCE STAND OF CANDIDATES.

WE WOULD INFER from some recent information that the Temperance Association is not playing a disinterested part in the campaign in West Peterborough. At the Temperance Convention held a little while ago, the members were about to vote on a certain resolution which Mr. Soden asked to have read. At first deferring because of its length, it was finally read, and showed that it was practically endorsing Mr. Rowell's policy and leaving shop licenses to take care of themselves. Mr. Soden moved an amendment that shop licenses be included in the resolution supporting the abolition of hotel and club licenses. This was carried, and now, when they are considering a public statement, in view of the approaching elections, they simply state that Mr. Gillespie has gone farther than the platform of his leader in promising support to temperance legislation. The inference they wish to convey is that Mr. Gillespie is thus a greater advocate of temperance than Mr. Soden.

Mr. Soden has given his word that he is in favor of advanced temperance legislation, including the abolition of the bar, shop and club licenses. He refuses to tie himself to any settled contract to do only what a small temperance organization says he must, and is quite right in his position. Members of the Legislative Assembly should never be simply registering machines. They declare the principles on which they seek the support of the people, and their word ought to be relied on to do as they declare.

Why is Mr. Rowell so tender with the shop licenses? It is rumored that four of his seventeen supporters in the Legislature are drawing revenue from shops. That may or may not be a reason, but Mr. Rowell has declared his policy in regard to shop licenses to be that of leaving them to the electors on a local option vote of a straight majority. Let us ask, will a straight majority vote eliminate club licenses in Walkerville, Waterloo or Corbyville, for example, where local option could not get a corporal's guard? Will it do so in those places that gave a majority against local option? Yet the Temperance Associations say vote for the Liberal candidate. Mr. Soden is not to be trusted. His word is not to be taken. Although he supports greater temperance reform than Mr. Gillespie, he would not make a hard and fast agreement with us. Mr. Gillespie even if elected—which is very doubtful—must support the measure on which Mr. Rowell appeals to the people and that policy is very easy on shop licenses. Premier Whitney has said to the temperance people, if you want more advanced temperance legislation, send me men to support it. That is Mr. Soden's position. He appeals to the temperance people on the ground that he will support the legislation they want. But the Temperance Association say that does not suit us. We don't want Conservative temperance men. We want Grits. The conclusion is that not temperance at all, but party, is the big important interest of the County and City Temperance Association. Any man who is sincere in his temperance convictions must know that more solid temperance reform is to be expected from the Conservative party than from the Rowell aggregation. Mr. Soden has given his word to support advanced temperance legislation, and Premier Whitney will not block the way.

MR. ROWELL UNFAIR.

THE HAMILTON HERALD, the upholder of real Liberalism in the Ambitious City, thus makes an editorial paragraph on the Ontario elections:

> "Sir James Whitney's indignant protest against Mr. Rowell's prediction that Sir James would not be able to lead the Government if he were returned to power, is well warranted. The statement of Mr. Rowell was not fair fighting."

WHAT IRRIGATION CAN DO.

A FRAMED MAP in the C.P.R. department of natural resources at headquarters, showing the lands which have been irrigated in the Northwest; the farms which have been cultivated; the amount of reclamation, and what it means in prosperity over wide areas—attracts considerable attention from intending settlers. These lands have been treated as part of the great, irrigating scheme which has reclaimed, or is to reclaim, 5,000,000 acres. The farms are divided into 50 and 80 acres each; and if thrift and perseverance be practised, it appears that these allotments are ample to ensure gradual independence. The point of interest is that all these green and inviting lands were until recently part of a vast, arid, bare and hopeless wilderness. By the expenditure of many million dollars the company has rescued a vast part of the country from desolation and settled upon the recovered lands a prosperous colony drawn from the United States and the British Isles. It is worth while to point out that this was a serious business proposition—not a spectacular undertaking. Dollars were to be in it—ultimately; but in the meantime a clever engineering feat has to be performed, of which the effect was spectacular enough, without intention — the complete transformation of a wilderness into a garden—literally.

TEMPERANCE AND PARTY.

ANY MAN who says it does not matter to me which party goes in so long as you banish-the-bar, puts his temperance principles before party. Mr. Rowell cannot do this. He is making a handle of the temperance question to get into power, for on that question he sees office. The first condition he makes is not temperance, but elect me and then (note the word then) I will bring in legislation. Sir James Whitney has no such truckling appeal to make to the electors of Ontario. He says elect men that will support the temperance legislation you desire and I will pass it. He did not even say elect Conservatives. When the people want advanced temperance legislation they will get it. The following is taken from the Mail and Empire, and is to the point on this question:

> "Speaking of the desire of people for honest temperance progress, the Winnipeg Telegram deplores the attempt being made by both the Manitoba and Ontario Oppositions to use it to hoist themselves into office. It says that the bringing in of party politics only makes the liquor evil more evil, and, referring to Mr. Rowell's manipulation of the temperance issue, goes on to say:
>
> "'Mr. Rowell, thinking thereby to win a measure of support, has made a party issue of 'banish the bar' and, in a speech the other day, delivered himself of the dictum that 'The man who votes against us and with the saloon has it upon his heart and upon his conscience and upon his home.'
>
> "'The declaration sounds very solemn and impressive, almost as the voice of conscience. But critical examination would show that it is 'nine-tenths political and one-tenth temperance.' A moment's reflection will show that a man may be sincerely opposed to the saloon and just as earnestly opposed to 'banish the bar.' Many men who will oppose Mr. Rowell and his policy have already demonstrated that principle. They have voted through local option to banish the bar, and the shop as well. Others, again, have voted to banish the bar and the shop and the importation and manufacture as well, by voting for the Scott Act. They are free to do it again. What impertinent hypocrisy, then, to seek to put upon men's consciences that unless they vote for Mr. Rowell's fatuous policy they are thereby favoring the saloon.'"

EDITORIAL NOTES.

AT A RECENT MEETING of the Apple Growers' Association of the Okanagan Valley district, one of the greatest apple-producing sections in British Columbia, it was estimated that with the present progress of the industry, the district will within two years be producing yearly 3,000 carloads of apples of a good grade. Plans are being made for erecting a cold storage warehouse, to cost $200,000, which will be used by the association for the storage of its product pending the marketing at what the producers consider profitable prices.

AT the Hamilton Methodist Conference yesterday, a resolution was passed that "members of the Conference advocate the election of those candidates who will pledge themselves to support the most advanced temperance legislation." That would not suit the Liberals here, for if the resolution was adhered to in West Peterboro, the temperance body would all be voting for the Conservative candidate, who certainly is an advocate of more advanced temperance legislation than the Liberal candidate.

WE have just received our first copy of the Montreal Evening News. We have subjected it to a severe examination and are glad to report it has successfully passed our censorship. It looks like a first class evening paper, and is not so large that it is cumbersome, nor so small as to be unreadable. We trust it will have hearty support.

GANGS of men are now engaged in sheep shearing in Southern Alberta. It is estimated that the wool crop this year will run over one hundred thousand pounds. Practically the whole crop is already sold to a Boston firm at an advance of about four cents over last year's price.

THE frantic efforts of those who felt the strain of the Trent Canal Report, to get out from under, is amusing. However, it is a good sign also. It means a reviving conscience. It will be a long time before the people will forgive the Burleigh Falls betrayal.

WE SUPPOSE the sheep being sheared in Southern Alberta include those who plunged in oil. The bath is not likely to prove a good hair restorer.

What Constitutes a Gentleman?

Ottawa Citizen.

What makes a gentleman? This is a puzzle to British legal minds just now. The insurance act says that anyone who earns $800.00 or more yearly without doing any manual labour is a gentleman. This looks like a bit of Lloyd George's grim humor, particularly in the use of the word "earn" in this connection. The only gentlemen in Canada under this definition would appear to be promoters of mines and oil wells, railway bonus hunters, and, according to some members of parliament, certain civil servants.

PESTS

NO doubt everythin' in the world was born fer a purpose. Sometimes, though, it's mighty hard fer us to see it that way. There air so many things that seem to us to be simply useless and a lot of 'em right-down pests. I allars figured thet a flea was no use in the world whatever till one day I read that a certain number of 'em was good fer a dog; then I took notice some and I larned thet a dog was liable to get lazy and die of fattenin' of the heart if it wasn't fer the exercise he gets through scratchin'. So, arter all, maybe the little pests of everyday life was given to us to keep us active and watchful. You kin sure larn somethin' from watchin' an ant carry a load or a black hornet buildin' his house and I reckon we're sorter oversteppin' our bounds when we declare any live thing useless.

THE BULLFROG

By Walt Mason

The bullfrog has a widespread voice, the loudest ever born; his singing makes the world rejoice and chortle—in a horn. When to their nests the swallows wing their way, as does the dove, the cheerful bullfrog starts to sing a lay of home and love. He warbles like a frog—or bull—down in his swampy lair, and people plug their ears with wool, and storm around and swear. The frog obeys no rhythmic rules, and folks who hear him, say, "We'd rather hear a thousand mules when they rear up and bray." Each night he stirs up human ginks to wild, unseemly wrath, and yet no doubt the bullfrog thinks he's cutting quite a swath. Perhaps he mutters to his frau, as is the way of males: "Don't talk about your robins now, nor yet your nightingales! In some thing I do not excel," the modest bullfrog cries; "I doubt if I could dig a well or make crabapple pies; I do not boast about my skill at making ginger beer, but when a song is on the bill, I feel I have no peer!" And I've met men and women, too, just like the bullfrog host; they very things they cannot do are those of which they boast.

It was easy to see from the direct opening of the conversation that there was to be little beating around the bush. Gilbert took a chair at the head of the long library table. Wright sat to his left, where he could see the door of the room in which Gloria waited for him. Opposite to him were Kerr and Kendall.

"It's been a hot campaign," were the boss' first words, "but we can afford to let bygones be bygones."

Wright was not to be led into any admission which might be used against him later, and therefore would not assent to this.

"What I can afford has nothing to do with it. The one question is: Can Belmont afford to give itself up to this terminal trust that leaves no stone unturned in its effort to steal the streets and parks of the town? That is only the first step. Where do you propose it shall end?"

"That's where you misrepresent our side, Mr. Wright," said Kendall. "The undertaking you speak of is perfectly legitimate, for the direct benefit of Belmont. I challenge you to prove that what you have accused us of being about to do is really the intention of this company. Nothing, sir, is farther from it."

"That's all been gone over," Wright said, turning to the lawyer at the head of the table. "There's nothing new to be said along that line. Was it for this you sent for me, Judge Gilbert?"

"No. I asked you to come over here to consider an offer for your paper. Is the News for sale?"

"That depends. 'For sale' when applied to a newspaper may sometimes have an ugly meaning."

"Of course," Gilbert was quick to add, "I mean as a newspaper property."

"I'm a poor man, Judge Gilbert," Wright began slowly. "I couldn't refuse to consider an offer—"

He got no further, for Kendall exclaimed:

"That's what I thought."

"Wait a minute," Wright asked him, lifting his hand in warning that he had not finished. "You interrupted me before I was through. What I say is this: I couldn't refuse to consider an offer from a proper quarter."

"What does the source matter to you?" Kendall inquired. "You're human. You want money as bad as any of us."

Before replying, Wright's gaze rested for an instant on the door behind which his heart's happiness waited. Her words came to him, strengthening him to meet the tempter: "Remember, dear, in whatever you do, I'm with you. May my love and my confidence support you ever."

"I may want money—need it—worse than any of you," he confessed. "But it must come only one way—honestly."

"Nothin' dishonest 'bout sellin' a paper, is there?" growled Kerr.

"I can't tell in this case until I hear what Judge Gilbert's offer is."

"It's simply this: I have some clients who wish to purchase your paper."

"Mr. Kerr and Mr. Kendall, I suppose."

"Does it make any difference to you?"

"It may to Belmont."

"What's Belmont got to do with it?" asked Kerr.

"A newspaper can't change hands like a stock of groceries," Wright retorted impatiently.

"You know I want to be open and above board with you, Mr. Wright," soothed Gilbert. "So I'll tell you that Mr. Kendall and Mr. Kerr are interested in this offer. I know the paper's mortgaged. What'll you sell for, the purchasers to assume the mortgage and all other debts, and possession to be given this afternoon?"

Wright merely looked at him and shook his head. What he thought he almost hated to say. It hurt him to think that they could believe he would even listen to such a proposition.

"Then," continued Gilbert, "another basis on which to deal would give you nominal control until after election, but my clients would not expect the paper to be so vehement in its denunciations in the next few days."

"Judge Gilbert," the editor replied quietly, but with great earnestness, "that's an offer I don't thank you for. These men haven't enough money to buy my paper."

"You bought the paper," snarled Kerr in an ugly manner.

"Yes," came the answer right back at him, "but you want to buy my self-respect."

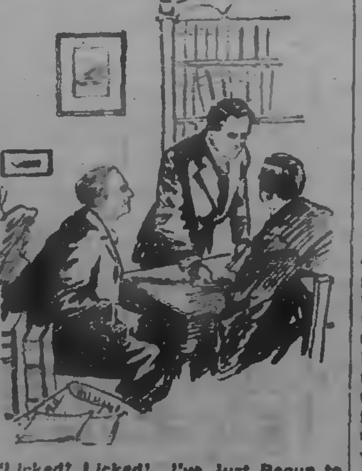
The two men glared at each other, but the boss did not deny the assertion. The elder man was beginning to rage inwardly. So accustomed had he become to the exercise of autocratic power in Belmont that he could not reconcile himself to being thwarted, especially when success was so vital to him.

"There's a good profit in it for you," was the conciliatory remark of Judge Gilbert.

"In dollars and cents, perhaps," admitted Wright, "but there are some things that have a greater value than mere money; peace of mind, for instance, and the deserved respect of the community, and honor. I can't sell out the people who are depending on me, the people of Belmont."

The men across the table looked at him as if they thought him crazy. They knew he had foolish ideas, but they had not dreamed he would let such an opportunity slip through his fingers. He was the owner of a newspaper that was losing money every day, and they had as much as asked him to name his own figure for his property. They could not understand how honor was part of the transaction in the sale of a newspaper, even in the last days of a strong fight against the organization. What should be care about the respect of the community when he had money enough to take him out of that community and keep him comfortable until he was ready to get another paper somewhere else to exploit his insane ideas of civic righteousness?

"You are just a little hasty in your judgment, Mr. Wright," Judge Gilbert said, when he saw that the publisher seemed to regard his answer as final.



"Licked? Licked! I've Just Begun to Fight."

"If you'll consider the matter carefully I think it'll appear to you in this light: Here's a paper that isn't making expenses. A good offer is made you which if you are wise enough to accept will permit you to leave Belmont far richer than when you came. There are other lances to be broken elsewhere. Why tilt here against a stone wall?"

"If it were a stone wall there'd have been no offer." Wright was shrewd enough to know that they must be in desperate straits.

"See here, young man," Kerr blazed, "you won't be able to make a go of it. If you don't sell now I'll see to it that some day the sheriff will."

This direct threat was more than he could bear. Rising from his chair and leaning across the table the publisher shook his fist in Kerr's face and told him just what he thought of the situation. Remembering who was on the other side of the door he was facing, he did not raise his voice, but into his low tones he put all the fire of his honest indignation.

"You may put me down and out, as you boast you can, but you can't buy me out. You've scared advertisers so they're afraid to use my paper, you've had me sued for libel, you've raised my taxes, you've made the railroads hold up my white paper, you've annoyed me in a thousand petty ways, but I'm getting out a paper every day, and I'm telling the truth. That's what hurts," he hurled across the table. "I'm telling the truth. You can't stand it."

"God knows Belmont needs somebody to tell the truth! If you took my paper today, who'd stand between the people of Belmont and the wolves? The town's being robbed blind. I'm telling about it, and I believe there are enough honest people to see me through and set the town right. But they need a leader—a newspaper—and I won't sell 'em out.

"For what's coming," he announced sternly, "hold yourself responsible, not me. You forced me to come out with the bald truth of the matter. Maybe you know and maybe you don't know that you of all men are the one I would least care to hold up for the public to see. Today—for the first time—I printed my name at the head of my editorial page. I want people to know that back of the paper's a man—a man that won't sell out, and back of the man I'm going to have the people. Do you hear? Belmont's going to be a clean city."

He leaned across the table and looked the boss straight in the eye, emphasizing his last words by bringing his fist down on the table with each telling point he drove home. It was a duel between him and Kerr; the others merely looked on. Never in all the days of his political activity had a man talked in this fashion to David Kerr. The audacity and fearlessness of the young man aroused his admiration. He did not let that feeling interfere, however, with his intention to destroy him utterly. The Belmont News must be muzzled, and the boss could not permit a matter of sentiment to outweigh a political necessity.

"You'd better go slow, young man," cautioned Kerr. "I ain't played my hand, you know. You've put up a good fight; that's why I'm giving you a good chance to git out without admitting you've been licked."

"Licked! Licked!" echoed Wright with fine disdain. "I've just begun to fight. You're nearer a worse defeat at this minute than you ever were before in all your life. You're going down and the people of Belmont are going to keep you down if I have anything to do with it. Don't insult me by trying to buy my paper. I've the dearest reason in the world for wanting money and for leaving Belmont—but if I go without a dollar I can still hold up my head and look every man in the eye."

Kerr now looked at him without visible show of anger, in that cold, calculating manner he had taught every one to fear.

"Then you won't sell?" he said.

"No," shouted Wright, beside himself with indignation at the offer; "I'll see you in hell first."

What further might have been said there is no telling. The words were scarcely out of Wright's mouth when he saw the door opposite him open and Gloria appear. Instantly he relaxed from his tense, strained manner, and, noting his change, the other men turned to find that David Kerr's daughter was the cause. She stood in the doorway hesitatingly, recognizing that she was interrupting a business meeting.

"I beg your pardon," she said, "but from the window I saw Mrs. Hayes on the street, and I thought I'd go to her."

"I'll join you," Wright announced. He left his place at the table and walked over to where Gloria was standing.

"I suppose the meeting is over," ventured Gilbert.

"It is, as far as I'm concerned," said the newspaper man. Then, looking at Kerr, he added, "I think I've made my position perfectly clear."

CHAPTER XV.

Gloria's announced intention of rejoining Mrs. Hayes was not the only motive that had brought her into the library. The angry hum of voices had been borne to her even through the closed door, and with a woman's impatience and curiosity she was anxious to know what was going on. Greater than all else, however, was her desire to be with Wright. She thought that by appearing she could bring matters to a conclusion and carry off with her the man she loved. Now that she was in the library and Wright had said that he was ready to go whenever she was, David Kerr's daughter forgot about her desire to go to Mrs. Hayes.

Dr. Hayes and his wife were returning to Judge Gilbert's office when Gloria had seen them, and soon Williams ushered them into the library. The presence of the two women prevented all open discussion of political matters. Even had it not been for Miss Kerr and Mrs. Hayes there could have been no controversy, because after Wright had made his position clear he would not talk further about it. Now he was merely waiting for Gloria.

"I thought you said you wouldn't be long," was the way, in a playful attempt at seriousness, Gloria upbraided her sovereign lord when they found themselves a little apart from the others.

KILL THE FLIES IN YOUR HOUSE NOW

Toronto's Medical Health Officer says: "If you come across any flies in your house kill them now." Therefore all good housekeepers should commence using WILSON'S FLY PADS early and continue their use through the season.

Remember that every ten-cent packet of WILSON'S FLY PADS will kill more flies than three hundred sheets of sticky paper.

Follow the directions carefully to get the best results.

CRITICAL TIME OF WOMAN'S LIFE

From 40 to 50 Years of Age. How It May Be Passed in Safety.

So. Wellington, B.C.—"For a year during the Change of Life I was all run down. I was really too weak to walk and was very despondent and thought I was going to die, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier my health and strength returned. I am very thankful to you and praise your medicine. I have advised several women who suffered as I did to try your remedies. You may publish this if you wish."—Mrs. DAVID R. MORRIS, South Wellington, Vancouver Island, B. C.

No other medicine for woman's ills has received such wide-spread and unqualified endorsement. We know of no other medicine which has such a record of success as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For more than 30 years it has been the standard remedy for woman's ills such as inflammation, ulceration, tumors, irregularities, periodic pains and nervous prostration, and we believe it is unequalled for women during the period of change of life.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

Exciting Pastime.

"The annual game will soon be with us."

"Football?"

"No."

"Coasting?"

"Not that."

"What, then?"

"Finding the cost mark on the Christmas present."

Deafened by a Fit of Rage.

In Diehl's "Life of Beethoven" is the great composer's own story of how he became deaf:

"I was writing an opera. I had to deal with a very tiresome and capricious tenor. I had already written two great arias to the same words, neither of which pleased him, and also a third, which he did not care for the first time he tried it, although he took it away with him. I was thanking heaven I had done with him and had begun to settle myself to something else which I had laid aside. I had hardly worked at it half an hour before I heard a knock at the door, which I recognized as that of my tenor.

"I sprang up from my table in such a rage that as the man came into the room I flung myself upon the floor, as they do on the stage" (here he threw up his arms and gesticulated in illustration), "but I fell upon my hands. When I got up I found I was deaf, and from that moment I have remained so. The doctor said I injured the nerve."

Japanese Birthday Feasts.

In Japan no notice is taken of the actual anniversary of a birth, but every one adds a year to his or her age on the Setsubun, a movable festival which occurs either late in January or at the beginning of February. Thus a child is said to be a year old that is in its first year directly it is born, and on the following Setsubun it will be two although in fact it may be only a few days old. The feast is not kept in any marked manner, except that akemeshi (rice boiled with small red beans which give it a red color) is eaten, and in the evening parched beans are scattered about the room from a square rice measure to the cry of "Fuku ga ouchi! Oni ga soto!"—"Good fortune within! Out with the demons!" Every one is supposed to eat the number of beans corresponding with his age and one over for luck. Friends and acquaintances also congratulate each other with words of good omen and good fortune. —Argonaut.

Distant Heat.

The great solar physicist, S. P. Langley, using the large telescope in Allegheny (Pa.) observatory, to which was attached the most sensitive bolometer ever made, able to detect one-millionth of a degree of heat, was just able to detract a trace of heat from the colossal suns Arcturus, Vega and Sirius. He could detect by the sensitive platinum nerve, thinner than hair, the presence of heat, but the intensity was too small to measure with accuracy.

Of course, take the same telebolometer to these suns, turn around and look at our sun, and no trace of its heat energy could be detected, our sun being so much smaller, and it is cooler than the great suns mentioned. It would look like the point of a needle. —Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

A Housewife's Party.

The Woman's Home Companion suggests the following way of entertaining:

"Each guest was requested to come dressed in such a manner as to represent the thing she disliked most to do. One woman came with a tub and washboard, another with a broom and duster, and so on.

"On arriving each guest was given ten beans. At any time during the afternoon when any person mentioned her household affairs or worries she was compelled to forfeit a bean. At the end of luncheon the person holding the most beans was given a prize. Likewise the unfortunate who had no beans was given a booby prize.

"A sliding board was rigged up in the back yard, and each guest was requested to slide three times without laughing while all the others, of course, did their best to make her pay a forfeit. Other games played were hide and seek, blind man's buff, etc. Anything that suggested childhood was in order.

"The luncheon was a complete surprise to the hostess even, for her daughter had asked permission to prepare it alone. She had discovered in some mysterious fashion the favorite dish of each guest. On entering the dining room each guest was given a plate, knife and other table utensils. Then all filed past a long table, prettily decorated, and 'helped themselves.'

"After luncheon a young woman who was visiting the hostess sang children's songs and told some charming 'sleepy time stories.' As one guest remarked, it was the most strenuously restly afternoon imaginable."

Acknowledging Bridal Gifts.

The bride to be should not delay the acknowledgment of the receipt of wedding gifts too long. She will find that the more closely she adheres to thanking the donor for the gift the better she will be able to do it. Note paper and correspondence cards are now used for the writing of the acknowledgment.

It is always good to include the future husband's name in the expression of gratitude, especially if the gift is something that will furnish the new home and be enjoyed by him. "Mr. Blank joins me in thanking you for the beautiful picture that you sent," is a graceful way to suggest that the gift is appreciated.

She should not have one form of letter. This cannot possibly appeal to every one any more than one pair of shoes will fit all types. Naturally the dear friends are addressed in a more intimate and personal manner than the business friends of the husband elect. She will have to maintain through all a dignity and a sincerity.

Besides an expression of thanks, there should be extended an invitation to the new home, and she should follow this up at a near future date by a specific invitation. Any one who has sent a gift is entitled to hospitality.

The richer the cake the more easily it is spoiled if the oven is too hot. As soon as the cake has risen and taken a rich brown color, the heat should be lessened to what cooks know as a "soaking heat" and the cake should be kept in this moderate heat.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

BATHING SUITS ARE ULTRA STYLISH THIS SUMMER.

The dressy touches on this bathing suit, the drapery, the girdle, the white collar and the button trimming, mark it as one of the ultra stylish garments of the summer girl's wardrobe and will make it a smart adjunct of the beach as well as of the water. Many of these suits are developed on the soft new mohair-and-wool or in washable pussy willow taffeta and for quick taking off are finished with snap fasteners instead of buttons. The little cap is of rubber trimmed with rubber roses and tied with rubber strings.

The less some men have to do the longer they fool around before getting busy.

RENTING ROOMS

The total amount of rent money paid for furnished rooms in this city each week is enormous! Nobody knows how much. It goes to thrifty people, who like to lessen their own rent or living expense by sub-letting one or more spare rooms to an agreeable person. If YOU have a desirable extra room you can become a receiver of rent by ordering a "Furnished Room to Let" ad. in the Review. The cost is nominal—one cent a word for first insertion and half a cent a word for subsequent insertions, run consecutively.

SUCCESS OF BERLIN'S POOR MAN'S THEATRE

After Twenty-Four Years of Experiment the New Free People's Stage Idea Solves the Problem of Giving First-class Drama and Music at the Best Theatres Within the Reach of the Poorest

Berlin, June 10.—Berlin will shortly see opened in the Bulow-Platz, in the north-east of the city, one of the finest of all German theatres and the finest People's Theatre in the world. It is the achievement of an organization known as the New Free People's Stage. The New Free People's Stage has solved successfully the problem of presenting to working men at terms accessible to the poorest the best drama and the best music. And that not merely by organizing plays and operatic performances for workmen. That has been done before; and it has seldom flourished because most People's Theatres organized by the rich and well-educated are artificial playthings not in touch with working-class life. The New Free People's Stage has induced workmen to make their own theatre; to pay for their own theatre; and to be zealous for their own theatre. After twenty-four years' experiment it has proved that the working man, when given a lead, is as keen for good dramatic art as are the best educated classes in the Empire.

The New Free People's Stage is a theatrical society organized and run on principles of pure co-operation. It is the achievement of the talented writer, Dr. Bruno Wille, of the late novelist and translator, Dr. Josef Ettlinger, the scientist, Dr. Wilhelm Boelsche, and the director of the Lessing Theatre, Dr. Otto Brahm. Bruno Wille was the initiator. His plan was to engage, on Sunday afternoons when they were free, the best Berlin theatres; to enlist the aid as far as possible unpaid, of managers and actors; and to give cheap performances; meeting the cost of a working-class fund on co-operative lines. At that time Berlin had no good-class working man's stage, and people laughed at Wille; and said that the flaw in his plan was the workman himself who did not want a good stage. To disprove this, Wille organized a popular representation of Ibsen. Even to the educated Ibsen was then caviare. The theatre was crowded with working men and women, who were charged twelve cents each for their seats. Expenses were covered, and the experiment was a complete success.

The result was the organization known as the "Freie Volkshuhne, or Free People's Stage, the ancestor of the present New Free People's Stage. The Free People's Stage proved that it could fill five or six theatres at the same time with working-class audiences; and that, assuming some volunteer aid by professionals, it could cover expenses by charging a mere twelve cents a seat. Afterwards the charge was raised to twenty-five cents. For this price, after paying a yearly membership fee of twenty-five cents, any workman or workwoman could have a seat in any part of a theatre; and could see first-class actors and singers in the finest works of German and foreign dramatic and musical art. The Free People's Stage was thus to be a co-operative society which would sell seats only to members; and this is the basic idea today.

The present New Free People's Stage arose as a result of a secession from the Free People's Stage. The secession was caused by politics. The Free People's Stage went in largely for advanced dramatic art, and Berlin's police began to regard it with suspicion as a semi-socialist propagandist organization. The police declared that it was not a theatrical society, but an organization with political and social aims; and under this protest they subjected it to political censorship, and treated its performances as political meetings. The socialists, in fact, did try to capture the society; and as Berlin's workingmen are mostly socialist, the attempt nearly succeeded. A further attempt was made in the name of democratization to take the technical and artistic directorate out of the hands of the professional experts who served the organization gratis, and to replace them with an untrained working-class junta. Then Dr. Wille resisted. A split resulted; and Dr. Wille founded the New Free People's Stage, which entirely overshadowed its rival. The New Free People's Stage is run on non-political lines, but as it is artistically as advanced as the old society, it is still under suspicion. As a result of police interference and prohibition, it has had numerous lawsuits. Nevertheless it has flourished amazingly; has over fifty thousand members all of whom attend periodically its performances; has a fat treasury, and is about to open a splendid theatre of its own.

The activity of the New Free People's Stage is great. In 1913 it organized nine hundred representations of dramatic and operatic works. Most of these performances were given on Sunday afternoons, when theatres can be had, and when workingmen can attend. Some performances are held on week days and evenings. The theatres, temporarily rented, are the best in Berlin. Among them are the Lessing Theatre, Max Reinhardt's "Deutsches Theatre" and his Hammerspielhaus, the two Schiller Theatres, and the Deutsches Opernhaus. The New Free People's Stage is not a pedantic, educational institution. It plays everything from Strindberg and Wedekind down to operettes. But predominantly it has a serious dramatic character, and it ventures to present works of which ordinary managers fight shy. In the programme of the last year are Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure," Grillparzer's "Woe to the Liar," Strindberg's "Intoxication," Bjornsen's "When the Young Vine Blooms," Tolstoy's "Man Who Was Dead," Ibsen's "Wild Duck"; operas by Mozart and Offenbach; and new pieces by Bahr, Guitry, Eulenberg, and Ludwig Thoma.

Cheap seats and absolute equality for all members is the basis on which the New Free People's Stage is conducted. Anyone can join. The initial payment is still twenty-five cents. For this is issued a ticket of membership, giving the right to attend every year thirteen or fourteen of the society's performances at a cost of 25 cents per time. This payment includes programmes, wardrobe fees, and the right to receive the society's periodical journal. The fifty thousand members are divided into groups each containing eight hundred persons; and these groups attend in turn the different performances. At present there are sixty-eight groups. As far as possible it is arranged that each group shall get seats once for every play or opera produced. The society is run very economically; but with such a vast organization it has largely to depend on unpaid help. Every group is attended on and organized by seven volunteer stewards, who come to the theatres, and help to arrange places, and keep order. The cost of performances is low. Many professional managers, scene-painters and actors help gratis. Sometimes theatres are lent to the society free of charge; other help is given with scenery and costumes. So with a total revenue from all sources of a little less than $200,000 a year, fifty thousand Berlin workers are supplied with as much first drama and first-class music as is enjoyed by the average middle-class man and woman.

Unlike so-called "People's Theatres" in other cities, the Berlin New Free People's Stage has kept its working-class colour. Nearly all the members are either manual workers or are in a position very little higher. In the first ten thousand members were over a hundred bricklayers, and nearly five hundred seamstresses. This kind of membership is encouraged. The aim of the founders was that the society should be not only for, but also of the working-class. The final authority in the society's affairs is the members' own annual meeting. This democratic organization, combined with expert guidance, has attracted the working man. The rush to join has been great. Since 1909 2[illegible],000 fresh members have been aded. This has caused difficulties. The society cannot refuse members; and it began some time ago to have trouble in finding enough vacant theatres to seat all. Dr. Bruno Wille always kept as his ideal the building of a theatre for the society itself, with a first-class auditorium and technical equipment; and also with room for other institutions of the People's Palace kind. This ideal met with obstacles of a financial kind, but the obstacles have been triumphantly overcome. The money for the theatre was provided by the workmen themselves. For years past every member on paying his twenty-five cents for a seat has had to pay a two-cent supplement for the theatre-building fund. The hundreds of thousands of two-cents have been kept for the theatre. The contributor is given an equivalent for his two cents. When he has paid two cents ten times he gets a "building stamp," value twenty cents; and after he has struck ten building stamps on his membership ticket, he is presented with $2 paid-up stock in the theatre company which bears interest at the rate of 5 per cent. Many workmen consider this a fair investment for part of their savings; and buy up more than the compulsory number of stamps. This way of raising money, which resembles the minute system practised in German Labour Insurance, has proved a great success. Thousands of men, who would not pay a dollar down, have paid much more in the shape of two-cent quota; and the theatre company has now a building fund of nearly $190,000. With this and with some assistance from the city of Berlin it is building the Bulowplatz Theatre. The theatre has been designed by Oscar Kaufmann, an accomplished architect. It is in modern German style, entirely of stone, and has two large wings for the subsidiary aims of the People's Palace. The auditorium will hold two thousand persons. All seats will be of the same class, and will be identically furnished. Chance will decide which members will get the best seats for seeing and hearing.

The New Free People's Stage shows how much can be done to foster good drama for the working-class. The late Dr. Ettlinger, to whose presidency in 1902-11 the tremendous growth of the society is mainly due, laid down the essential principles as follows: Firstly, a People's Stage movement must not rely upon grants and benefactions; and must not aim at charity, that is, at giving the workman more than he has paid for. It must be self-supporting; and this even with low seat-prices can be attained by rigid economy. Free professional help is better than money from the benevolent. The second principle is that the organization shall belong wholly to the workingmen; they shall control it; and they alone shall be responsible for it. Only when the workingman is proprietor, is morally and financially interested in success, will he treat a popular stage organization as truly popular; and keep faithful to it. The record of the New Free People's Stage shows this. Hundreds of members have been in the society since the start; and very few who join give up their membership except for imperative reasons. When the new theatre is opened, and when other organization changes are made, it is expected that the society will be able to provide for a hundred thousand members. With this it far excels in usefulness and success the People's Theatres of other German cities, most of which have ceased to be genuinely working-class institutions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

THE INCINERATOR.

Editor of The Review:

Dear Sir:—

The statements of the M.H.O., in regard to the incinerator, made at the meeting of the Board of Health yesterday as chronicled in last night's press, leads one to believe that his memory is in a very precarious condition. The doctor evidently forgets speaking to a party on Hunter Street, opposite the James Lynch Drug Store about three weeks ago. He then expressed himself as being able to smell the odors at his residence.

Yours, etc.,
DISGUSTED.

THE SABBATH DAY

Editor of The Review :

Dear Sir,—

It appears they have an Association in Toronto called the Lord's Day Alliance with highly paid salaried officers by which they seek to justify the change of the Lord's Sabbath from Saturday, the seventh day of the week to Sunday, the first day thereof, and to prosecute and incarcerate all and sundry persons who do not agree with them.

In order to support this propoganda they sally forth from their head centre at irregular periods and solicit subscriptions from the various congregations of our churches throughout Canada, and elsewhere for anything that I know. We have been visited of late by them as on former occasions who induce thoughtless people to subscribe to the fund which, of course, is their own business, but when they try to pervert holy writ by pretending that the change of the Sabbath was authorized by it, then it is time to cry halt. The inviolability of the Bible must be preserved. They admit that other great events are also worthy of commemoration, such as Good Friday, and are commemorated by the churches, but in no case do they go the length of saying that they should supersede the Sabbath with the one exception as stated. They falsely argue that the seventh day (Saturday) is the Jewish Sabbath only, and commemorates their deliverance from Egypt when they know better. The good book says that the Sabbath was made for man—all mankind—and not merely for the Jew or Gentile, and it originated on the seventh day after the Creation, two thousand years before there was a Jew.

They also work in the specious argument that there can be no division of time into days in the ice bound regions of the north where in the summer the sun does not disappear for sometimes over a week, but that is only subterfuge, for any school boy knows that the sun there goes down in the west and rises again in the east as it does here, only that for a short time it does not go below the horizon. The hours and the days there are just as sharply defined as they are here. I challenge any of them to point to any passage in the Bible whereby God's Sabbath is changed. The only change that was ever aimed at was by an egotistic man who—in A.D. 364—by an edict at the Council of Laodicea anathematized those who kept the Sabbath and urged all persons to labor on that day under penalty of anatheme

When the Lord's Sabbath was observed by our Saviour who enjoined others to keep it, and which his apostles kept as did the prophets previously, surely it ought to be good enough for latter day Christians. I think this ought to be enough until they can produce their biblical authority for the change. The observance of Sunday is fixed by our statutes and no doubt the civil authorities are quite capable of enforcing their own laws without the interference of the so called Lord's Day Alliance.

Yours truly,
Consistency.

June 9th, 1914.

CIRCUS DAY

Robinson's Show on Parade Made Fine Imrpession

The Robinson Famous Show came to town today, hailed with a burst of glad welcome by city residents and country cousins as they scrutinized the picturesque entrance of the strangers into strange lands, watching the rising and expansion of the tents, gazed with astonished eye upon the gorgeous street parade and flocked to the show grounds, the scene of the exhibitions.

As the day progressed it became more and more convincingly evident that the circus is the most popular form of entertainment for small boys, some of whom are six and others sixty years of age.

Behind the first section two more trains were in pursuit. Steel runways were lowered to the ground from stock cars and yellow lettered flats and elephants and camels and great red wagons, their tops and sides masked in canvas, emerged. Eight and ten horse teams came from the stock cars, all harnessed and dragging empty traces behind them.

The "cook tent" was first placed in position that food might await the 300 men, women and children on the way. This was a simple and expeditiously accomplished duty, as compared with the raising of the "big top," a swelling fabric within whose folds more than 5000 people can be accommodated. Menageries, side show, wardrobe, blacksmith harness, dressing, property and barber tents yielded to the unremitting exertion before the delegated proprietors of the broad space had finished their morning's labor.

The pageant was all and more, in magnitude and sumptuous beauty, than the Robinson management had promised The two hundred Robinson horses elicited praise from all onlookers. They ranged from great Clydesdale and Percheron draft horses to tiny Shetlands, and were in pink condition and spirits. Their trappings glistened and were splendidly ornate.

The circus performance began promptly at 2 o'clock when the nimble performers and thirty clowns trooped into the "big top" for the grand entry together with elephants, camels and the other wonders of the circus.

The circus features are many and special mention is made of the Millette Family, aerialists, "King George" tango horse, The Vine Nelson Family, acrobats, and wire artists, Three La Dues, iron jaw lassies, who are suspended by their teeth at the dome of the canvass. The Thomas Sisters are dainty equestriennes, O'Quare's troupe of Japs, Williams Bros. gymnasts, sisters Miller double trapeze artists, and many other pleasing numbers besides the army of clowns round out a splendid circus bill.

The final performance will be given tonight at 8 o'clock. The doors will be opened an hour earlier.

MR. PHILIP O'BRIEN.

Mr. Philip O'Brien, aged 56 years, a life long resident of Douro, passed away yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, after an illness extending over several weeks. Deceased leaves his wife and one daughter Miss Emma, at home; one brother, Rev. M. J. O'Brien, South Dakota; five sisters, Sister Geraldine of Lindsay, Sister St. Michael of Brockville, Sister Mary Rose of Holyoke, Mass., Mrs. J. H. Mober, and Mrs. O'Donnell, Sault Ste. Marie, to mourn his death.

The fnueral will take place from his late home at Lot 7, Concession 3, Douro, to-morrow morning at 9.30 to St. Joseph's Church and Cemetery.

MOSSOM M. BOYD.

Monday afternoon word was received in Lindsay of the death in Philadelphia, Pa., of Mr. Mossom M. Boyd, of Bobcaygeon. The deceased gentleman was perhaps one of the best known citizens of this district, and was extensively known throughout the Province, also in British Columbia, the western provinces and in the States.

About two months ago he decided to visit Philadelphia for his health, he having been a sufferer from anaemia for years. He was about 59 years of age, and the senior member of Mossom Boyd Co., a company that deals extensively in lumbering, ranching, stock-raising and real estate business. Extensive lumbering interests were carried on in Bobcaygeon, in British Columbia, and in Quebec. At Prince Albert, Sask., the firm owns a large farm, where pure-bred Polled Herefords are being raised, this company being the first in Canada to introduce the above breed. About 25 years ago the deceased brought the first buffalo to Bobcaygeon, where he proceeded to raise a new breed of bovine, and about eleven years ago he succeeded in buying the balance of a herd of 11 buffalo, which were also brought to Bobcaygeon.

The late Mr. Boyd was a member of the Church of England and a good citizen in every respect. He is survived by his wife, four boys and three girls, as well as by his brother, Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, junior partner of the firm.—Lindsay Warder.

---

The funeral will take place from the C.P.R. station, Thursday morning, on arrival of the morning train from Toronto. Service at St. John's Church.

CUT GLASS OF UNUSUAL BRILLIANCE THAT SUGGESTS ITS MERIT AS AN IDEAL GIFT FOR THE JUNE BRIDE

There is scarcely a woman who does not wax most enthusiastic over sparkling cut glass, and as a wedding gift one may rest assured that it will prove acceptable in every way, and at the same time leave a lasting impression of the good wishes of the giver. We are making a special display this month of a shipment that has but recently arrived. The brilliance of this glass, all deeply and expertly cut on imported blanks assures an excellence to each individual piece, emphasizing the fact that only in cut glass of excellent quality--such as this--is the true ring and true sparkle found. You will find on viewing these goods that the patterns are quite new and varied, whilst the prices are considerably lower than usually demanded for cut glass of this quality. A few suggestions:

Water Jugs at $3.45 to $3.95
Glasses to match at $5.90 to 7.50 Dozen
Cream and Sugar Sets at $3.65 to $4.50

DISENCHANTED

A Pair of Lovers Meet After an Interval of Twenty Years

By ESTHER VANDEVEER

There were four of us youngsters in Wheatfield about the same age and intimate friends. Helen Porter and I were bosom friends, and Jim MacAlester and Edward Dudley were inseparable. These two young men used to come to see Helen and me always together till a time came when we paired off, Jim and I making one couple, Ned and Helen the other.

I don't know a better way to make matches than for two girls, chums, and two fellows, chums, to form a quartet for spending their leisure hours. Almost always one of the couples will get to lovemaking, and the other will catch the infection. Jim and I caught it from Ned and Helen.

I think it was their example that set Jim and me to thinking about marriage. At any rate, Jim began to grow spoony, and I, thinking that I was not likely to do better, encouraged him. In due time he proposed, and I accepted him. At this time Ned and Helen had been engaged several months and had fixed their wedding day. But before it came round Helen was taken ill, and it was put off. Helen recovered, and another day was fixed, but this time Ned fell sick, and there was another postponement.

When Ned improved his doctor ordered him to the mountains, where he would breathe a dry air. He went out to the Rockies, to be gone a few months, at the end of which time and on his return the wedding day was to be fixed for the third time. We all went to the station to see him off. He did not wish to go any more than Helen wished to have him go. Jim consoled him till the train started, and Helen went home in the carriage with me, weeping on my shoulder as though her heart would break.

Ned wrote that he was picking up marvelously out in the mountains, and when two months had elapsed he wrote Helen to brush up her trousseau, for he would be back in a few weeks for the wedding. Poor Helen came to me with a lugubrious face about her trousseau, for the fashions had changed a couple of times since it was first made. Articles that were cut short then had since been cut long; those that had been made scant were now made full. She had bought several expensive hats, very small, and the fashion had bloomed out to enormous proportions.

I helped her prepare a new trousseau; but, alas, it, too, passed out of fashion in closets and bureau drawers. Ned, instead of coming home, wrote that he had bought a gold mine and was going to make a fortune. He had some property and put a portion of it into his gold mine and felt it necessary that he should stay where he was till the property had been placed on a paying basis.

When this next period had passed Ned turned his property into cash and put it all into his gold mine. He wrote Helen that this was necessary, because if he didn't he would lose what he had already invested.

Helen's trousseau had now been made over so many times that it would not bear any more altering, and it was fortunate she didn't try to bring it down to date, for Ned was delayed in getting his mine into shape to leave. All was going on swimmingly when a considerable flow of water was struck. A large pump must be ordered, and when it arrived it was found not to be large enough. Then there was a labor strike among the miners. And so it went on, first this trouble, then that, till finally all Ned's fortune had gone down into the big hole in the ground.

Ned wrote Helen telling her what had happened—that he had no income and would remain where he was till he had recovered what he had lost. He offered to release her from her engagement, but so far as he was concerned he would never marry any one else. When he got his affairs in proper shape to take a wife, if Helen were free, he would claim her. Meanwhile he would not blame her if she married another.

Helen replied that she felt just as Ned did about it. Her heart had been given to him and she could not if she would give it to another. If at the end of five, ten, even twenty years he claimed her he would find her ready to give herself to him.

Meanwhile Jim and I were married and getting on nicely. We regretted that our companion couple's affair had not turned out so well. I did my best to cheer Helen, and Jim wrote to encourage Ned. But the case looked hopeless to us. Ned was a long while after the collapse of his mine getting any kind of start, and when he got one it wasn't enough to marry on. Several years passed, and he felt that he and Helen had waited so long that he didn't care to marry without getting his affairs into excellent shape.

A dozen years passed, during which Ned Dudley went up and down hill a number of times, never remaining on a crest long enough to warrant—according to his own ideas—his taking a wife. He kept Helen's picture with him and never failed for a single day to look at it, for it was on his dressing case, where he could not help seeing it.

And Helen did the same by him. When they parted she was a beautiful girl and Ned was one of the handsomest young men I ever met. I was frequently in Helen's room and never failed to see her lover's picture in a morocco frame standing on her dresser.

Twenty years passed while Helen was waiting for Ned to get his affairs in shape to marry her. Then one day he made up his mind that his income was sufficient for the purpose. She had said that if he came even after twenty years' absence he would find her ready to marry him. He would come east and take her back with him.

When Jim showed me a letter from Ned announcing his coming we looked at each other doubtfully. The letter contained a reference to the beautiful face that had patiently looked out upon him from his bureau for so many years. It was my belief that Ned was thinking of marrying this young girl instead of the faded, middle aged woman that she had become. Had he been with her all this while the change would have not been noticeable—at least not shocking.

Men are not as apt to grow old looking as women, and quite likely Ned had kept a youthful appearance. We did not fear Helen's being disappointed in him, only his being disappointed in her, for she looked ten years older than she was, and her face had taken on a disappointed expression. Her complexion was white; her hair was thin and streaked with gray. She was certainly not the woman a man of his age would choose for a wife. He would naturally prefer one from ten to twenty years younger.

Ned did not write her that he was coming. He wished to surprise her. So in his letter to Jim he asked him not to mention the matter to her.

"Don't you think, Jim," I said, "that we had better give him a sight of her without her knowing it? If he wishes to go no further it will be better for both of them that he should be free to go back west without making himself known."

"Right you are, my dear," Jim replied. "And I'm not sure but that we should give Helen a peep at Ned under the same conditions. I saw a man from the west the other day who knows Ned very well. He told me that Ned was not a fresh looking man at all. He was nearly bald, and what hair was left was white as snow. This gives a comparatively young man a very old appearance."

"That's fortunate. He won't be so likely to be disappointed with Helen's looks."

"He won't, eh? He will be blind to his imperfections, and she will be blind to hers."

I sighed, for I feared that Jim spoke the truth.

When Ned arrived he went straight to Jim, happy after having waited so many years at the prospect of being united with the love of his youth. Jim came home from the meeting and told me that Ned looked even older than he had been described. He had talked enthusiastically about Helen's beautiful features, the curves of her figure and all that. Jim had asked him to dinner, stating that I would be glad to tell him all about Helen, so that he might be the better prepared to meet her after their long separation.

It occurred to me to invite Helen to the house while Ned was there. I telephoned her that Jim was to have a friend with him during the evening and I would like her to come over and sit with me.

When Ned saw me it was plain that he was a bit shocked at the change in me. I saw by his expression that he was thinking whether he would see the same change in Helen. He had apparently been disposed to chat with me in the way of youngsters, such as we were when we parted—indeed, he tried, but the effort was a failure. Where, oh, where was that head of thick raven hair I had admired so much? Where the white teeth, the slender figure? And life in a rough country had roughened Ned. He was bronzed and seemed to have forgotten the king's English.

After dinner Ned and Jim smoked, I retiring to another part of the room. Helen came in, and we could both see and hear the men chatting.

"Who is that old boor over there with Jim?" asked Helen.

"Do you consider him a boor?" I asked.

"He's both disagreeable looking and speaking."

This was my experience with Helen. Jim's experience with Ned was told me later. Ned paid no attention to the lady chatting with me until Jim spoke of her as a friend of mine and a lovely woman. Then Ned gave her a glance, remarking:

"The old lady looks ready to turn up her toes, doesn't she?"

Helen went home, leaving Ned still with us. Jim then told him he had been looking on his ladylove. Ned looked astounded, disappointed, then frightened.

"Does she know I'm here?" he asked.

"No; we have kept your secret."

"Don't say anything till I tell you to."

"Mum's the word."

The next day Ned told Jim that he had received a telegram that something had gone wrong with his business and he must leave for the west at once. It would not be wise for him to renew the affair with his old love when so pressed for time. He would make another trip for the purpose.

But another trip was never made. Ned had been disenchanted. As for Helen, she was spared the pain of knowing that the man she had pronounced an old boor was the man she had so long worshiped. She still nourished her memory of him as he was in their youth.

RIBOT MAKES CHOICE.

New French Premier Says He Has Almost Completed Cabinet.

PARIS, June 10.—Senator Alexandre Felix Ribot announced yesterday that he had virtually succeeded in forming a new French Cabinet to succeed that of Premier Gaston Doumergue, which resigned as a result of the recent general elections.

Five of M. Ribot's colleagues are Senators and seven Deputies. The list as given unofficially by M. Ribot is as follows: Premier and Minister of Justice, Senator Alexandre Felix Ribot; Minister of Foreign Affairs, Senator Leon Bourgeois; Minister of Finance, Deputy Etienne Clementel; Minister of Marine, Deputy Theophile Delcasse; Minister of War, Deputy Joseph Noulens; Minister of Interior, Senator Paul Peytral; Minister of Public Instruction, Deputy Arthur Dessoye; Minister of Public Works, Senator Joan Dupuy; Minister of the Colonies, Senator Emile Chautemps; Minister of Commerce, Deputy Marc Reville; Minister of Agriculture, Deputy Adrian Dariac; Minister of Labor, Deputy Maurice Maunoury.

Nationalists Organizing.

DUBLIN, June 10.—John E. Redmond, leader of the Irish Nationalists, issued a statement last night in which he emphatically denies the reports that the Irish volunteer movement is hostile to the objects of the Irish party and adds:

"Up to two months ago I felt that the volunteer movement was somewhat premature, but the effect of Sir Edward Carson's threats upon public opinion in England, the House of Commons and the Government and the occurrences at Curragh Camp, and successful gun-running in Ulster virtually altered the position and the Irish party took steps about six weeks ago to inform their friends and supporters that in their opinion it was desirable to support the volunteer movement. As a result it has spread within the last six weeks like a prairie fire and all the Nationalists in Ireland shortly will be enrolled."

Bathing In Lapland.

The Lapp equivalent to a Turkish bath is a novel and rather pleasant experience. You get into a low, rudely erected tent, open at the top. Inside the tent are half a dozen big stones raised about two feet from the ground under which a fire is lighted. When the stones have become sufficiently heated cold water is poured over them—just before you enter the tent—and the tent is thus filled with an intensely hot vapor You stay in the tent about five minutes, during which time you are whipped with light twigs by a couple of Lapps; then you come out and roll in the snow, after which you dress as quickly as possible.

NEW DIVINING ROD.

Wireless Will Find Minerals and Water Say German Savants.

GOETTINGEN, Germany, June 10.—The Society for Investigating the Internal Structure of the Earth yesterday declared it has succeeded in discovering by means of wireless telegraphy subterranean springs and ore deposits. It states that it also has ascertained their depth by the use of electrical waves, applied according to the method invented by Prof. Leimbach of this city.

Prof. Leimbach on March 23, 1911, used wireless telegraphy for underground communication between the potash mines in the northern Harz mountains, when he sent messages a distance of nearly a mile and a half at a level of 1,000 feet below the surface.

Father of Twenty-Four.

INGERSOLL, June 10—Death yesterday removed Mr. William Crane, who was the father of twenty-four children, ten of whom were twins. His death followed an extended illness. Of the twins, one, Mr. John Crane of Ingersoll, is living. There are eleven surviving members of the family, seven sons and four daughters. The deceased came to Ingersoll nine years ago from Dereham Township, where he had resided for many years.

Week's Delay Necessary.

RIMOUSKI, Que., June 10.—A delay of over a week in raising the bodies now lying in the sunken hull of the Empress of Ireland was decided on yesterday by Wm. W. Weatherspoon, the salvage expert, retained by the Canadian Pacific Railway for this work. Equipment of an elaborate nature must be brought from England before it would be safe to undertake the task, which has been made more difficult by reason of the depth of water above the wreck and its coldness.

N. S. Attorney-General To Stay.

HALIFAX, N.S., June 10.—In the House of Assembly yesterday Mr. Tanner's resolution demanding the resignation of the Attorney-General was defeated.

Premier Murray said that a thorough investigation by impartial judges who had the confidence of the Legislature and the people, could not but appeal to all fair-minded persons who wished to know the facts of the case.

DEATH SUMMONS WILLIAM ARMSTRONG

TORONTO, June 10. — William Armstrong, one of Toronto's most famous artists, died at his residence at the Priory, Augusta avenue, last night.

Mr. Armstrong, who was in his 92nd year, has lived in Toronto for over fifty years. There was no figure more prominent in Toronto's artistic world, many of his paintings being in the collection of J. Ross Robertson.

He was for some time water-color artist to The Illustrated London News, England.

COULDN'T SEE SURVIVORS.

British Reporters Sought to Interview Corsican's Passengers.

LONDON, June 10.—The Corsician reached Greenock at midnight and proceeded to Plantation Quay, Glasgow. There were 62 first-class passengers and 74 of the crew of the Empress of Ireland on board.

About fifty pressmen were taken to the Corsican by a tug. When they reached the ship they were conducted to the saloon. All enquiries as to further arrangements were met with the information that no definite program could be announced. The pressmen were not permitted to see the survivors of the crew of the Empress.

An Austrian steerage passenger, who was saved from the Empress, declared on his arrival at Greenock yesterday that he at length reached a boat, in which were 26 members of the crew, and in which there was room for eight or ten more people.

The Allan Line at Glasgow distributed fresh kits to all steerage passengers arriving there yesterday.

British survivors landed yesterday declined to make any statement regarding general details of the disaster.

Irishmen Could Find Lesson Here Says Prof. G. M. Wrong.

LONDON, June 10.—Rev. Prof. Wrong of Toronto University, writing of the Canadian view of Ireland to The Times, points out that while Ontario Orangemen and Quebec Catholics still fulminate from time to time, they live together in the same state with no injury to each other. French Canada is probably the most clerical country in the world, he says, yet no one suggests any aggressions have been made on the rights of Protestants. Arguing from this Prof. Wrong urges that the only way of ending the present Irish difficulty is for Irishmen themselves to settle it by conferences and agreement among themselves.

U. S. Revenue Cutter To the Rescue.

WASHINGTON, June 10. — The American revenue cutter Bear has been ordered to proceed from St. Michael's, Alaska, to Wrangell Island for the purpose of rescuing fifteen members of the crew of the Canadian steamer Karluk of the Stefansson Arctic expedition, who are marooned on that island. Captain Bartlett of the Karluk is at St. Michael's and will accompany the Bear on its rescue expedition.

Premier Asquith Is Reticent.

LONDON, June 10. — Directly the House of Commons reopened yesterday Premier Asquith was asked by Lord Robert Cecil concerning future proceedings in regard to Home Rule. The Premier, however, would furnish no information, saying it was impossible at present to make any statements.

Miners' Strike Settled.

PITTSBURG, June 10. — Adjustment of the wage scale in the Pittsburg district resulted yesterday in many of the forty thousand miners returning to work under a contract that is to be in force for two years.

ANOTHER VICTORY OVER THE BEAVERS

Visitors Started the Fireworks in the Tenth and the Petes' Bats Did the Rest, Welsh Driving in the Winning Run

THE populace was entertained to another thriller at the ball lot yesterday p.m. when Mr. C. Blount's hirelings breezed forth again at the front, in their tenth frame. As was the case, the previous day, certain things came to pass, that made an extra innings necessary and again in repetition, a clout came when it was most needed. The score was 4 to 3, the visitors had an extra bingle to their credit and the only wobble which was otherwise.

It was 3 to 3 at the end of the ninth and the visitors had failed to break down the fine twirling of Louie Schettler, when their tenth had come and gone. But the men of Blount were more successful. Blount started things going by sending a high foul to Isaac, who failed to hold the pellet. To show that he could also muss things up a bit, Graham proceeded with an attempt to hide the ball within the frame work of the batter, the result being that Mr. Blount escaped serious injury and walked down to the first station. Joseph Byrne punctured space with a neat single and Welsh followed with a mighty wallop into the territory covered by Trout. It was not just exactly what the former Pete had expected as the ball soared far over his head. Blount was home by this time and another victory was recorded.

The Beavers started away alright by shoving a man across in the first. Trout led off with a single and with two gone, Killilea lined one through second, scoring Trout. Right back came the Petes with three runs. Blount drew a pass and took second on a passed ball. Byrne also travelled to first free of charge. Welsh hit towards first, Schultz fielding the ball and taking his only chance, threw to third to get Blount but the White Cap leader was there first. "Dad" Stewart filled Mr. Graham with gloom, by selecting his choicest and biffing the Spalding into left, and scoring both Blount and Byrne. King kept up the good work, his bingle counting Welsh.

Nothing of special note happened till the sixth when the Beavers made the fans anxious by collecting a brace of runs which tied the score. Ort led off with a single. Killilea dropped one between Byrne and Cresswell and both hesitated an instant. Ort evidently liked the hesitation stunt as he tore around the bags. Byrne however fielded the ball and getting his glimmers on Ort making a bee line for the bag, beat out the runner and tagged him. Schultz came along with a double and both he and Killilea scored on Isaac's single.

So far Cresswell had been twirling a fine brand of ball but it was evident that the heat was bothering him. Blount decided to allow him to seek the shade of the coop and called Louie Schettler to duty. The response Schettler made was quite satisfactory to the grandstands as the Beavers were turned back as fast as they were lead to the slaughter. Graham drew the only hit for the remainder of the argument but there was nobody to boost him around.

COMMENT
As You Like It

An ardent follower of baseball has unearthed a Montreal Gazette of August 2, 1910, in which was the account of the games played the day previous in the big show. Among others was the game between Brooklyn and Philadelphia in the National League in which Louie Schettler, now on the local team and Nap Rucker went 11 innings, Schettler winning out 8-5. Dooin, now manager of the Phillies did the receiving.

So far this season Schettler has performed in 18 games and the highest number of runs scored by his team for him was 4.

Another name appearing in the games of August 1, 1910, was Doc Reiding now manager of the London brigade. On that day Doc battled against the immortal Rube Waddell but although he held St. Louis to 5 hits he lost out 5-4 as Washington for whom he was on the mound, had five errors.

Doc Yates, Hams, alias Athletics open a three game series tomorrow. The Hams have shown mediocre form and the Petes can be counted upon to climb at the expense of the crew from Hamilton. Several new faces will be noticed on the visiting club, including Doc Yates, Dudley, Dolan a brother of Cosy of Ottawa, Baldwin, Sheckard, Haeffner and a new shortfielder who is on his way. In the Hamilton party will be Bobby Kerr who is secretary of the club. Bobby will be remembered as Canada's greatest sprinter, winner of the British 100 and 220 championships and the Olympic 200 meter race in 1908.

The Beavers are the nearest approach to a home brew team as there is on the circuit. They have Manager Lee, Graham and Auld, hurlers, and Isaac, third base, all of them being Queen City boys, although Graham started his career as a corner lot junior in Hamilton. Marty Killilea has a girl in Hamilton so the scrappy little short fielder is almost Canadian, even if he does hail from Boston, the classic.

Joe Byrne received a leter from his home in Philadelphia this morning to the effect that his father is ill. Joe will not leave for home unless his father takes a very serious turn for the worse. Local fans and fans all over the circuit hope for better news from Philly and extend their best wishes that Mr. Byrne will enjoy a speedy recovery.

Iron Man Sterling and Bobby Auld were the slabmen selected by Managers Blount and Lee for this afternoon's encounter at Riverside. The locals are anxious to cop the battle and thereby make a clean sweep of the series. On the other hand Mr. K. Lee is also desirous of winning. The Beavers hit home for fifteen days after this afternoon's game. Milly Miller will do the receiving for the locals as Kelly is suffering from a sore hand and will take a day off.

The ball tossers played ball with more ginger yesterday than they did on Monday the fact that they had become accustomed to the heat probably being the cause. The Petes displayed a barrel of ginger and the large crowd of fans which included several hundred of the gentler sex enjoyed the pastime immensely. Two ten innings games in two days, with the same score, the same number out and the same number on bases in both games when the winner was pushed over is sort of playing to form.

The Erie club suffered a severe blow on Monday at St. Thomas when Jawn Shaeffer their best bet in the hitting line broke a small bone in his leg sliding to second. Shaeffer led the league in hitting last year and was going great in the games played so far.

Smykal the little shortfielder who Ottawa loaned to Fort Wayne and who has been re-called will report to the Senators at Hamilton on Friday. Fried who is holding down the shortfield berth now will be sent to Peterboro and will probably figure in Saturday's game against Hamilton.

By winning yesterday's game the Petes have won two in a row for the first time this season. The local club has been favored with a few breaks in the luck of late but as luck broke against us like hail stones until a week ago the Petes have not yet evened up on ill and good luck.

Cresswell has not sufficiently recovered from his recent illness to stand a full nine innings under present weather conditions. The long boy got one of his few hits when Graham lobbed one over.

Like Kelly did, Welsh came through with a timely poke in the tenth. It sailed over Trout's head in right.

Youth was served at Vernon, California yesterday when Kid Williams of Baltimore wrested the world's bantamweight championship from Johnny Coulon, by the Knockout route, the punch which did the trick coming in the third round.

Honus Wagner the old-youth of baseball collected his three thousandth hit in his 17 years of major league ball yesterday. Pop Anson had 3047 in 22 years so Honus will no doubt surpass that mark before the season is over.

MERCANTILE LEAGUE

The game in the Mercantile circles on Friday night at the Exhibition Grounds between the Typos and Wm. Hamilton Co. will no doubt afford good ball for the followers of that league. The both teams have suffered one defeat and are out for revenge. Gus Rose and O'Dette will be the battery for the moulders while O'Connell and Taylor are the pair whom the printers rely on.

GOLF

The following is the third draw for the Stratton Trophy, which must be played by Friday, 12th.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

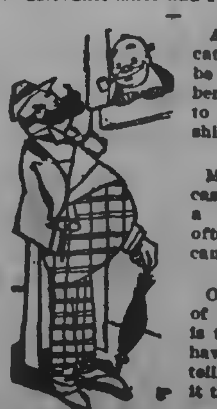
THE ability to get things without work is born in some men, and the harshest kind of circumstances never seem able to knock it out of them.

Not being able to want what you get is one of the greatest discomforts of life.

Occasionally a man can be on time and a slow train at once, but he is a fool to risk it twice.

One way to have a good time is to get some one with a shade of authority to discountenance and forbid it.



A shower of cats and dogs will be a back number when it gets to raining airships.

Maybe you can't cash a draft from a window, but often the doctor can.

One advantage of knowing a lot is that you don't have to be always telling it to prove it to yourself.

It is much easier to furnish the appetite than any other essential of a good dinner.

Many a soft young man has a hard time of it in this callous world.

Always agree with a man in his estimate of himself and listen admiringly to his glowing account of his perfections and he will get on to you after awhile and stake you off as a good thing.

Nobody ever argues to convince his opponent, but solely for the sake of judging how his theories sound when they are vibrating on the sentient atmosphere.

"They say there is no fool like an old fool."
"Guess that's right too."
"Wonder why?"
"They have had time to practice."

Where He Belongs.

"He is a man of tremendous energy."
"Is he?"
"A perfect cyclone."
"Why doesn't he get in the weather reports then?"

Dew.

Teacher—How do you account for the phenomenon of dew?

Boy—Well, you see, the earth revolves on its axis every twenty-four hours, and in consequence of this tremendous pace it perspires freely.—London Tit-Bits.

SMITH—LOGAN.

In the presence of a number of invited guests at the home of the bride, in Auburn, Miss Florence Hilda Logan, daughter of Mr. John Logan, and Mr. David Smith, of Toronto, were united in marriage, this afternoon, by Rev. R. Pogue. There were no attendants.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left on the afternoon C.P.R. express for Toronto, where they will reside. The bride has a host of young friends, who will extend best wishes.

COPPING—ALDRICH.

St. Paul's Presbyterian Church was the scene of an exceptionally pretty June wedding this morning at 7.30 when Miss Hattie I. Aldrich, only daughter of Mrs. George Hartley, Hunter Street, became the bride of Mr. Russell Vernon Copping of this city, formerly of Toronto. Rev. Robert Pogue pastor of St. Paul's officiated.

The bride, charmingly attired in a handsome blue travelling costume with blouse to match and large picture hat, carrying a beautiful bouquet of roses and lilies of the valley, entered the church on the arm of her stepfather, Mr. George Hartley who gave her away. The wedding march was played by Mr. John Allan, organist of the church.

Miss Frances Routley of this city who acted as bridesmaid was most becomingly dressed in pink taffeta silk, with hat to match. She carried a large bouquet of pink sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Mr. R. C. Barber of Toronto, was groomsman.

Mrs George Hartley, mother of the bride was attired in a dress of king's blue silk, touched with yellow and hat to match, and carried a beautiful bouquet of American roses.

Mrs. G R. Copping of Toronto the groom's mother was attired in a costume of overshot corded silk and hat to match. After a honeymoon in Algonquin Park, Mr. and Mrs. Copping will take up their residence at 7 8 Aylmer street and will be at home after October 1st.

Out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Copping, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Copping, and Mrs. Clarke all of Toronto.

FLANNERY—MANLEY.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Manley, 175 Edinburgh Street, was the scene of a quiet but pretty June wedding at 2.30 this afternoon, when Miss Laura Manley was united in the bonds of matrimony to Mr. Wesley Flannery, both of this city, by the Rev. R. G. Peever, B.D., pastor of George Street Methodist Church. The young couple were unattended, and after a short honeymoon will reside at 175 Edinburgh Street. Numerous friends will extend congratulations and best wishes.

Rev. F L. Barber, was inducted as rector of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene, Picton, on Sunday by the Lord Bishop of Ontario, who also administered the rite of confirmation to fifteen young people.

Mr. Jas. Thompson, M.L.A., of Havelock, is among the guests at the Oriental.

Mr. M. M. Russell, of Springfield, is registered at the Oriental.

Mr. Ralph Stoddars of New York, is in the city on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Copping and Mr W H. Copping of Toronto, are guests in the city today for the Copping-Aldrich nuptials.

Mr. H. J. Hyni of Rochester, is among the numerous visitors in the city.

The Parents Circle of Queen Mary School extends a cordial invitation to all mothers and teachers in that district, to a lawn social at Mrs. Moyers, 555 Weller Street, Friday evening, June 12th, at 7 o'clock. No admission.

Mr. and Mrs. James Murray and sons Jack, Francis and Joseph, who have been in the city attending the funeral of Mr. Murray's mother, left today for their home as Waupon, Wis.

Messrs. J. H. and E. Crevier of London, two old Peterboro boys are spending a few days in the city. They are guests at the White House.

Mr H. T. Bennett of Campbellford is in the city, registered at the Snowden House.

Rev Fergus O'Brien of Lakefield is in the city today.

Mr. G. W. Prescott of Toronto is registered at the White House.

Mr Frank Kelly of Montreal is in the city.

Rev. Canon Davidson, Rev. F. J. Sawers and Rev. R. B. Grobb are attending Synod meetings in Toronto.

Mr. R. Parker of Montreal is among the guests at the Oriental.

Mr A. H. Richardson of Sault Ste. Marie is in the city.

Mr. Murray Carlisle, son of Mr. John Carlisle, of this city, is to be congratulated on attaining high standing in his first year of medicine at Toronto University.

When Prices Are High.

To get the best prices for eggs have them to sell in December and January. Chickens are highest in May and June. Butter rises and falls with eggs and that sold in December and January brings the best prices. Potatoes reach their highest about Aug. 1 and fall like a rocket every day after. Of course, all these things are highest when we haven't got 'em, but it's the business of every one of us to try to have 'em when the price is high, if we can.—Farm and Fireside.

LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

COMBINATION EFFECTS IN FOOTWEAR STYLISH.

Like the fashionable frock of the season, the smartest footwear shows a combination of materials and a brightness of coloring that makes it unusually attractive. In this Colonial patent leather is combined with gray suede in the slender long shape that prevails this year. Simulated straps cross the tongue, and are held at one side with gray pearl buttons, in suggestion of the fashionable buttoned effects in boots and low shoes. With an afternoon frock of black or gray, a swell as in colors, here is a proper finish.

BANISHING BACTERIA.

Eggs Should Be Washed and Put Away Carefully.

An illustrious personage once expressed his wonderment as to how an apple got into a dumpling. The same perplexity appears to worry scientists as to the presence of bacteria in eggs.

That bacteria and ferments are found in eggs, even fresh eggs, is unquestionable. A few may get in before they are actually laid, but it must not be forgotten that an egg shell is a very variable body. It may be thick or thin, close or porous. Even the toughest shell, however, is porous in a measure.

When first laid the egg shell is full, but the longer it is exposed to air the more is there a loss of moisture by evaporation, and the void thus formed is filled by the influx of air, which, naturally, almost always contains bacteria.

The lessons which we should deduce from this are the absolute necessity of cleaning eggs as soon after they are laid as possible and quickly packing them in sawdust, sand or covering them with some solution of lime or sodium silicate. Preservation in cold storage is excellent, provided the eggs were clean and fresh when placed in storage.

Spring Greens.

Well wash spinach in several waters to which a little vinegar has been added. Place the leaves in a large pan and cook them without adding any liquid at all. Mash the leaves if young. When cooked stir in a little butter and season with salt and pepper.

Spinach is greatly improved if passed through a sieve when cooked, then reheated.

It is an excellent vegetable and should be freely used, as it contains a great percentage of iron and other minerals.

BREAKFAST FOOD.

Try cooking oatmeal with dates, which is a very nourishing dish, and, served with cream, delicious.

Rice griddle cakes are also very nice for breakfast, and fried mush, when the weather is cool enough, will be very palatable with strips of bacon.

This is the best time of the year for oranges, and the children should have them every morning for breakfast. They like them better, as a general thing, than grapefruit.

Strawberries are wholesome for breakfast. Give the children stewed rhubarb.

INDIAN RIVER MAN FORTUNATE TO ESCAPE SERIOUS INJURY

Indian River, June 10.—Things are lively around Indian River just now. A gang of fifty-two Italians under Mr. Jas. Frose of Norwood are busy "lifting" track. They will be here two weeks. The bridge gang are also here putting in culverts while another gang, who are loading gravel in O'Leary's pit have boarding cars here. Then Mr. D. Butters of Havelock has some men peeling poles for the C.P.R. A line of boarding cars reaches all down one siding and the evening stillness is filled with Italian jabber and the music of the concertina.

Mr. J E. Devlin met with what might have been a serious accident in driving to Peterboro last Saturday. When near the city he met a motorcycle and the horse became frightened. He got out and took the animal by the head. It reared up and plunging forward threw Mr. Devlin squeezing him against a picket fence and tramping him under foot. He was able to drive on to Peterboro where he had his injuries attended to. Mr Devlin is able to be around but feels rather shaken up.

Mr. James Thompson, M.L.A., was in the village. He reports prospects bright

TWO DEATHS AT OSHKIGMONG

Special Correspondence.

Oshkigmong, June 10.—There have been two deaths here during recent date. Isaac Johnson, an aged resident of this reserve died Saturday morning of last week, age about eighty and a little child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Taylor died Monday night, aged eighteen months.

Mr James Blaker of Alderville is here visiting his aunt Mrs. Peter McCue.

Miss Laura Shilling of Rama is here visiting for a few days.

The new teachers and officers in the Sunday School took their respective positions last Sunday afternoon in a fitting manner.

The nominations of officers for the ensuing year took place here last Monday night and the candidates stand as follows:

Secretary—Alfred McCue, without opposition

Caretaker—James McCue, David Jacobs and Henry Taylor.

Constable—George H. Taylor, without opposition.

Organist—Miss Daisy Whetung, Miss Lovenia Whetung.

Bushranger—George Taylor, John W. Jacobs.

Treasurer—George Johnson, without opposition.

Mr. Ryerson Whetung will move into his new house in a few days.

Swede Is Arrested.

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 10.—As a result of the death of Was Grinchuk, a Swede, from injuries of a nature to excite suspicion, another Swede, who was his companion when he was hurt, is being held here by the police pending an inquest by Coroner Campbell yesterday afternoon.

Grinchuk was found lying beside the tracks of the Canadian Pacific Railway about a mile and a half west of this point early yesterday morning and died while he was being taken to the hospital here. There is only one wound on his body. His companion said that the man was struck by a freight train while he was walking on the tracks.

The police believe that the wound came from some other cause.

Power Rights Withdrawn.

ALBANY, N.Y., June 10.—The repeal by the 1913 Legislature of an act granting certain water rights along the St. Lawrence river to the Long Sault Development Co. was yesterday held by the Court of Appeals to be effective. The company was organized in 1907.

Cry of the Idle.

I'm sick to distraction of scheming,
Of building success in the air,
Of lengthy and profitless dreaming
That getteth a fellow nowhere.
Of plans for success that look dizzy
Before from the earth they take wing.
I want to strike out and get busy
And have some results on the string.

My poor, tired brain is rheumatic
With visions that never produce,
Fate whispers in language emphatic
To know, if it may, what's the use.
The castles in Spain that are founded
Or other things quite as unreal
Will never draw interest compounded
Or get me the price of a meal.

The years of my youth I have wasted
In thinking how things should be done,
Success leaving thus all untasted
As wreaths in the moonlight were spun.
I own they were long on attraction
Could they but be harnessed or led,
But now I am looking for action,
As in the beginning I said.

Then give me an ax or a hammer,
A shovel, a hoe or a spade.
Oh, list to my pitiful clamor
For work at most any old trade!
Success—I would capture and singe her
With most uncontrollable speed.
Oh, give me a job full of ginger
And watch me proceed to proceed!

Dano-Swedish Tunnel.

Denmark and Sweden are busy with plans for a channel tunnel between the two countries. The greatest depth at which the tunnel will run will be about 107 feet, and it is estimated that the undertaking can be completed in five years at a cost of about $25,000,000. The tunnel will be worked by electricity, and, curiously enough, will have to be driven through the same kind of stratum, grey chalk, as would the tunnel between England and France.

BUSH FIRES IN NORTH

Most in Districts Previously Burned

Canadian Press Despatch.

Haileybury, June 11.—Hot weather and high winds of the past few days have caused bush fires to spring up again mostly in districts previously burned over. Flames can be seen from almost any point in this district. Fires are alarming but no damage has been done.

TROOPS FIRE ON STRIKERS

One is Killed and Several Are Wounded

Canadian Press Despatch.

Rome, June 11.—In spite of an order given last night for the cessation of the general strike a number of collisions occurred today between strikers and police and soldiers. Eleven strikers were wounded at Baria and at Naples the crowd attacked the military barracks whereupon the troops fired, killing one, mortally wounding three, and injuring seventeen others.

BOARD PASSES APPLICATION OF RADIAL RAILWAY

Canadian Press Despatch.

Toronto, June 11.—The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board this morning granted permission to the Peterboro Radial to make extensions to its system in Peterboro. The Company must file additional papers and other material before the Board's order can be acted upon.

REGISTER NOW

Any person who had to be registered at the last Parliamentary election will have to register now in order to receive his vote unless in the meantime he has acquired property of his own or is assessed as a tenant.

CHORAL SOCIETY

Mendelssohn's St. Paul to be Studied

At the first meeting of the Executive Committee held on Tuesday evening, it was decided that the Peterboro Choral Society would continue to study Oratorio next season. The work chosen is "Mendelssohn's St. Paul."

All who are familiar with this oratorio will welcome the opportunity of hearing it in Peterboro. The Society will run a moonlight excursion on Friday, July 10th. This will afford an opportunity for old and new members and friends to meet at least once during the summer months.

IS COMMITTED TO COBOURG JAIL

Finlander is Charged With Attempting to Take His Life

Karson, the Finlander, who made a sensational dive through the window of a G.T.R. passenger train on Monday evening near Garden Hill was committed to the Cobourg jail yesterday afternoon by Magistrate Doake, on the charge of attempted suicide.

Karson first appeared in this city on Monday when he inquired for work at the local Immigration Agents Office. His actions and story of how men were trying to murder him were told to the police. He asked them to take him and put him on the train for Port Hope. His request was granted. The result was that near Garden Hill he electrified the passengers by making a thrilling suicidal dive through the car window to the ditch some thirty feet down the bank.

He escaped serious injury except for a dislocated collar bone and a few bruises. Yesterday he was charged with attempted suicide.

Chief Thompson expressed his opinion this morning that the man was evidently insane. He was at a loss to account for his miraculous escape from being killed in the jump. P. C. Hayward attended the Court at Millbrook.

QUARTER OF A MILLION DOLLARS GOES UP IN SMOKE AT MIDLAND

Town is Threatened With Destruction and Big Stock in Manley Chew's Yards is Wiped Out by Fire, Which Starts From Spark From Sawdust Burner—One Hundred Men Out of Work.

MIDLAND, Ont., June 11.—About 4,000,000 feet of lumber was destroyed, entailing a loss of about $250,000, in a fire which broke out in the lumber yard of Manley Chew, ex-M.P., from a spark from the sawdust burner and consumed all but 300,000 feet about two o'clock yesterday afternoon. The mill and accessories were saved.

The town was saved from the fact that the wind was blowing strongly away from it. When the alarm was sounded the Midland brigade turned out and it was assisted by the fire-fighting apparatus of the Georgian Bay Ship Mills, which adjoin the lumber plant. These mills were able to turn the full force of several powerful pumps on the flames, and this aided materially in checking them, especially as they were working against the wind.

The timber trams, which run through the yards, were also consumed.

The burning lumber presented a wild spectacle as the flames shot up many feet in the air, and a big crowd was attracted to the vicinity of the conflagration. It just took two hours for the flames to eat their way against the wind and consume the big piles of lumber. To prevent the flames from spreading to the mill buildings the big force pumps of the ship mill were used to soak with water all inflammable material within reach of the sparks.

Much of the lumber destroyed had been ordered for delivery in Toronto, and it was said last night as a result of the fire several city firms are threatened with a lumber shortage for a few days.

The fire will throw one hundred men out of employment. This is the second fire in these yards in a year.

Big Fire at Hearst.

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 11.—Hearst, on the National Transcontinental Railway, west of Cochrane, had a serious fire Tuesday night. Ten stores and nine residences were destroyed. A light rain which started during the progress of the fire helped materially to check the spread of the flames.

Hearst is one of the new towns springing up along the G. T. P., and is the most northern outpost of organised communication in Ontario.

PUPILS OF MR. KENYON WERE SUCCESSFUL

1st. examination, Licentiate of Music, Senior Theory, Highest Grade Practical—Mr. George Kenyon.

Vocal, Junior, Theory and Practical—Miss Mae Davis, Contralto.

Piano, Junior, Practical, — Miss Mabel Penrose, Miss Edna Allin, Miss Olga Kenyon.

ANOTHER WAR IN PROSPECT ?

London Times Foreshadows Trouble Between Greece and Turkey

London, June 11.—The London Times foreshadows another war between Greece and Turkey. The Young Turks' policy has expelled all Greeks from Thrace and Asia Minor, and the Times thinks this is a prelude to a declaration of war by Turkey with the objects of reconquering Saloiki and reoccupying Macedonia.

WHAT NEXT ?

Attempt is Made to Blow up Coronation Chair

London, June 11.—An attempt was made this evening to blow up the coronation chair which has been in Westminster Abbey since twelve hundred and ninety-six. Authorities attribute the outrage to suffragettes.

MR. ROWELL AT NORTH BAY

Liberal Leader Addresses Meeting

NORTH BAY, Ont., June 11.—The Liberal leader's hasty tour of New Ontario was concluded here last night by a big meeting. The opera house was filled to the doors and many had to stand. The attendance was about two thousand. Mr. Rowell, after an exhausting trip from Port Arthur and a side trip to New Liskeard, was in good form and was well received.

He scored the Government for refusing to pay taxes on the vacant land held by the T. & N. O. Railway in northern towns, censured the timber policy, charged that the workmen's compensation act was inadequate, and dealt with the cost of the Government House and the unemployed labor question.

He also attacked the refusal of the Government to give the vote to married women, while giving the vote to corporations on money bylaws. Tax reform was advocated by Mr. Rowell in his address, and the reduction of the grant to rural schools was also criticized.

As to bilingual schools, he said there could be no ground for objection to the use of French in the schools if it would further the education of French-Canadian children.

Mr. Rowell also charged that the franchise was refused to married women at the behest of the liquor interests.

J. H. Marceau, the local Liberal candidate, expressed himself strongly in favor of the "abolish the bar" policy of his leader.

G. A. McGaughey was chairman and the speakers included A. J. Young, J. H. McCurry and Dr. Bedard, the last-named speaking in French, while the candidate spoke in both languages.

SHOP LICENSE TRANSFER.

The application of A. Elliott & Co. to transfer the shop liquor license to C. R. Nixon, was granted by the Board of License Commissioners last night.

REGULATIONS GOVERNING LIQUOR MUST NOT BE BROKEN

Minister of Militia Relieves Maojr Leonard from Command at Petawawa

Ottawa, June 11.—A further investigation into the seizure of the so-called "temperance beer" at the Petawawa Camp a few days ago has caused the Minister of Militia to relieve Major Leonard from the command of the 6th Battery, Canadian Field Artillery, at London, Ontario. The investigation showed that in the "wet goods" confiscated from the London battery there were 384 unopened bottles of genuine ale with nearly 7 per cent. proof of alcohol. Other bottles contained what is known as temperance beer. When the seizure was first made it was thought that the whole consignment came within the latter category, but the analysis has shown quite a different result, and orders were wired to Petawawa to-night by the Adjutant-General, acting on Col. Hughes' instructions, to relieve Major Leonard of his command.

"I understand Major Leonard is a very competent officer," said the Minister last night, "but we have a regulation against liquor in the camps, and unless we carry it out there will be no discipline. I regret the necessity for action, but I repeat regulations must not be broken."

BILL TO AMEND IRISH HOME RULE MEASURE

Premier Asquith Announces in British Commons That he Will Act According to Promise

Canadian Press Despatch.

London, June 11.—Premier Asquith announced in the Commons to-day that he would introduce his promised bill to amend the Irish Home Rule Bill before any progress is made with the main measure by the House of Lords. The Unionists have thus won the day with their insistent demand that he should take this action. The new bill will probably be brought in about a week from next Monday.

MR. C. M. HAMILTON
the new President of the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities.

SYLVIA IS OUTWITTED

Is Captured on her way to See Mr. Asquith

DEMONSTRATION ENDS

LONDON, June 11. — Miss Sylvia Pankhurst was not even permitted to approach Westminster last night to interview Premier Asquith. The proposed visit to the Prime Minister was arranged for some days ago by Miss Pankhurst and other militant leaders, and it was decided Tuesday night that she should be carried shoulder-high in the procession, as she was not considered strong enough to bear the strain of what promised to be an arduous journey.

Before the procession had gone a mile Miss Pankhurst was arrested for the eighth time since she was sentenced to six months' imprisonment and conveyed to Holloway Jail.

The procession struggled on without a leader, but by the time it reached the Strand it had been dispersed by the police. Under the leadership of George Lansbury, former Socialist member of the House of Commons, a deputation of women proceeded to Parliament, where they were received by P. H. Illingworth, the chief Liberal whip, after having been rebuffed in all attempts to see the Premier.

The demonstration was organized with all the well-known cleverness of the suffragettes for dramatic effect. A crowd of 10,000 people gathered at 8 o'clock at the junction of Commercial road and High street, Whitechapel, where two processions, one from Bow and the other from Poplar, were to join about the same hour.

A procession was formed, but suddenly at a narrow place in the route the police arrested Miss Pankhurst and whisked her off to Holloway Jail.

There was little enthusiasm among the marchers, and the openly expressed hostility of the populace dampened the ardor of the demonstration, so that by the time it reached the Strand the police had little difficulty in dispersing it and preventing any reformation.

Mayor Buller in Toronto.

Mayor Buller left for Toronto this morning to represent this city at the meeting of the Ontario Railway Board, held at 11.30 a.m. in the Board's Chambers in the Parliament Buildings. The matter before the Board in which the city was interested was the extension of the Peterboro Radial Railway.

THEY DIDN'T KNOW HIM.

A peculiar case turned up at the registration court on Water Street this morning, when Mr. R. J. Devey asked to be put on the list of registered voters. As a citizen for over nine years, it would seem that the name should be spelled correctly, but Mr. Devey stated that any returning officer would be justified in rejecting a voter whose name appears as Devy, instead of Devey.

Mr. Devey was duly sworn, and the name correctly spelled will appear on the list of registered voters, unless again someone blunders.

REDISTRIBUTION BILL IS REPORTED IN COMMONS

After Arduous Labor Joint Committee of the Two Parties Presents Rearrangement of Federal Seats.

Ontario Has 82 Members, Losing Four—Government Yields Russell and Gives Two Seats to United Counties.

OTTAWA, June 11.—The redistribution bill was given its first reading in the Commons last evening. As the committee which had charge of the bill brought in an unanimous report, it is likely that the discussion on the second reading of the measure to-day will not be prolonged.

In the next House there will be 234 members, an increase over the present House of 13. Quebec which provides the unit of representation, will have 65 members, Ontario will have 82, losing 4; New Brunswick 11, losing 2; Nova Scotia 16, losing 2; Prince Edward Island 3, losing 1; Manitoba 15, gaining 5; Saskatchewan 16, gaining 6; Alberta 12, gaining 5; British Columbia 13, gaining 6; Yukon 1, as formerly.

The difficulty which has existed for some time regarding Russell and Richmond, N.S., has been overcome by the Government yielding Russell, which they proposed to eliminate and giving two members to South Cape Breton and Richmond as united counties.

The Ontario seats are: Brant, Brantford, Carleton, Dufferin, Dundas, Durham, Frontenac, Glengarry and Stormont, Grenville, Haldimand, Halton, Kent, Leeds, including Brockville, Lennox and Addington, Lanark, Lincoln, Norfolk, Northumberland (exclusive of Monaghan South), Peel, Prescott, Prince Edward, Russell, Victoria and Haliburton, Welland, Wentworth, Muskoka, Nipissing, Timiskaming, Parry Sound, Kingston, London, Ottawa (two members), East Algoma, West Algoma, North Bruce, South Bruce, East Elgin, West Elgin, North Essex, South Essex, Fort William and Rainy River, Port Arthur and Kenora, North Grey, Southeast Grey, East Hastings, West Hastings, North Huron, South Huron, East Lambton, West Lambton, East Middlesex, West Middlesex, North Ontario, South Ontario, North Oxford, South Oxford, North Perth, South Perth, East Peterboro, West Peterboro, North Renfrew, South Renfrew, East Simcoe, North Simcoe, South Simcoe, Centre Toronto, East Toronto, West Toronto, North Toronto, South Toronto, Parkdale, East York, North York, South York, West York, North Waterloo, South Waterloo, North Wellington, South Wellington, East Hamilton, West Hamilton.

Vaudreuil and Soulanges are united, Chateauguay and Huntingdon are united. Rimouski is divided into Mimouski and Nantanck, Charlevoix and Montmorency are united; Quebec is re-divided into Quebec East, West and South; Port Neuf is wiped out, Laval and Two Mountains are united, the Island of Montreal will have 12 members, Wright and Labelle are divided into three electoral districts, and St. Hyacinthe and Rouville are united.

The changes in Nova Scotia are: Digby and Annapolis are joined, Antigonish and Guysboro are united, North Cape Breton and Victoria are united, South Cape Breton and Richmond are united, but return two members, Clare is taken out of Digby and goes with Yarmouth.

In New Brunswick the changes are: Restigouche and Madawaska are united, Victoria and Carleton are united, York and Sunbury are united, Kings and Queens are united and will be called "Royal." The city and counties of St. John and Albert will return two members.

In Prince Edward Islands Kings and Queens will return one member each.

The Manitoba seats will be Brandon, Dauphin, Lisgar, Macdonald, Marquette, Neepawa, Nelson, Portage La Prairie, Provencher, Selkirk, Souris, Springfield and Winnipeg with three seats.

British Columbia seats will be Comox, Alberni, East Kootenay, West Kootenay, Nanaimo, New Westminster, Westminster district, Vancouver Centre, Burrard, Vancouver South, Skeena, Victoria City, Cariboo, Yale.

Saskatchewan constituencies are: Assiniboia, Qu'Appelle, Weyburn, Regina, Swift Current, Maple Creek, Kindersley, Lost Mountain, Humboldt, Saltcoats, Mackenzie, Prince Albert, Saskatoon, Battleford, North Battleford, Moose Jaw.

Alberta seats are: Battle River, Bow River, East Calgary, West Calgary, East Edmonton, West Edmonton, Lethbridge, MacLeod, Medicine Hat, Red Deer, Strathcona, Victoria

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING FOR JAS. THOMPSON

H. B. Cowan, Representing Temperance Association, Appears on Platform and Talks Kingston Penitentiary Only to be Corrected.

A large and wildly enthusiastic meeting was held in the interests of James Thompson at Grady's Hall last evening when almost every Conservative and many Liberal voters of the district turned out. H. B. Cowan spoke on behalf of the Temperance Association and some of his statements showed an absolute lack of knowledge of facts.

Mr. Armstrong was present in the interests of the Liberal candidate and was granted permission to state his views. He began by referring to the excellent character of Mr. Thompson, and admitted that he was known as the most independent thinker to the right of Mr. Speaker. After his election he had always taken the proper stand that he was a representative of the whole constituency, not of one party only.

Mr. Armstrong touched on the building of the new Government House, which, by the way, Mr. Thompson pointed out had cost the people of Ontario not one cent. He also mentioned the rural school grant and took occasion to compliment the Whitney Government on its policy in doing everything possible to keep the teachers from leaving Ontario. He claimed that the Government had itself violated the liquor laws because a few disguised shipments had found their way over the government railroad. He also said no political party could tamper with a moral question and live, but succeeded in proving that the Liberals in office had been the only government to trifle with the liquor question.

Mr. H. B. Cowan also spoke in the interests of Mr. Anderson. He caused a laugh by inadvertently mentioning that he had come out to speak for local option. He attempted to show what the Liberal party had done for temperance but was not very successful. He made the claim that clubs existed only under the Whitney Government. The three-fifths clause was also condemned. However, in conclusion, he practically admitted its value by asking them to roll up a big majority in favour of abolishing the bar in order to show that the people were really behind the law.

Mr. Cowan also attacked the Provincial Government for its inhuman and cruel treatment of the prisoners at Kingston Penitentiary but was very much surprised when he found out that the penitentiary was under the control of the Dominion Government and that the conditions which existed had been the result of the Laurier administration. The Borden Government investigated and conditions had been remedied.

The Candidate.

Mr. Thompson first explained why the election was being held at the present time, and showed that it was in the interests of the farmer. The Whitney Government was appealing to the people not on future promises but on its record. He referred to the list of questions submitted by Mr. Cowan and declared that even Mr. Rowell could not sign the list as it went far beyond his acknowledged policy. The speaker believed that as a representative of a free people, chosen by an exceptionally large convention, and elected to sit in Parliament, he should not be tied hand and foot. He did not wish to be elected without the confidence of the people, and had every reason to believe he possessed that confidence. He had never yet found it necessary to apologize for any action since he had been chosen to represent the constituency.

Mr. Thompson showed that local option had been in force from the confederation of the Provinces but had been dropped from the statute books by the Liberal Government in 1877, and later re-introduced. During the last 15 years of Liberal Government, 83 municipalities had carried local option; 34 of these by-laws being upset on technicalities or by Councils refusing to give them the third reading, and 22 had repealed it, leaving only 27 under local option in Dec., 1904 Of these 26 were townships and the other was West Toronto where the time was not yet up for a re-vote.

He traced the record of the Mowat, Hardy and Ross Governments, which went much further than Mr. Rowell and promised total prohibition, using this promise merely as a means of retaining power, but putting none of their promises into effect. Temperance sentiment had been just as strong in those days as now, but the local option by-laws had been a failure because of their non-enforcement by the Government. Now there were 500 municipalities under local option, and all were a success.

At the present session a couple of opposition members had attacked the Whitney Government for non-enforcement, but had been themselves discredited. Did not Mr. Rowell himself in 1905 appeal to the elect-

DR. GRANT BACK IN HARNESS

Home Missions and Social Service Under His Guidance

WOODSTOCK, June 11.—Dr. Andrew S. Grant, superintendent of home missions and chairman of the finance board, accepted the position of general superintendent of the amalgamated boards of home missions and social service and evangelism at yesterday afternoon's session of the Presbyterian assembly. Later he also accepted the chairmanship of the finance board for the year 1914-15.

Shortly after the session opened yesterday afternoon, Dr. Murdoch Mackenzie, convenor of the special committee appointed by the moderator to confer with Dr. Grant, reported he had been unable to secure a promise from Dr. Grant to reconsider the matter. He submitted a recommendation advising the assembly to accept the resignation.

On behalf of the home mission board Dr. Mackenzie then submitted a resolution requesting Dr. Grant on account of the important works he has initiated to remain as head of the board, but Dr. Grant declined the appointment.

Rev. R. J. Wilson, Vancouver, then moved that Dr. Grant be appointed as general superintendent of the amalgamated boards of home missions and social service and evangelism, which motion was carried.

Dr. Grant was asked for his answer and taking the platform he said:

"I wish to tell you I accept your proposition with the understanding you put in the same yoke Dr. Shearer, and appoint Mr. Edmundson as my secretary."

On a motion of Dr. Wilson, Dr. Shearer was appointed Dr. Grant's team-mate in the work of the combined board, and the request of Dr. Shearer that Dr. McGregor and Rev. Mr. Robinson be appointed to their positions was concurred in. Dr. Grant's request was also granted.

The report of the board of finance was concluded and the budget for the year was fixed at $1,500,000.

The assembly finished its business before ten o'clock last night. In his closing speech the moderator stated that this assembly has established a record for expeditious work.

SENATE REJECTS

Postal Rates Bill Defeated in Upper House

OTTAWA, June 11.—By a vote of 28 to 13 the Senate yesterday rejected another Government bill. This was a measure designed to place under the control of the Postmaster-General and the Treasury Board the control of postal rates on newspapers and periodicals.

Senator Kerr, Toronto, moved an amendment to the bill as introduced by Hon. Mr. Lougheed, declaring that changes made in the rates on newspapers and periodicals should not go into effect until ratified by Parliament.

Mr. Lougheed announced that the Government would abandon the whole bill, which also affects salary increase to postoffice employes, should the amendment carry.

After the division had been taken and the bill amended it was sent back to the Commons.

MEETING AT GRAND TONIGHT

Balcony Will be Reserved for Ladies

The balcony of the Opera House has been reserved for the ladies, who wish to hear the Hon. James Duff, Minister of Agriculture, speak tonight in the interests of Mr. R. J. Soden, Conservative candidate for the Ontario Legislature.

TEMPERANCE EXECUTIVE HELD MEETING

While it is reasonable to expect not to find all the executive members of the City Temperance Association all of one mind, there is some evidence to indicate that the temperance issue continues to be made a political football, with those members inclined toward the Liberal party taking every advantage that is possible.

At least two members of the executive did not know of the decision to support the Liberal candidate until after the announcement was made. One member went to the meeting of the City Temperance Association executive last night without having had any voice in the matter, and another in the same position did not attend. The majority of the members of the executive present when the meeting convened were men who have always supported Liberal candidates.

One Liberal supporter insinuated that Mr. Soden had stolen the nomination. This was resented by A. B. Cunningham, the secretary.

WHITNEY REDEEMS PLEDGES.

WHEN THE CONSERVATIVES came into power they had certain pledges to redeem which related to education. They promised to secure efficiency in the public schools, where 80 per cent of the children get all their education. They also agreed to break up the school book ring which had exacted high prices for inferior books, to place the Provincial University on a solid basis and to secure for teachers higher salaries, better training, and a right to be heard on educational subjects.

Every one of these promises has been kept. The courses of study in both high and public schools have been revised and carefully adapted to the necessities of the different parts of the Province. Large sums have been spent to improve and enlarge the equipment of both high and public schools, better text books have been supplied at lower prices than ever obtained in the province before. The different universities have been helped by large grants of money which have been the main factors in their wonderful devlopment. Besides, teachers are much better paid, and better trained for the high calling in which they are engaged. In a large number of schools the salaries are now double what they were when Premier Whitney first came into power. The result has been that Ontario takes the leading place among the provinces for education, and this has been due to the splendid policy of the Whitney administration. Previous to 1904, education languished, teachers were poorly paid, and not well trained, so that Ontario was leaning towards a decadent standard for her growing citizens. This policy, due to Liberal inefficiency, was arrested, and what benefits have since accrued are the result of Conservative rule.

THE NEED FOR A DIVORCE COURT.

EVERY YEAR the need for a proper divorce court becomes more apparent. It has been customary to regard the old lads of the Senate as having a mortgage on all those revolting details of domestic unhappiness with which they regale themselves on dull days. They must make a full inquiry into them. The petitioners must appear in person, even if they have to come all the way from British Columbia; must be represented by counsel and pay the enormous cost of bringing witnesses to tell unprintable yarns to the fathers in the Upper Chambers. The result is that a divorce costs several thousands of dollars and can only be obtained by a rich man.

The question as to whether divorces should be granted at all is one aside from the present case. Divorces are granted by the Senate. Legally, therefore, divorce is recognized as right under the circumstances prescribed by law. The same view prevails in England. Divorce in Canada need not be made easier to obtain by having the present law placed where it can be properly administered, that is, the grounds on which divorce could be granted need not be extended. In fact, they would doubtless be restricted a little, if there existed a properly constituted divorce tribunal.

A recent case shows how futile, unsatisfactory, even unjust, the present procedure is. When the vote of the divorce committee was taken on the case only 17 out of 64 voted, and it was carried by one of a majority, whereas the Senate had carried the bill two to one in favour of divorce. The matter came up in the House of Commons and nearly everybody knew nothing whatever about the case. Questions of order arose which had no real bearing on the case as to whether a divorce would serve the ends of justice as prescribed by law, and the upshot was that the divorce was not granted.

So long as divorce is granted at all, the present procedure is only a travesty on the administration of law. If we are going to recognize divorce in any degree, let us do so with some regard for fairness in administering it, and, so long as marriage is allowed to be loosely contracted, it seems impossible to eliminate entirely the legal unbinding of contracts, to say the least, unwisely made.

BRITAIN'S POWER IN FINANCE.

OF ENGLISH MONEY there is invested in Brazil $390,000,000, Germany being next with $85,000,000, and the United States with $30,000,000. English investments in Uruguay, $300,000,000; German $3,000,000; American, $1,000,000. English money invested in the Argentine Republic, $1,600,000,000; German, $120,000,000; American, $15,000,000. English money in Venezuela, $55,000,000; German, $21,000,000; American, $3,000,000.

From these figures one can get a partial conception of the powers of Great Britain in the world of finance. Thus her investments in South America alone surpass those of all other countries, and her loans in other parts of the world, notably Canada, Southern Asia and South Africa, are very large. The British navy is great, but Britain's wealth is no less imposing, and in the matter of war, another country has to reckon with Britain's wealth as well as with her navy. As far as Germany is concerned, it is straining every resource of that country to keep up the pace in the struggle for dreadnoughts, and while the same burden is felt in the United Kingdom, Britain's loaning power is still unsurpassed and unapproached.

DEATH OF SIR WM. O. R. ANSON.

The death of Sir Wm. Anson at Oxford, England, recently, removes from the sphere of human activities one of the best minds in England. Sir Wm. Anson was one of the highest legal authorities in the Empire and was a descendant of the famous admiral of that name, who circumnavigated the world. He was a Unionist member of Parliament for Oxford without a break since 1899, vice-chancellor of the University of Oxford in 1898-9, and parliamentary secretary to the Board of Education 1902-05. Sir William's age was 71.

CRITICISM SHOULD BE WITHHELD.

THE LONDON TIMES makes a timely protest against the notion that the St. Lawrence route is unduly dangerous. Criticism of this nature should be withheld at least until after the findings of the investigation into the Empress disaster are made known. Although many appear to blame the Storstadt or its captain for the disaster, doubtless due to Captain Kendall's statement, it is more than likely that the catastrophe was a pure accident. A pure accident where some essential detail was not provided and which was apparently not needed until such conditions happened as surrounded the collision, can occur any place. That is only another way of stating the limitations of man. We cannot foresee all that will or may happen under certain circumstances.

We must be prepared for accidents, no matter where we are, because always at some point the human factor fails. It may be at a railway switch, where an overworked man or one who is too weak for the position, fails to turn the switch through weariness. It may happen on a bridge where some workman forgot to drive a vital rivet. It may be a gun that was thought not to be loaded, a snowslide unprovided for, or an exposed electric wire. There are thousands of cases every year which are merely cases where the human factor fails. We try to profit by these cases, to prevent their repetition, but after all, we can only try. Had Captain Kendall kept the Empress moving ahead perhaps the collision would not have occurred. Had the Storstadt stopped as the Empress did, the accident might have been avoided. But this was what they did not do, and it is always so in pure accidents. These facts do not militate against the navigation of the St. Lawrence at all. For the present that waterway is as safe as any, because a pure accident can happen any place.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

THREE of the five largest electrical companies in the world are in the United States, which controls probably 65 per cent. of the world's electrical business. The total business of the five companies amounted in three last fiscal periods to almost $400,000,000, of which the three companies in the United States—General Electric, Western Electric Co. and Westinghouse Electric—did $28,000,000, and their two largest competitors—the Allgemeine Electricitats Gesellschaft and the Siemens & Halske Co., located in Germany—did $170,000,000.

CITIZENS of Peterborough should keep in mind the big meeting in the Opera House this evening. This meeting is being held in the interests of Mr. R. J. Soden, the Conservative candidate for the Ontario House. Ladies are cordially invited to attend, and the balcony has been reserved for them. Whether you are Conservative or Liberal, come out and hear the speeches which will be well worth hearing.

Steaks and Stakes.

Ottawa Citizen.

Meat-prices in Canada in 1913 reached the highest level known. At this rate, soon very few of us will have a stake in the country.

A New Way of Looking at It.

Ottawa Citizen (Con.)

Col. Sam Hughes declares that he is puzzled at the very idea of anyone desiring to carry a rifle to divine service. It really is rather inconsistent, come to think of it, but the chances are that it hasn't occurred to most people in that light just yet.

Rowell is a Politician.

Toronto Mail and Empire.

The Opposition leader's failure to show anything wrong with the policies and measures of the Government is excused by one of his newspapers. "Mr. Rowell," it says, "is not opposing so much as he is proposing." And the people will attend to the disposing.

The Wise Preacher Will Think Twice.

Montreal Gazette.

Some people in Toronto are objecting that Protestant ministers are using their pulpits as places from which to address political arguments to their hearers. When Catholic priests in Quebec did a like sort of thing much ado was made over the matter, and there was talk of tyranny and undue influence, and protest, and even lawsuits. The principle behind the clerical action was the same in each case. The circumstances may not greatly affect it. The wise preacher will think long before he decides to mix political matters with his greater message.

Protecting the Public.

Canadian Courier.

Manitoba has the proud distinction of being the only province in the Dominion in which the Calgary wild-cat oil stocks cannot legally be sold. Under the "Sales of Shares" Act, every company selling shares, stocks or bonds must first get a certificate from Judge Robson. He has refused to grant any certificates except to companies that have genuine wells and are sound financially.

This is a splendid safeguard for the Manitoba investor. There should be a similar law in every province to protect the innocent purchaser of stocks. If there had been such legislation in Ontario, the British Columbia mining boom many years ago and other mining booms of more recent date would not have left so much ruin in their trail.

The government that incorporates a company, of which the stock is to be sold to the public, has an inherent duty imposed upon it to see that the public is not robbed. This will not limit investment. It will increase it by eliminating wild-cat speculation.

ON HOLIDAYS

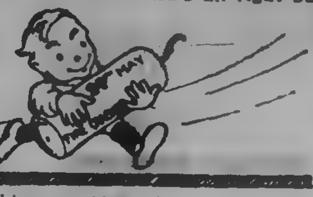
A holiday is a leetle break in the monotiny of life, a time when we leave the buzzin' machinery of business behind, ferget that we air mere money-earnin' atoms and live natural.

Livin' natural, I take it, is doin' what we best dinged please with the time at our disposal. And you can't convince me that livin' ten hours a day, cooped up in a stuffy office and luggin' your cares home with you nights is livin' life exactly as she should be lived.



Work's all right but in this present century we're overdoin' the stunt.

Trouble is we ferget to be fair to ourselves. The man who made the most perfect marine enjine the world has known believed in lettin' that enjine cool down and rest fer six hours, but he never thort of himself needin' a rest so he kept right on workin' and watchin' and studyin' till natur' rebelled. His enjine outlived him.

You and me have every right to put our best licks behind anythin' we undertake to do but we have no right to let that thing outlive us.

We need more recreation. A boy with a big firecracker and the anticipation of a twenty-fourth celebration in his mind is a bigger institution than you believe him to be because he represents a big slice of pure joy, and joy is one of life's wuthwhile things. This world needs more boys, more firecrackers.

Honest.

A story is told on a young man who was married recently to the daughter of a wealthy merchant. The bridegroom did not have a cent, but he made up for lack of wealth in honesty. He was so very honest that he would not even prevaricate in the marriage ceremony.

He was repeating what the minister read, "With all my worldly goods I thee endow."

"With all thy worldly goods I me endow," repeated the young man. Maybe it was a slip of the tongue, still it would be hard for honesty to go much further.

Men's Evening Clothes.

The masculine dress suit, if not beautiful, is democratic. It puts all men at a social function on a level with one another and saves them from the bitter rivalry of dress. You never find a man dejected and bad tempered because the fellow sitting opposite has a better tailor than his or has been able to spend more money upon his dress tie or shirt. The vanity of male youth must express itself in socks or his ordinary attire. The democratic dress suit is sacred.

HOME LIFE

By Walt Mason

Man builds a large and stately home, and freely spends his coin for ornaments from Greece and Rome, and art work from Des Moines. He wants a home to daze the crowd that, rubbering, goes by, a home of which he may be proud until he comes to die. And, having built his stately shack, whose cornice scrapes the stars, he lets it idle stand, slack, and lives in motor cars. In winter, to some southern clime, you see him gayly flee, and in the good old summertime he hikes off to the sea. The cobwebs gather on the walls that once were span and spick, and in the noble, arching halls the dust's three inches thick. To one who's learned the dizzy chase, a home seems flat and stale; he only needs it as a place where he can get his mail. The home life, as we know it, jars the rich men and the swells; they have their homes in motor cars, and yachts and big hotels. The gorgeous palaces they build, with minarets and domes, and with the spoils of Athens filled, are anything but homes. Our home life's in the humble cots where cheerful workmen dwell, who cultivate their garden plots, whose healthy children yell.

"It wasn't my fault," was all he could say.

"You haven't told father, have you?"

"No. He wasn't in the mood for such a pleasing revelation. I hope you've thought about leaving for St. Louis tonight. It's now imperative that you go."

"I thought about it, dear, but I can't go. What would I say to father?"

Wright was on the point of again urging her to leave Belmont when he heard the faint cries of newsboys far down the street. Nearer and nearer came the boys. Louder and louder were their cries. Street sales in Belmont were so small that the little urchins who sold papers to chance customers were never very noisy. An unusual clamor on their part betokened some extraordinary piece of news. Their shouts at last began to attract the attention of others in the room. Kerr, Kendall and Hayes looked at Wright questioningly. Then, as they began to distinguish the cries of one boy in advance of the others, the three men walked hastily to the window and looked out on the street. Everyone was rushing for a paper, or else standing with the sheet in his hand staring at the first page with its big black type.

Recovering himself suddenly, Wr- tried to talk to Gloria to drown the noise, but it was too late.

"What is that noise? What are they shouting for?" she asked. "Listen." She put her hand on his arm as a signal to say nothing while she tried to hear what the boys were saying.

"Extry Extry! Get a News! All about the grafters! Extry! Read the big steal! Full account o' the railroad grab! Big men and boodlers in combine! Extry! Extry!"

It was now a flood of sound as the boys came under the window.

"What's it all about?" the girl asked.

"That's nothing, only a crowd of newsboys raising a racket. Gloria, listen to me. We must get away from here. Even if you're happy in Belmont, I'm not. Won't you do this for me? Let's get away from this office and talk it over."

She shook her head, and refused to move.

"Gloria, you must do as I say without question. Just this once, please."

Both turned at this instant, as did the others, startled by a hubbub in the outer office. Suddenly the door was burst open violently by young Jim Winthrow, the Banner's political reporter. He rushed breathlessly into the room, flourishing a copy of the Belmont News. Following him came Williams with a look of amazement on his face as he read the headlines of the copy of the paper he had.

"Judge Gilbert! Judge Gilbert!" gasped the reporter, with eyes for no one else. "Have you seen the News? Big story 'bout the belt line railway and the 'lection! Gimme the facts so I can show the News up."

"Let me see your paper."

"Here it is—with big headlines."

Wright knew better than anyone else in the room what was in the paper. What was written there was not for Gloria's eyes to see, nor for her ears to hear.

"You must go, Gloria. Don't stay for this; I'll drive you to Locust Lawn."

He was almost out of the room with her when something the reporter said caused her to stop.

"The News says David Kerr is back of it," exclaimed Winthrow, holding up the paper for Judge Gilbert to see, "and that it's the biggest steal in the history of Belmont."

"What's that?" Kerr demanded, coming forward.

"I didn't see you, Mr. Kerr," the reporter apologized, "but here it is on the front page."

"Come, Gloria," Wright pleaded with her.

"I can't go yet."

Beside her stood Williams, still engaged in reading the flaring headlines of the paper he had brought into the room with him. She seized his paper from him and began to read the startling words.

"It's an infamous lie!" shouted Gilbert, crushing in his hands the paper he had been scanning. "Dr. Hayes, will you please escort Miss Gloria and Mrs. Hayes to their carriage?"

"Stop!" commanded Gloria. The hum of indignation sweeping over the room was stilled. All turned to the daughter of David Kerr. "Is this true?"

"What?" asked Gilbert.

"What the paper says?" She held up the paper, her hands trembling. Then she began to read: "If the party now in power wins, Belmont will surely be sold to the merciless stock-yards terminal trust. The deal, which means millions for the unscrupulous promoters and nothing for Belmont, has been engineered by that king of underhand manipulators, one no less unscrupulous than the very men to whom he would sell his town, David Kerr!"

There was horror in her tones and she held the paper from her as a thing unclean.

"Is this true?" she demanded imperiously.

"Not a word of it," Judge Gilbert was quick to answer.

"Not you." She turned to David Kerr. "Father, is it true?"

The boss of Belmont looked like some wounded wild animal brought to bay. He gazed with speechless rage at Joe Wright, and then looked at his daughter. She stood with arm outstretched to him, a mute but eloquent appeal for a denial. The big man shook himself, as if calling forth all his strength for a final effort, and straightened himself to his full height. Looking her squarely in the eye he replied firmly:

"No, Gloria, it ain't true."

The sigh she gave as her arm dropped to her side seemed to be a prayer of thanksgiving that he had come through the ordeal unscathed. She knew he would, but she wanted the words of denial from his own lips. Her next order showed every one that she was the daughter of David Kerr.

"Then punish the man who published the lie."

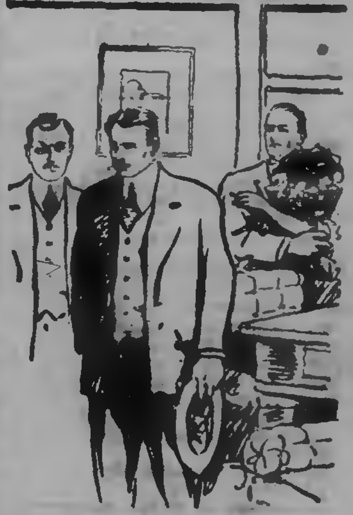
Wright's heart seemed to stop beating as he heard the words that had in them all the finality of a funeral bell.

Kerr had his own reasons for wishing to minimize the matter. Joe Wright he would willingly, gladly have sacrificed, but he did not know how it would react on Gloria. He could find means to make the newspaper man suffer without Gloria being cognizant of the fact.

"That's just Western politics." The boss tried to pass it off lightly. "Don't let that bother you."

"He must be punished, I say." Her indignation knew no bounds. "Would you let it go unchallenged that I am the daughter of such a man?"

Kerr was aroused by her spirited manner. It would be necessary, he saw, for him to carry it through to the end.



Walked Out of the Room.

"Suppose it was Joe Wright?" he asked.

The occasion was too serious for a smile, but in her heart she laughed away the suggestion. She wanted to show her contempt for a man who through a newspaper would utter such lies, and she therefore replied:

"That can't be. He isn't that kind of a man. But if he did, I would still say—"

"It is Joe Wright," Kerr roared.

All leaned forward to hear what the girl would say.

"Then I would still say, 'Punish Joe Wright.'"

From Wright's lips there burst forth one word:

"Gloria!"

He came a step toward her, and she turned to him with an assuring smile.

"I don't believe it, Joe." Again she addressed her father and with fine scorn declared, "It's a lie. He couldn't do it. You don't know him as I do." Turning once more to the man she loved, she said proudly, "Say it's a lie, Joe."

The two stood gazing at each other, utterly oblivious of everything else in the world. In her eyes there was nothing of doubt. She put into her look all the love and confidence she had promised would always be his. With Wright it was far otherwise. No matter what he said, the fact could not be kept from her. She would investigate. At the top of his editorial page that day were the words, "Owned and edited by Joseph Wright." He had just sworn that he would be the champion of the people of Belmont, and here at his first trial he was quailing under the eyes of the woman he loved. With a wrench he tore himself away from his dear desire to save her from pain and answered huskily:

"You don't understand."

"You!" she cried in an agony of despair as she realized he was confessing.

HAD TO STOP WORK FROM THE PAIN

Suffered Ten Years Until "Fruit-a-tives" Cured Him

ST. THOMAS, ONT., May 22nd, 1913.

"I was troubled for ten years with the most distressing Constipation and Indigestion of the worst form.

No one could have been worse with these troubles than I was for this long time.

The pain from Indigestion was so severe that many times, I have had to stop work and lie down until the acute spasms passed away.

I took a lot of medicine—in fact, I guess I took about everything that was advertised—and gave them all a fair test—but got no relief. About a year ago, however, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives". I am mighty glad I did so for they seem to be made exactly for me.

They gave results in a very short time and I am now free from these diseases and enjoying perfect health.

My wife also used "Fruit-a-tives" and we both think they are the best medicine ever made."

CULINARY HINTS.

The sandwich with a rich filling does not require butter.

Small scraps of bread can be toasted in a corn popper.

To peel tomatoes without scalding, rub them backward with the blunt end of a knife.

In selecting beef, the pieces which are well mottled with fat will be found the richest and juiciest.

For the roast of cold lamb course, try serving an egg salad, sprinkled with minced mint leaves.

When purchasing a roast of veal have the butcher lard it with salt pork. This will make the meat juicy instead of being dry, and it will have a fine flavor that can be had in no other way.

PLANNING MEALS.

They Should Be Well Balanced as to Food Values.

Remember that the food you eat is the only thing that keeps you alive, for your body is like a fire—always going out, and food keeps this fire burning. Food that does not keep you well and make you strong is not good food for you. But the same food may be the proper kind for your neighbor, who is less active.

Each person should eat enough food to keep the muscles strong, keep the body warm, keep the blood in good order and give the desire to work.

Strength foods are lean meat, milk, eggs and cereals. These are the most nutritious.

Heating foods are butter, fat meat, sugar and cereals.

Fattening foods are cereals, sugar, milk, butter and any fats.

The blood is kept clean by vegetables, fruit and water.

Most of these foods furnish several things for our bodies. Cereals, for instance, make muscles, warmth and fat.

The average family needs about equal quantities of muscle making food and fat making food and three and one-half times that amount in food that produces the desire to work.

Menus based on the suggestions given with vegetables and fruits or simple puddings can be made quite appetizing. Let the main dish for breakfast be a cereal, with milk or cream, and sugar for the children, bread or toast, coffee for the grownups and cocoa shells for the children.

For dinner plan one substantial dish of meat or some other muscle maker, such as beans, lentils, peas, macaroni and cheese, rice with cheese and brown gravy, eggs or fish; one starchy vegetable, such as rice or potatoes, and two or three times a week a fresh vegetable and a pudding or a fruit dessert.

For supper a very simple meal, consisting of one main dish, bread in some form, tea or coffee and milk for the children is best.

COLORING RUCHING.

A Simple Way of Tinting Laces and Delicate Fabrics.

To color ruching to match the blouse fold the ruching with edges together and dip it in a solution of oil paint thinned with gasoline, being sure there is no danger of fire. Smooth and work the paint into a liquid, adding the gasoline until the tint exactly matches the waist. Gasoline runs in silk or any fabric, so in a moment the ruching will be a beautiful tint; a moment of shaking in the wind and it is dry and quite lovely.

Lace and ribbons, even kid gloves, may thus be tinted, as well as feathers. Light straw hats may be brushed with the tint and changed to almost any desired color. Hand painted lace may be brushed with paints so thinned, and results will be charming. The raised parts of the lace may be made any color, while the base may be tinted as was the ruching mentioned above. Care must be observed to have an even tint in the bath.

Be sure never to use gasoline in a room where there is fire or a light. Much better to do the work out of doors.

Culinary Notes

Italian Polenta.

Polenta is a favorite dish with the Italians. It is said to be very nourishing. To make it take one pint of well cooked cornmeal mush, add one tablespoonful of butter, two tablespoonfuls grated cheese and one beaten egg. Beat for two minutes; then pour into an oiled bread pan and set away to cool. When cold slice in half inch slices and place in layers in a buttered baking dish, sprinkle each layer with grated cheese, dot with bits of butter, or use olive oil. Bake in a slow oven till the cheese melts and turns crisp and brown, coating over the polenta.

A Casserole Economy.

It is almost a necessity in modern cooking to have a casserole, but many find them expensive. Especially are casseroles expensive if the care of them is left to inexperienced persons who may crack them, when the value of the casserole is naught. An economist has discovered that you can buy instead of the expensive casserole a crock with a cover that is not expensive at all and it serves every purpose of the casserole. It will break, of course, but one can afford to break a good many before they will cost as much as a single casserole.

Chafing Dish Omelet.

Beat the eggs lightly, six being used if it is to be a large omelet, and add to them green onions and some chopped parsley, with two tablespoonfuls of water and at the last moment a little salt. Put into the chafing dish a little butter and when hot put in the eggs. Roll the omelet with a knife as it sets and do not turn it over, but push and roll it; then slide on a hot dish and pour melted butter over it. The chafing dish is better than gas, as it is possible to get it a much richer brown without burning.

When Cooking Bacon.

If bacon is cooked on a rack or wire toaster in the broiling oven of the gas stove, with the oven door open, the bacon will be much nicer than when fried, and there will be no smoke in the room. If the door of the broiling oven be left open when cooking any meat there will be no smoke in the kitchen.

A Bright Saucepan.

When you have occasion to use a bright saucepan or kettle over a smoky fire put a little grease over the bright part. Then if you will wash it in hot water the pan is as bright as ever, as the grease prevents the smoke from blackening the metal.

For Cake Bakers.

Many people melt the butter and then mix it with the sugar in cakemaking. This makes the cake heavy. Instead of this, put the sugar in a double boiler and let it get warm. In this way it creams the butter nicely and does not melt it.

To prevent candles from dripping when they are lighted, put them in the ice box close to the ice for about 20 minutes before lighting. They will give no trouble.

THE SUMMER FAD FOR SHEER MATERIALS.

The season has developed a fad for sheer materials that make many a costume about as airy and as dainty as could be wished. Yellow is the summery coloring of this afternoon frock, developed in Madame Butterfly marquisette, embroidered and scalloped with the apron tunic effect that is ultra smart. In the blouse the collars are a feature, for one can hardly have too many collars now—the soft rolling one and the standing frill. With the costume is worn a Watteau hat trimmed with yellow ribbon and yellow embroidered silk gloves.

If you have good white silk gloves which have turned yellow, soak them in clear, strong coffee, and you will have a fresh-looking tan pair instead.

THEY WANT GUNS

Montreal Catholics Go in Force to Upset Hughes' Ruling

OTTAWA, June 11.—Asking that the regulation of the Militia Department in respect to prohibiting the participation of regiments carrying rifles in church parades be changed in order that the 65th Regiment of Montreal may take part in and present arms to the Host in the Corpus Christi procession next Sunday, a Montreal delegation yesterday afternoon waited upon the Prime Minister.

It consisted of Sir Alexander Lacoste, ex-Mayor Guerin, Dr. Kennedy, Clarence Smith, Edward Kennedy, F. J. Bisaillon, K.C., F. De Salesbastien, D. O. Lesperance, M.P., Albert Sevigny, M.P., and Paul Lamarche, M.P., and was accompanied by Hon. Messrs. Doherty, Pelletier, Nantel and Coderre.

They claimed that since 1887 the privilege of attending the Corpus Christi procession has been accorded French regiments by a special rule from England.

The Prime Minister said the matter would be taken up at once with the Minister of Militia.

To remove rust from steel, cover it with sweet oil and let it remain covered for a day; then rub it with a lump of fresh lime, and it will polish in the ordinary way.

U. S. Interference Unwarranted.

PARIS, June 11.—A news agency despatch from Athens says that Geo. Williams, American Minister to Greece, has informed his diplomatic colleagues in a circular note that his Government authorizes him to go to Albania and Epirus to enquire into the situation there, in the interest of peace and goodwill among all races and all parties.

The news agency adds that this action "amazes the diplomatic corps, who regard it as inadmissible intervention by the United States into Albanian affairs."

The State Department at Washington says Williams has had no instructions to do as reported.

LOSS OF LIFE UNCERTAIN.

One Report Is That 125 Fishermen May Have Drowned.

CHATHAM, N.B., June 11. — Conflicting reports made it impossible yesterday to determine definitely how many fishing smacks and lives have been lost in the storm which swept the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Chaleur Bay and the Straits of Northumberland on Friday.

One report received yesterday placed the number of dead at 125.

Advices from Caraquet said that 19 lives were said to have been lost. One vessel was missing and nothing was known of the fate of the crews of two vessels reported ashore on Pokesudie Island.

The vessels that suffered from the gale were small schooners. Nearly every craft was manned only by members of a single family, with the father in command and three or four sons or other relatives composing the crew.

Furs Found In Woods.

TORONTO, June 11.—Despite numerous attempts to drive him out of the country and to end his life by means of knives and other weapons, Provincial Constable James Edwards, of White River, is still very much alive. Only two weeks ago he had the Hudson Bay Co. fined $16,000 for buying furs out of season and yesterday he journey to Missanable and found 181 beaver skins, and 14 otter skins cached in the bush. The total find was worth about $3,500 and the officer lost no time in shipping the furs towards Toronto.

GOVERNMENT HAS HELPED THE CITY

Public Ownership One of Whitney Government's Planks

His Worship Mayor Buller, in speaking to a Review scribe this morning expressed himself as an ardent supporter of the Whitney Government and a firm believer in their methods. His Worship spoke not of his personal feelings, but rather the feelings the city as a whole should have. The Whitney Government has fathered the idea of public ownership, which has played a very important part in the work of the City Dads during the past few years.

Mayor Buller, with the interests of Peterboro uppermost in his mind, is very hopeful that the riding will support the Conservative members and assist in returning the Government. The idea of radial connections in this section of the country is only in its infancy, but the Whitney party is guiding it along carefully and should be allowed to have it materialize. Unquestionably it would mean a big thing for the city of Peterboro.

125 Exquisite Summer Dresses at Prices That Are Wonderfully Low

QUALITY and STYLE are not sacrificed in these dainty Summer Dresses. They are Manufacturers' Samples, that is the only reason of the extremely low prices prevailing on them; many of them are marked at one-third of the regular prices. They are representative of the highest ideals of the dress designers art, and suitable for the innumerable functions of the Summer Season. These Dresses are executed in all the most popular fabrics; cool, summery effects that will win your admiration at first sight; plain, corded, shadow and figured Crepes, Ratines and Kate Greenaways; these are all well represented. The styles are really bewitching, featuring the peplum, coatee, tunic, minaret and flare effects, whilst the sleeves have the Raglan, drop shoulder and butterfly effects. See these Dresses in our Ready-to-Wear Department—the styles are quite exclusive to this store.

TOO MUCH SPEED BY AUTOS IN BUSY SECTION TO SUIT MAYOR BULLER WHO WILL SEE THE CHIEF

His Worship Mayor Buller caused some of the auto owners in the Board of Works to gasp last evening when he stated that according to his ideas the autoists of this city use too much speed, and the result will be a fatality some of these days for which the police department will get the blame. He thought the police should have a motorcycle with which to follow the speeders and bring them to court.

"I think that autos shouldn't go any faster than four miles an hour," was the slam Alderman Stratton handed out. "It's all right," Mayor Buller replied; "but the limit is ten miles on the main streets and some of the drivers are going thirty miles."

Needless to say the majority of the Board looked toward His Worship with a have-a-heart look. Alderman Green stated that the Ontario Government set the limit at fifteen and the "ten mile an hour touch" was something local. Alderman Duffus expressed himself in sympathy with the Mayor's idea of autos travelling at a slower rate of speed, and suggested that Mayor Buller speak to Police Chief Thompson about the matter. His Worship assented.

PRESENTATION TO MR. WM. COWIE

Has Spent Thirty Years as Binder at The Examiner

Mr. Wm. Cowie, who for many years was in charge of the bookbinding department of the Examiner, recently resigned from that position, and his fellow employees and members of the firm got together yesterday and told him he was a good fellow, and were sorry to see him go, and presented to him the following address, and a club bag and other gifts expressive of their friendship and good will.

The Address.

Dear Mr. Cowie:

The employees of the Examiner are sorry on our own account to hear that you intend retiring from the employment of the Examiner after a faithful service of thirty years. Not only we ourselves, but thousands of the patrons of the Examiner, know how faithful and effective that service has been, as expressed in the splendid work that has passed through your hands to theirs. In one sense yours has been a service to literature—possibly no man in Canada has made more books than you have done, and certainly no man has made them better.

Your business as a binder has not only made strong the ties between the Examiner and the public, but added to your professional work. Your personal relations [illegible] your fellow employees have made binding ties between us that we now see severed with the greatest regret, and we hope that you will also share this regret.

We have learned to esteem and respect you, and it is no mere form of politeness to say that we are deeply sorry to have you go from amongst us. We are glad to know that you are to remain a citizen of Peterborough, where we hope you will spend many happy years of well earned rest.

In token of our good wishes, and in memory of old delightful associations, we ask your acceptance of these gifts, which carry with them our best wishes for your future happiness.

Mr. Cowie in a neat speech expressed his thanks and appreciation.

TO ATTEND CONVENTION.

From present indications about thirty members of the local Knights of Pythias will attend the monster convention of the Knights of Pythias to be held in St. Catharines on July 1st. A meeting will probably be called for discussion as to running an excursion to St. Catharines.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING

ors from the stump to return to power the Ross Government, which had violated all its temperance pledges? The speaker himself had not always thought so well of the three-fifths clause but on investigating conditions all over the country found it to be a wise thing. He read opinions of Chancellor Wallace, the Principal of Knox College, Sir Geo. Ross, Rev. Dr. Potts and others, that a majority vote on a prohibitory measure was not a wise law. The Whitney Government, however, had pledged itself that in case the people anywhere secured the Scott Act on a majority vote, it would enforce the law rigidly. Peterboro could declare prohibition under the Canada Temperance Act.

The Whitney Government has made forty-three amendments to the liquor law, while the Pioneer said the old Government persistently refused either to make amendments or enforce the law as it stood. The speaker also proved that the action of the alliance was wholly a political one. In North Grey, they even forced their support on a Liberal candidate, who several times refused it, because he had secured the support of the liquor interests.

He continued by showing that the aim of the Liberal party was to obscure all other issues. He mentioned what had been done and what had been proposed in the matter of good roads, the hydro-electric system, and the teaching of French in the bilingual schools. This latter was a most important question and must be settled immediately. The Whitney Government had taken a firm stand on this question and their hands should be upheld.

Mr. Thompson also exploded the argument that had been advanced that the separate schools had received money belonging to the public schools. The public schools had received the full amount of the $370,000 set aside for them, while the separate schools had failed to earn even the $30,000 allotted to them. The record of the public schools had been so good that it was seen $370,000 was not enough for them and the Government had taken steps to give each school the full amount of its grant without limit to the total amount.

Mr. C. E. Jamieson also spoke, his remarks concerning agricultural developments.

BOARD OF WORKS DEAL WITH ODDS AND ENDS

Mayor Buller Explains Why Paving Operations are Being Held up — Compliments by Way of a Change for Men on the Water Wagons

Notwithstanding the fact that the thermometer hovered up around the 90 mark, and that the circus was proving entertainment for over half the populace at the Exhibition Grounds, the Board of Works staged their little side show in the committee room of the city buildings last night and masticated a program of no unusual features. Chairman Alderman Duncan read a petition from residents on and around the corner of Bethune and Sherbrooke Streets complaining of the noise prevalent in and around the G. T. R. roundhouse. This question has been brought before the Council before, but as Superintendent Coyle also had a letter on the chairman's fyle asking permission to place the ducket situated on the corner of Sherbrooke and Bethune Streets, out on Bethune Street, thus affording the city better protection, both matters were left in abeyance and the City Clerk was instructed to write to Mr. Coyle and have him meet the Board of Works on the ground.

Must Give Notice.

City Engineer Parsons wielded the mallet a trifle energetically when he requested the Board to make some arrangement whereby all parties opening up the streets for the purpose of installing mains of gas, water or sewer or for telephone conduits or curbs should notify the City Engineer, and he would know where he was at when the city commenced any work. Just recently when providing the surface drain on Charlotte Street, they had no small difficulty trying to pass Aylmer Street, as several mains and conduits were encountered of which no trace had been kept. After a great deal of discussion, during which the idea of having a plan of all pipes and conduits made by the respective owners and forwarded to the City Engineer was brought out, Alderman Anderson moved that the City Engineer write the different utilities and notify them that they must notify him one week before, and accompany that notification with a plan and profile. They must also forward him a plan of former work. Alderman Green seconded the motion and it carried.

Sorry, But—

A gentleman named Richardson, of the Niagara Brand Spray Co., waited upon the Board and spoke a few words on a machine, sold by his company, which sprays trees with a mixture that does away with all pests. The mixture is contained in a 150 gallon tank and is operated similarly to watering carts. When requested the price of his machine and the Board received the cold rejoiner of $340.00, several sighs floated out on the evening air. "If we bought three, how much would they cost," mildly asked Alderman Stratton. The representative then could see that he had about as much chance to sell the Board a machine as the celluloid dog has to catch an asbestos cat running through Gehenna.

Sewers.

On recommendation of the Board of Health, the following sections of the city were placed on the next list of sewers: Bethune from Sherbrooke to Dalhousie; Cambridge from Elm to Cedar. Monaghan Road from Homewood Ave. to Waterfield.

Alderman Stratton wanted to know what had been done on the sewer connection for the De Laval Co. This matter cannot be touched till the sewerage disposal plant is provided, which is now being held up pending the decision of the Provincial Board of Health. City Engineer Parsons informed the Board that he expected to receive word this week.

Those Stand Pipes.

A communication was received from O'Connell and Corkery, barristers, on behalf of M. Pappas, requesting that the stand pipe in front of Mr. Pappas' residence be removed at once. Alderman Stratton moved that the Water Commission be given orders to have that pipe, as well as the one on the corner of Aylmer and Wolfe Streets and the one at Smith Street and Denistoun Ave., removed with the least possible delay. Seconded by Ald. McIntyre, the motion carried.

Neglect of C.P.R.

While the Board made the rounds of the city last week the members were a trifle peeved so and that the C.P.R. had not completed arrangements with the city re filling in both sides of the road at the point where the tracks cross the corner of Romaine Street and Monaghan Road. The matter was referred to the Legal Committee.

Why the Delay ?

Alderman Green tok the floor for a few minutes and requested that someone would inform him what was the cause of so much delay in the paving of the main thoroughfares. It was unfair to the business men and extremely dangerous to the property owners as the fire department were seriously handicapped. He didn't care to lay the blame on any one in particular but would like to know who was at fault. Mayor Buller and Alderman Duncan both explained that practically everyone connected with the work was to blame more or less. At present the paving contractors are held up for oil, used in making the asphaltic concrete. The explanation satisfied the Chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee but he remarked that in future the Board shouldn't allow near so many streets to be torn up at the same time.

Dangerous Corners.

Alderman Duffus brought two street corners in the south end to the notice of the Board. They were the corner of Albert and Park and the corner of Alfred and Chamberlain. These he thought were very dangerous and the danger could be lessened considerably at the latter, if a tree were removed. The City Engineer will look into the matter.

Carrie Nation's Men.

The men on the watering carts are dragged into every meeting of the Board but last night a few compliments were paid. Ald. Duffus and Green remarked on the good work of Mr. Blodget in the west ward and Alderman Saunders and Duncan reminded the Board that Mr. Collins in the South end was given utmost satisfaction. All over the city the men are doing their best and cannot handle any more streets unless more stand pipes are installed.

LAID AT REST

Attended by relatives and immediate friends, the funeral of the late Mossom M. Boyd of Bobcaygeon, who passed away in Philadelphia was held today from St. John's Anglican Church to the Little Lake Cemetery.

The remains arrived last evening in charge of Mr. W. C. T. Boyd brother of the deceased. They were placed in St. John's as was the wish of the late Mr. Boyd when a young man. The funeral ceremony was held at noon and was conducted by Canon Davidson, assisted by Dr. Symonds, of Christ Church Cathedral, Montreal, and the Rector of Bobcaygeon Anglican Church, Rev. Mr. Greeves.

The relatives and friends listened to a tribute full of sublimity and high in praise of the late Mr. Boyd by the clergy today.

Canon Davidson in a few informal remarks said that the event was not an ordinary one, the laying to rest, a man who in many respects was a factor and leader in the life of Central Ontario. And it might be said, he continued, a Prince had fallen in Israel and more truly said, a Prince among men had risen to wider and bigger and higher life and towards which his energies had directed. As a leader of the great enterprises, Mr. Boyd as a successful business man had never been mastered by his business, but had always been master of it.

He had not been prevented by business, to living a life full of riches and happiness, besides giving happiness broadcast to many people. He had devoted his magnificent abilities not to the mere getting of money, but doing big things in a big and splendid way, of which his princely hospitality was one indication. He lived a healthy life of strength and courage, optimism and good cheer, and would leave the remembrances as an inspiration to those who had been privileged to enjoy his friendship.

After the most impressive service ever conducted in St. John's was concluded the solemn cortege slowly wended its way to the Little Lake Cemetery where the earthly remains were laid to rest.

The attitude of the entire party evinced the manner in which the late Mr. Boyd was held. His charitable instincts and kindness were always prominent. He was an ardent church man and always supported the entire Bobcaygeon churches. He was also a large contributor to the People's Chimes which were rung. The pall bearers were, Messrs. Reeve A. E. Bottum, W. T. Comber, Chas. Stewart, William Hickson, Wm. Thurston and Wm. Moore al of Bobcaygeon and personal friends of the late Mr. Boyd during his entire business life.

Rev. Dr. Symonds and Mrs. Symonds of Montreal, Mrs. Boyd and daughters of Bobcaygeon, Messrs. William Irwin, J. D. Cameron, Manager of the Bank of Commerce, D. Henderson, and J. B. O'Brian of Toronto, and W. T. Comber of Bobcaygeon, J. D. Flavelle and Thos. T. Stewart of Lindsay, Rev. Walter Creighton of Bobcaygeon were outside attendants at the funeral besides the immediate relatives of the late Mr. Boyd who reside in this city. Mr. Donald McDonald of Bobcaygeon was also present.

FUNERAL OF LATE JOS. THORNDYKE TODAY

The funeral took place today to the fourth line, Cavan Cemetery, of the late Joseph Thorndyke, for many years a prominent resident of Millbrook. He passed away at Montreal, after a lingering illness from anemia.

The late Mr. Thorndyke was sixty years of age and he had been very prominent in municipal affairs in Cavan township. He was a brother of Mr. William Thorndyke, of Millbrook.

Plenty of Ginger in Week's Budget of News.

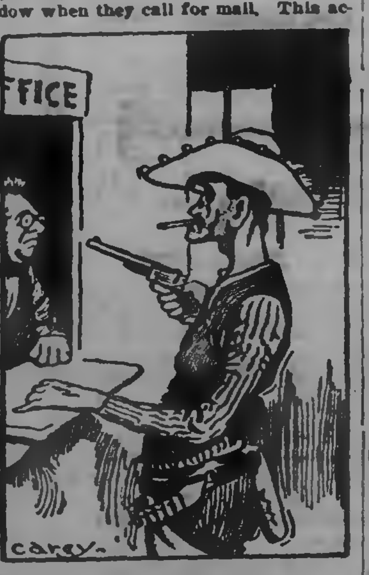
By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

IN a recent issue we referred to Dan Mahoney of the Blue Bells poker party as a citizen who would look well dangling at the end of a taut rope. Mr. Mahoney called upon us the other day and satisfied us that he had never been anything but a charitable, conscientious and law abiding man, and we therefore apologize. We would call attention to his large, attractive advertisement in another column.

There are about a dozen men in this town who still persist in poking their guns through the general delivery window when they call for mail. This action does not expedite delivery in the least, nor does it add to any man's reputation as a bad citizen. Such bluffs don't go with our staff of employees, and if some of the bluffers are carried off on a door some day they will find few sympathizers about town.



WHEN THEY CALL FOR THE MAIL.

We think that certain people are trying to make too much of the fact that a prescription put up at White's drug store caused the death of a Chinaman last week. Mr. White undoubtedly put up morphine for quinine, but as he has only been three months in the drug business it cannot be expected that he will avoid errors and dodge accidents.

Former Judge Truelove wants it publicly known that he is not the Colonel Truelove who was arrested at Bald Hill last week as an escaped convict from Joliet. While we are willing to give room to the statement we rather incline to the opinion that it is the other man who should have been worried about his reputation. If there is a man in Arizona who can outlie the judge or play a slicker game of deadbeat we should like to set our eyes on him.

We have been invited to deliver an address on "The Future of America" at Grass Valley next Wednesday evening and are all primed for it. In delivering the address we shall have two guns with us, and the critter who heaves a dead jack rabbit or a bad egg in our direction will feel something hot before he can enter into any explanations. We were bombarded off the platform once upon a time in that town, and we shall take no chances.

The trifling affair at the office of the stage company the other day does not deserve the dignity which certain people seem determined to give it. We called on Mr. Markham to have our annual pass renewed. He curtly refused to do so. Some hot words followed, and both started to draw at the same time. We were two seconds ahead of him, and as he looked into the muzzle of our gun he caved—that is, he said it would give him unalloyed pleasure to renew our pass and begged us to accept a gallon of whisky which he had just received from Kentucky. It was merely a little everyday incident and just about what has happened once a year for the last six years. Mr. Markham is somewhat impulsive and erratic, but after getting him under our gun he has always been amenable to argument.

Four weeks ago, when Major Buck started on a business trip to Salt Lake, we had a long talk with him and advised him to eradicate that peculiar habit of his which was almost certain to get him into trouble among strangers. The habit was that of spitting on the boots of any man he might be talking to. There was no idea of insult, but it was simply a habit. Here, in the Gulch, folks put up with it, but we felt sure some outsider might take it amiss. The major promised to keep an eye on his mouth, but old habits are not easily broken, and he had not been in Utah three days when he forgot himself and was filled full of lead. We knew the major was bound to be shot sooner or later.

"What does she do when she comes to see you?"

"Just talks right along regardless."

Go to It.

If you're bound to be a knocker,
To the limit work the thing.
Get a pair of boxing mittens
And make money in the ring.

Waves and Their Uses.

Waves are used on the ocean and in hair. They come in crests, breakers and curling irons. They are also put up in ether when they cannot be seen and you have to take the dealer's word that you are getting your money's worth.

Warm waves are common to both summer and winter. In summer they come just when, owing to the delightful weather and a careful perusal of the Old Farmers' Almanac, you have made all your arrangements to stay home. In winter, when you have filled your furnace with two or three tons of coal and turned on all the drafts until you have a bed of coals that would take a blue ribbon in hades and nobody can put it out but the fire department.

Waves are also seen in Wall street. Little lambs can be seen occasionally sitting upon their crests until another wave comes along and knocks them over.

Too Heavy.

"Sister is going to be married Tuesday, and you will have a new brother then, Mabel."

"Will the stork bring him?"

MODERN WONDERS.

THE days of miracles are gone,
Things now are run by rule.
The marvelous gives way to what
We learn about in school.
But still some modern miracles
Shine forth to give us hope—
Some mighty magic is performed
By just a cake of soap.

The people who in darkness sit
Or stand, as like as not,
Shut out from civilizing light
And on the earth a blot,
Will feel at least their self respect
Expand if in a tub
They tumble once or twice a week
And take a man size scrub.

The little arabs on the street,
As tough as kids are made,
Who seek out every lawless gang
And join in the parade,
Will feel that they are better boys,
Although they may not smile,
If some one turns the hose on them
And lets them soak awhile.

With scrubbing brush and pot of paint
The people and the place
May be transformed until they shine
And wear a different face.
The age of miracles is past,
But in a broader scope
We see if we will look around
The wonder work of soap.

Our Lofty Neighbor.

Mars is so near and yet so far. We can view it with the naked eye, and the astronomers can tell us that the water in its canals is running down hill, but what satisfaction can we find in that?

Even at close range Mars is about as useful as a neighbor as one that is separated from us by a spite fence. It is impossible to swap canal mules or cooking recipes with such a neighbor or to retail gossip over the clothesline.

True, we can wander around in the evenings and admire its loveliness, but we can do the same thing with an electric sign.

Mars is all right as far as we know but if it wants to get our baseball scores and the latest news of the New York divorce scandals the next time it draws near it should come within balloon hailing distance.

Easy to Find.

"The Boston girl reminds me of the north pole, she is so chilly."

"Yes, but the resemblance stops right there."

"Does it?"

"You bet. Any man can discover her who wears a good suit of clothes and makes a noise like culture."

Some Merit.

"I will publish you to the world."

"Will you, though?"

"Yes, I will."

"That is good. I thought from the way you talked a few minutes ago that you regarded me as unfit for publication."

What Then?

"You spend a lot of money foolishly."

"I guess I do."

"Leave it at home if you want to save it."

"But suppose my wife discovers it?"

His Trade.

"She is in love with the butcher."
"Does she admire him?"
"Thinks he is perfectly killing."

Tried To Rob Minister.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., June 11.—An attempt was made on Sunday night last, to "hold up" Rev. A. M. Hibly, pastor of Emmanuel R. E. Church of this city. He was crossing the overhead bridge, on North Front street, about 9.45 p.m., when two men stopped him and ordered him to "put up his hands." Instead he assumed a warlike posture with an umbrella, at the same time shouting for the police. The would-be thieves then ran away.

Dropped Wreath Where Mother Died.

LONDON, June 11.—(C. A. P. Cable.)—When the Cunarder Alaunia which reached Plymouth yesterday from Canada, passed the scene of the sinking of the Empress of Ireland, a service was conducted by the Salvation Army delegates on board. The passengers sang "Nearer My God to Thee" and Bandmaster Perryer, who lost his mother in the disaster, dropped a wreath over the spot.

A DANGEROUS JOB.

Doing "Stunts" For the "Movies" Requires Plenty of Courage.

Very few of the hundreds of thousands of people who attend the picture palace realise the great danger involved in acting for the films they witness in comfort.

The leader of the thrill-producers among the motion picture people on this continent is without doubt Rodman Law, the young man who jumps off a high bridge, scales the outside wall of a sky-scraper with his fingers and toes, and allows himself to be used as ballast for a sky-rocket.

Prominent, too, in motion picture acting is Miss Mary Fuller, who has a conspicuous record for daring "stunts"; some of her narrow escapes from death or serious injury are anything but pleasant. In fact, her adventures are decidedly thrilling. "Never, so long as I live," she relates, "will I forget the day I slid down a rope of bedclothes from a window seven stories above the ground.

"I had done many perilous things, but this was the most terrifying, because there was no intense dramatic action to take my mind off the danger. The directors simply asked me in a matter-of-fact way if I would slide down a rope from that height. I gasped for a moment, and then, fearing the thought of being a coward more than the perils of the feat, I closed my eyes and answered that I would.

As we started out to do the scene I began furtively to watch the buildings. That tall one, it must be eight or nine storeys high—I counted—it was only six! Heavens, I was to slide from a point higher than that building, dangling in space! I shuddered.

"Finally we came to the apartment house which had been chosen and were ushered up to a room on the seventh floor I was recognized when I stepped from the automobile, and the appearance of the long rope of bedclothes started the rumor that I was to do something extraordinary. By the time we had tested the rope and everything was ready, there was a crowd of curious people gaping upward at my window.

"The view from that window will live forever in my mind's eye — the rope was stretching downward to eternity — no — not eternity, but, worse still, a pavement of unyielding stone; the iron picket fence that surrounded the little areaway—I could feel the sharp points penetrating my poor body—the upturned faces, many of them already becoming anxious as the realization of what I was to do dawned upon them.

"I suddenly realized that if I remained in that window for another instant I would be panic-stricken and powerless to make the descent. I waved my hand to the director, shut my eyes, and swung out on the sill. I counted the windows as I passed them, not daring to look down. I had gone half way when the rope gave a little and my heart stopped as a vision of that picket fence flashed before me. But the rope held—would it hold until I reached the bottom?

"When I was about twenty feet from the ground the crowd began to cheer, but above the cheer I heard the noise of a tearing blanket.

"I shut my eyes again, but my hands seemed to rebel at further torture, and then I dropped.

"But it was only ten feet, and I was unhurt. Yes unhurt, if bleeding hands and a body that ached be called unhurt; but I had done it and I was happy."

In conversation don't overdo the capital "I." So many people do. There is nothing so tedious as to talk to a person who is everlastingly bringing herself into the conversation. "I do this," "I did that," and so on.

Try to be more general in your conversation, and leave the "I" out sometimes for a change.

BIFF, BANG, BIFF AND AWAY WENT THE OLD BALL GAME

Beavers Had on Their Batting Regalia and took Final Game By 8 to 1 --- Visitors Had Little Trouble in Solving Twisters of the Local Heavers

MR. K. LEE and his paid performers staged a one ring circus at Riverside yesterday afternoon before a large but somewhat anti-enthusiastic audience which gazed on in amazement as General Lee's warriors raced around the paths a la chariot race style. The final tally according to the kid who sticks 'em up on the score board was 8-1 in favor of the Queen City gentry. The famous added attraction in the form of a balloon ascension occurred along about the second and third acts when Mr. B. Sterling an otherwise land devotee aviated like a Beachey. Outside of the fun the visitors had at our expense there was little in the game to make one forget of the coming winter and the price of coal. On the other hand the Petes played sluggish ball at times, but it was an off day such as most teams run into.

Marty Killilea the Beaver's latest addition was very prominent. He had a ripping triple, a single and a theft of home. Frank Fox broke into the game at shortfield, King going to second and considering that Frank has occupied a seat on the bench for some period he did very well. Lee shifted his men. Trout was behind the pan and Moseley in right. Trouty displayed all his old pep and ability while Mr. Moseley committed a bare faced theft when he pulled Dal Stewart's poke in the fifth with two on. It was as neat a catch as has been seen here in some time. In the third the Beavers stole no less then three pillows.

The Petes got their lone tally in the ninth. Mully Miller pinch hitting for Tracey got a hit. Blount singled him along and Byrne drew a pass. A long sacrifice by Welsh sent Miller home with the only, measly, dingy, lonesome run scored by the Blountmen.

The Beavers unpacked their war clubs in the second much to the disappointment of Mr. Sterling. Killilea opened up the attack with a long triple to left center. Shultz sent him home with a single. Isaac flew out to King and the fans drew a sigh of relief. But the worst was yet to come. Loud, quietly singled along first base. Moseley hit one through second and Shultz scored. Loud was out at the plate trying to score on Auld's infield roller and Trout flew to Stewart. In the third Burrill got on. Ort singled and Killilea drew a pass. Shultz whiffed and Isaac drove one at King who forced Burrill at the plate but Ort scored when Kelly tried to double Isaac at first. Killilea then stole home and Isaac swiped second on the steal. Loud's single scored Isaac. In the fourth Trout and Burrill singled and Ort popped out. Killilea singled scoring Burrill and Trout. Killilea scored a moment later when Fox let Shultz' grounder get away from him. The Beavers were not dangerous afterwards.

Summary—three base hits, Killilea; two base hits, Fox; stolen bases, Burrill, Killilea, Isaac, 2, Loud; sacrifice fly, Welsh; first base on balls, off Sterling 2, off Tracey 1 off Auld 5; struck out by Auld 5, by Sterling 3, by Tracey 3; left on bases, Peterboro 12, Toronto 5; double play, Moseley to Auld, Killilea to Ort to Shultz; wild pitch, Sterling and Auld; hits off Sterling 6 in 3 innings, off Tracey, 4 in 6 innings. Time of game, 1.45. Umpire Miller.

A Few Notes.

Moseley's catch of Stewart's smash to deep right in the fifth was a neat piece of work. The clout had an extra base ticket attached to it.

Trout's error came in the first on a bad heave to first.

Killilea's boot came in the eighth on a bad heave to first.

Fox foozled two in the fourth one on a batted ball and the other on a throw.

King had a good day with four assists and two put outs and two hits.

Blount had two hits. Curley's batting average is on the elevator.

Knotty Lee was tickled over the work of his club as the visitors hit and ran like real ball players.

Yesterday's game was the first the Beavers had won since Johnny Murphy had his leg broken which was one week ago Tuesday. Killilea is filling Murphy's shoes in great style.

An unusual double was pulled in the fifth when Moseley grabbed Stewart's poke to right and doubled Welsh at first, the pitcher scoring the out.

Kelly had his usual wallop and shaped up in good style behind the pan although five thefts were registered by Toronto. Some of them were counted with men on third and Kell did not have every chance to show his whip.

GOLF

The following golf players will play against the Lindsay players in Lindsay tomorrow:

Messrs. W. C. Ackerman, E. B. Boswell, P. Campbell, C. H. Pennefather, W. G. Morrow, N. H. Campbell, A. F. Fervie, C. R. Cameron, Dr Gowan, Robert Neil, F. M. Dela Fosse, Sam Ray, W. Stratton, E. H. D. Hall, and Dr. Frederick.

The players are also reminded that the C.P.R. train for Lindsay leaves at 10.50. Owing to change in time it is advisable for players to return by G.T.R. unless they have motored.

Hank Dink's ball stadium is a mile outside the village. Hank was asked yesterday why the grounds were not located nearer the village. He replied that he guessed the grounds were located far out so that they'd be near the box office.

Ford

It's the most talked of car in the world. Sterling merit has sold it to over 530,000 people of every nation the world over. Ford service and guarantee are both included in the price. This means a lot to any auto buyer.

PETES WON AT HASTINGS

Defeated Hastings by 4-3 After Strong Finish

The Peterboro Lacrosse Club came to life yesterday and demonstrated the fact that they are in the game to stay when they swooped down on Hastings and carried home the honors of a 4-3 victory. Revenge was sweet and when the teams went at it after half time with Hastings in the lead 3-1 the locals started real lacrosse. After McCoy and Kelly had registered they settled down to a nice defence game until the final whistle.

Donovan and Kelly greatly improved the team play and afforded the rest of the team better chance to display their work. Halpin at centre dished up a nice article of lacrosse and is rapidly improving. The work of Fleming in goal saved the day on several occasions. For Hastings Bert Dodd on first defence had the most of the class and was the only man playing any kind of lacrosse in the last session.

The teams:—

| Hastings. | | Peterboro. |
|---|---|---|
| Scriver | goal | Fleming |
| Clapper | point | Dillon |
| Nesbitt | cover point | Thomas |
| B. Dodd | 1st def. | Mein |
| Armstrong | 2nd def. | Crough |
| L. Scriver | centre | Halpin |
| Tait | 1st home | Donovan |
| Doonan | 2nd home | Robertson |
| F. Dodd | out home | McCoy |
| H. Dodd | ins. home | Kelly |

ATHLETICS HERE TO FINISH WEEK

Doc Reisling Looks for Close League Race

Dr. Yates and his Hamilton crew arrived this morning for a three game series with the Petes. The Hamilton pilot thinks his team is good enough to be right up there fighting. He also thinks the league race will be close all the way, and points out that any club has a chance to jump out in front as the tail end club has not lost more than nine games more than the leaders. The Hamilton manager will work Dolan this afternoon with Red. Fisher behind the platter. Curley Blount has not decided who he will send in, but Schettler has the call. Belting will be out of the game for a few days, as he suffered a bad injury to his ankle in batting practice yesterday.

Doc Yates, speaking of Chas. King, the local second baseman recalled a pitching duel he had with King in 1909. King was hurling at that time for the Fairmount club in the Virginia State League. Dr. Yates was twirling for Uniontown. The Fairmont club had won the first series of the schedule and the Uniontown club the second. Seven games were played at the end of the season to decide the winner. In the last game of the seven, Yates and King opposed each other and Yates won.

Jack White, a former Pete, is with the Hams. Jack received a gold watch in Hamilton yesterday for cracking out the first homer on the Hamilton grounds.

COMMENT

As You Like It

The Petes could not stand the pink lemon and the whirr of circus day. Therefore Knotty Lee's Beavers scored a lop sided win. The local lads kept up their hitting though they did lose but the pokes did not come in bunches. It was just one of those games where the other fellow had the fortune to slam when slams meant runs. Sterling lacked control at all times and did not show the stuff he uncorked in his two previous starts.

Swartling the gigantic first sacker has been sent to Youngstown, Ohio, where he will undergo treatment with Bonesetter Reese the famous expert on sore wings, stiff bones, etc.

The Hamilton club which opens a three game series here today has secured a pitcher named Shears from Jersey City. I suppose he will cut some figure or will be expected to judging by his name. The club has also secured a shortfielder named McGroarty from Wilkesbarre.

Hank Day of Dink's Hollow and A. Nut editor of the Weekly Squirrel were visitors to the city yesterday. In the afternoon the notables took in the ball game and in the evening the circus. Hank said both things were enjoyable from a circus point of view.

There is to be a shake up in the Brantford club. Rube Deneau is after four new players. It will be remembered that Rube unloaded a carload of pre-season Mexican oratory about what his club would do to London. Judging by what London has done to the Brants the Rube probably realizes that talk is the cheapest thing on the market but it takes ball players to win games.

The Hamilton papers speak of Shaughnessey as driving his men. Drive or no drive "Shag" has proved himself a good pilot and his ideas prove that the leader has to fight if he expects his men to follow suit.

STUDY OF CHANCES

(The Canadian Courier.)

When people decide to gamble they should study the gambling game. The man who goes to the races and lays wagers on the horses should do some studying beforehand. He must know all about "straight," "place," "show," about how horses are "scratched," and why jockeys are "set down.". He must also understand a "dope sheet," in which the records of each horse are set down in comparable form. Otherwise he will be an easy victim of misunderstood circumstances.

So when men go out to invest in real estate, they should know the history of it and the elementary principles. Why did people buy farming land in the West at fifty dollars an acre which cannot be farmed to produce a return on more than thirty dollars an acre? Simply because they were ignorant. Why did people pay $200 apiece for Saskatoon town lots which are not worth $25 each? Simply because they did not know the history of town-growth, and all the elementary knowledge which is readily available about the growth of large centres.

Hence, when people go out to gamble in oil shares they should know that for every honest oil company there are fifty doubtful ones. So, also, when they gamble in fox-farm shares, there should know there are two companies which will fail for every one that will succeed. In oil investments the chances of success are about 100 to 1; and in mining about 25 to 1; and in fox-farming about 12 to 1. All these industries are money-makers, but the chances of picking a money making company are as stated.

This is not a protest against gambling. The people have always gambled and always will. It is a protest, however, against going into the gambling business without any knowledge of the elementary principles of the game. That is where the small gambler "falls down."

ACT NOW AND AVOID THE RUSH

Registration so far Has Been Very Light

The registration for the coming election is the lightest in the city's history, according to men who have followed elections for years. There seems to be a lack of interest on the part of those entitled to register and at the city hall chamber only eight names were placed on the list. Up till 2 o'clock to-day 13 more had been added, making a total of 21. In the police court chamber 17 registered yesterday and 14 to-day up until 2 o'clock. Many of those entitled are no doubt holding off until the last day, and if that course is pursued, some will be left off, as the registrars will not be able to handle the rush.

A WAR ON PARCEL POST

Lemieux Acts as Spokesman for Opponents

OTTAWA, June 11. — The Commons spent yesterday quietly over estimates of public works, fisheries, finance and labor. The wholesale voting of millions of dollars for public works of all kinds was the feature of the day.

In connection with the postoffice estimates, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux said the parcel post service so far was "more or less of a gold brick." It was doing little to bring producer and consumer together. A 6-pound parcel went from Ottawa to Montreal for 40c., and by express it went for 35c. In the United States it would go by parcel post for 10c. Eleven pounds was the limit here, while 20 pounds was the American limit. It was cheaper also to send a parcel from Toronto to Hong Kong than from Toronto to Vancouver. He urged a readjustment of the rate weight, and soon the system might be a success here as in other countries.

Hon. Mr. Pelletier said there had been an organized war on the parcel post all over the country. In all the Liberal papers, he said, the same article had appeared attacking the system, and the campaign had had some effect. The number of parcels, however, was steadily increasing, and the system would succeed in spite of all opposition. Mr. Pelletier said the department was considering the matter of not only delivering but also collecting parcels from the houses in all cities where there is a carrier delivery.

Hon. Mr. Lemieux asked if the question of Hindu immigration would be brought up at the Imperial Conference, but Mr. Borden could not give him any information on this point.

Special W.C.T.U. Meeting.

MAY LENGTHEN THE DUKE'S TERM

QUEBEC, June 11. — There is a rumor here that H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught may remain as Governor-General of Canada for another eighteen months, that is to say, until April of 1916, instead of leaving in October, when his present term as vice-regent will come to an end.

The rumor is said to have originated in the citadel, where the Governor-General's quarters are, but it is impossible of confirmation at this time, and if any announcement is to be made it will in all likelihood come from Ottawa, as it could hardly be given out here first. In view of the criticism of the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck, to succeed the duke, this latest report is meeting with credence in many quarters.

No one looks so ridiculous as the fellow who puts on a martyr's crown that does not fit.

Do not blame the landlord for the mattress. This will make hard feelings, also.

I BELIEVE IN THE ABOLITION OF THE BAR, AND THE SHOP AND CLUB LICENSE, AND WILL ALLOW NO PERSON TO DICTATE TO ME AS TO HOW I SHALL VOTE ON THESE MATTERS---R. J. Soden in His Address.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING IS STRONG FOR R. J. SODEN

Conservative Candidate Receives Splendid Reception as He Outlines His Platform Which is in Advance of Liberal Policy --- He Stands for Abolition of the Bar the Club and the Shop Licenses

Hon. Jas. Duff, Mr. Burnham, Mr. Peck and Mayor Buller Point to the Unparalleled Service That the Whitney Government Has Given the People

The Conservatives of West Peterborough have reason to feel renewed confidence from the enthusiastic nature of Mr. Soden's opening meeting. The speeches were all exceptionally good, and from now till the end of the contest a great deal of interest will be taken in the election. Mr. Soden spoke well and received a rousing reception, while the Minister of Agricuture captivated the house with his splendid outline of what the Government of Sir James Whitney has accomplished. Mr. Burnham, Mr. Peck, Mr. Kendry and Mayor Buller also made good speeches, and received an attentive hearing, while the Rev. Robt. Pogue and the Rev. R. G. Peever furnished some side play that aroused the meeting and brought out cheers for the Conservative candidate. With all the criticism and the seriousness of the tone of the meeting, good order was maintained and discussion confined to the issues involved.

"I hope this riding will give the largest majority we ever had," said Jas. Kendrey, president of the Liberal Conservative Convention who presided and gave a short, enthusiastic address in which he held that the record of the Government should commend itself to the electors of the riding. In answer to the Rowell policy, the speaker asked "Why should we abolish the bar and leave the bottle? As a member of the Liquor License Commission of Peterboro for a number of years, he had had a chance to see the harm done by the bottles and he wished to say out of his own experience that if you want to abolish the bar, you want to abolish the bottle also.

E. A. Peck, M.L.A.

E. A. Peck, M.L.A., the first speaker referred to his election as member of the riding and said he had tried to do his duty to the best of his ability. As for the present candidates, Mr. Soden and Mr. Gillespie were highly respected citizens; they were good business men and either would satisfactorily attend to the responsible duties before them. Unfortunately, Mr. Gillespie was not a follower of the "grand old man" whom we all revered and desired to see sustained in power.

As a result of the efforts of the Whitney Government, the receipts had been doubled and large sums had been rendered available for education, agriculture, hospitals, etc. Mr. Peck reviewed the results of the several elections since the entrance of the Whitney government, in which the government had been returned with large majorities.

"It is not possible," said the speaker," in view of the results, that this riding will do other than return Mr. Soden with at least the large majority you gave me."

Two Undertakings.

Dealing with two important undertakings, the Hydro Electric and the Workmen's Compensation Act, Mr. Peck proceeded to show how the Western Ontario municipalities had been benefitted through securing cheap lighting. The Hydro Electric Commission had done remarkable work. Figures showed that in lighting alone, seventeen municipalities served by Hydro Electric were able to save $1,000,000 in lighting last year as against the amounts they had to give under the old local system.

Mention was also made of the benefits Peterboro had received through the legislation which gave the city the right to expropriate the local company's system. At the last session, the bill had been perfected and he was pleased to realize that in a short time, the city will have attained a lighting system of its own, the power being supplied by the Commission. The city will then be placed in the same advantageous position as the cities of Western Ontario.

Compensation Act.

Dealing with the Workmen's Compensation Act, the speaker pointed out how difficult it was for a workman to secure compensation for injuries received. Under the present legislation, unless a man can prove that his employer or somebody under him was negligent, or the employee himself was negligent, he is not entitled to compensation. If he seeks to recover, there is a long delay and in the event of an award, the money is received in a lump sum.

Under the new act, in the event of a man being injured he receives compensation and that compensation is a fixed sum of 55 per cent. of his wages, paid in weekly or monthly instalments, for so long as he remains injured. There can be no legalities as the amount is arrived at by a commission.

Moreover instead of the compensation being paid directly by the employer, the different manufacturers of the same class are to be grouped and called upon to contribute to a fund and the injured man gets absolute security. The legislation is the best the Province could adopt.

"I am delighted to feel," said Mr. Peck in conclusion, "that I was enabled to assist, in my humble way, in the carrying out of that piece of legislation."

The Candidate.

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, said Mr. Soden, when the applause had subsided. Allow me to thank you for the large attendance with which you have favored me in the opening meeting of the present political contest in West Peterboro.

"I am particularly pleased," he said, with the attendance of the ladies here tonight. It shows that the interest of that portion of our population which always exercises its influence for the betterment of moral, social and political conditions in this Province has been aroused and that the ladies of the city of Peterboro are giving to a large extent their sympathy and co-operation to the very effective Government of Sir James Whitney and to my own candidature.

"I also wish to thank those male supporters of the party and of myself who have honored us with their attendance tonight, both in the body of the building and on the platform. I owe particular thanks to the gentlemen, Mr. Peck, the Honorable James Duff, Mr. Kendry, Mr. Burnham and Mayor Buller, who have volunteered to give their party and myself their support with voice and action in the contest upon which we have entered.

I feel that you would wish to hear from me more particularly regarding my own stand and the attitude of the Government on the much vexed question of temperance legislation. I purpose, therefore, to deal with this question at some length and in order to do so will be compelled to go into the particulars or the local conditions which affect it here in the riding of West Peterboro. For on this question each particular locality throughout the Province seems to be effected in its outlook by local conditions.

History of the Movement.

"Some short time ago, during the month of May, a convention of the Temperance League of the City and County of Peterborough was called to assemble in this city and decide on the course of action to be taken by them in the coming Provincial elections. The convention met and although I was unable to attend the morning session of that convention I did attend the session in the afternoon. I found assembled there men of both political parties, many of them earnest, sincere, single minded, on the question of how best to mitigate, or remove altogether, the evil of the liquor traffic. When I entered the convention I found that the chairman was about to put to the assembly a motion regarding the stand of the convention on this very important subject. Wishing to vote on this matter and vote intelligently so that it might not be charged that I had shirked my responsibility I asked that the resolution about to be put be read to the convention. This at first was objected to on the ground that it would take too long to read the motion. This objection, however, being overcome in a short time and the motion being read I found that the wording of it was such that it covered only the abolition of the bar and the club licenses and such other progressive legislation as might from time to time be brought up by the different parties in the Legislative Assembly at Toronto. I, therefore, asked why the shop licenses had been left out of the motion and was answered that the motion covered the policy. I then asked if I were to understand from that that the policy referred to was supposed to be the policy of the temperance party of the County of Peterborough or some other policy and stated that my understanding of the demands and aspirations of the temperance party, not only of this County and City, but of the whole Province of Ontario, were the total abolition of the bar, shop and club licenses, viz., of everything that came within Provincial jurisdiction, and I then moved an amendment to the motion about to be put to the effect that the motion instead of reading abolition of bar and club licenses and the furthering of all other progressive temperance legislation should read the abolition of bar, shop and club licenses. This amendment was strenuously objected to by some members of the convention, so strenuously contested in fact, that as the delegates contesting it rose to express their views I was forced to consider why the opposition came so strenuously since the amended motion covered only what all honest, sincere temperance advocates have taken as their standard of excellence in Provincial legislation.

"Seeking the cause I was forced to note one particular and that was this, that the delegates who oposed the amendment were in every instance of a different shading of politics to myself. So apparent did this become that I asked whether I were to understand that I was in a convention of temperance delegates who had met to discuss ways and means to attain the objects of temperance, or whether by any chance I had stumbled into a political caucus. Eventually the amendment was submitted to a vote and to the credit of that Temperance League be it said that it was carried with only three dissenting votes.

"During the morning session of the convention at which I was not present it would appear that my name was mentioned as a possible candidate for the nomination of the Conservative Party. One of the gentlemen at the convention, a Liberal by the way, who heard my name mentioned at once went to a friend of mine to assure him that if Soden received the nomination he would not be acceptable to the temperance party.

"This was told within an hour of the statement being made, and though the gentleman who made the statement now denies that he made it, my friend to whom he told it affirms his making it. I mention this matter not to find fault with honest temperance advocate, but simply to show that with some of the men who have been prominently identified with this movement locally there lies behind and beneath all their temperance professions a very deeply ingrained objection to the Conservative Party and a fixed conviction that temperance men can only exist within the Liberal party.

Following this convention came the convention for the choosing of a Conservative candidate. At that convention, after my nomination, I made the following statement:

> "There has entered into the politics of the Province of Ontario a question which is not a political question at all. It has been used too long as a football in party politics. It concerns a man and his conscience.
>
> "Personally I believe in the abolition of the bar, the shop and the club licenses and will allow no person to dictate to me as to how I shall vote on this matter."

This statement as made by me was and is an expression of my own beliefs on this question.

This, however, would not seem to satisfy some temperance people who claim that they had a right to demand of me a signed pledge which would leave me in the position of nothing more than a voting machine with no right to scrutinize or watch for pit falls which might be laid as they have been before by wily politicians, who under the guise of pretending to give to the temperance people true temperance measures have often given them measures which when they came to be worked out were found to be anything but in the interests of honest or permanent temperance reform. This letter made by these men I refused to sign for reasons which I propose to give you tonight, not because I had receded one hair breadth from the position which I had taken at the convention and which I stand by tonight, viz: this, the abolition of the bar, the shop and the club licenses. For this I stand and am prepared to be judged according to that standing. You will notice that this stand is in advance of the stand taken by Mr. Rowell inasmuch as his policy advocates only the abolition of the bar and club licenses and the leaving of shop license to be dealt with by a local option vote. (Applause.)

The Shop.

"To my mind the abolition of the shop is of the utmost importance even as when compared with the abolition of the bar and the club licenses surrounding its location. It sells liquor in packages, small, conveniently put up, easy of transportation without detection so that it may be conveyed with comparative security into territory already dry, no matter how alert may be the Government officials in endeavoring to maintain and enforce the law in such territory. What do we find is the complaint in villages such as Lakefield, in townships such as the Monaghans, Otonabee, Smith and the adjoining territory of West Peterboro? It is this, that the shop is the most deadly menace to the enforcement of the law in such districts, that it labels many districts which have been voted dry as wet districts, not from any lack of enforcement of the law, but because of the ease with which parties visiting centres where the shops are in existence are able to secrete and transport considerable quantities of liquor into these dry areas.

Again, what it the situation in the cities? The shop supplies in most cases, I will admit, unwillingly and unknowingly, yet not the less certainly, black listers with the liquor they are able to obtain. For instance, a man is placed on the black list and unable to procure liquor at the bar, but some unscrupulous person not on the list himself goes to a shop where he obtains a flask or bottle as the case may be. This unscrupulous person buys from the shop, the shop not having him on their list as a black lister supplies it as they are allowed to do according to law. This person takes the liquor away with him, secretly meets the man on the black list and together these men consume this liquor until the black lister becomes intoxicated and in many cases winds up in the courts. Had the unscrupulous person to obtain this liquor at the bar he must consume what he buys and as he buys it in the place in which he buys it, viz., at the bar. He cannot treat the black lister because the bar tender refuses to sell to a man on the black list and should he so do not only runs the risk of being fined but also if detected will certainly lose his license as a bartender. Hence, in the case of men who have no control over their appetites and who for the safety and protection of their families have been placed on the black list, I say most emphatically the shop is the most deadly menace to that man and to his family. Further, you need not take my word for this. Watch the records as shown at our own police court in the City of Peterboro where black listers have been accused of obtaining liquor and see if in the vast majority of cases the liquor was not obtained in the manner in which I claim, viz.: from the shop through other individuals. You will find that in nearly every case the man got drunk from a bottle and not from a bar.

The Sabbath Disturber.

Again, I claim that the shop is a worse disturber of the Sabbath home than is the bar. On Saturday night those who indulge too freely supply themselves with their liquor not from the bar or the club but from the shop. If you do not believe this you have only to use your own powers of observation on a Saturday evening when the time is drawing towards the hour of closing, viz.: towards 7 o'clock; or in your Sunday morning walk, if you happen to pass as I do and as you all do places where considerable wide strips of grass intervene between the pavement edge on the inner side and the boundary of the properties by which you pass cast your eye over these on a Sunday morning and count as you pass the number of empty bottles which you will find in say a length of half a block. Almost beside my own home there is a striking illustration of this and I myself have counted frequently from six to as many as nine empty bottles in the width of half a block. How did they get there? Those who bought them bought them at the shop. They were sold according to law, they were bought according to law. I am not complaining that the shops must have not keep the law. I wish to be absolutely fair in this matter. The buyer started out with his flask or bottle as the case may be between 7 o'clock and the hour for getting home. He consumed a portion of his own supply and possibly met with some of his friends who also had a supply of their own, the consequence being that he drank more than he was able conveniently to carry and finding this convenient place to rest on his way towards home lay him down as men in that condition will do, drank from his bottle during the night whenever he awoke and finally having finished, perhaps crept off home in the grey dawn of the morning, leaving the empty bottle behind him, crept home to sleep off the effects of the liquor and to leave his home during the whole Sabbath in a state of distress which otherwise it would not have been in.

R. J. SODEN, the Conservative Candidate.
He explained his position in regard to the temperance question and was heartily endorsed at his first meeting.

Had these men been compelled to buy their liquor at the bar the last drink they could have obtained would have been at 7 o'clock, and it is reasonable to supopse that they would have at least awakened considerably soberer if not altogether sober on the Sabbath morning.

"Nor is this the worst feature of the shop licenses. The shop is the supply depot for the women drinkers of the cities, towns and villages, whose numbers I regret to say are being lamentably increased year by year. Gentlemen, I am not making these statements unadvisedly. They are true. Absolutely. If you do not believe them investigate. Watch during the week and particularly again on the Saturday evening the shops of the cities and villages. Count, if you will, the number of women who seek the shop as their source of supply, and then answer me truthfully as to whether what I have said is not actual fact and not fiction.

"Some of you, I know, have already noticed the particulars I am drawing to your attention. Many of you have commented on them and many of you lamented them. What, let me ask you, can be more unhealthy, more depraving as regards the liquor traffic in every particular than this drinking that goes on among the wives and mothers of the cities and villages. The country, I believe, is comparatively, I may say almost entirely free from this which only tends to accentuate the point I am making, viz: the shop is the source of supply, and where the shop does not exist, as in the country, inebriate women are the exception and not the rule.

A Greater Menace to the Boy.

"Again, the shop is a greater menace to the boy than is the bar. This, perhaps, is not so well known, as it might be, but it is a fact nevertheless. Few boys learn to drink at the bar. Under the age of twenty-one it is much too difficult a task for a lad to procure liquor at a bar to be undertaken by many youths. The hotel men and their bartenders have to be exceptionally careful in this particular, as the law imposes a very severe penalty on sales to minors, and the law, at least under the Whitney administration, is carefully, rigidly and justly enforced. (Applause.)

"Why then, may I ask, is Mr. Rowell in his policy treating the shop so tenderly. Surely the facts that I have stated to you must have come under his observation. I do not wish for one moment to say Mr. Rowell is insincere. I do not know Mr. Rowell personally, but I do wish to say this, that it would appear from the fact of his leaving the shops out of his policy of abolition, as if he were either influenced by a lack of accurate knowledge as regards conditions within the Province, or else is influenced by some factor beyond his control, but within his own party.

"Would it not be just as easy in framing a policy to abolish the bar to at the same time include the shop? The same machinery, nay, I might almost say, less machinery than would be utilized in enforcing the law after the act of abolition had been passed would be utilized in enforcing the law after the act of abolition had been passed would suffice to insure the closing of the shops as well as the closing of the bars. In fact, if the shop be left, the closing of the bars and the clubs will be made much harder than otherwise would be the case for the reason that though the licensed bars in the hotels may be closed, yet with an open supply depot in the shape of a shop in the centre of, say, a city like Peterboro, it will afford ample material for persons not too scrupulous to open at other points unlicensed and illegitimate places of sale where they will dispense in smaller quantities the liquor which they will be able lawfully to acquire from the shop. Mark you, I am not speaking, and do not wish to be understood as speaking against the abolition of the bars and the club licenses. My statement, my beliefs, my standing on this question remain even as I stated them at the Conservative convention, viz.: I believe in the abolition of all three, but contend that to be effective, permanent and safe legislation for temperance men to support, the law should include all three. I therefore think that I may in justice ask the temperance people of this riding of West Peterboro, who through their delegates at the temperance convention voted for the measure that I advocated, why it is that some members insist so strenuously on having my signature to a statement other than the declaration which I made at the Conservative convention. They have not as yet presented to Mr. Rowell for his signature a similar statement, that they by their vote acknowledge to be in advance of Mr. Rowell's policy on the temperance question. As I understand it, temperance men stand for the most progressive temperance measures, at any rate that is my belife and that is my stand. I have not deviated, nor do I intend to deviate one hair breadth from the position I took at the Conservative convention on this matter; but I must insist on being at least a free agent in the conduct of my own beliefs. I must insist on this not only because that in pledging myself to vote thus, and thus, and thus, specificially, I not only would be forfeiting my own manhood, I would be forfeiting the right of my sincere temperance constituents to through me make sure that the best and farthest advanced temperance legislation obtainable would receive my support.

"I contend that the platform on this matter that I have adopted, viz.: the abolition of the bar and the shop and the club licenses, is the platform which temperance men consider most advanced. I have, therefore, a right if returned to Toronto, to test the sincerity of Mr. Rowell and his party on the question of whether they themselves believe this measure to be the best, and should I be returned, I will endeavor to see that Mr. Rowell and his party have an opportunity to say whether they stand for what the temperance people of this riding desire, viz: Abolition of the bar and the shop and the club licenses.

Delivering the Goods.

"It has been stated in certain quarters that I cannot deliver what I promise. Gentlemen, I do not pretend to be able to outvote the whole Legislative Assembly in Toronto. I have only one vote, and as yet very little influence, but I have this assurance from a Government that never yet broke a promise to the temperance people. This Government says: If you want these measures send us the men who favor them. To the extent of my own vote and of my own influence, if returned, I may work towards the end that we desire.

"How does the matter stand with my opponent. He has signed a statement in which he states that he is in favor of abolishing the shop. He has tide himself specifically to this item, that item and the other item. Does his signed statement correspond with the policy of his leader, who says that he is not in favor of abolishing the shop, but is in favor of abolishing bars and clubs? Seeing that Mr. Gillespie has chosen, perhaps unthinkingly, to outstrip his leader in this race, let me ask him if he would be prepared when his leader, Mr. Rowell, introduces his motion to abolish the bars and the club licenses, to rise in his (Mr. Gillespie's) place, and move an amendment to his leader's motion to the effect that the shops be included and abolished together with the bars and clubs?

Mr. Gillespie, perhaps, did not see that he would be called upon to do this if returned, yet there is no doubt seeing that he did sign for the abolition of shops as well as bars and club licenses, that it is his manifest duty if returned to move such an amendment if his leader should introduce a motion falling short of abolishing the whole three.

"Gentlemen, it is for you to judge which of us, Mr. Gillespie or myself, have taken in this matter the right

BUSINESS PLACES ARE DESTROYED AT TILBURY

Conflagration Starting in Skating Rink Probably by Spontaneous Combustion of Flax, Spreads Through Business District Causing a Loss of $100,000—About Half Insured.

TILBURY, June 12.—Tilbury was visited yesterday afternoon by one of the greatest fires in the history of the town.

About four o'clock the conflagration started in an annex of the skating rink, in which was stored flax, and it is thought the origin was spontaneous combustion. The loss, exclusive of a number of automobiles destroyed, is placed at $100,000. At one time it was thought that all the business section of the town was doomed, and messages were sent to Chatham and Essex for assistance to fight the fire. The Chatham contingent arrived at the C. P. R. station too late to render any aid, but the Essex Brigade, under command of Chief Samuel Smith, arrived here 30 throng in twenty-two minutes, and they helped materially in the fight. Tilbury will long remember the good work of the fire-fighters of Essex. The Bell Telephone sustained about $800 loss to poles and wire. The plucky operator, Miss Minnie Cowley, stuck to her post while many explosions were taking place in the blocks.

The losses were as follows: The skating rink, $5,000; contents of garage in rink, $4,000; P. Cottingham, blacksmith, $200; John Anderson, implement dealer, $4,000; Stewart Block, on building, $6,000, contents, $8,000; John Scrivens block, $8,000; John Magee's block, $5,000; Johnston block, $10,000; H. Sloan, $7,500; W. J. Scharp, $3,500; Irvine Wallace, $2,000; C. F. Ouellette, $1,000; John Kennedy, $500; Dr. Mills, $2,000; I. W. Norton, $900; R. Underwood, $2,000; Mrs. Clark, $1,000.

The insurance will aggregate a little over half the loss.

WHAT A LIBERAL PAPER HAS TO SAY OF MR. SODEN CONSERVATIVE CANDIDATE

(Midland Free Press)

Mr. R. J. Soden, an old Midland boy, has received the Conservative nomination for the riding of West Peterborough. We need hardly say that though opposed to us in political creed, we wish him success. Mr. Soden, while in Midland, was one of our most progressive citizens, and it was through him that the Canada Iron Furnace Co. was induced to locate its plant here. Always an ardent politician, he took an active part in all municipal and parliamentary affairs, and while a staunch Conservative at all times, he still made many friends among his opponents on account of the clean, fair methods which he always adopted in furthering the cause of his party.

He will make an energetic representative for any riding, and West Peterborough, if it elects him, at the coming election, will secure a clean, just and aggressive member, who, from our knowledge of him, will not allow any consideration to outweigh his convictions of what is right in all matters affecting the province.

Mr. Soden has made a clean-cut statement regarding his stand on the temperance question. He is even willing to go a little farther than the Rowell policy of abolish the bar. He is in favor of doing away with the shop and club license as well. It is up to the temperance people of this Province to stand together, regardless of politics, if they ever hope to rid Canada of its greatest curse.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, JUNE 12, 1914

THE MEETING IN THE OPERA HOUSE.

THE OPENING MEETING in the Opera House of Mr. Soden's campaign was an enthusiastic one and developments made it particularly interesting. Mr. Soden delivered a well thought out address and made his position on the temperance question and other issues clear, while the Hon. James Duff, spoke in vigorous, convincing periods, of the great work of the Whitney Government and the soundness of Conservative administration.

What lent colour to the proceedings was the part taken by two local ministers, the Rev. Robt. Pogue and the Rev. R. J. Peever. Mr. Pogue interrupted Mr. Soden, later took the platform, and was followed by Mr. Peever. They took exception to what the Hon. Mr. Duff said about clergymen in politics, and Mr. Peever questioned the presentation of what the Liberal and present Conservative Government had done in amendments to the liquor laws.

Whatever may be the private views of people in this regard, men of all parties must feel gratified that at least two ministers of Peterborough had the courage of their convictions. Their sincerity was not questioned, but, when they go on such a public platform, they must recognize the fact that others may sincerely differ from their point of view. They must expect the bickering that usually accompanies political discussion, and however right they regard their attitude, we hope that differences will lead to no bitterness and that no lurking resentment will arise because of their utterances. Since they believe in the rightness of their position, there is a tendency to be intolerant or blind. For the same reason, they introduce an attitude that is more or less foreign to party politics. Electoral contests are run as a game; both sides play the game; and when ministers take a part in discussions like these, they apparently do not recognize that the side they are speaking for is playing the game. We are a long way from an ideal discussion of political issues. Men still allow their passions and prejudices to influence them, and these must be considered and are utilized. Perhaps these two ministers would deprecate this condition, but it is one that exists nevertheless. If Conservatives question the supposed disinterested position of certain men in this election, as some recent facts give them reason to do so, they are practising party politics as they exist. That must be expected, and that is the principle reason why a minister is out of his element in a party discussion. No one will quarrel with Messrs. Peever and Pogue for having views of their own, for believing their view to be right or for even expressing them. That is their right as citizens and men, and they are to be commended for doing what they believe to be right. The practise of politics ought to be better for independent action. Personalities, we are glad to say, were wanting, and Mr. Peever maintained a difficult position with dignity, calmness and good sense. The opinion of individuals in this election must be respected, and the reverend gentlemen, though believing their position right, will not forget that in spite of the tricks of the game, there is at bottom an honest electorate, not all agreeing with them, and which is the only substantial hope of a higher practice of politics. We are content to leave to that element the judgment of Mr. Soden's position and of the administration of Sir James Whitney.

MR. SODEN IS A TEMPERANCE MAN.

A PARAGRAPH, which appeared in Wednesday's Review, excited the attention of a prominent Methodist minister of this city, and he felt that since it referred to the Hamilton Methodist Conference, the full text of the resolution should be given. It follows as he gave it:

> "The expression of the people of the Province at the polls and in Local Option contests, and on other occasions, clearly demonstrates, we believe, that political sentiment endorses our moral obligation as a Christian people, and indeed it makes it our duty to call upon our legislators to discontinue to legalize that which ruins the lives and homes of very many of our best Canadians annually. We recognize that the greatest issue now before the electors of this Province of Ontario is the temperance issue. We believe in the abolition of the liquor licenses in all public houses and clubs and the privileges of each municipality of wiping out the liquor stores on the majority vote. We believe as a body of Christian people, we have a right to interfere with party politics in so far as it relates to moral issues. We call upon our people to do all within their power to see that the candidates for the Legislature, whether Liberal or Conservative, are absolutely temperance men and are willing to publicly pledge themselves to support the aforesaid temperance policy — that of abolition of the bar."

The message of this Conference is plain—it says support candidates for the Legislature that will publicly declare their support to the abolition of the bar. Mr. Soden has publicly declared that he believes in the abolition of the bar and all shop and club licenses as well. Does Mr. Gillespie go that far? We say again that did not suit the City and County Temperance Association, who wanted to tie Mr. Soden hand and foot to their dictums. The Hamilton Methodist Conference did not ask for written agreements. They did not ask for support of the Grit party. They appealed for the election of men who would support a bill for the abolition of the bar, as their resolution declares. Mr. Soden, if elected, must support such advanced temperance legislation. Yet so far as the Temperance Associations here are concerned, they have manipulated their organization for the Liberal candidate. A letter we have received from Mr. George Leader states that because Mr. Soden did not agree to the Association's questions in writing they have declared for the Liberal candidate. But Mr. Soden has publicly declared his support of such a policy as the Hamilton Methodist Conference supported. That is the main point, and the one which Temperance men should remember. So far as the temperance question goes, the electors are choosing between a Conservative and a Liberal temperance man.

THEIR DAY IS PASSING.

THE FARMERS' BANK Relief Bill has been turned down by the Senate. The Toronto Star says: "There was imposture practised on the State by the dishonest founders of this Bank just as dishonesty was practised in its later dealings." But the question was: "Should Fielding not have heeded warnings given?" The day of the rascals is passing, but their depredations have caused untold misery. May God forgive them.

THE GLOBE IS "SORE."

THE REPORT of Mr. G. Howard Ferguson was such a smashing blow to Liberal administration that naturally many are smarting under the sting. The Globe has been extremely pained ever since its appearance, and relieves its feelings every once in a while with an editorial that resembles a suppressed growl of rage. Had Mr. Ferguson brought in a report less condemnatory of those Grits connected with the Trent Valley Canal charges, the Globe would not have made ammunition out of it for editorial comment. The censure of the Grits was direct and convincing and that is what makes the Globe and others of its camp bitterly "sore." The cap fits, but they hate like sin to wear it. The investigation cannot be stopped now from proceeding to its logical conclusion, but what the Globe and its benchmen are trying to do is to discredit Mr. Ferguson. The result is that it is all the time calling attention to the weakness of its own party, and at a time when it is seeking public support.

WOOL INDUSTRY IN SASKATCHEWAN.

AN EFFORT is being made by the agricultural department of the Saskatchewan Government, through the co-operative organization branch to bring up the wool industry of the province, and it is announced by W. W. Thomson, director of the department, that the wool from 10,000 sheep will be marketed during the last week in June.

Investigation by the department has revealed the fact that the wool industry has not brought proper returns because of the lack of care in preparing the wool for market, and excessive freight charges, because of the marketing in small quantities.

A bulletin has been issued, setting forth the proper method of preparing the wool for market with packing and shipping instructions.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHEN Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes found nearly 400 bottles of genuine ale in the "temperance beer" seized at Petawawa camp, he removed Major Leonard from command. His action is drastic, but if a regulation is to be enforced, the man at the top is responsible, and hence the removal. Yet some people say the Conservatives are doing nothing for temperance.

WHEN A MAN blames the Whitney Government for the administration of the Kingston Penetentiary, which it does not control, his partizanship is apparent, and his disinterested position on temperance is to be seriously questioned as well. Had he been desirous of playing fair he would have verified his statements.

THE SENATE has certainly done a great service to the Government in rejecting the Farmers' Bank Bill.—La Presse. This ill-deserved praise would doubtless not have been forthcoming had the Ville Marie Bank been included in the "relief."

ROMANTICISM will replace Realism in a short time says a heading. Yes, but what has that to do with the Ontario elections?

H. B. COWAN knew a lot about the Kingston penetentiary.

The Waking.

By Lurana Sheldon.

Bright sun-kissed hills and clearly shining sky,
With fleecy driftings o'er the spreading blue;
The old tree garlanded in foliage new,
The robin's message and the wood dove's sigh.
Within the grove the violet's upraised face,
The rare arbutus and anemone;
The verdant vines that fondly interlace—
Their maiden tendrils in true ecstacy.
Along the winding of the mountain stream.
Fond: eager faces, laughter, clear and sweet;
Youth with its joy, its innocence, its dream,
In happy meeting at the old oak's feet.
Soft o'er the wood the echoing sound of mirth;
The Springtime waking of the sleeping earth.

DRAWING THE LINE

IT'S all right to loaf a little, scold a little, jolly a little and argue a little—if we only know where to draw the line. It's so blamed easy to overdo anythin' thet there's everlastin' ructions bein' raised constant, where there shouldn't be nothin' but ball-bearin' harmony hummin' her sweet song. It's up to all of us to keep a watchin' out fer curves and down grades, else we're goin' to get a shake-up. We gotter know when to draw the line.

And it takes some of us a mighty long time to larn jest when to draw the line, let me tell ye. Uncle Tim Jobber didn't larn when till he was nigh ninety. He'd been so "easy" all his life thet sharp people had got nearly everythin' he owned. Then when Tim larned thet folks was wishin' he was dead so's to be out of his misery, he straightens up and says, "Thet's whar I draw the line. I'm willin' to do anythin' I kin fer anybody, in reason, but I'll be dinged if I'll die ter please 'em." And he lived till he was a hundred and seven.

Trouble was Tim didn't start drawin' the line early enough.

THE OLD STORY

By Walt Mason

There's always something, and repeat, to make us weep and sigh; we're looking for big crops of wheat, then comes the Hessian fly. "Vast tracts of grain," the papers claim, "are ruined by this pest, and farmers, weary of the game, are moving further west. And thus the splendid prospect ends—all estimates have shrunk." And nearly all such talk, my friends, is piffle, con and bunk. The farmers fear the price will slump, if prospects seem too bright, and so such fairy tales they pump into the jays who write. You'll see the stately wheat stacks rise at harvest time, don't fear; and none will miss what Hessian flies have spoiled for us this year. And scores of bogies that we hate, that wear and tear the mind, are flaunted by some selfish skate who has an axe to grind. When we behold a thing of fear, it's safe to bet, by jings, that there's a speculator near, who sits and pulls the strings.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

By Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by Ray Walters

Copyright by A. G. McCLURG & Co., 1912

A single movement of his head showed his assent.

"Oh, you coward!" Her disgust was overpowering. The withering contempt she put into her words was equaled by her look of scorn. He started to speak, but with a gesture of impatience she stopped him.

"All your words are lies, lies, lies! And to think that I promised within this hour to be your wife! You make me hate myself for ever having looked at you. Now I understand why you urged me to leave Belmont." Again he tried to speak. "Not a word. I'll not listen to you. Father, take me home."

She shrank from Wright as if to look at him were dishonor.

All the great love he had for her welled forth in one cry:

"Gloria!"

The girl could not, would not hear. She had but one refuge for her breaking heart. Turning to her father she flung herself into his arms with only a single word: "Father!"

With never a word, with never a look to right or left, the man she had promised to love and who had promised to love her, walked out of the room.

Sobbing as if her heart would break, Gloria rested in her father's arms.

CHAPTER XVI.

The unexpected and sensational manner in which the visit of Joe Wright to Judge Gilbert's office was terminated was not without effect upon every one in the room. Pity for Gloria was the dominating emotion, for everyone present realized her unhappy position. The dramatic revelation of her love affair, the knowledge that she had been sacrificed, stirred every heart. Mrs. Gilbert and Mrs. Hayes, not well versed in politics, harbored no slight resentment against the publisher of the News, since they regarded the article as too severe. Were not their husbands interested on the same side as David Kerr? And they were honest men. But their husbands knew the full measure of the bitter cup that both the boss and his daughter, for the father's misdeeds, were called upon to drain.

The first thing to do was to get Gloria away from the office. For several days she had been staying with Mrs. Hayes, and thither she was now taken. By Dr. Hayes' order she was put at once to bed, and under the influence of an opiate, she was soon asleep. Dr. Hayes came downstairs and announced to Kerr, who was savagely pacing back and forth in the drawing-room, that his daughter was suffering from a great nervous shock. He also said that she would probably sleep for several hours.

"It ain't no use for me to stay here then," the boss declared. "If you want me you can git me by telephone at my office or Gilbert's or at the club rooms."

"Even if she asks for you," said the doctor, "I think it best for you to stay away until her nerves are quieter."

As there was nothing further the two men could do, they walked downtown together, leaving Mrs. Hayes to watch over Gloria.

It was nine o'clock before the girl opened her eyes. Dr. Hayes had been home to dinner and then gone out again. His wife was sitting in Gloria's room reading by a light which was carefully shaded so as not to annoy the sleeper. She had turned several pages of her book with a feeling that her patient was now fully awake before she looked up to see if her belief was justified. Gloria was gazing vacantly at the ceiling.

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she asked, going over to the bed.

As Mrs. Hayes looked down at the girl, she seemed to her like a lily that had been beaten by the wind and bruised by the rain and left all forlorn to die. In the girl's face she read the story of the last few hours.

"Is there anything you want, dear?" she repeated.

"Nothing."

Gloria looked up at her with a pathetic little smile of appreciation for her kindness. She threw one hand out on top of the cover, and Mrs. Hayes took it in hers. It was some time, however, before Gloria spoke.

"You heard everything?"

"Yes."

"And you understand?"

"I think I do, Gloria."

"Then there isn't anything much for me to tell you."

For a long time she preserved silence, Mrs. Hayes holding her hand but saying nothing.

"It isn't as if he had died," she began slowly, almost as if just talking aloud to herself. "I think I could have stood that. In time everything would have come to be just a beautiful dream, Paris and Belmont and all. In my heart I could always have cherished the memory of a strong, brave man, the man I thought he was. You know, Mrs. Hayes, he seemed to me to be very much like my father."

For a time she thought it over to herself. Mrs. Hayes did not press her, and continued to show her sympathy by holding her hand.

"Yes, it would have been a lot better had he died before I ever knew. What would have been a beautiful dream is now only a hideous nightmare. And I believed in him so! You who have seen just a little of him can't know how I loved him. It wasn't exactly love when we were abroad in the same party. Yes, it was; only I didn't know it. It wasn't until he had gone away and no word came from him that I knew how much he was to me. And then I met him here. Heaven seemed to open for me that night."

She turned her head for a minute, and the tears began to flow. When she began again her eyes were still blurred with tears.

"I can tell you, and I could tell Mrs. Gilbert, that it's going to hurt me a lot. It's going to hurt to think how I was deceived. I thought I was building my house of life upon a rock, and when the rains came I awoke to find the foundation was only shifting sand."

"We all have our troubles, dear," Mrs. Hayes told her. "Yours may seem hard to bear, but you must know that life can't all be painted in rainbow hues. I've taken you with me into Belmont's unhappiest homes, and what you have seen should teach you to bear your own trials with resignation and fortitude as a Christian should. Perhaps it's not well to think how much better off we are than other people, but when we do think of it we see that God has shown us abundant kindness compared to that given to others, and then our crosses are lighter."

"But I loved him so!" cried Gloria, burying her face in the pillow.

Mrs. Hayes could only clasp the girl's hand. The attempt to comfort her was unprofitable. Her grief was too new, her wounds too fresh for comfort. Longer and longer grew the intervals between her sobs. Finally Mrs. Hayes thought she had fallen asleep, but Gloria was only thinking. It came to her that she was still young. Love would never be hers, she was sure of that; but long years stretched out before her. She couldn't be a coward and shirk those years. Once she had built her house of love and life upon the quaking sands, now she would build her house of life upon the firm rock of service. In ministering to the unfortunate, she might find surcease for her own sorrow.

"Mrs. Hayes?"

"What, Gloria?"

"I'm not going to let anything that happened today spoil my life."

"Of course not, dear. Rain today means sunshine tomorrow for us."

"I don't know about the sunshine, but I do know that I want to go along just as if nothing had happened. Tomorrow let's do just what we planned to do, and the next day and the next. I want to keep busy. Can't you understand?"

Mrs. Hayes did understand, and admired the girl for her bravery.

"All right, Gloria. I think that is best. We weren't put into this world to have only the good things of life and shirk the bad things. We must take them as they come, the bad with the good. You are doing just what Mr. Wright would have you do if he were the man you thought him and he had died before your wedding day. Perhaps all will come out as you once had planned."

The daughter of David Kerr shook her head.

"That can never be."

She said no more, and after a time seemed to fall asleep. Mrs. Hayes unclasped her hand, turned out the light, and left the room.

Through the windows streamed the moonlight. The girl, assured that she was alone, turned on her side and watched the beams creep slowly across the room.

What a flood of memories the moonlight brought!

Those first nights on shipboard had been under a silver moon that shed its rays upon a silver sea. Those nights in France a month later had been under a moon no less gorgeous. Then had come the Rhine and there, too, had been moonlight.

She tried to think of him as he had been and not as he was. In him she had found every good trait a man should have. She was chagrined to think how easily it now appeared she had been won. How much she would have been spared, she pondered, had she not been so eager for his love as to show him so soon that she cared for him.

Every familiar gesture which was at all a part of him she knew would call him to mind when another man might make it. The way he held his cigar when he smoked, the odd manner in which he would lock his hands together whenever a knotty problem bothered him, these little things and a host of others would come back to plague her.

All the dear, dead past crowded into her mind. It was not of the man whom that afternoon she had spurned that she thought, but of the man whom in her heart she cherished—her ideal.

With a mighty sob she began again to weep. There had come to her the realization that love was done. Far across the room the moonbeams crept before Gloria fell into a fitful slumber.

CHAPTER XVII.

"I've forgotten what we'd planned for this afternoon," Gloria remarked to Mrs. Hayes the morning after the stormy scene in Judge Gilbert's office. Yesterday was carefully ignored by both as they talked.

"This was the day Mrs. Wallace asked us to help her at the mission," Mrs. Hayes explained.

She did not say further that she had telephoned earlier in the morning and had Mrs. Wallace, the matron, make plans whereby the whole afternoon would be taken up. She believed Gloria's peace of mind would be all the greater were she engaged in some work which would make her feel that through her the pain of the sufferer was alleviated and the bruised heart of the unhappy bound up.

A DEAD FLY

May be as Dangerous as a Live One!

It is certainly more repulsive, and, if left, will breed far more disease than ever it did when alive.

It is not sufficient to kill the fly. You must destroy the germs as well. These, if allowed to multiply, will spread disease and death. Give up using the fly swatter and the unsanitary sticky fly paper.

Buy WILSON'S FLY PADS—the only really effective method of exterminating the death-dealing housefly. They kill all the flies in the house in a few hours. No dead flies left lying about.

Be careful to follow directions found in each packet.

Only two species of that singular insectivorous mammal, the solenodon, are known, one inhabiting Haiti and the other Cuba. They differ chiefly in the color and quality of their fur. Solenodons are quaint-looking animals, rather larger than rats, with long flexible snouts and naked tails. They are nocturnal and obtain their food by digging in the soft ground for insects, etc., with their snouts. Their brain capacity is small, and they are said to have the curious habit when hunted by dogs of hiding their heads in the nearest holes and leaving their bodies exposed.

Peoples of Peru.

Peru has within her borders a bewildering variety of races. There are the white people of Spanish descent, the mestizos (half Spanish, half native) and the Indians. The Indians themselves are of two races—those of the mountains and those of the forests. The highlanders are the descendants of the ancient people of the Incas. Both lowlanders and highlanders are treated as beasts of burden by the other classes. So accustomed are they to being cheated that when an English traveler recently exploring the Andes paid his porters without a grumble or a deduction he overheard them excitedly commenting upon the fact that the "Ingles" had paid up in full.

Care of Children's Teeth.

As soon as all twenty teeth of a child's first set are through the gums a small toothbrush should be provided and the child taught to clean its teeth thoroughly, back and front, up and down.

It is not an easy matter to teach a young child to clean its teeth and to keep it up to the cleaning of them twice a day—and they ought to be cleaned twice.

The bedtime cleaning and brushing are even more important than that of the morning. Here is a piece of advice from one of the best known dentists in the country. It is this:

Do not give bread, cakes or biscuits to a child at bedtime unless it cleans its teeth after eating them. Particles of such food cling round the teeth if these are not brushed immediately after such things are eaten.

In the warmth of the mouth these particles ferment quickly, become acid and in time cause the teeth to decay, especially in cases where they are not very strong and sound to begin with.

Teeth, of course, differ in different people. A robust person generally has a stronger make of tooth than one of poor constitution.

So if the children are rather fragile it is particularly important that they should take special care of their teeth. They should never be allowed to make the teeth do duty as nutcrackers, scissors, etc., and of all things they should clean them well at bedtime and after this eat nothing until morning.

Amusing Children.

Every child should learn to amuse itself if you want it to be happy.

To amuse a child is on a par with the foolish habit of "putting to sleep." Children should put themselves to sleep, and they will do so—except, of course, when they are ill or in pain—if they are never accustomed to having some one patting and rocking and singing to them when they are put to bed for the night.

The habit of "being amused" fosters the seeds of idleness in a child disposed naturally to that sort of thing.

Luxurious nurseries, where the children are "waited on hand and foot"—where some one is always at hand to pick up toys that have been flung down in a pettish humor and to follow to "tidy up" after untidy children—are not by any means good for the children themselves.

This kind of thing doesn't really make for happiness in a nursery.

Walking and Talking.

Some babies begin to crawl about on their knees at eight months old, others not until they are ten or twelve months old or even later.

It is the same with walking and talking. Children vary greatly, and no table can be made to give the exact time at which they should do these things.

If, however, at eighteen months the child makes no attempt to creep about a doctor should be consulted, as there must be serious lack of vigor.

Some children can walk at a year old, some not before they are two.

THE LATEST FROM DAME FASHION

FOR A SUMMER DANCE FROCK.

One cannot be without a dance frock or so this summer since the dance fad has penetrated to every summer resort no matter how remote. Nocturne satin in Bermuda pink used in this frock is soft and uncrushable yet most stylish and durable, for a season of wear. Combined with the satin is cream lace with tulle in the corsage to increase the sheerness of the effect. The bustle sash in the back is a striking characteristic of this design, following the law that sashes follow their own sweet wills this season.

If a tablecloth is beyond repair, cut it up into various sized pieces, hem them around and they will be found most useful in the kitchen.

TRIBUTE PAID BY PARLIAMENT

Address to Duke is Adopted in Commons

OTTAWA, June 12. — The Commons yesterday adopted an address to H. R. H. the Governor-General in connection with his forthcoming departure from Canada. It said in part:

"We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the members of the Commons of Canada, in Parliament assembled, desire to approach Your Royal Highness with an expression of the deep regret with which we have learned that your official connection with this country is about to cease.

"The Canadian people will not fail to cherish a happy remembrance of the deep and practical interest which Your Royal Highness has invariably manifested in literature, art, and industrial pursuits in the Dominion, as well as in all philanthropic and charitable undertakings, and they recognize most fully that Your Royal Highness has always been ready to associate yourself with every movement designed to improve the conditions and add to the happiness of those to whom has been entrusted the great task and duty of possessing and developing this portion of the Empire."

Allusion was also made to the gracious and kindly co-operation of the Duchess of Connaught and the Princess Patricia.

Duke Is Surely Going.

OTTAWA, June 12.—The Duke of Connaught and all his suite are away in Quebec, and will not return to Ottawa before to-day, but absolutely no stock is placed in the report from Quebec that the duke's term may be extended till April, 1916.

Official news has been received of the appointment of Prince Alexander of Teck.

WILL SEARCH FOR EXPLORERS' BODIES

REGINA, Sask., June 12. — To search for the bodies of Radford and Street, explorers and engineers, who went into the polar regions some three years ago, and were reported murdered by Eskimos, a party of Mounted Policemen under Inspector Beyte, leaves Regina about June 20. The region is the bleakest in all Canada.

Highwayman Shoots Man.

OSHKOSH, Wis., June 12.—Frederick Hines, baggage agent of the Soo Line here, was shot and instantly killed Wednesday night by a highwayman, who was holding up the ticket agent when Hines entered.

MUSKOKA LAKES

The words, "All aboard for Muskoka" is a call that sends a thrill of delightful anticipation through thousands, who, having perfected their plans, are ready to depart for that greatest of all Canada's playgrounds. Do you wish to view Nature's most lavish handiwork? Muskoka is a constellation of the wildest prodigalities. All are here fertile plains, peaceful villages, rugged rock-ribbed ridges, a wilderness of forests, laughing streams, rushing torrents over precipitous declivities or sparkling lakes, nestling on their bosoms hundred of island gems, rivalling Mirza's entrancing vision of Paradise. ## WILL NOT CHANGE CHURCH PARADE REGULATION

Minister of Militia is Most Emphatic in His Answer.

OTTAWA, June 12. — Inquiry of the Prime Minister regarding the rescinding or modification of the rule to permit the 65th Regiment of Montreal to participate with arms in the Corpus Christi procession at Montreal on Sunday, so that the Host might be saluted as in past years, elicited the information yesterday that no decision in the matter had been reached.

Col. the Hon. Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, when seen subsequently, was much more emphatic.

"I have not rescinded any order and I have not the slightest intention of doing so," declared the Minister. "Why should I be asked? It is a rule that applies in military organizations all over the world."

Strikers In Ugly Mood In Italy.

CHIASSO, June 12.—Just when it was hoped that the strike was ending, the supreme directorate of the Socialist party in Rome, encouraged by what already has happened among the strikers, assumed entire responsibility for the continuance of the strike. The railway men pledged their support of the new move. The result is that traffic has been disorganized all over the country.

Preparing for Camp.

General Secretary Meserve and Boy' Secretary Galley left for Sandy Point today to arrange for a camp site for the annual camp of the Y.M.C.A.

There are 100,000 unionists in Missouri.

BOY PREACHER ATTRACTS CROWD

LONDON, June 12.—Forbes, the 14-year-old American revivalist, is attracting large congregations at the Stratford Tabernacle, where he and his father, Dr. Charles Forbes, are conducting the mission. He keeps every one interested with his fund of stories. He is emotional and humorous and speaks with the clearness of a man of mature years. His knickerbockers and youthful voice and face are the only signs of boyishness about him.

JOE MARTIN GETS SEAT

LONDON, June 12.—Ipswich and Northeast Derby have apparently convinced the Government of the risks attendant upon three-cornered contests, since they have patched matters up with the Canadian member for East St. Pancras, and Joe Martin will not, therefore, go to the constituency for re-election.

Old Senator Loses Seat.

OTTAWA, June 12. — There will be another vacancy in the Senate when Parliament prorogues this week. The rules of the Upper House provide that any member of it who fails to attend two successive sessions shall, automatically, vacate his seat. Hon. William J. MacDonald, Senator for Victoria, B. C., the oldest member in point of seniority of the House, having been absent two years by illness, therefore loses his seat. No appointment in his place can be made, however, until next year when, at the opening of the session, the clerk will report his disqualification. He is in his 82nd year and was appointed in 1871.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING FOR K. J. SODEN

stand and to poll your votes accordingly.

"Pledges once given, if honestly meant and sincerely kept, sometimes produce peculiarly harassing situations. For instance, a good friend of mine, a sincere man who belongs to the executive of the temperance [illegible] statement to me: 'I know that you are a better temperance man than Mr. Gillespie, that you have done more for temperance in the City of Peterboro than has Mr. Gillespie. I would rather vote for you, but I promised the executive that whichever candidate signed the letter prepared by them would have my support, and I cannot see my way clear to break my promise." Gentlemen, that is the sort of situation that is liable to arise for any representative of yours who allows himself to be tied hand and foot in the matter of his vote, a situation where a man is placed in the position of being compelled because of a pledge given to do what he believes is not the wisest thing.

"This much for the sincere and honest temperance man. Let me turn to the instance of a gentleman, a leader of this movement in Peterboro, who professes to be most sincere and single minded in his attitude towards this question, and whom I believe thinks he is. Let me read you a little interview which took place between this gentleman and another only last evening:

"'I want to ask you a question, Mr. Cowan, but I think I know the answer already. Supposing a straight liquor man were to come out in the Liberal interest and that a strong temperance man for the Conservatives, would you vote Conservative?' He evaded this by saying that he would have to take into account the other issues before the people. I replied that he had refused to discuss the other issues on the platform, but had over-shadowed them all with the temperance issue. He then said he did not think he would vote Liberal under those circumstances, but would not like to say he would vote Conservative. However, if the position of the parties were reversed he thought he would change over.'

"This gentleman is one of the men who is opposing my candidature on the basis of my not having signed the letter presented to me by the executive of the temperance party. I may say that this stand, it would seem, is frequently taken where Conservatives, well known temperance men, take the field against Liberal candidates and state their temperance position.

"In the case of Mr. Lyle of South Lanark, we find much this stand adopted by temperance people. Mr. Lyle, a Conservative, offered himself as an independent Conservative candidate against a Mr. McLean, a Liberal. Both candidates stated that they were in favor of the abolish the bar and club licenses.

"A meeting of the executive committee of the Lanark County Alliance was held at Smiths Falls on March 10th, 1914, when the whole question was carefully considered.

"Special sympathy was felt with Mr. Lyle's independent attitude, and his willingness while a Conservative to accept the Alliance policy, but it was decided to support Mr. McLean, the Liberal candidate.

"This, gentlemen, covers what I have to say on the local situation here, except that I reiterate the statement made at my convention, viz: that the temperance issue is not and should not be a political issue, that I believe in the abolition of the bar and the shop and the club license, and will allow no person to dictate to me as to how I shall vote on these matters."

Mr. Soden resumed his seat amid prolonged applause.

Hon. Jas. Duff.

The Minister of Agriculture did not spare the Liberal Government which had preceded Sir James Whitney. In the last ten years of the old Government, he said, there had not been one amendment to the Liquor License Act worth talking about and they had not made a single move toward furthering the temperance cause. He was in the House in the Opposition when the Liberal leader brought down the referendum bill. The bill was finally carried, the referendum taken, but the bill was loaded. It did not receive the majority necessary to make the Government take any action. Did Sir George Ross move hand or foot? Where was Mr. Rowell in those days? Did he say to his leader, "if you do not accede to the wishes of the people, I'll drop from the party?"

There were no regrets; the leader of the Liberal party was humbugging the people, and the only thing they did during those thirty years was humbug the people.

Mr. Whitney said he would see that the temperance measures would have the force of the Government. Has he done that?

"You bet he has," said a voice in the audience.

"Can any man say he has been humbugging the people?"

"Not one," answered another voice.

In the days of the Liberal administration the speaker pointed out by a map, the small local option area and gave as a reason why the area was not larger, that the people knew that whether they passed local option or not, the Government would not enforce it. Those were dark days also because of other reasons. That was the day of the looting of the timber belonging to the people; water powers were given away; it was the day of the cruiser Minnie M., of ballot stuffing and a time when more political corruption existed than was ever heaped upon any country in the world. In all of those years, there was no more stalwart supporter of the Liberal Government no matter what the rascality, than Mr. Newton Wesley Rowell. A few years ago, they were looking for a leader and a policy. This abolish the bar policy was the herring drawn across the trail. Some one said let us get on to the temperance chariot and force the liquor people into the arms of the Whitney Government. They had had their arms around the liquor people for 30 years. When Rowell did announce his policy it was abolish the bar and leave the shop open. What guarantee have we that he can carry out that policy. There are strong forces in the party opposed to the abolition of the bar.

Bars Have Decreased.

When Sir James Whitney was elected, there were 2800 bars open while today the number is something like 1600. Instead of from 26 to 28 local option municipalities there are 360 today. There are no ballot burners; there hasn't been an election scandal in the nine years we have been in power. We have had the support of both Liberals and Conservatives, because we have been

Now, let us go to our Departments, said Mr. Duff. Against the Department of Justice, with Hon. Mr. Foy as Attorney-General, there had been no serious criticism. Of Hon. Mr. Hanna, the speaker said no other man had done so much as he. The Minister had appointed a commission and on the report, a scheme was initiated whereby 800 acres of land near Guelph were placed under cultivation and used as a Prison Farm. What has happened? Hundreds of prisoners are at work in the open air and you wouldn't know them. They are not in the stripes of prison garb but they wear clothing suitable to the work. They are chaps who have made a mistake; they are not long term prisoners. By the system of parole, men are put on their honor and many are there only a few months when parolled and given a chance to start life anew. Scores of other men would be in Central Prison only they are afraid to take the chance these men took. Prison Reform was a credit to the department and to the government and deputation after deputation from the States of the Union and men from Great Britain come to Ontario to go into the matter with Mr. Hanna. The Liberals don't opose it but they think the Conservatives ought to forget it.

People Get the Money.

Compare the grants to education. Get any Liberal up against the wall and he will say that there has been improvement. The government has saved $1,000,000 in school books alone; they have trebled the revenues and are giving the money back in education and public works and other services and the people are getting something they never dreamed of when the Liberals were in power. The Liberals gave between $75,000 and $100,000 for colonization roads and the Whitney Government has increased the amount to half a million dollars. There had not been any misappropriation of monies for these roads. There had been no serious complaints made, no charges made and surely they could appeal to Conservatives and Liberals alike to support that Government.

Regarding the Compensation Act, the Liberals complained that Sir James Whitney did not hurry the measure and they tried to make the people believe the Government was indolent and lazy. The Premier said that it would not be dealt with until we are sure of our ground. Was not that wise? Today, there is not a labor union that is not pleased that Premier Whitney took that stand.

As a result of the Liberal government having given away the water powers, the Hydro Electric Commission had the opposition of the capitalistic forces and if the old government had remained, there would not have been any Hydro Electric. Where was Mr. Rowell? He was one of the Liberal supporters and he can't get away from it.

Agriculture.

In 1904, there were $176,000 in the appropriation for agriculture, to-day we are spending over $2,000,000, and I have not met farmers of any community who do not give us credit for having done an enormously great work. Speaking of the system of district representatives, Hon. Mr. Duff said that in 1906, when the matter was set on foot, there were only six or seven district representatives, but the work had grown to such an extent that this year there were forty-five going through districts, enthusing the farmers and helping them with their problems. Last year the enrollment at the Agricultural College was 1560 and that morning he had signed ninety-two certificates of men who had graduated in the second year course. Forty others had graduated in the fourth year course. At McDonald Hall, for young women, the demand had been so great that for five years it had not been advertised.

The speaker also referred to the appropriation of $10,000,000 by the Dominion Government, the money to be divided among the different provinces. Ontario's share was over $230,000, and he had that day signed the order-in-council ratifying the agreement.

The Toronto Globe was telling the Methodists and Presbyterians what will happen to them if they don't come under Rowell's wing. Clergymen are leaving the pulpits to go into politics, and his view was that the very moment a clergyman gets into party politics, his usefulness, as a clergyman is gone. We will not be told by any Synod, Assembly or Organization how to vote. No Conservative could support Mr. Rowell unless he gives a black eye to the Whitney Government and what it has done.

Local Option was not a failure, but it would be if the Government was not behind, enforcing the law.

Hon. Mr. Duff concluded his address, expressing confidence that the Government would be returned to power and asking that Mr. Soden be supported on the record of the party.

J. H. Burnham, M.P.

The audience gave J. H. Burnham, M.P., a very cordial reception as he stepped forward. His remarks were directed to the action of the Dominion Government, in recovering the Burleigh Falls power from the people and also the work of the Ontario Government in the Hydro Electric undertaking.

The people of Ontario did not know that the water power at Niagara going to waste was worth to them not less than five million dollars in itself. As soon as it was discovered that electric power could be transported easily capitalists applied for Niagara power. The so-called trustees of the people at Toronto however handed over some of this power to private individuals for a song. Then the people of the Province got alarmed over it and for that and other reasons threw the Ross Government out of power, whereupon Mr. Beck and Mr. Whitney wiped out that iniquitous policy and developed Niagara power for the benefit of the people. Here we have in this one instance a people retaining property to the value of five million dollars per annum instead of having it given to private individuals who would have lived in luxury on the proceeds and compelled the former owners to work like slaves to pay for what they really formerly owned. The same thing occurred here at Burleigh Falls. This power was created and maintained by the people. Here, is power worth, after all expenses are paid, not less than $60,000 a year clear, yet it was given away by the Laurier Government to a few political favorites to whom it was leased for 59 years at one dollar a year, making a total sum of $59. It seems incredible. When he looked into it, Mr. Burnham said, and begged the present Minister of Canals to adopt means to restore this immense treasure to the people the Minister was astounded and like a faithful trustee has taken means to restore it to the people. Now $60,000 for 59 years is interest and sinking fund on not less than one million dollars the real value of the power given away. It would have been better to have given the power to the lumber companies who would have saved large sums in driving and could have established at Burleigh, mills which would have given employment to a large number of people but to give this power away to a company without any obligations whatever to develop it and with no responsibility attaching to it whatever except the payment of a total sum of $59 is almost unequalled in governmental robbery. Mr. Burnham threshed this out fully in the House of Commons before the ex-Minister of Canals but there was no explanation forthcoming. The facts were plain. This is an example, he said, of what it means to the people to have honest trustees instead of those who deliberately rob the people in order to enrich themselves and to obtain campaign funds and what it means to others to get rake offs of large sums which go to make up the private fortunes of people who have grown rich without ever having explained how they got the money. It is because of these facts that public ownership has grown to be what it is. Public ownership and control was forced upon the people who could only save their own property for the general advantage by taking hold of it and working it themselves. It will always be the glory of the Whitney party that they broke up private monopoly in this Province and honestly administered the property of the people. It will always be the undying glory of Sir James Whitney that he was above temptation, either of money or ambition and was content to preserve to the people the immense blessing of a sound administration of their great natural resources for their own benefit and to preserve in other respects an absolutely stainless administration. To overthrow a Government which no doubt has its shortcomings for all human beings however great have their shortcomings, to overthrow a Government which has been of enormous public benefit to the people as this has would be more like an act of national suicide than an exercise of electoral franchise. Mr. Rowell no doubt is a good man. He has several good men under him but what people would exchange the priceless boon of a great, and successful administration for the administration of one who has yet to show that he is worthy to hold Sir James Whitney's coat. Power at cost for the people means power for the farmer delivered on his farm, in his house, in his barns, in his barn-yard, in his fields. It means to him a saving of hundreds a year. It is shown in Western Ontario to be of this value to the average farmer. It will be so here. Hydro power means also the furnishing of cheap power to the large manufacturer and to the small manufacturer and the householder. In a word it is the most wonderful feat of administration that has ever been invented or discovered in any country in the world and should alone preserve to the people the present administration in Toronto.

Two Ministers Speak.

Some rather exciting moments followed Mr. Burnham's address. During Mr. Soden's remarks, Rev. R. Pogue had objected to certain statements that he claimed were gossip and he held that Mr. Soden should not incorporate them in his address, with the statement that they were facts. The remarks made by Mr.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor of The Review:—
Dear Sir,—

In your editorial of last evening you say that not temperance but party is the big important interest of the County and City Temperance Association, will you allow me as a Conservative member of that association to say that, that conclusion is quite at variance with the facts, as several Conservatives were amongst those who had to decide the question, and in view of the fact that Mr. Soden absolutely refused to give the pledge in writing of his support to measures for which the Temperance Party have so long been striving, and the Liberal candidate did give that pledge there was no alternative open to us. No one regrets the stand taken by Mr. Soden in regard to signing, more than his Conservative temperance friends as we would rather have been working for and with him, but we feel, if as temperance people we are ever to obtain anything from either political party we must let them see that we are in earnest in this matter and rise above our party interests for the benefit of temperance.

Trusting you will in fairness insert this, I remain

Yours, etc.

MR. ROWELL AT DUNNVILLE

DUNNVILLE, June 12.—Mr. N. W Rowell visited here yesterday in the course of his election tour of Western Ontario and addressed a largely attended meeting of farmers of Haldimand riding.

Mr. Rowell, in his speech, dealt with the financial position of the province, declaring the expenditure has grown from $5,267,453 in 1904 to over $22,000,000 in 1914. Leaving out capital payments for the Hydro-electric and T. & N. O. Railway, he stated that the ordinary expenditure of Ontario for the current year would, according to the estimates passed by the House last session, amount to $16,000,000. This would not be so bad if the revenues were equal to meet the situation, but there was trouble ahead when the province was spending more than its revenue. "In other words," said Mr. Rowell, "if the Government spends all the money authorized by the House last session it will spend nearly $12,000,000 more than the total revenue this year."

This, said Mr. Rowell, meant more borrowing or direct taxation.

Messrs. Gibson and Marshall also spoke.

SENATE REFORM MUST WAIT SAYS PREMIER BORDEN

Amendment to Petition Required For New Appointments is Subject of Long Debate in the Commons—W. F. Maclean Urges Petition for Power to Make Senate Elective.

OTTAWA, June 12. — Redistribution and Senate reform occupied most of yesterday's session of the House of Commons. With two changes, the elimination of Stormont and West Kent, the redistribution bill passed the House at a late hour.

The Senate reform debate was based upon the Premier's resolution to petition the Imperial Parliament to amend the B. N. A. Act to permit the appointment of western Senators. An amendment was moved by W. F. Maclean, M.P., and after a long discussion it was defeated.

Debate on the Ontario redistribution was practically confined to the East Kent and Stormont.

Archie McCoig (Lib., W. Kent) argued for the retention of the two seats in Kent, and said under the Government's proposal the new riding would be disproportionately large with a population of 55,000 to 58,000. After a discussion, however, the Townships of Zone and Camden were transferred to East Lambton.

Mr. E. A. Fripp asked that Rideau Ward be taken from Russell, and added to Ottawa, but his resolution to that effect was lost without seconder or division.

Captain Tom Wallace got the village of New Toronto added to West York, and W. F. Maclean got the town of Leaside added to South York.

In moving his amendment to the Senatorial appointment petition W. F. Maclean (Con., S. York) said:

"We desire to acquaint the mother of Parliaments, which has only recently stripped the irresponsible House of Lords of its veto power, with the fact that what is good for her is good for democratic Canada and good for America, and that we, too, desire the power which Australia has in connection with her Senate."

In reply to a query from Sir Wilfrid Laurier regarding his proposals, Mr. Maclean said:

"I would have a Senate responsible to the people, made up either by selection by the Legislatures or election by the people. I would prefer election by the people. I would have proper safeguards about it so that I could have a constitutional Senate responsible to the people of Canada, and therefore reachable by public opinion. It is public opinion that rules, not the governor-in-council or the appointees of the governor-in-council

The amendment was seconded by Edmund Proulx (Lib., Prescott) who said the Senate should be an elective body. Both parties had been thinking for a long time that there should be reform in the constitution, but nothing had been done so far. He thought that appointments should be only for about eight or ten years.

Hon. Frank Oliver opposed an elective Senate because he considered it was not the best method of getting effective legislation. If it was to be elective, it would be far better to have only one chamber.

Premier Borden said it was not a practicable motion at the present time. However, he assured the House that in a few years a proposal would be placed before the House to reform the Upper Chamber, but for Canada the time to solve the problem was not yet reached, and in the meantime it was only proper that the western provinces should have their proper representation in the Senate.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier while sympathetic towards the amendment, also agreed that it was too late in the session to take up such a question. As for a solution, it was possible to obtain a system which would prevent appointments being made entirely on party lines they would probably get what was wanted.

LOUD EXPLOSION HEARD AS HOME SECRETARY MAKES ADDRESS

Militants Try to Destroy Famous Coronation Chair.

LONDON, June 12.—The militant suffragettes staged one of the most dramatic acts of their campaign yesterday afternoon, when they exploded a bomb in Westminster Abbey, at the very moment that the Rt. Hon. Reginald McKenna, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, was delivering an optimistic speech in the House of Commons nearby, regarding the Government's method of dealing with "the wild women." The detonation penetrated the chamber of the House, interrupting Mr. McKenna's oration and bringing some of the members into the street to learn what had happened.

The discussion of the militant campaign in the House of Commons yesterday showed that the Government contemplates no new measures to control the militant women, except to inaugurate an attempt to make the subscribers to the funds of the Women's Social and Political Union responsible for damage the militants inflict. It is believed that a test case will be made of the mutilation of the Rokeby Venus, which was slashed last March by May Richardson.

Those in vicinity at the time of the bomb explosion under the Coronation chair say they heard two distinct reports which they describe as terrific. The fabric of the Westminster Abbey building is said to have been slightly damaged, but as the police kept all inquirers at a distance this could not be confirmed.

Two young women who were in the Abbey at the time of the explosion were taken into custody and subsequently removed in a taxi-cab to a police station.

The actual damage to the framework of the Coronation chair appears to be confined to the blowing off of one of the pinnacles at the top of the back. The bomb appears to have been introduced to the Abbey in a bag which was deposited partly beneath the seat of the chair.

Seeks Freedom For Sylvia.

LONDON, June 12.—George Lansbury, former Socialist member of Parliament, has addressed a letter to the King, stating that he was arrested for offences in connection with the suffrage agitation and was released when he went on a hunger strike, while Sylvia Pankhurst had been taken back to prison eight times, and was being slowly, but surely, starved to death.

"Why should a man in my position be allowed to go free?" he asks, "and a young woman be forced back into prison time after time? This is so gross an instance of partiality and so alien to the spirit of justice, that I am impelled to ask you to override your Ministers and to exercise your prerogative of mercy and order the unconditional release of Miss Pankhurst forthwith or my arrest."

Regiment Disbanded.

THREE RIVERS, Que., June 11.—The ill-feeling in the city of Three Rivers against the militia has culminated in the disbanding of the city regiment of infantry, the 86th, which was commanded by Lieut.-Col. E. P. Mercier, and although efforts are being made to reorganize the regiment, the greatest difficulties are being experienced, and a suitable commandant cannot easily be secured.

BROTHER ARRESTED.

Sanity of Narcisse Petignat Will Be Inquired Into.

RICHMOND, Que., June 12.—The coroner's jury investigating the death of Mrs. J. B. Viger, who died on May 31 after partaking of what she thought was pure gin, but proved to contain a large proportion of carbolic acid, last night ordered the arrest of the victim's brother, Narcisse Petignat, in order that he may be examined as to his sanity. No motive was revealed in the evidence. In examination, Labadie, the brother-in-law, admitted having had trouble with Petignat, but declared that it was not of the slightest consequence. In view of the feeble mind of Petignat, however, this grievance may have been magnified. The prisoner was taken to St. Francis district jail, where he will await medical examination.

For some time the accused lived with his sister, the victim of the tragedy, and appeared to be attached to her.

Motorman's Intuition Justified.

TORONTO, June 12. — Because a little rubber ball bounced from the sidewalk on Harbord street right in front of his car while it was traveling at a fair speed yesterday afternoon, Motorman T. A. Smith jammed on his emergency brakes and brought the car to a stop within a few feet. When Smith saw the ball bouncing, he quickly reasoned some harebrained youngster was going to follow it at the risk of his life. He reasoned rightly, for a lad of about four years jumped through the line of rigs in front of the oncoming car, which, thanks to the motorman's presence of mind, stopped within a foot of the child, who had fallen headlong on the car tracks.

His Majesty's Yacht Club.

LONDON, June 12.—The Prince of Wales attended his first official banquet Wednesday night, when he went as a guest to the annual dinner of the officers of His Majesty's Yacht Club at the Hotel Metropole.

The young prince, who sat between Commodore Douglas R. L. Nicholson, who presided, and Admiral Sir Michael Culm-Seymour, wore evening dress, with the ribbon of the garter.

Roosevelt Fears Women.

LONDON, June 12.—Fears of suffragette activities have caused the withholding from publication in London of Col. Theodore Roosevelt's engagements during his approaching visit to England. Except for his lecture before the Royal Geographical Society, Col. Roosevelt at his own request will take no part in public functions while he is in London.

Greece To Go To War Again?

LONDON, June 12.—Another war between Greece and Turkey is foreshadowed by The Times, which says the unrest in the Balkans has become acute. Several of the states, it says, have recently been employed in clearing their newly-acquired territory of "undesirable" elements, and the Bulgarians have been the principal offenders.

The unrest is attributed by the newspaper to the drastic policy of the Young Turks in expelling all Greeks from Asia Minor and Turkish Thrace.

THE VIA DOLOROSA.

Jerusalem's Queer Old Street Is a Mecca For Pilgrims.

"The Street of Pain," or the Via Dolorosa, in Jerusalem, is rightly described as the most sacred thoroughfare in the world.

Through it hundreds of pilgrims every year slowly and tenderly linger over its stones as they follow its zigzag course to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, firmly believing it to have been the way our Saviour walked to suffer an ignominious death for the sins of mankind.

During Holy Week, especially, it is crowded with Russian pilgrims, many of whom painfully make the journey upon their hands and knees.

The Via Doloroca really consists of four streets, which exhibit every characteristic formation of the streets of Jerusalem; the narrow arched passage, the open way with the latticed windows, and the steps that show the rise and fall of the hills on which the city is built.

Fourteen stations mark the various episodes which are supposed to have distinguished the painful journey of our Lord, commencing with the traditional "Palace of Pilate," now the Serai. The so-called holy steps, Scala Sancta, from the Judgment Hall, were removed to the Church of St. John Lateran at Rome, where they may now be seen. Near the Serai the narrow road is spanned by an arch, known as the Ecco Homo Arch.

According to a monkish legend, it marks the spot where Pilate said, "Behold the man." It is part of a triumphal arch of Hadrian, and near to that part of it built in the School of the Sisters of Zion, on the right-hand side, are some curious stone cylinders of solid rock of undoubted antiquity, on which the town crier used to stand when proclaiming the loss of certain articles or announcing some particular event of public interest.

Through the arch the street passes the Austrian Hospice at the bottom of the hill, then crosses another street at an angle, leaving the "House of Dives and Lazarus" on the left hand, and ascends the next hill through arches and a vaulted passage, crossing the street from the Damascus Gate before it reaches the German Hospice. Then mounting step by step higher up the hill, turns at right angles through the vaulted roof of a prolongation of Christian street, where an old entrance to the Church of the Holy Sepulchre stood.

Various crosses and other religious emblems serve to remind the pilgrim of the sacred spots along the route; the place where Christ sank under the Cross, and where Simon of Cyrene was called upon to bear it; where Jesus leaned against the wall for support; where Veronica wiped the sweat from His brow, and His features became imprinted on her handkerchief; and the many other holy places that are annually kissed and wept over every Easter.

The last four stations are in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre itself. It should be added, perhaps, that it was not until the fourteenth century that these sacred sites became known, and there is no historical evidence whatever to prove their identity. Indeed the destruction of Jerusalem under Titus was so complete, that neither streets nor houses could be identified afterwards.

Nevertheless thousands of pilgrims visit the Holy City and follow the road which Christ is said to have followed on the way to Calvary.

The Meaning of "Muff."

The record of the fact that muffs were once worn by more men than women in Paris suggests the old ingenious definition of a muff as "a soft thing that holds a lady's hand without squeezing it." "Muff" appears to have come to us from Germany, in which language, curiously, "muff" means not only a hand comforter, but also a sulky person or a growling dog. These seem, however, to be two different words. Was our own metaphorical "muff" an allusion to the effeminacy of muff wearers or simply an intimation that the person was distinctly "soft?"—London

A Gentle Husband.

Woman (to her husband, busily engaged writing)—My dear, correctly speaking, what is a dentist?

Husband (crossly)—Derived from dent, French for teeth, a man who pulls teeth. (Husband settles down to writing again.)

Wife — My dear, you said this morning that linguist was derived from the Latin lingua, a tongue.

Husband (crossly)—Yes.

Wife—Well, dear, is a linguist a man who pulls out tongues?

Husband—No, madam, but I wish he did. —London Answers.

The Careful Scots.

A Scot and his wife came to London, and the worthy pair were in a hundred fears concerning the diabolical ingenuity of London thieves.

As they took their first walk down the Strand the husband whispered of a sudden hoarsely in her ears, "Janet, wumman, hast thou got thy teeth feexed feermly in thy gums?"

"Na, na," she answered, "A'm no sich a fule! I've left 'em safely lockit awa' in the portmonty." — London Chronicle.

Made Him a Songster.

Mr. Stubb (in astonishment)—Gracious, Maria. That tramp has been singing in the back yard for the last hour.

Mrs. Stubb—Yes, John, it is all my fault.

Mr. Stubb—Your fault?

Mrs. Stubb — Indeed, it is. I thought I was giving him a dish of boiled oatmeal, and instead of that I boiled up the bird seed by mistake.

CLEAN—No dust or flying ashes. Ash chutes guide all ashes into convenient pan.

Not Good at Riddles.

A lawyer was questioning a new client, a widow, the other day about her history. "My history," she replied, "is simplicity itself. My first was the happiness of my life, my second was goodness itself, my third"—

"Excuse me, madam," interrupted the attorney, "but really we aren't here to guess charades."

The Parting.

Little Eva brought a comb and brush to her mother and said, "Mamma, please make a pathway in my hair."

BLOUNTMEN CONTINUE TO WIN AT EXPENSE OF HAMS' MR. DOLAN

Swatting Activities in the Third Gave Petes Enough Runs to Grab Initial Meeting With Doc Yates Athletics

Mr. Dolan was badly mussed up by the ~~murderous~~ Petes in the third innings of yesterday's entertainment at Riverside Park, and the Petes cantered off with a 3-1 victory over the Athletics from Hamilton, who made their 1914 debut to our midst. The glorious fourth had nothing on the glorious third, as there were fireworks galore, the locals burning up the pill with vengeance for one single and three doubles. Then again, there was a dispute which added interest to the innings, as Doc. Yates and his assistants disputed a decision of Umpire Miller, when he ruled that Belting's two ply poke had fallen fair, while the Hams thought it was foul by a foot. So certain in his mind that the umps should see an optician, was Dr. Yates, that he resumed the debate with the umps in the fourth, and Mr. Miller chased him from the field right smartly.

Knute Belting was on the hill for the locals and the eminent native of Sweden pitched one of his nice games. Knute had the Hams guessing all the time, and although they connected with his assortment on numerous occasions, on only seven of those occasions were the connections hits. Belting did not whiff any of the Hams 'tis true, nor did he issue a pass, but he certainly refused to permit the ball to be smeared when the smearing was good.

On the other hand Dolan looked awfully good when he started, but he lost some of his effectiveness with men on the sacks. Outside of the third innings he twirled great ball, the class which is good enough to win the majority of ball games. He was in trouble in the eighth when the Petes had two on and none out, but he heaved himself out in fine style. Maybe the argument in the third upset him, because after Umpire Miller had restored matters to normal, the Petes lost no time in slamming out two more doubles, Blount and Byrne turning the trick.

Frank Fox played nice ball at short, having several great stops and throws. Byrne continued in his good hitting form, while Ches. King had a good day at second. Kelly grabbed his usual hit.

and then invade Hamilton the first three days of next week and grab the rubber or possibly the series.

St. Thomas has signed an infielder by the name of Gillespie. If he does not pole the ball better than a man we know will pool votes on election day, it will be back to the trees and flowers.

Doc Yates was told to go back to the Oriental and take a plunge after he had severely criticized Umpire Miller in the fourth innings. The Doc thought Belting's two base poke was foul by a yard.

Bobby Kerr had his coat off at the gate yesterday. Probably he was trying to display one of Andy Laidlaw's latest, because the work of taking tickets was not strenuous enough for coat removal purposes, as it was the smallest week day crowd this season.

The Athletics and Petes clash in the second game or the series this afternoon at Riverside. Dr. Yates will send Donohue to the mound while either Cresswell, Sterling or Schettler will serve them up for the locals. Owing to the fact that Manager Blount was forced to use six twirlers in the series with Toronto his selection cannot be made according to the pitcher's turn. Both teams are anxious to cop the game as a win for the Petes means a total on the series while a win for Hamilton will give the Ambitious City boys a chance to grab the rubber in Saturday's struggle. Doc Yates claims that break in the luck coupled with the doubtful decision of Umpire Miller when he called Belting's clout safe were responsible for his team's defeat yesterday.

Tomorrow's pastime will comence at 3 o'clock and a bumper crowd should turn out as the Petes are playing neat ball at this stage and look good enough to make them all hustle.

Shears whom Dr. Yates purchased from the Jersey City club wired the Hamilton manager that he would not be able to report until Monday. He was expected in today and would have been worked at once.

LOCALS WON

Rinks Skipped by Waddell and Eakins at Millbrook

Two rinks of the Peterboro Lawn Bowling Club journeyed to Millbrook yesterday and defeated the representatives of the Millbrook club. The local rinks were skipped by Ted Eakins and R. M. Waddell the former's rink being one up and the latter's six on the day's play. After the games the local bowlers were royally entertained at the Waverly Inn, the home club members proving themselves experts in the hospitality line. The Waverly Club according to those who took in the trip is one of the finest and best equipped clubs in the country and a credit to Millbrook.

CRICKET

COMMENT

As You Like It

Why the Hamilton fans and scribes are so bitter on the Athletics is a mystery. The crew which Doc. Yates sent on the field yesterday looked like a tidy aggregation all through, and when Corns and White commence to sting the pill with regularity, the outfield will look as sweet as any in the circuit. The infield displayed a lot of pep, and Dudley on first base made a fine impression with the fans. Baldwin, the kid third baseman has not yet mastered that confidence which is necessary, but gives promise of developing into a neat third sacker. A veteran in the infield would help matters. Dolan shaped up in good style and as Dougherty and Donohue are rated as good as the New York boy, the pitching staff should prove a formidable one. The old fault of the Hamilton team of former years is still in evidence. That is lack of ability and speed to steal a bag. Red Fisher faced Belting once more, but the Swede failed to crack Red on the jaw as he did here a year ago.

The present series should be one of the best of the season. The Petes are going nicely, and have developed the punch in the pinches. A most pleasing feature is the manner in which Manager Blount is stinging the hide. Joe Byrne is also slamming it in good style. The Petes and Hams seem to be playing about the same calibre of ball, but the Petes look good enough to cop the home series

Must Be Bonded.

A curious feature of the Quebec marriage laws and one which, it is maintained, should not be struck from the code, is the fact that the happy couple must be bonded. The bridegroom going to the issuer of licenses is astounded, if he has not learned the law, to find that he must bring two householders who will go bond for him for $800 each, to show that there is no reason why the marriage should not take place. It is to prove that neither of the parties has previously been wedded, that they are of age, or if not, that the consent of the parents has been obtained. It is merely a matter of form. There is no records known of any bondsmen being sued for the amount of the bond by the province or by an irate parent. Nevertheless, the bond must be given.

ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING FOR R. J. SODEN

Soden had reference to a conversation between Mr. Cowan and another gentleman, after the meeting at Grady's school, Indian River, the previous evening.

F. E. Ellis also interrupted but at that time, both Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mr. Ellis declined the invitation to take the platform.

Following the conclusion of Mr. Burnham's address, Mr. Kendry renewed the invitation and after much urging on the part of the audience, Mr. Pogue finally appeared on the stage.

He claimed it to be the right of every voter to ask questions at a political meeting. "I object," said Mr. Pogue, "to Mr. Soden listening to petty gossip and have it written down and tell us be is giving us facts.

Mr. Soden answered that it was not petty gossip. Mr. Ellis was there.

It was a quiet conversation between Mr. Cowan and another gentleman.

Mr. Pogue also objected to Mr. Soden's expression that clergymen were going out of their province when they undertook to take part in politics. Politics he held was their province. To those in the audience who had applauded Mr. Soden when he made that statement, he urged that they go home and do a little thinking.

He had been hand to hand with Mr. Soden when he first came but and he had understood that Mr. Soden was going to carry out exactly the same policy as Mr. Gillespie. Mr. Soden had said "We can shake hands on the temperance question." But Mr. Soden had been hedging. "And he will have us believe that the Whitney Government stands for advanced legislation.

"So they do," cried voices in the audience. Mr. Soden answered that he believed the Whitney Government was in advance of the Rowell policy. He repeated his statement made at the convention when he quoted Sir James Whitney as having expressed himself that if the people of the province wanted further temperance legislation, he would give it, if they so expressed themselves by sending the men. The Government would keep its word. He had not hedged, he said. There were men posing as temperance men who were not temperance men. They were trying to redeem the riding for the Grits. He was standing by his statements made at the convention and would still stand by them when he went to Toronto. Mr. Soden also pointed out to Mr. Pogue the fact that he had assisted in the local option campaign, while Mr. Gillespie had not.

The chairman again extended the invitation to the platform and Rev. R. G. Peever responded. He said Mr. Pogue had come from the north of Ireland, Ulster, while he came from the south where perhaps they had cooler tempers. He congratulated those in charge on the splendid success of the meeting. The temperance convention he claimed had not been represented fairly by Mr. Soden, although not intentionally. Mr. Soden came to the meeting between 2 o'clock and 2.30. The time previously taken up had been spent, covering the ground of proposed procedure. Conservatives and Liberals were there. They discussed the temperance question, not with party bias. They decided to try to get the candidates on the Conservative and Liberal sides to adopt the advanced plan. Then if both assented, they would withdraw and each would support his own party. If both refused, the convention would bring out a temperance candidate.

Mr. Soden however protested that when he arrived at the meeting, the resolution was framed according to the Rowell policy, to abolish the bar and the club.

Continuing, Mr. Peever said that when it came to a question of the drink traffic, he was prepared to take part, because it was a moral issue. "I ask no brief, from my church and am prepared to place my resignation tonight or tomorrow morning."

The cross firing between Rev. Mr. Pogue and Mr. Soden continued but finally the meeting was brought to order and Mayor Buller spoke for a short time, eulogising the Whitney Government for their splendid record and said that on the night of the 29th, Mr. Soden would be returned by a majority of 1000. He announced that in the near future Hon. Adam Beck would come to Peterboro to address the people on the subject of radial railways. Given this system, the speaker held that the population of the city would be doubled in five years.

Cheers were given for the King, Sir James Whitney and the candidate and the meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

FIRES AROUND HAILEYBURY.

Warm Spell Has Resulted In Serious Outbreaks In Bush.

HAILEYBURY, Ont., June 12.—An exceptionally warm spell, coupled with a high wind, has fanned scores of bush fires into flame again in the north, and while no serious damage has been done to date, the fires are alarming.

On Tuesday the Haileybury fire department were called upon to fight two fires in separate sections which threatened outlying buildings. In New Liskeard Wednesday the fire department fought for eight hours to save Kennedy's lumber yard, and the T. & N. O. station, two hundred men with the engine and hose being stationed there the better part of the night.

From all points in the district smoke and flames may easily be seen. In the majority of cases the fires are springing up in the sections previously burned.

A ROYAL ANTIQUARIAN

QUEEN HELENA OF ITALY AN ENTHUSIASTIC EXCAVATOR.

Some Years Ago While the King Was Away Hunting She Amused Herself Recovering Ancient Remains and Has Undertaken Systematic Exploration of Settlement of the Earliest Latin Peoples.

About eight years ago the Queen of Italy, while her husband hunted the wild boars along the low, sandy coast, still almost entirely covered with wood, as it was in ancient times in the royal preserves of Castle Porziano, whiled the time away by excavating the remains of a Roman villa and made a wonderful discovery. The Queen found a statue which archaeologists identified as a fine replica of the famous discobolus, or discus thrower of Myron. The statue, which was broken, was pieced together very carefully, or, rather, reconstructed, and it is now in the National Museum of Rome.

Encouraged by the success of her first attempt at excavating, the Queen became so greatly interested in archaeology that she decided to undertake a systematic exploration of one of the most important sights near Rome—namely, where the first inhabitants of Italy settled considerably more than 1,000 years before the birth of Christ.

The Latins appear to have been originally a Pelasgian tribe, who, at a period long anterior to the foundation of Rome, descended into the narrow plain of the Tiber, expelled or subdued the original inhabitants and settled in the district known as Latium. The Latini formed a confederation or league consisting of thirty states. Although Rome was a Latin colony she became powerful enough in the reign of King Tullius Hostilius to make war against the Latin towns. After a war which lasted until 340 B. C. the Romans finally defeated the Latins, dissolved their league and made them subjects of Rome.

The sites of most of the Latin towns were gradually lost, the territory where they stood became a desert, and malaria drove away the inhabitants. A forest of bay trees (laurus), from which the primitive Latin city Laurentum probably derived its name, still existed under the empire and gave the place a name for salubrity. Many emperors had villas in the neighborhood, the extensive ruins of which are now marked by sand hills in the belt of sandy shore which stretches for a distance of over thirty miles from the mouth of the Tiber to the promontory of Antium, the modern Anzio.

This vast area the Queen now intends to explore in a scientific manner in order to discover traces of the early Latin civilization, study the origin of the inhabitants and perhaps find monumental evidence of the arrival of Aeneas in Italy and his connection with the King Latinus. This self-imposed task of the Queen of Italy is of vast magnitude.

The Queen's work has up to the present been kept secret, and only a few well known professors of archaeology, like Lanciani, Pigorini and the late Prof. Vaglieri, director of the excavations at Ostia, were invited to see the excavations.

Besides the villa where she found the statue in 1906 the Queen discovered remains of another villa which is supposed to have belonged to Pliny. The remains of this villa consist mainly in the substructions, but the discovery is important, since it enabled the Queen to locate the site of a village, known as Vicus Augustanus Laurentium, which probably took its name from Augustus himself and which, according to Pliny, was near his villa.

The Queen, moreover, explored the site of the ancient Lavinium, consisting of a small hill, the original acropolis, which is occupied by the modern castle of Tor Paterno, and traces of the city walls in small blocks of the gray green tufa used in the earliest buildings of Rome as well as the streets. She discovered a large necropolis, where she found objects of the first iron age, including a sword of the Aegean type, which seems to confirm the traditions of Aeneas' visit to Italy.

Protestants In Rome.

The Protestants are to have a college right in the capital of the Roman Catholic church, namely, Rome. And not only is the college to be at the seat of the government of the Catholic church, but it is to be on the highest and most prominent part of the city, at the top of Monte Marie, that rises sheer 390 feet above the Via Trionfale, the road along which Julius Caesar passed on his triumphal procession. The contract for the land was signed on Jan. 24 last, and the building to be put up will be up-to-date and thoroughly equipped along all lines. The project is being carried out by the Methodist Episcopal church.

Two of a Kind.

"Come, come," cried the brusque and hustling real estate man, "why do you pay rent when you might own a home?"

"I—I don't pay rent," replied the startling stranger.

"Then you own a home?"

"N-no."

"That's strange. May I ask your business?"

"I'm a real estate dealer."

A Better Authority.

Young Husband—My dear Jemima, I must say that this pudding tastes very bad.

Wife—All your imagination, dear. The cookery book says that it tastes excellent!—London Telegraph.

Alcohol and Water.

When in a pure state alcohol is greenish in color, while water is distinctly blue in shade.

Decorating Candles.

Candles can be easily decorated by the following method: The designs can be selected from paper prints tightly wrapped around the candle with the design in contact with the wax. Strike a match and play the flame over the back of the paper. Allow time enough for the melted wax to harden and then remove the paper. The print will be transferred to the wax. Select designs that are not larger than the circumference of the candle. A good impression of ink on thin paper works best.

Looking For Publicity.

"George," she said, "before we go any further I must insist that the word obey be dropped from the marriage service."

"Oh, pshaw!" he replied. "Why bother over that. It's a mere formality. Nobody expects it to be binding any more."

"That's all very well. But if we have it dropped the papers will give us a much more extended notice than they would otherwise."

And many a man has spent half his life in making a reputation—and the other half in trying to live it down.

ANDERSON—EVERSON.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the Free Methodist Church yesterday afternoon, when Miss Maud Everson of this city was united in marriage to Mr. James M. Anderson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. Cunningham, in the presence of a large number of friends and relatives. The bride was given away by her brother-in-law, Mr. Inkpin of Park Street.

After the ceremony a large company drove to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Spencer, 309 Townsend Street, where a sumptuous dinner was partaken of, after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon trip. On their return they will reside at 366 Chamberlain Street. The bride was the recipient of a large number of presents from her numerous friends.

Among the successful students at Highfield School, Hamilton, was M. B. Hamilton son of Mr. Miles Hamilton of Fenelon Falls and formerly of this city. He is also a grandson of the Hon. Samuel Barker, M.P., member for east Hamilton. He will enter the Royal Military College next year.

Mr. Harold Smith of St. Alban's College, Brockville, a Peterboro boy was successful in obtaining his entrance to R.M.C. Mr. Smith won laurels at St. Albans as an athlete. He will enter R.M.C. this fall. The only local student in the Collegiate Institute to win honors by being successful was Reginald Stratton son of A. H. Stratton. He will also enter R.M.C. this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson, Coldwater, announce the engagement of their second daughter, Ethel, to Mr. William McKenzie, Campbellford. The mariage will take place the latter part of June.

Mr. W. H. Martin of Toronto is in the city on business.

Mr. J. A. McKercher of Ottawa is among the guests at the Snowden House.

Monsignor Casey, Vicar-General of the Diocese, of Lindsay, is in the city today.

The friends of Miss Ann Henry, daughter of Mr. T. Henry, Westcott Street, will be pleased to learn that she successfully underwent an operation yesterday afternoon in St. Joseph's Hospital for appendicitis.

Mr. L. E. Adams and Mrs. Adams of Ottawa, were in the city yesterday.

Mr. Reginald Mundstock of Toronto, was among the guests in the city today.

Hon. James Duff of Toronto, registered at the Oriental last evening.

Miss Gibson of Toronto, passed through the city this morning en route to the Kawartha Lakes.

Mr. G. B. Galbraith of Montreal, is among the guests in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. Myott Williams of Havelock are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Knox, Gilmour Street.

The Rev. Mr. Gaul of Belleville and daughter Lucy have returned to Belleville after having been the guests for several days of Mr. and Mrs. Joa. Knox, Gilmour Street.

Miss Vera Knox, Gilmour Street, is visiting friends in Belleville.

GOVERNOR OF PRISON IS MURDERED

Canadian Press Despatch.

Cerbere, France, June 12.—While prison guards at Figueras just over the Spanish border were watching the Corpus Christi procession yesterday convicts seized the governor of the prison and beat him to death. They then plundered the arms and ammunition chest and attempted escape.

Troops and armed guards were quickly on the scene and in the fighting that followed a number of convicts were killed or wounded.

PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT

Hitch in Senate Causes Short Delay

Canadian Press Despatch.

June 12.—Owing to the hitch in the Senate in passing the address to the Imperial Parliament asking for legislation to enable the Government to increase the Western senatorial representation, prorogation of Parliament was delayed to-day and will not take place until 4.30 this afternoon. It had been set for three p.m. to-day.

GREEK PREMIER SAYS SITUATION IS VERY GRAVE

Canadian Press Despatch.

Athens, June 12.—Premier Venizelos speaking in the chamber of the deputies this morning on the treatment of Greek subjects in Turkey, uttered a warning which fell little short of a declaration of war. "I do not wish to allow to escape me words which canont be recalled but I should fail in my duty if I did not inform the chamber that the situation has become grave in fact very grave," said the Premier. "If a stop is not put to these conditions the Hellenic government will be forced not to contest itself with joining in the lamentations of the happy refugees."

The Premier added that a thousand Greek refugees had reached home already from Turkey while thousands more were only waiting transportation facilities in order to escape from their persecutors.

TOLLS BILL PASSES

Senate Repeals Discriminative Tariff by 50 to 35

WASHINGTON, June 12. — The Senate last night passed the Panama Canal tolls repeal bill with the single amendment agreed to by a vote of 50 to 35. The measure now goes back to the House for consideration by a joint committee.

The conclusion of the protracted struggle over the measure followed a day filed with roll-calls, short, trenchant speeches, heated colloquies, and a near-fight between Senator Vardaman, Democrat, of Mississippi, and Senator West, Democrat, of Georgia.

The clash which was the chief excitement of the evening arose directly from a reference made by Senator Vardaman to the fact that the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace had spent $20,000 in the dissemination of literature upholding the contention that the tolls exemption violated the Hay-Pauncefote treaty.

Every effort to make the Simmons-Norris compromise amendment stronger yesterday was voted down by a large majority. The greatest strength of the Opposition, both within and without the party, was mustered for that compromise, which in itself is still without the approval of President Wilson.

Huerta to Forgo Naming Successor

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., June 12. —An important point in the plans for the pacification of Mexico was gained by the United States last night when it was agreed that the transfer of authority from the present administration to the new provisional government should be accomplished in some other way than by Gen. Huerta's appointment of a Minister of Foreign Affairs, who would succeed to the provisional Presidency.

This method provided for in the Mexican constitution will be abandoned because the United States insisted that to assent to it would be tantamount to a recognition of Gen. Huerta's right to exercise constitutional functions.

On this point the mediation conference had been wrestling for three weeks, and for the past three days continuance of the conference had been threatened.

Finally, yesterday, when the Americans were working through the mediators and matters seemed at a breaking point, Luis Elguero, one of the Mexican delegates entered the conference room and immediately a spirit of compromise was noticeable. Observing it, the Americans suggested that the other Mexicans join in the conference, and Emilio Rabasa and Augustin Rodriguez joined the group. It was not a full conference of the formal kind with which the proceedings here were inaugurated, but an impromptu get-together talk. In a surprisingly brief time the Americans found they had made more headway with the Mexicans directly than they had previously by working through the mediators.

Justice Lamar dictated the following, after the conference:

"I was authorized by the mediators to say that we have substantially agreed on the first plank as to the method of transfer of authority to the new provisional government."

Mr. Lehman said: "Progress toward an agreement had been made," and emphasized the importance of the full conference, saying another would be held to-day.

NOTES FOR THE POULTRY-KEEPER

Every beginner should realize at the very outset that there is no one breed of poultry that fulfils every economic requirement. Therefore, the first consideration for the novice is to which particular branch he intends to devote his energies. Having decided this all-important matter, then comes the selection of the most suitable breed for the purpose. There are several different branches of poultry-keeping, each of which offers excellent inducements provided it is taken up in the right spirit and the conditions are favorable.

Egg Production.

The most important branch of poultry-keeping is egg production. It is not confined to one district, but is universal throughout the length and breadth of the country. At the same time, as will be readily understood, the demand is governed by the extent of the population, so that poultry-keepers living within easy reach of large cities have special opportunities. Living on the spot, it is in their own hands entirely. If they are alive to the fact, and take advantage of this ready outlet for their produce, then they need fear no rival.

Table Poultry.

Another branch of poultry-keeping in which much has yet to be accomplished is the production of table chickens. The demand for this branch is, however, much more limited than is the demand for eggs, and it is only in certain districts where it is advisable to produce the finest class of these birds. In some parts of the country any kind of table poultry finds a more or less ready sale. I am not, however, advising the prospective poultry-keeper to market "any kind" of table poultry, but rather to create a demand for better birds by the improved quality of his wares. Probably it is the plan of supplying both eggs and poultry that appeals to the largest number of poultry-keepers, since for this dual purpose there is greater scope for keeping more than one type of fowl, which always appears more attractive to the beginner.

Sitting of Eggs.

What might be termed another branch of poultry-keeping is that of having one or more pens of pure-bred fowls, and selling sittings of eggs in the Spring of the year. These eggs cannot, of course, be disposed of at the high prices charged by the man who has had years of experience, and has gained a reputation for the quality of his stock by the expenditure of both money and energy. He should, however, provided that the stock is good, have no difficulty in getting, say, three times the price that he would obtain for the breakfast egg. In addition to the sale of sittings, and during the period when there is no demand in this direction, he can market his eggs for consumption through the ordinary channels. There are, however, large numbers of beginners who set out with the express purpose of ultimately budding forth into fanciers. Although this object is very worthy, at the same time I am regarding the matter from the utilitarian standpoint only.

Demand of the Locality.

As these remarks are intended expressly for the benefit of the novice, and those who are thinking of taking up the work, it would be well at the commencement to state some of the chief factors which ought to be regarded before deciding which branch of poultry the prospective keeper intends going in for. The local demand should be the chief governing fact. As a matter of fact, if the man who takes up utility poultry-keeping disregards the commodity that is mostly in demand, and tries to launch out in other directions (unless, of course, there are special circumstances which warrant his doing so), he is handicapped from the outset by perhaps endeavoring to create a demand for something which the district does not require.

General Conditions.

There is, however, another consideration which must be regarded before operations are actually commenced, and that is the conditions as to the nature of soil and the amount of land that is available. This is highly important in that certain breeds do well on soils that would very considerably retard success with other varieties. Then, again, there are some breeds that require more shelter than do others. All birds, of course, need shelter, but exposure affects some breeds to a greater extent than it does others, even those of similar type. Therefore, when it is understood that some breeds do better than others under conditions that at first sight appear to be unsuitable for poultry, the beginner will see how necessary it is that he should learn the nature of the soil, know the shelter that is naturally available, or the facilities there may be for erecting it, before he selects his breeds. The next consideration is the amount of space available for the fowls. The majority of the various breeds, with the exception of four or five, thrive in confinement, but it must all be understood that while this is perfectly true, some breeds are more suitable for cramped quarters than are others. Having now grasped the importance of producing that which will find the readiest sale, and having considered the general conditions and circumstances in which the birds are to be kept, the next step is to select the breeds most suitable for the purpose. These will be discussed in a later article.

ALPINE CLIMBING in CANADIAN ROCKIES

1. Field—(Canadian Pacific Hotel) Starting Point. 2. Mt. Wapta. 3. Road to Emerald Lake. 4. Swiss Alpine Guide (Brought from the Alps with several others by Canadian Pacific.) Tame Mountain Goat. 5. Twin Falls. 6. Emerald Lake Chalet. 7. Field, B. C., Mt. Stephen in background. 8. Takakkaw Falls.

Three weeks of rugged simplicity, of getting back to Nature in her mightiest, most awe-inspiring form, a close communion with hoary headed peaks, dashing waterfalls, majestic ice rivers, deep, dense forests with their impressive unbroken solitudes, away from man-made noises and civilization, that in brief is the programme outlined for this year's camp in the Upper Yoho Valley by the Alpine Club of Canada. What more fitting place could be chosen than in the heart of Canada's Wonderland—in the midst of a profusion of towering cathedral-like domes reaching sky-ward far beyond the clouds?

With the true instinct of the mountaineer, the climbers of the Alpine Club have this year selected a site for their camp on the timber line and eighteen miles from Field, British Columbia, the nearest railway station. Even the pulsations of the engine and the screeching of its whistle as it curves its way through the ravines and over the mountains will be lost long before they reach the campers. There will be nothing to disturb the stillness save the songs and cries of the birds and the rustling of the wind.

The plans for the camping are all made and definitely settled. Mr. A. C. Wheeler, A. C., Topographer for the Department of the Interior, residing at Sidney, B.S., is to guide the party and superintend all operations in his capacity as director of the Alpine Club. On July 21 the camps will be opened and will remain so until August 11, when the mountain climbers will return to their civilized haunts and resume their daily duties. The start is to be made from Field, B.C., on Tuesday, the above date. Regular trips are to be made every day by a baggage wagon to and from the camp, so that any of the party who wish may either arrive in camp after the formal opening or leave before the closing.

A most ambitious climbing program has been outlined for this year and summarized it appears about as follows: The President Mt., 10,287 ft.; the Vice-President Mt., 10,049 ft.; Mt. Marpole, 9,822 ft.; Mt. Kerr, 9,384 ft.; Mt. Carnarvon, 9,964 ft.; on the south side of Yoho Valley: Kiwetinok Peak, 9,512 ft.; and Mt. Pollinger at the head; Isolated Peak, 9,224 ft., and Mt. Whaleback, 8,559 feet on the north side of Yoho Valley; Mt. McArthur 9,882 ft.; Mt. Habel 10,361 ft.; and Mt. Collie, 10,315 ft., from the Wapta ice field. To the east across the Yoho River Mt. Gordon, 10,336 ft.; Mt. Trolltinder, 9,414 ft.; and Mt. Balfour, 10,731 ft., can be reached.

Many of the new members of the party will "win their spurs" on this trip and become classed as active members, having scaled, according to rule, "and glacier hung peak 10,000 or more feet in height that fills the requirements as to supply of snow and rock." One of the peaks that is suggested is the President, which rises 10,287 feet above sea level. This climb is recommended for those who wish to "graduate" and is considered an admirable test of the abilities of those not classed as Alpine mountaineers.

There are to be two camps established, one on the timber line and another a short distance above. The former is to be the head camp where the executives of the expedition will hold forth, where orders will be issued, and in general where the directing and organizing forces will be located. From here there are to be four trips made. These trips are to be as follows: First, via Emerald Pass between Mt. President and Mt. Marpole descending to the valley below Mt. Carnarvon, Yoho Pass to the High Trail and thence to camp; second, via same route out of camp, stop the night at Emerald Chalet and return the next day via Yoho Pass, Michael's Peak, Vice President and President mountains to camp; third from camp to Mt. Marpole, low peak between Mt. Marpole and Carnarvon, descending via Emerald Peak to Emerald Lake Chalet for the night, next day, via Yoho Pass, Michael Peak, Vice President and President Mountains to camp; fourth, Kiwetinok Peak, Mt. McArthur, Mt. Wapta ice field and returning between Isolated Peak and Whaleback mountain.

From Yoho Glacier camp there are three trips arranged as follows: First, crossing the glacier and ascending the east branch of the Yoho river to the Fall of the Waves, Diableret Falls, to the Glacier below Mt. Balfour and the Wapta Icefield keeping north of Mt. Gordon and thence home via the Yoho Glacier; second, using the same route via Vulture Col, crossing the main divide descending the Bow Glacier, Gordon Canyon to camp for the night at Bow Lake, returning to camp the next day going north to Mt. Gordon via Yoho Glacier (on this trip bedding and food must be carried); third, in the same manner, Hector Lake will be visited via Balfour Glacier. The mountaineers declare that trips two and three will be very strenuous and well worth the while of the most energetic Alpine climbers. Those who are at the head of the organization say that many side trips can be arranged to suit those who desire real arduous work and will carry covering in which to sleep and food enough for two days.

The Alpine Club of Canada has been organized for about ten years and the outing this year is to be the tenth annual camp. Every effort is being expended by those at the head of the organization to make the camp this year the largest in the history of the club. Other camps have held approximately two hundred persons who have stayed the entire term of the encampment. Persons of high station in life and many prominent in the scientific, professional, commercial and political affairs of this and other countres have been numbered among those who have sought the "camps in the mountains" of the Canadian Alpine Club.

There is no sport which is gaining so rapidly in popularity as mountain climbing. But a few years ago it was confined to the more venturesome, while today it is restricted only to those possessing sound bodies and a love for solitudes, camp life and good healthful exercise. It is, however, territorily restricted, in the main, to the districts served by the railways, as the problem of getting into an uninhabited country are difficult. There is, however, ample opportunity for the most enthusiastic and ambitious mountain climber, in the Canadian Rockies. There are thousands of places in the Rockies where none save the trapper and the prospector has travelled and hundreds of places that have yet to know the beat of the white man's boot. Any station, from Calgary to the Pacific Coast, can easily be utilized as a starting point for travellers to the roof of Canada.

THE SUMMER MILK FLOW

George C. Humphrey, of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, has been giving considerable attention to the different ways of keeping up the Summer milk flow. This is a subject which might well receive consideration at this season of the year, for the milk flow is only maintained by providing green or succulent feed of some kind when the pastures begin to dry up and are insufficient.

Dairymen who have a supply of silage which will be available are most fortunate and have simplified the matter of feeding their cows successfully through the Summer. Sunburned pastures present no terrors for them. Experiments have proved that good corn silage is equal to green soiling crops for Summer milk production and is much more conveniently fed to cows than are green soiling crops which have to be hauled from the fields. Dairymen who do not have special silos for Summer feeding may well at this time consider the advisability of building a silo and planting an extra amount of silage corn to enable them to take advantage of silage during the Summer of the following year.

Mr. Humphrey is advising farmers who do not have silage available for the coming Summer to grow a system of soiling crops which can be fed during the period of drought. Oats and peas sown at the rate of two bushels of peas and one of oats at intervals of two weeks may be recommended. Plots of one-quarter of an acre seeded at different intervals are considered sufficient for ten cows during the season when these crops can be fed. Early and late varieties of sweet corn and field corn probably provide the most acceptable Summer soiling crops, and may be fed to advantage as soon as the corn reaches the milk stage. When green corn reaches the milk stage it has been found to be somewhat superior to corn silage for keeping up the flow of milk. Early Amber sorghum cut when the heads are nicely out has been found an excellent soiling crop.

Taking into consideration however, the expense of harvesting, hauling and preparation of green soiling crops during each day and all kinds of weather during the Summer season and also the difficulties such as unfavorable seasons, which shorten the crop, wind and rainstorms, which do damage to soiling crops and make it difficult to handle them, it is believed that dairymen will find it most profitable to put up a silo and depend upon silage rather than soiling crops for keeping up the Summer milk supply.

HOUSE FOR LAYING HENS

A plan of a permanent laying house for poultry, with brief description and an estimate of material required for the house as planned, is contained in pamphlet No. 5 of the Poultry Division of the Live Stock Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. This plan has been specially prepared for use in the Province of Prince Edward Island by W. A. Brown and T. A. Benson; however, it includes a number of features, which in the opinion of the writers could be advantageously adopted throughout the greater part of the Dominion of Canada. Copies of this pamphlet may be obtained free upon application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Nautical Information.

"By the way, captain," said the sweet young thing on the second day out, with a smiling attempt to be chummy, "where does Mother Carey feed her chickens?"

"In the trough of the sea, young woman," replied the captain of the ocean liner, with solemn dignity.

FIELD HUSBANDRY EXPERIMENTS

The Experimental Farm at Ottawa and the Branch Farms and Stations make field husbandry investigations a very prominent part of their work. For the information of those who are interested the more important results of last season's work over the entire system have been summarized and issued in Bulletin No. 75 of the Experimental Farms. It takes up the question of rotation, cultivation, fertilizers, rates of seeding, cost of production, weed eradication and other points connected with field agriculture. The information is presented by Farms and Stations and is, therefore, easily available for study. This bulletin is for free distribution at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Advantage of Credit.

"My big sister has a beau."

"So's mine, but I don't like him."

"Know what my sister 'd do if I didn't like her beau?"

"No. What'd she do?"

"She'd send him back and get him changed, 'cause we've got a charge account at the store he comes from."

Immensities and Eternities.

Herschel in his day revealed the immensities and the eternities as they had never been revealed before, and to us of the present day the universe is much greater than to Herschel and his contemporaries. Five hundred millions of stars are known—500,000,000 flaming suns whirling through space and carrying along with them in all probability systems of planets and satellites. There are stars at all stages of development, from the nebulous mass at the beginning of its star life to the dim red variables flickering as they die out into the darkness. This is the universe, "grand, splendid and sublime," which Flammarion reveals to his readers.—London Everyman.

Fighting Fires With Chemicals.

That chemicals will entirely take the place of water within the next five years as a means of fighting fire was the prophecy made at a recent convention of fire-fighters. In the large cities most of the small fires are now put out with chemicals, and it is not a big step from this to the use of guns for shooting powdered chemicals or chemical bombs into buildings for putting out big blazes. As an argument against the use of water, a case was referred to where in a small fire the fire loss was $5,000, while the loss due to the water poured on the flames amounted to no less than $20,000.

THE HINDUS ARE BROKE

Their Ship Will Return if $15,000 is Not Provided.

VANCOUVER, June 11.—Captain Yamamoto, master of the Komagata Maru, received a cable yesterday morning from the owners in Kobe, definitely instructing him to sail from Vancouver to-day for the orient, if the remainder of the charter money, amounting to $15,000, is not paid on behalf of the 360 Hindus now aboard, by that time.

Monday evening a consignment of provisions was sent out to them, but they paid only $100 in cash and gave a balance of $1,000. They declare they cannot get the money to complete payment unless they are allowed ashore, and this the immigration officers will not permit.

If the ship sails to-day, trouble is looked for. The ship owners have no responsibility for provisioning. It will re[illegible] many thousands of dollar[illegible]y provisions for the return [illegible] and the Hindus insist they have [illegible] money to buy any unless allowed ashore.

Makes Some Remarks About the Women Folks

By M. QUAD

[Copyright, 1914, by Associated Literary Press.]

We read that before Noah sailed with his ark he drove into it a male and female of every species of animal on earth. As America was not discovered until thousands of years later, we used to wonder how he got his coons and possums and skunks. It was not until we had been licked by a deacon, an elder and a minister that we decided to cease wondering and put in more time in the 'tater patch.

I believe that every man is the better for having something to struggle for. I have been struggling for years to get a second pair of trousers ahead, but every time I have accomplished it my wife has been quick to give the old pair away to a tramp, leaving me as before. Still, I have had the excitement of the struggle, and the tramps had the little glad surprises.

I think that a husband, no matter how long he has been married nor how long since the romance departed, should now and then surprise his wife with a bouquet. I think so, and yet every time I have tried it the wife has invariably replied:

"Very nice of you, Lisha, but I really wish you had brought some rat poison instead."

People say that I am getting very forgetful, but there's an offset to console me. When my wife asks me for a dollar I can forget the amount she named and put her off with 25 cents.

Give things a chance and they will even up. My neighbor sued me for keeping a barking dog, and the suit was not yet decided when he had to abandon his own home on account of his wife's singing.

I have been told that you can judge a man's character by his whiskers. Mebbe so, but it was an old chap with whiskers who stole my dog; it was a man with burnsides who picked my pocket; it was a man with a goatee who highway robbed me, and it was a chap with a mustache that I found in my house at midnight. I doubt if you can tell by the hair on a dog whether he will bite or run.
